"As a 17-year customer of the T, specifically the Red Line, if I'm really honest I have to say I had problems with the T long before it started snowing. Interestingly enough, with all those problems, this quite honestly was the last body I thought I'd need to come to to resolve any of those specific issues," Finn said.

"I know, however, particularly given the historic situation that we're in, that it's important to be able to stand in solidarity with our constituents and be able to give voice to the frustration that I'm going through and I'm sure Brad and Doug are perhaps going through as well.

"I have to actually say that I really like what our governor had to say in the sense of saying 'let's just get through this.' Because there are a host of complex issues that lay before us."

Koch on Monday said the amount of snow Greater Boston has received recently – nearly 100 inches over the span of a month – does cause problems with the transit system. He is unsure, however, about some of the decisions MBTA officials made, like not running trains to keep snow off tracks.

"This amount of snow complicates all the other issues they have through the aging infrastructure. That being said, decisions were made or not made that I don't really understand. They usually keep the trains running constantly to keep the snow off the tracks. For the power to be shutdown to the third rail, I just don't understand why some of these decisions were made," Koch said.

"I do expect at a future Advisory Board meeting there will be some presentations to the communities, letting them know why some of these decisions were made or not made, whether there was any good reason for them, or whether there was a failure of leadership. I'm not clear on all that quite yet.

"I think everybody agrees there is a lot of infrastructure improvements needed at the T, particularly the Red Line. Others can talk about the commuter rail in other communities, but it's the Red Line my residents depend on and that was a clear failure. During that process the failure of communication was horrible, too. There is no reason the public could not have been better communicated to. To be waiting two hours in frigid, single degree temperatures is not acceptable. People depend on it for their livelihood.

"The MBTA has a long way to go where they need to be and it's going to take years."

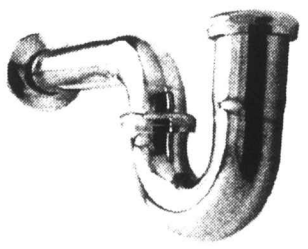
Clogged Sink? Try Clearing P-trap

Q: I read your article on slow-draining sinks and tips for cleaning the pop-up stopper. My bathroom sink isn't draining fast at all. I checked the stopper but it's clear. What else can I do? -- Jae C., via email



A: In your case there may be a clog further down the line, at or near the P-trap. This is the big bend in the pipe just below the sink. (It looks like a big J or a sideways P, hence the name).

Clogs made up of soapy gunk and hair often collect at the bottom of this bend. It happens so frequently that many P-traps today have a big plug at the bottom to access and clean the area.

To clear it, you'll need an adjustable/locking wrench or pipe wrench, a bucket, a plumbing snake (also known as a hand auger) and some rags. Place the bucket directly under the trap.

If you have a cleanout plug, wrap a rag around it and use the adjustable wrench to loosen it, then unscrew by hand. Water will gush out into the bucket, so be prepared. Clean the P-trap using a small bottle-brush or a modified wire hanger to reach in and grab the clog, or feed the pipe snake in a couple inches at a time and whirl it around to catch and pull out clogs further in.

If you don't have a cleanout plug, the trap itself can be removed by loosening the attachment nuts on either end of the curved pipe by hand. If they're really tight, wrap a rag around each nut before using a pipe wrench or locking wrench, so you don't scratch or strip the nuts. Loosen and then unscrew by hand, easing the trap downward until it comes off.

Clean the trap itself, and inspect the tailpipe that leads upward to the sink for clogs, as well as the pipe feeding into the wall. Fish out any clogs you can see.

Now slide the trap back into place and hand-tighten the nuts. Don't overtighten. To test the seal, run water down the drain and slowly tighten until any leakage stops. If it still leaks, replace the seals located at each nut.

TIP: If your sink and tub drains clog frequently with hair, buy some inexpensive mesh drain traps and clean them daily to minimize the problem.

Registry Of Deeds Food Drive Benefits QCAP

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell recently delivered food donations to the Quincy Community Action Program Emergency Food Center. The donations were made by the employees and visitors during the Registry's Annual Holiday Food Drive.

"On behalf of the many people who contributed to the Registry's food drive, it is my pleasure to deliver this food to the QCAP Emergency Food Center," O'Donnell said. "Many of our neighbors are living through some tough times. Project Bread has estimated that more than one out of every 10 Massachusetts households are struggling with food security."

QCAP Emergency Food Center assists approximately 550 families each month. Their website is www.qcap.org and their email address is malexander@qcap.org.

"While the holiday food drive has ended, it does not stop hunger from being a year-round problem, especially in the winter. These harshly cold months are the toughest for people to budget, especially with the high price of home heating fuel. I am still encouraging residents to drop-off food supplies at their local pantries across Norfolk County. Pantries are requesting canned goods, breakfast cereals, pasta, sauces, toiletries and paper products. Dropping off a food donation at a local pantry goes a long way to helping a family in need," O'Donnell said.

Anyone who wishes to contact a local pantry can find a list of the county's city and towns pantries on the Registry of Deeds website at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Home Decorating Tips

By BARBARA GRACEFFA

Question: I'm planning a party for my husband's 40th birthday in a few weeks. Any ideas to decorate my home for the event?

Ellen

Answer: Design is in the details. Think of a theme and plan around it. Maybe it's a beach theme – and how cool that would be after this historic winter. Use a beach towel for a table cloth. Spread some spices on the table to look like sand. Use lanterns for candle holders. Assemble a bowl of seashells or scatter them around your buffet table. Use a few plastic sand pails as dishes for your food and the little shovels as serving spoons. Finally, invest in some new coastal-themed pillows and artwork that you can enjoy for years to come.

Question: Can you give me some ideas of how to incorporate the memories from our recent wedding and honeymoon into our décor?

Suzy and Mark

Answer: Traditional suggestions include framing your wedding invitation and blowing up pictures from your honeymoon destination or assemble a scrapbook-style frame and include your airline tickets and other souvenirs. Also, choose the best photo of the two of you and invest in a great frame and give it a place of honor in your home. Thinking outside the box for a unique decor item, I've even made a floral arrangement from a bride's pair of beaded shoes.

Tie, Win Finish Off Season For Q-NQ Girls Hockey

RILEY MCLAUGHLIN brings the puck up ice for the Quincy-North Quincy girls hockey team in a 4-1 loss to Whitman-Hanson/Silver Lake last Thursday night. Q-NQ tied Hanover-Cohasset 2-2 Friday and defeated Scituate Sunday 4-1 to wrap up their regular season.

Freshman Julie Whalen Scores Hat Trick In 4-1 Season Finale Win Over Scituate

By BILL GRIFFIN

For a four-year starter like Julia Donovan, the end of the hockey season is a time of different emotions.

There is the satisfaction with the improvement her team made over her senior season. There are the good memories of good times with good friends playing the games she loves. There is a bit of sadness playing out the end of her career which began when she was seven years old. And mostly, there is a fine hockey player who can influence a game with her scoring, hustle, passing and checking.

Donovan scored a beautiful goal and sophomore Karissa Beal was terrific in net to gain Quincy/North Quincy a 2-2 tie with Hanover-Cohasset in a well-played contest at the Shea Rink Friday morning.

They earned it.

Quincy played five games in five nights. The Presidents played six games in eight nights. They had time for exactly two practices in two weeks. They played a schedule which would make an NBA team howl and surrender. There was no time to prepare, no time to rest, little time to breathe. They just played. Night after night.

They entered off an emotional loss on the road against Duxbury. They had to win the final game on the final day that a regular-season game could be played. They were tired and weary and they were behind by four points against a good team as halftime drew near. It was their moment of truth.

Usually, a team looks to its defense for a jump-start, and Quincy's defense was just fine. But it was a shoot-

Red Raiders Gritty Rallies Fall Short Against New Bedford

Coach Kevin Barrett: 'I Couldn't Be Prouder Of Our Effort'

By BILL GRIFFIN

Road games in the tournament are never easy. Road games against long, athletic teams who can press are especially difficult.

No. 16 seed New Bedford opened up sizable leads in both the first and second halves, and held off a pair of gritty rallies from No. 17 seed North Quincy to drop the Raiders, 67-57 in the preliminary round of the Division 1 South Sectionals Monday night in New Bedford.

North finishes the season at 11-10 and if the Red Raiders are to be judged by the quality of their effort against New Bedford, they can remember the season finale with pride.

"I couldn't be prouder of our effort," said coach Kevin Barrett. "We fell behind a couple of times, but we never stopped fighting. We played hard. The perseverance the kids showed represented the program and the school well."

Before the game, North's big concern was outside marksman Ben Clark who hit 11 threes in a 20-point win over Brockton during the regular season. North handled him well and held him to five points with a combination of zone and man-to-man defenses, but the hosts were able to balance out their scoring to get the necessary offense.

"We really did a good job on Clark. The kids executed the game plan well," said Barrett. "However, New Bedford has a lot of weapons and they were able to spread around the scoring."

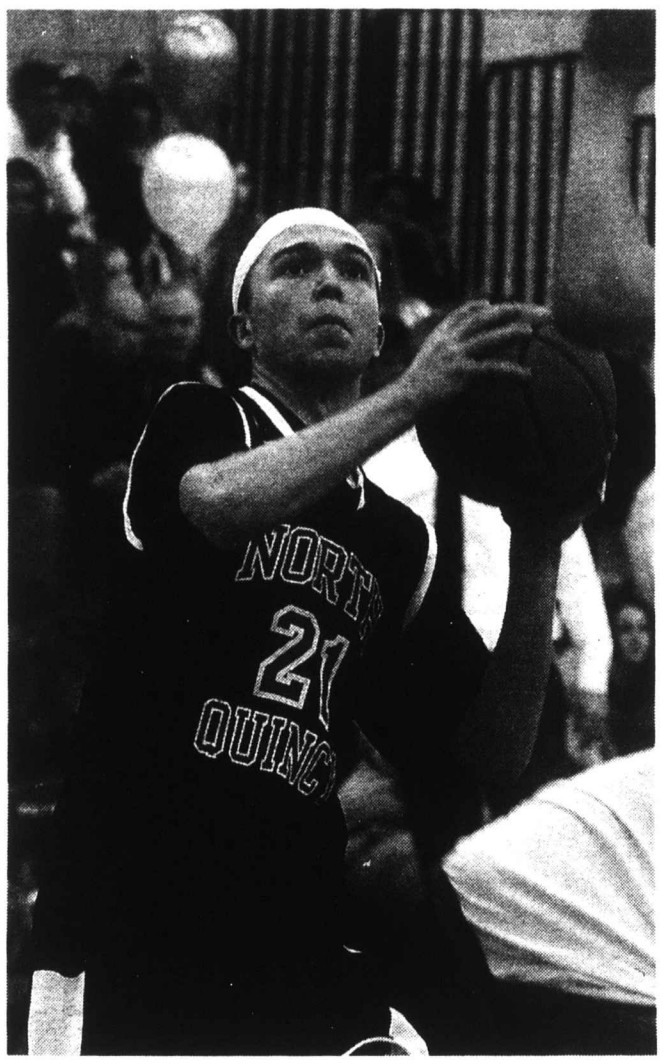
The key to the game for New Bedford was their 1-2-2, three-quarter press which caused turnovers and dictated the tempo of the game.

"They are fast and athletic. The press let them play the pace they wanted for long stretches of the game," said Barrett.

New Bedford went up by 13 early, but North cut it to four at the half. The Whalers stretched it to 11 early in the second half, but the Red Raiders battled back again and were within five in the final minutes.

"We hung in with them and did a better job against the press especially in the second half. We were down five with a possession late in the game, but couldn't convert," said Barrett.

The Red Raiders had most of their success when they were aggressive and attacked the press. Senior Matt Gerakis went to the hoop, and forced his way to the foul line for 13 free throws. He made 10 of them, seven in the second half, and led North in scoring with 16. Senior Solomon Umoren had two big hoops going to the bucket in the third period to chip away at the New Bedford lead. Umoren finished with 13.



SENIOR MATT GERAKIS scored a team-high 16 points but the Red Raiders bowed to New Bedford 67-57 in the preliminary round of the Division 1 South Sectionals Monday night.

"When we were aggressive against their trap, we scored or got to the line for free throws. That's when we played our best," said Barrett.

Junior point guard Dhaaky Drake did good job running the offense against the pressure and had 13 points. Jackie Chen played another fine all-around floor game and finished with 11. Conor Pound and Mike Soricelli each had two.

"We had good balance," said Barrett. "When we got to the basket, we had success, but it's difficult against a long, athletic team like New Bedford."

North will graduate five seniors and they will be missed. Gerakis is a four-year varsity player who was always a model teammate. He had a career high 32 against Scituate his junior year, but he will be remembered for far more than just points.

"Matt was always a team-first player. I remember calling him up to varsity as a freshman. For four years, he always put the program and the team above himself," said Barrett.

Umoren played terrific defense as a two-year starter and was almost impossible to stop in one-on-one situations when he took the ball to the hoop. His three-point jumper as the shot clock expired which put away the tournament game against Quincy junior year in the tournament will always be part of North Quincy folklore.

Chen made great progress as an all-around player in two years on varsity. He began his varsity career by nailing four threes in a win over Brockton. In the tournament last year, he grabbed an offensive rebound and sank the clinching free throws in the final seconds to upset Newton North and send the Red Raiders to the sectional finals for the second straight year.

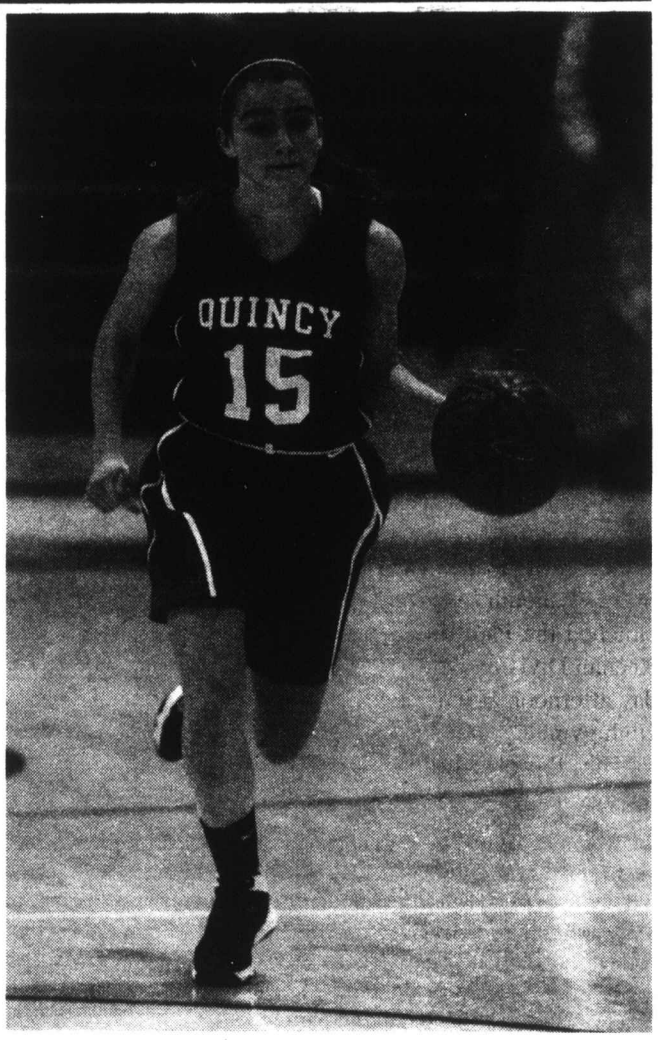
"Jackie's progress in two years has been something special to watch," said Barrett. "He proved he could shoot right away, but he also established himself as an excellent all-around player. His effort was special. Solomon was instrumental in all of our success. When the sting of this loss wears off, I'm sure he'll be able to reflect and appreciate what he did for the program."

Matt Alexander and Cornelius Koch also made contributions off the bench.

"They were both great teammates," said Barrett. "They played and practiced hard. Because they pushed the starters in practice, they made us a better team. They were both in the program for four years. They are two great kids."

Drake, Pound and Soricelli will return. Drake and Pound started every game as juniors. Soricelli saw considerable action. Drake is quick at the point and will surely benefit from a year of varsity experience. Pound is a solid post player. Soricelli brings energy and an improved three-point shot.

"We're disappointed, but we think the future is bright," said Barrett. "Those three kids will dedicate themselves during the summer and we'll bring along others as well. All three saw the success we've had in the tournament in the past, and they'll remember how much this one hurts. That will motivate them. The program is in good shape."



LIANA CUNNINGHAM and the Quincy girls basketball team finished the regular season with a 14-5 record and earned the No. 4 seed in the Div. 1 South Sectionals. Quincy hosted No. 11 seed Durfee Tuesday night after The Quincy Sun went to press. With a win, the Presidents would travel to No. 3 seed Newton South tonight (Thursday) for a 6:30 p.m tip off. The girls finished the season with four straight wins including a 53-43 win over Pembroke Feb. 18 and a 53-45 victory over Plymouth North Feb. 19. Quincy Sun File Photo/Robert Bosworth

Quincy Lions Club Hosts Team Hoyt Speaker Dick Hoyt At March 5th Luncheon

The Quincy Lions Club will host inspiration speaker Dick Hoyt at its noon luncheon Thursday, March 5 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

Hoyt will speak on the topic "Together- You Can Do Anything!"

Rick Hoyt uses a wheelchair. That has not stopped him from living a very full and amazing life. He, along with his dad, Dick, have formed "Team Hoyt" and they have competed around the world doing marathons and triathlons.

The Hoyts have competed in over 1,100 athletic events in the last 35 years. They have run in 71 marathons - 32 of them being the Boston Marathon. They have also completed in 252 triathlons, including six Ironman distance events.

Dick, 74, is a retired Lt. Colonel, having served in the military for 35 years. Rick, 53, is a graduate of Boston University with a degree in Special Education.

Rick was born in 1962 as a spastic quadriplegic with cerebral palsy and as a non-speaking person – but despite these disabilities, Rick's mind and spirit have always been strong. His family supported his quest for independence and inclusion in community, sports, education and the workplace, culminating with his graduation from Boston University.

Dick travels the country doing corporate and community presentations, educating the public about disability awareness and promoting the Team Hoyt motto, "Yes You Can". Through his presentation, Dick shares his lifelong commitment to changing attitudes and educating others on the world of disabilities. He and his family have seen an impact from their efforts in the area of public attitude toward people with disabilities.

To learn more about their story and see many pictures of their journey through their 35 years of racing, visit their website at www.teamhoyt.com.

Dick Hoyt's books, "One Letter at a Time," and "Devoted – A Father's Love of His Son," will be available for personalization and purchase at the luncheon.

The Quincy Lions Club is honored to have Dick Hoyt speak, in advance of the Club's 18th Annual Run Walk for Sight. The Quincy Lions Club Run/ Walk is the Club's signature fundraising event, and 100% of the proceeds raised support the club's community outreach initiatives. Visit www.quincylions.org/5k-run-walk-for-sight for registration and sponsorship information.

The luncheon is open to the public; pre-registration is requested by March 2nd. The cost of the luncheon is $20 and payments will be accepted the day of the presentation.

Hail To The Presidents: Patriot League Keenan Champs

er who led them. Senior Drew Myers, who has hit more than one or two clutch shots in his time at Quincy, drained two huge threes before intermission, and the energy in the gym changed and changed completely.

Myers finished with 25 points and six threes. He stayed smoking hot during an unforgettable 24-8 run in the third period which sent Quincy away to a 71-56 win over Plymouth North and clinched the Patriot League Keenan Division crown Friday afternoon at the Quincy High gym.

The Presidents finished the regular season at 16-4 overall and 14-2 in the league. It was their first league title since the 2007-2008 season. The fact that it was won at such a high price made it all the sweeter.

"It does make it more satisfying," said coach Dave Parry. "I've never heard of any team on any level playing five games in five nights. It's never happened. And we still had to win the the final game of the season. It was tough. I told the kids before the game that it was something they would remember for the rest of their lives."

"There was fatigue especially in the first half," said Myers. "But good teams have to play tough when they are tired. It was a long week, but we showed a lot of heart."

The win completed Quincy's pre-tournament bucket list. The Presidents won the city championship with a sweep over North. They won the Moscardelli Tournament. They won the league. The league was, by far, the most important. Anything can happen in one game. The better team does not always win. Over 16 games, the best team wins. Quincy had the best team.

"The league means the most," said Myers. "We came so close the last two years. Plus, it's been a long while since Quincy had won one. You play a lot of good teams and have to do a lot of good things over 16 games to win the league."

"The league is most important, no question. This team will always have a spot up on the banner that hangs in the gym," said Parry.

The third period should be preserved on a DVD and distributed to clinics. Start with Myers. After putting Quincy up, 34-32 at the break, he took over the game. He scored eight of Quincy's first 10 points in the third. He had 14 in the quarter. He knocked home two threes, drove to the bucket for three layups and hit a mid-range jumper. He blocked two shots, had two steals and set up a cutting J.T. Bain with an assist. Big stage. Big-time player.

"You could feel the momentum change after his second three before halftime," said Parry.

"I felt free and easy after I made the first two. Usually if I can get a couple to go down, I'm all right," said Myers.

And there was the defense. It started at point guard where Tyler Beach not only held Plymouth North's high-scoring Austin Ward to three points, but also frustrated and hounded him into a series of mistakes. This fueled Quincy's fullcourt trap which shut off the Eagles' offense, forced turnovers, and opened up the floor for the Presidents' trademark passing offense.

"It all started with Tyler. He frustrated the way they wanted to run their offense," said Parry. "A press doesn't always have to get a steal. It can force the ball to the wrong player in the wrong spot. That what we were able to do, and Tyler was the big reason."

How good was the defense? Quincy forced eight turnovers in the third period. Plymouth did not score in the final 2:40 of the first half and the first 4:00 of the second half. That's a shutout run of 6:40. The Eagles then scored on three offensive rebounds. They did not score off a set offensive play until there was 1:57 left in the period. They went over one full quarter without scoring out of their offense. Plymouth North is 12-8. The Eagles are a quality team. For one quarter against Quincy, getting the ball to midcourt was an achievement.

The lead grew to 58-40 after three and it was not threatened.

"The defense was effort. We knew it was our last chance, our last league game at home. We knew if we locked down on defense, our offense would come," said Myers.

And the offense arrived. The press cleared the passing lanes, and Quincy shared the ball and found each other for layups and easy jumpers. They pass best when they run. Everyone joined the party. They had nine assists in 10 baskets in the third period. They had 21 assists on 28 baskets for the game. Those are amazing numbers, numbers which reflect both unselfishness and rare passing ability by everyone who plays. Most teams are lucky to have one or two players who can pass. Quincy has five.

"We pass best in transition before the other team can set up. The turnovers from the press got us into transition," said Parry.

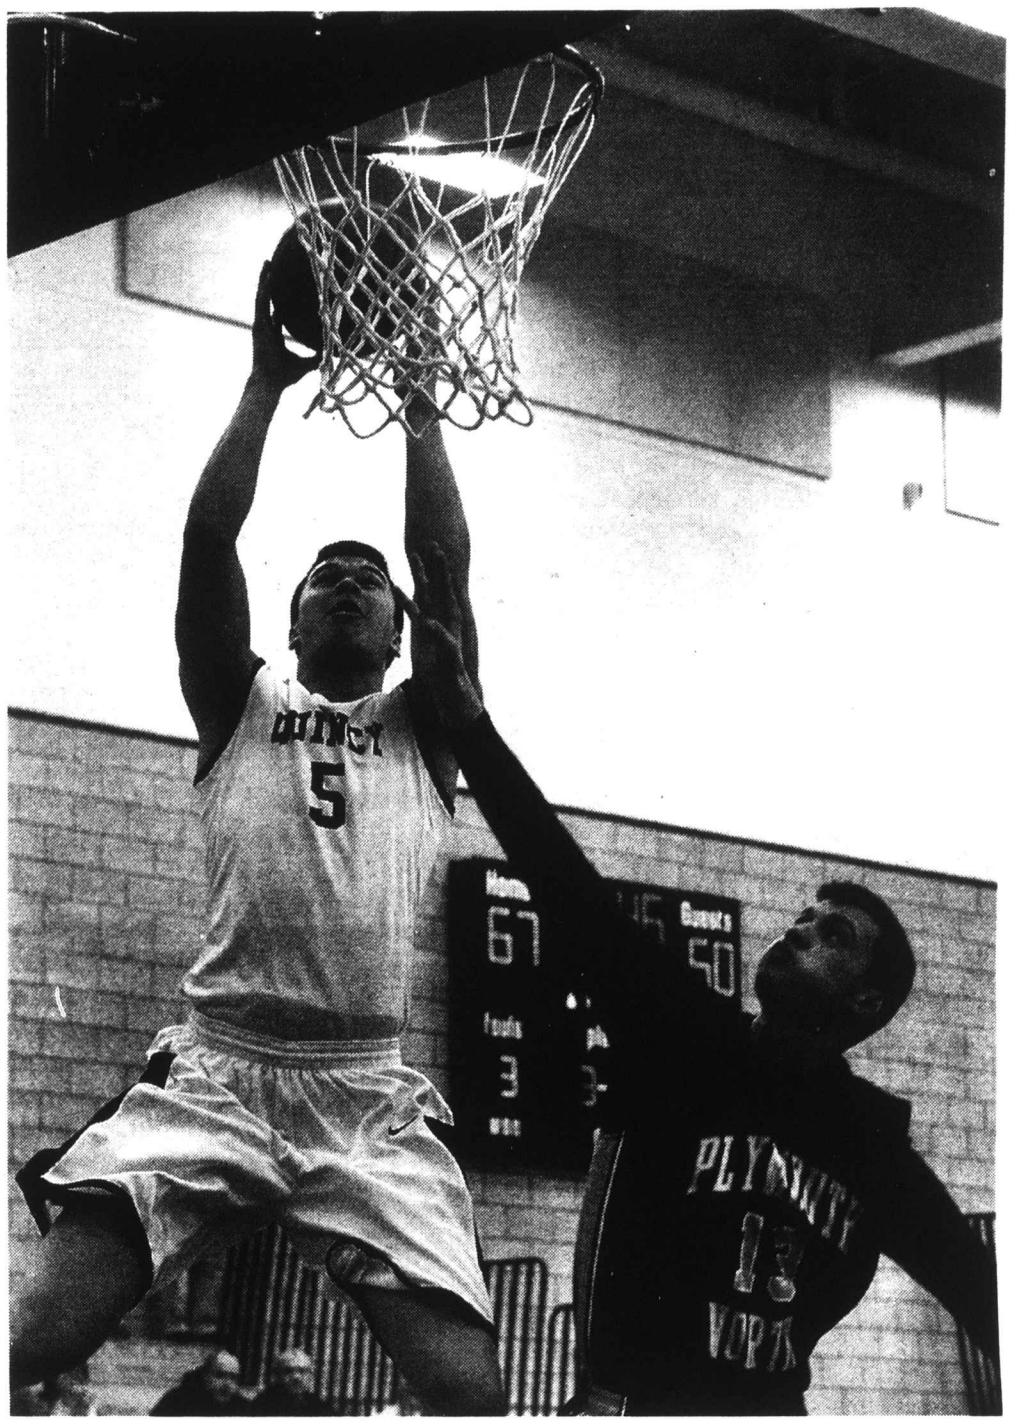
Bain hit Colin Evans with a long touchdown pass for a layup. Bain, Evans, and James Lam combined for a two-pass, full-court fast break on which the ball never touched the floor. Evans floated a perfect lob for a Lam layup. The passing balanced out the scoring. Lam (15), Evans (14) and Bain (11) hit double figures. Beach had four points which reveals almost nothing about the game he played.

"No matter what, my teammates keep looking and looking for me. I'm thankful to play with them," said Myers.

When it was over, there were hugs and smiles of jŏy and relief. This was a tired, happy team. Friends and family snapped team pictures on the closed end of the gym under the banner which will soon include their championship season. It was fitting that it ended at home, in their gym where they haven't lost a game all winter.

"It means a lot coming at home. We won the city championship here. We won the Moscardelli here. We won the league here. Those are memories the kids will always have," said Parry.

Quincy earned the No. 4 seed in the Div. 1 South Sectionals and hosted the winner of the West Roxbury – Barnstable game Wednesday night at 6:30 p.m. A win would advance the Presidents to the quarter finals against either Taunton or Needham Friday night at 6:30 p.m. at QHS.



JAMES LAM puts up two of his 15 points in the Presidents' 71-56 win over Plymouth North last Friday. The win clinched the Patriot League Keenan Division crown for Quincy and boosted their final overall record season recored to 16-4 overall and 14-2 in league play. day, freshman Julie Whalen scored three goals to lead Quincy/North Quincy to a 5-4 victory over Scituate. Donovan had a goal and an assist while sophomore Kate McGahey added a goal. Sophomore Riley McLaughlin chipped in with two assists.

"To play four years and see the progress we made as a team means a lot to me," said Donovan. "We learned a lot and we made a lot of improvement especially in the offensive zone. After our first few games, we started moving the puck and finishing our chances. It was great being a part of it."

The numbers back her up. In Q/NQ first six games, they were 0-6 and scored three goals. They then went 5-6-2 and scored 34 goals in 13 games.

The first time Q/NQ played Hanover/Cohasset, they lost, 5-1. They easily could have won the rematch were it not for a fluke goal early in the third period which tied the game. There was marked improvement in just a month.

"We improved our offensive pressure as the season went on," said coach Steve Burgio. "We put more pucks on the net. We kept our sticks on the ice ready for rebounds. Plus our defense kept their heads up looking for chances to put the puck on net. That set up a goal today."

Donovan's first goal was picture-perfect. She took a short feed from McLaughlin in the neutral zone. She broke over the blue line in control both of the puck and her speed. She split the defense cleanly and picked the top corner to give Q/NQ a 1-0 lead with 3:38 left in the first.

"We broke up the play in the neutral zone and I watched the goalie's pads when I broke in. I saw an opening up high and I was able to hit it," said Donovan.

Donovan, McLaughlin, and McGaughey played an excellent two-way game on the the first line. Not only did they create chances – Q/NQ had 23 shots on net – but they skated their lanes and backchecked faithfully to help out the defense.

"Julia is workhorse. I wish I had 10 more players just like her," said Burgio. "She forechecks, backchecks, passes and scores. She never stops."

After Cohasset tied it 1-1 late in the first period, Q/NQ went up, 2-1 just over five minutes into the second. Donovan helped stop a breakout at the blue line. Defenseman Madison Hally alertly kept the puck in the offensive zone, and chipped a pass into a scramble in front of the net. McLaughlin rapped it home for a a 2-1 lead which held up until Hanover-Cohasset scored off a bouncing puck to tie it at 2-2 early in the third.

"Madison did just what we want our defensemen to do. She read the play, kept her head up and put a pass on net," said Burgio.

Beal was excellent. She made 25 saves, 13 in the third period to preserve the tie. She was sharp on everything. She stopped clean breaks, point-blank drives and multiple rebounds. What was most impressive was her poise, especially for a sophomore. When the action in front of her grew heated, she stayed clam, covered the net, and controlled the puck.

"She gave us what she gave us all year: A chance to win the game. She's kept us in a lot of games," said Burgio.

Hally, Kelly Donahue, Maura Crump, and freshman Carly McMorrow played solid defense in front of Beal.

"Kelly played a great game clearing out everything in front of the net" said Burgio. "Madison and Maura gave us offense along with playing good defense. Carly played good positional hockey,. She's learned a lot by playing alongside Kelly."

Donovan, Donahue, Hally, Rebecca Mahan, Alyx Patey graduate this year. They will be missed.

"Julia is a two-year captain and she's been an excellent leader and player" said Burgio. "Kelly is the ideal defenseman. She's strong in front of the net and she also moves the puck well.

"Madison is aggressive and she's very good at skating the puck out of the zone. Rebecca is a hard worker, and she's earned more playing time the past two years. Alyx is a gritty player who has improved a great deal. She wins a lot of the small battles in the corners that give us a chance to score goals."

When it was over, Donovan talked about what she will remember most from her time playing high school hockey. Not surprisingly, she spoke of things far more important than wins and losses.

"First, I'll miss playing. I love the game," she said. "There may be teams that won more than we did, but none had more fun. I love the family feeling of our team. We're all like sisters and that's something I will always remember."

Fantastic Finishing Kick Lands Quincy In Tourney

By BILL GRIFFIN

HOCKEY

Once again Quincy saved the best for last.

Last year, the Presidents scored four goals in the final period of the final game to tie Abington, 6-6 and earn a trip the tournament.

This year, they did more than play one great period. They played eight great games. Quincy turned around its season with a 5-1-2 finishing kick to grab second place in the Keenan Division of the Patriot League and a second straight berth in the Division 2 South Sectionals.

No. 14 seed Quincy (8-10-3) played No. 3 seed Plymouth South (13-3-4) yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. at Gallo Arena in Bourne. In the regular season meeting between the two, Plymouth South won, 4-1 in a game which was tied 1-1 after two periods.

"We like to wait until the last minute and make things interesting," smiled Quincy coach Ted Walsh.

When Quincy was 3-9 and the season was seemingly lost, Walsh spoke to his team. The players listened. And it made all the difference.

"We just told them not to quit, to stay with us and keep working in practice," said Walsh. "We asked them to enjoy the time they had left and to enjoy each other. They sold out in every practice and every game. They were done with losing and it showed in their play."

The Presidents played exceptional hockey in their eight-game run. Their only loss came to Westwood (3-0) who is the top seed in the sectional and who Walsh called the best team he's seen in 29 years of coaching. It began, as it almost always does in hockey, with defense and goaltending.

The Presidents gave just 19 goals in eight games in their closing rush. One of the keys was the work of the defense in front of the net. They blocked shots, cleared out opposing forwards and won the one-on-one battles that prevent goals. Brandon Beal, John Quirk, Owen Lynch, Josh Campbell, Mike Calnan, Brandon Nunnink, and Mike Tervakoski all played excellent hockey.

"We spend half of every practice working on three-on-three drills deep in the defensive zone, and it paid off," said Walsh. "It's the dirty area, the most important area where teams score goals, and our defense controlled it for us."

The most important game of the run, the game which likely turned around the season was the 3-3 tie with first-place Duxbury. Senior goalie Ryan Higgins made 37 saves. A goaltender cannot play better. A goalie not only makes saves, he fills his team with confidence by his play. Higgins did exactly that for the Presidents.

"It was the best game of his high-school career," said Walsh of his four-year starter. "When we were 3-9, I told Ryan it would take a minor miracle to make the tourney. I told him it was on his back, he would have to carry us. And that's just what he did."

Another key contributor was senior forward Brian O'Callaghan who had two goals and two assists in the 6-1 win over Silver Lake which clinched second place in the division and a trip to the tournament. O'Callaghan has been a three-year starter. He can surely score, but what is most impressive is he is complete, honest hockey player. He hits, he skates his lanes, and he backchecks as hard as he forechecks.

"A hockey player," said Walsh. "He's really a defenseman, but we need his goal scoring, so we've used him up front. He's a great kid, an excellent student, but you put that helmet and pads on him, and he is tough. He loves to hit."

Sniper Patrick Freeman also had a pair of g. als and two assists in the victory over Silver Lake. He passed the 100-point mark for his career at Quincy, and had 17 goals and 15 assists for the regular season. As good as a defense can play, a team has to score to win. Freeman has given Quincy a scorer for four years.

"He just has a natural sense for how to put the puck into the net," said Walsh.

Quincy's depth on defense allowed Walsh to move Ryan Harty and Steve Ross to the forward line. Harty skates with Freeman and O'Callaghan on the first line. Ross has been a tough, invaluable winger. Both are excellent defensemen, but both willingly made the switch because it was what the team needed.

"We moved Ryan once, but we moved Steve three or four times," said Walsh. "It's almost not fair to him. Both players said the move was fine. They said just do what is best for the team."

Quincy has 15 seniors. The fact that this is the last shot for many of the players played a large role in the late-season comeback.

"My son who played junior and college hockey spoke to them," said Walsh. "He told them the best times they would have as a hockey player are sitting around in the locker room in high school and playing with the kids they grew up with. The kids didn't want to let go of that feeling. I think that was the big reason we turned around our season."

Mike Finn Scores 16th Goal Against Scituate

Red Raiders Close Out Season With 2-1 Loss

By TREVOR WENNERS

Senior captain and forward Mike Finn scored his 16th goal of the season for the North Quincy High School boys hockey team in a 2-1 loss against Scituate on Saturday night at the Quincy Youth Arena.

"He really carried us the whole entire year, every single time we needed a big goal, he was there to score or make a big play," said Red Raiders head coach Matt Gibbons. "He was just unbelievable this year."

Finn added nine assists to total 25 points for the season. Finn scored a hat trick in a 3-3 tie with Brockton earlier this year.

"He goes out there and he just works harder than everybody else," said Gibbons. "(The other kids) know that we're going to have a chance (to win) if (Finn's) on the ice."

Scituate scored the first two goals of the game, one in the second period and then another in the third period. Finn responded with four minutes left in the game for the Red Raiders (6-10-4).

Sophomore goaltender Derek Bille made 26 saves.

"He played unbelievable," said Gibbons.

After a 6-3 loss to city rival Quincy on Feb. 7, the Red Raiders needed seven points in their final four games to qualify for the tournament. They beat Whitman-Hanson 5-3, then tied Brockton 3-3 but a 5-3 loss to St. Peter of Marian on Feb. 18 eliminated the Red Raiders from tournament contention.

"After the Quincy loss we put ourselves in a (tough spot), we came out and we beat Whitman-Hanson, we tied Brockton," said Gibbons. "We played St. Peter Marian in what honestly I think was one of our better games all year but that St. Peter Marian game we just couldn't score. Definitely proud of the team, the way they played, and the game against Scituate was just a good night for some guys to play that haven't played. Disappointing in the sense that you have goals at the beginning of the year and you didn't meet them but at the end of the day it is a game. They're kids; it was an honor to coach all of them especially the seniors."

The Red Raiders will be graduating seven seniors which includes the three captains Finn, defenseman Matt Monahan and forward Andrew Kiley.

"We had a really good core with those three captains," said Gibbons. "We're definitely going to miss those guys."

Kiley registered a line of 4-12-16 this season.

"He is the quarterback for the football team," said Gibbons. "He is just a leader, some kids are just born a leader and he is one of those kids, he works hard and is a tough kid."

Monahan might be the only defenseman graduating this year for the Red Raiders but there will be big shoes to replace with him moving on.

"He has been (so consistent) for us for four years, he is the only guy in the room that as a senior has been on the varsity team for four straight years," said Gibbons. "He has been to three tournaments; he has seen a lot, he was kind of our anchor back there."

Other Red Raiders who were seniors this year includes forward Freddy Flynn, forward Matt Hannon, forward Chris Gorman and forward Sean Farnham.

The Red Raiders have some young talent as well which includes two goaltenders in junior Kevin Doherty and Bille.

"Kevin Doherty was solid for us all year," said Gibbons. "He pretty much gave us a chance to even get to that tournament."

Other impressive players this year included junior forward Timmy Glynn (8-15-23) and junior defenseman Matt McDonald.

"We've got a good core coming back," said Gibbons. "We lose Matt (Monahan) back there on defense but we bring everybody else back on (defense). I think in my opinion Matt McDonald is one of the best defenseman in the entire league."

North Quincy High School Hockey Hall Of Fame Induction

LOWER YOUR TOLERANCE LEVEL

It is hardly uncommon for older adults to take what life gives them and not complain. In the case of suffering back pain, many seniors, in fact, simply accept it. According to a survey, nearly twice as many older adults indicated that they experienced back pain than younger adults ages 21 to 44 (12.3% versus 6.5%). The older back-pain sufferers also experienced pain for a longer time and became more disabled than younger adults; yet, seniors were more accepting of their situation and were also less likely to seek or receive treatment. Much of the problem stems from the acceptance of back pain as a normal part of aging. However, it is not, and chiropractors are ready to help.

Are you suffering back pain? Because there are a variety of causes of back pain, it's vital to know the exact cause of your discomfort, and at Family Practice of Chiropractic, we will help figure that out. Our experience and the expertise in safe and gentle chiropractic care will help you enjoy life to the fullest. Call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and let us help you. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we're currently accepting new patients. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Compared to medication or surgery, chiropractic care is a more effective, affordable, and less invasive choice of treatment for lower back pain, which older adults should find appealing.

Montclair/Wollaston Meeting March 5

State Rep. Dan Hunt will speak at the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood meeting Thursday, March 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, corner of West Squantum and Harvard Streets.

The meeting originally set for Feb. 5th was postponed due to weather.

Rep. Hunt will provide a legislative update and discuss current events on Beacon Hill.

There will also be discussion on the FEMA flood plan.

For many residents in Montclair who were added to the FEMA designated flood plain in 2014, relief is on the way as FEMA has accepted the city's appeal of the port flood map issued last year which subsequently required residents caught up in it to purchase flood insurance for the first time. The 2014 map change also increased the costs for insurance for those previously in the flood plain so the revisions should provide some good news to these residents as well as the changes should reduce the risk calculation. Within approximately 60 days residents will have the revised maps and know more precisely those who will see a positive change.

An informational meeting will be scheduled in the spring to provide that information. After a 120-day comment period the City Council will be allowed to vote to approve the new maps.

ELEMENTARY LUNCH MENU

Monday, March 2
Five inch round oven wrap, carrot snack pack, honey soy nuts.

Tuesday, March 3
Early Release Day - no lunch served.

Wednesday, March 4
Beef burger with cheese on a WG bun, potato puffs.

Thursday, March 5
Broccoli with cheese sauce over baked potato wedges, popcorn chicken bits, WG dinner roll.

Friday, March 6
Egg and cheese on a croissant, green beans, fruit cup.

Arbella Corporate Giving Initatives

The Quincy-based Arbella Insurance Foundation announces the donation of $2.5 million as well as 1,873 Arbella Insurance Group ("Arbella") employee volunteer hours in 2014 to not-for-profit organizations throughout New England.

Once again, Arbella employees supported local organizations by volunteering, organizing and contributing to a wide variety of causes. "Allowing employees the opportunity to give back to their communities has always been fundamental at Arbella, yet every year I am astounded by their proactivity, compassion and dedication in support of the local charities that are important to them," said John Donohue, chairman, president and CEO of the Arbella Insurance Group and chairman and president of Arbella's Foundation.

Highlights of Arbella and its Foundation's 2014 charitable giving initiatives include the following:

Supporting Arbella Employees in Charitable Giving: Arbella's Foundation distributed more than $108,000 in support of a range of causes that were meaningful to Arbella Insurance Group employees. The Foundation supported employees who took part in 172 charity walks and other events and also matched donations made by employees to various nonprofit organizations. Arbella's Foundation organized 56 volunteer events in which Arbella employees participated during the work day.

Partnership with Arbella's Independent Agents: Together, Arbella's independent agents and the Foundation donated more than $705,000 in support of a variety of local causes. Arbella's independent agents are actively involved in their communities, serving on nonprofit boards and fundraising committees, volunteering their time and providing financial support to a variety of charities in their cities and towns.

Homelessness and Hunger: The Arbella Foundation continued to be a major advocate for homelessness and hunger relief in New England in 2014, supporting a number of local organizations:

- Arbella's Foundation continued to serve as a major corporate sponsor for Project Bread's annual Walk for Hunger. Together with 494 "Team Arbella" walkers, the Foundation contributed $95,500 to the Walk.
- The Foundation provided significant funding to the MA Affordable Housing Alliance's Home Ownership program.
- The Foundation was the presenting sponsor of Interfaith Social Services (ISS)' Feed the Hungry Gala and provided a significant grant for the charity's Home Safe program.
- The Foundation donated meaningful funds and in-kind contributions in support of Father Bill's & Mainspring mission to end homelessness.

Safe Driving: The Foundation built upon its long-standing commitment to keeping drivers safer on the roads by allocating more than $575,000 to safe driving initiatives in 2014:

- The Distractology 101 tour continued to be a key program for the Foundation. The tour travels New England to educate new drivers on the dangers of distracted driving.
- The Foundation kicked off the third year of its Road Crew program with Live Nation, a responsible driving initiative.
- As the presenting sponsor of the "Be a HERO" designated driver program at Gillette Stadium, the Foundation was proud to have the New England Patriots recognized for having the most designated driver pledges in the NFL.
- Arbella's Foundation also supported Connecticut-based Mourning Parents ACT, Inc., whose mission is to eliminate tragedies caused by inexperienced drivers.

Healthcare: Arbella's Foundation deepened its long-standing commitment to health-related causes in New England in 2014, providing significant funds to many different local organizations, including the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Journey Forward, a non-profit organization dedicated to bettering the lives of those who have suffered a spinal cord injury, South Shore Hospital and the AstraZeneca Hope Lodge Center, a "home away from home" free of charge for cancer patients from out of town.

Veterans' Causes: The Arbella Foundation strengthened its relationship with veterans' causes in 2014 by providing financial support to organizations including the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans, the 2014 Boston Harbor Islands Veterans Cruise, iPods for Wounded Veterans and the Disabled and Limbless Veterans.

Educational and Cultural Causes: Arbella's Foundation proudly supported several local programs, including two new initiatives in 2014:

- The Foundation provided grants to schools throughout Massachusetts to subsidize the costs of transportation to attend Boston Symphony Orchestra youth concerts.
- Arbella's Foundation also sponsored the Boston Celtics Stay in School program, a community initiative organized by the Celtics that partners with Boston Public Schools to incentivize and award middle school students for perfect attendance.

Advocacy Organizations: Arbella's Foundation continued to be a strong partner for the Irish International Immigrant Center in 2014, a multiservice center for people from 120 countries providing free legal, citizenship, wellness, education and learning exchange programs. The Foundation supported Greater Boston Legal Services, which provides free legal assistance to low-income residents of Boston and surrounding communities. In addition, the Foundation supported the Disability Law Center and Health Care Advocates.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Monday, February 16th, 2015, at approximately 8:43 p.m., Officers Chris Bulger and Jim Whedbee were dispatched to a home in Hough's Neck for "some type of domestic between a boyfriend and girlfriend." While en route, the Dispatcher stated that the female caller would be waiting outside the house.

Upon arrival, the Officers learned from the caller that she sometimes stays in the basement of her mother's home. She said that she was in the basement when she heard her mother and her mother's boyfriend upstairs arguing, so she ran upstairs and witnessed the boyfriend assaulting her mother. She told the Officers that she stepped in to help her mother by pushing the boyfriend away. He then turned on the daughter/caller, pulling her hair, hitting her and then pushing her down. She said she was forced to the floor, where she kicked at him to get him off her. Her mother then jumped on her boyfriend's back, which gave the daughter a chance to run out of the house and call the Police. Officer Bulger asked the daughter if they were still in the house and she said they were.

The Officers then went inside and met with the mother. They immediately saw a large amount of fresh blood on the front door and all over the rug. When asked if it was blood, the mother said, "Yeah - I f@#$%^$ stabbed him." The Officer asked who was stabbed and she said, "He tried to kill my daughter." Officer Whedbee called for another cruiser and an Ambulance. The mother told the Officers that the boyfriend was upstairs, adding, "I think he's hiding." Officer Whedbee secured the knife involved in the stabbing and then went upstairs to find the boyfriend.

When the Officers reached the top of the stairs, they looked inside one of the bedrooms to find a male in bed. He appeared to be bleeding through his clothing. When asked if he had been stabbed, the boyfriend said, "Yeah - the b@#$% stabbed me." The Officers examined the boyfriend's back and found numerous puncture wounds consistent with being stabbed with a knife.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officers Matt Hockney and Matt Pattern arrived on scene to assist. Officer Bulger asked the boyfriend what happened and he stated that he was arguing with his girlfriend about the daughter being there when the daughter came up from downstairs to the kitchen and started to assault him. He said that both females tag teamed him, punching, kicking, smashing a vase on him and then his girlfriend stabbed him with a knife in the back.

At this time, the Fire Department and Fallon Ambulance arrived and treated the boyfriend. Officer Bulger then interviewed the girlfriend, who said that her boyfriend punched her daughter, pulled her hair and then tried to push her down the cellar stairs. She added that she believed, "He was trying to kill my daughter so I stabbed him." Due to the large amount of blood, the severity of the crime and how life threatening the wounds could be, Detectives were called in to the scene. The boyfriend was transported to the South Shore Hospital and his girlfriend, a 54 year old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for "Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (knife) and transported to the Police station. In addition, Officer Bulger will seek complaints against the boyfriend for "Assault and Battery on a Family/ Household Member." 2 Counts.

The boyfriend was admitted to the Intensive Care Unit and there was no set time for discharge. Nice Work!

SNOW REMOVAL: Beware the person at your door asking if you want snow removed from your roof. The unscrupulous person will embellish the danger and offer to take the snow off for a price. He will want the money up front or at least a payment. You may never see him again. The second part of this scam is that he may demand more money to complete the job, justifying it by saying that there are additional problems with the roof.

One step to determine if this person is legitimate is to ask for his license driver's license and if he does provide it, take a photo of it. Take a photo of his vehicle and the license plate. A legitimate contractor has nothing to hide and will appreciate and understand why you are doing this. This should be the first step taken. For your own protection, getting proof that the contractor is a licensed roofer increases the chances that the job will be done correctly. Most likely, the company would also be insured. If the person refuses and leaves, be sure to contact the Police so that we can protect others too. As always, don't hesitate to call us to look into a situation before and not after a crime may occur.

SNOW REMOVAL LOOK-OUT: for a beat up gray pick-up truck with Maine plates, who has been involved in numerous scams. If you see it in the area, give us a "911" call. Try to get the license plate safely and provide direction of travel, along with a description of the occupant(s).

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Change is still dominant for Rams and Ewes, both in the workplace and their private lives. This is also a good time to look at a possible relocation if that has been one of your goals.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Doing things for others is what you do well. But don't forget that Bovines thrive on the arts, so make some time for yourself to indulge your passion for music and artistic expressions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) While the Romantic Twin considers where to go for his or her upcoming vacation, the Practical Twin will start making travel plans now to take advantage of some great bargains.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your sensitive nature helps you deal with a difficult emotional situation. Be patient and continue to show your sincere support wherever (and for whomever) it is needed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're making progress as you move through some unfamiliar territory. And while there might be a misstep or two along the way, overall you're heading in the right direction. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some good news arrives -- and just in time to remind you that you're making progress. Perhaps things aren't moving as quickly as you'd prefer, but they're moving nevertheless.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This is a good week to step back and assess the facts that have recently emerged to see where they can be used to your advantage. Also, don't hesitate to make changes where necessary.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You should begin to experience some support from those who now agree with your point of view. This should help counter the remaining objections from die-hard skeptics.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Don't let your aim be deflected by trivial matters as you try to resolve a confusing situation. Take time to find and thoroughly assess the facts before making any decision.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The possibility of moving to another location has come up. But before you dismiss it as unworkable, it's worth checking out just in case it does have some merit after all.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) New relationships -- personal or work-related -- show mixed signals. Best to assume nothing. Let things play themselves out until you have something substantive to work with.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your ability to make needed changes without causing too much, if any, negative ripple effect comes in handy when dealing with a sensitive matter either on the job or in the family.

BORN THIS WEEK: Although you like things to go smoothly, you're not shy about making waves when you believe the situation calls for it.

Purim Events At Beth Shalom Of The Blue Hills

The festive Jewish holiday of Purim will be celebrated at Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills (formerly Temples Shalom of Milton and Beth El of Quincy) this year with two special events.

On Sunday, March 1st, the synagogue's Rabbi Weistrop Religious School will sponsor its Annual Purim Carnival from 11:30 a.m. – 1 p.m. at Cunningham Hall, 75 Edge Hill Rd. in Milton. The retelling of the Purim story will precede the Carnival, which will feature games, booths, prizes, raffles, food and fun for all ages, and prizes for costumes. It is open to the entire community with free admission, and tickets for food and booths will be available for purchase. All are welcome, especially costumed children.

On Wednesday evening, March 4th, at 6:30 p.m. the congregation and guests will enjoy a Passover wine tasting and light refreshments before participating in the traditionally raucous Purim service and interactive Megillah reading at 7:15. The wine tasting and service will be hosted by the Ritual Committee and led by Rabbi Fred Benjamin in the Johnson Great Hall of the First Congregational Church, 495 Canton Ave., Milton, followed by Hamantashen, a traditional three-cornered treat. The public is invited and costumes are encouraged.

The Megillah tells the Purim story of Esther and her uncle Mordecai, who saved their Jewish brethren in ancient Shushan from the evil designs of the wicked Haman. Children and adults wear costumes and listen carefully to the Hebrew text so they can use noisemakers to drown out the name of Haman every time it is uttered.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills conducts a full schedule of religious services throughout the year and has a full calendar of cultural, educational and social events. It also operates a religious school for Jewish children of all grade levels.

Beth Shalom's interim sanctuary is at 495 Canton Ave., at the rear of the First Congregational Church in Milton. For further information about Purim or other temple activities, call the temple office at 617-698-3394, email: office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

OBITUARIES

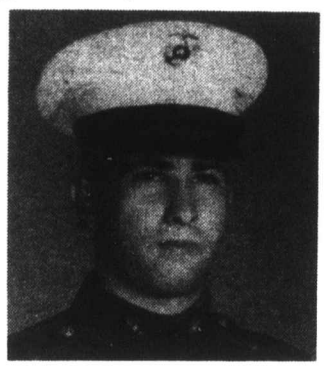
Steven Pagnano, 69

A funeral Mass for Steven Pagnano, 69, a lifelong Quincy resident, was celebrated Feb. 20 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Pagnano died unexpectedly at home Feb. 16.

He was born in Quincy, raised and educated in Quincy schools and was a graduate of Quincy High School. He served his country as a sergeant in the U. S. Marine Corps.

Mr. Pagnano was a foreman for the U.S. Naval Detachment Center in Boston, coordinating and helping in the reconstruction of the USS Constitution in the early 1990s. He retired after 30 years of service as the head of security. Mr. Pagnano was an avid fisherman, enjoyed golf and coin collecting.



STEVEN PAGNANO

Devoted father of Albert H. Pagnano of Quincy and former husband of the late Carol L. (Andrews) Holden. He was the beloved son of the late Armando and Louise (Mackey) Pagnano. Dear brother of Joan L. Pagnano of Quincy and predeceased by Craig J. Pagnano and Peter H. Pagnano. He is also survived by two nieces and many cousins.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Interment with Military Honors at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the Wounded Warrior Project, P.O. Box 758517, Topeka, KS 66675.

Donald G. Carey

A memorial service for Donald G. Carey of Quincy will be held Saturday, Feb. 28 at the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Mr. Carey died Feb. 13 at South Shore Hospital.

Born in Cambridge on June 24, 1948, he was a lifetime Quincy resident and was recently a patient at Quincy Rehabilitation & Nursing Center on McGrath Hwy.

A friend of Bill W., Mr. Carey worked for many years at the Quincy Car Wash.

Son of the late James C. and Margaret V. Carey, he was the brother of Alice L. Carey of Falmouth, Maryellen Hevner of Marlborough and the late Margaret A. Lytle of No. Providence and John G. Carey of WA; uncle of Thomas B. Hevner of Lincoln, RI, James Hevner of Lowell and Karen A. Keese of Clinton and is survived by many good friends.

He was a person known for his generous spirit, kindness to others and love of life.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT
AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Quincy.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about March 10, 2015 the City of Quincy will submit a request to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of HOME funds under Title I of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) and Title II of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act signed into law on November 28, 1990, as amended, to undertake the following projects known as 10 Winter Street, Quincy, which will receive $500,000 of HOME funds for the acquisition and rehabilitation of the property as listed.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The City of Quincy has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Record (ERR) on file at the Department of Planning and Community Development (PCD), 34 Coddington Street, 3rd Floor, Quincy, MA, and may be examined or copied weekdays 8:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency disagreeing with this determination or wishing to comment on the project may submit written comments to PCD, attn.: Sean Glennon, 34 Coddington St., 3rd Fl, Quincy, MA 02169. All comments received by March 9, 2015 will be considered by the City of Quincy prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which Notice and project they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Quincy certifies to HUD that Hon. Thomas P. Koch in his capacity as Mayor of Quincy consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities, and allows the City of Quincy to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Quincy's certification for a period of fifteen days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of the City of Quincy; (b) the RE has omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to HUD grant administration office at 10 Causeway Street, Boston, Massachusetts. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day of the objection period.

State Housing Official New QHA Facilities Director

really want to hear about deficiencies in the apartments because they didn't want to repair them. At this point we had already discovered 3,500 work orders dating back to 2007, which hadn't been remediated."

"It became very clear to me that what I needed to do was I needed to put someone above maintenance and modernization, just to make sure they were doing their jobs, they were being properly managed, that this tug of war between maintenance and modernization didn't occur as we moved into the future. We decided we would create this new position of director of facilities...he will oversee maintenance and modernization and we are going to hire our own independent inspector. We are going to be doing inspections in house."

David Ferris, the previous maintenance director, was placed on paid administrative leave last July before resigning in September. Deborah Williamson, then the Housing Authority's modernization director, filled Ferris' role in the interim. Williamson passed away Feb. 12 and her position will also need to be filled.

There will be no new director of maintenance. Instead, there will be a maintenance foreman who reports to Marathas.

In addition to widespread maintenance problems, the DHCD report also found property managers were not correctly handling lease enforcement issues. Marathas has already worked with them to explain what they should be doing in the future. Property managers will also now accompany inspectors during annual inspections to identify lease violations.

"The DHCD report turned up another difficulty – our property managers were probably not doing all they should be doing. They were collecting rents but they were very weak on lease enforcement issues," Lydon said.

"So we had all of our property managers in and James Marathas ran a seminar instructing them on how they should administer properties in the future. Don't just collect rents and talk to the tenants – you've got to get into these units.

"In the future when we get into these units for inspections we will be pairing our independent inspector with the property manager. The inspector will be looking for structural irregularities and the property manager will be looking for lease irregularities. We have a lot of lease irregularities, like the storage of gas in the basements down in Snug Harbor."

The Quincy Housing Authority, which manages 1,600 state- and federally-funded units, currently employs 40 maintenance workers; temporary workers were brought in last year to fix problems found in the DHCD report. Lydon said he raised the issue of hiring more maintenance workers, but state officials want to see how the agency functions as a result of the reorganization.

"We asked DHCD if they would consider us hiring more skilled labor in the future," Lydon said. "Their response to us was 'why don't you take your first step, create this director of facilities and see how it is working then. If you find you have a need come back and talk to us.'"

The 65-year-old Lydon is committed to staying in his position as the executive director through at least June 2017, when his current contract expires. He has no intention of resigning from his post, which he assumed in May 2013.

"I find this job very frustrating, but I also know that at the end of the day when I get it fixed it is going to be a very rewarding experience," Lydon said. "I feel as though I've gone through the hard part. I really feel as though I've gone through the hard part and I think at this point we're looking up."

Lydon said hiring Marathas is a major step towards turning things around at the Housing Authority.

"I want a housing authority that is well run, well managed. Tenants that are treated well. Tenants that are living in livable, wonderful conditions," Lydon stated.

"When I started off in this job I, I guess naively, was beginning to pursue a beautification program down in Germantown. We had the Urban Land Institute in to do some studies down there. We had a commitment from the mayor to do some trees. And then quite frankly we discovered the bottom had fallen out at the organization and we had to redouble our efforts to fix all the things that were wrong. I would say this was the accumulation of lack of attention over the last 10 or 20 years.

"We've gone through this endless process of positioning ourselves so we can be better and address the future. I feel as though we're right on the verge of that. I think my board members, to the person, think James Marathas is the person to move this organization forward as the director of facilities. I feel certain that once I get his management and his management style to bear down there, my maintenance department and my modernization department are going to be better than ever."

Robert Calway Senior VP Atrius Health South Region

Robert Calway of Abington has been named Senior Vice President of Atrius Health's South Region.

In this new role, Calway will be responsible for the overall financial and clinical performance of the region, which includes Granite Medical Group in Quincy, the Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates practices in Quincy and Braintree, and Atrius Health specialty centers in Weymouth for Cardiovascular; Pulmonary and Sleep Medicine; Endoscopy, and Imaging.

"Bob is an excellent resource to lead our team in the South Region," said Daniel Burnes, MD, Transition CEO of Atrius Health. "With an impressive tenure as a leader in the healthcare industry, he is instrumental in our ability to provide quality care to our patients."

Calway has experience in clinical operations, healthcare design and development, clinical program development, healthcare quality improvement, healthcare regulatory compliance, revenue cycle and clinical operations.

Since 2011, he has served as the Chief Operating Officer at Granite Medical Group. He is the former Vice President for Business Development, Physician Services and Compliance Officer at Northern Berkshire Healthcare (NBH), where he was responsible for the organization's ancillary services, employed hospital and community physicians, compliance program and business development initiatives.

Prior to his work at NBH, Calway served as Vice President for Clinical Services and Chief Operating Officer at Boston's Joslin Diabetes Clinic. He also served as Senior Vice President responsible for product development and leadership of the consulting division at MedSafe, a for-profit healthcare consulting company specializing in accreditation, risk management and regulatory compliance programs.

Calway held several leadership positions at Harvard Community Health Plan as well. He holds an undergraduate Bachelor of Science degree in Medical Laboratory Technology and a graduate degree in Health Law and Healthcare Administration.

Calway, along with senior leadership from Atrius Health's North, West and Urban/River regions, will report to the Transition CEO.

Police Officers Attending New Mental Health Training Course

Officers from the Quincy Police Department are attending a new mental health training course as now required by the Commonwealth's Executive Office of Public Safety and Security.

The curriculum for this training was developed by the Massachusetts National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI Mass), the Department of Mental Health (DMH) and the Municipal Police Training Committee (MPTC). All municipal police officers in the state will receive updated mental health training by the end of 2015.

"This is a major step forward in providing all law enforcement officers better tools for the safe and responsive management of incidents involving people experiencing mental health crises," said June S. Binney, director of the NAMI Mass Criminal Justice Project.

"The intent of this vitally important training is creating better outcomes during encounters with those who suffer mental illness and other populations. We are grateful to NAMI Mass and the Department of Mental Health for collaborating with the Municipal Police Training Committee to develop this crucial, best-practices training for new and existing police officers," said Dan Zivkovich, MPTC executive director.

The intensive, interactive curriculum is taught by specially trained police officers from across the state and includes:

- An overview of the symptoms of mental illness
- Learning verbal and non-verbal communication skills to safely de-escalate potentially dangerous situations
- Recognizing trauma and PTSD

Nearly 60 million Americans experience a mental health disorder every year. One in 17 lives with a serious mental illness, such as schizophrenia, major depression or bipolar disorder. And one in 10 children and adolescents suffers from serious emotional and mental disorders that cause significant functional impairment in their day-to-day lives.

Binney said improved police training increases safety for all involved.

Solarize Quincy Kick-Off Tuesday At Atlantic Middle School

Solarize Quincy, a program that offers discounted solar panels to local residents and business owners, will launch on Tuesday, March 3 at 7 p.m. with a public event at Atlantic Middle School.

The event, called Solar 101, will introduce attendees to the financial incentives for installing solar, including cheaper electricity, federal rebates, and the group-purchasing discount that Solarize participants benefit from, says Rebecca McWilliams, Solarize Quincy's lead organizer. They will also learn about the environmental benefits of solar power, and there will be plenty of time for audience questions.

Speakers will include a representative from the Massachusetts Clean Energy Center--a quasi-state agency that, along with the City and the Massachusetts Department of Energy Resources, is cosponsoring the program--and a representative of SolarFlair, the Ashland-based company that won a competitive bidding process to be exclusive installer for Solarize Quincy. Solar Flair was chosen from among four bidders because of their pricing, their local ties, their commitment to open an office in Quincy, and their experience as installer for Solarize programs in Newton, Brookline, Carlisle, Chelmsford, and Arlington, where they installed a total of 380 solar systems, according to McWilliams and David Reich, board chair of Quincy Climate Action Network (QCAN), who served on the selection committee. "Everyone at SolarFlair was very excited about the news, and to be given the opportunity to serve Quincy residents the SolarFlair way, with high quality workmanship and personalized customer service," says Dan Barnett, residential sales manager for the installer.

By June 30, when Solarize Quincy ends, McWilliams hopes to have increased the number of solar installations in the City by 200, she says, reducing Quincy's reliance on fossil fuels and its contribution to climate change. Plans to publicize the program go well beyond the kickoff meeting. Volunteers from QCAN will be signing people up to have their houses assessed for solar panels at community events such as the Lunar New Year Festival on March 1. Solarize will also have a visible presence at Cleaner, Greener Quincy, in early May, and hopes to sponsor a contingent in the Flag Day parade.

"If you have a good site and a newer roof, and you want a lower electric bill," McWilliams says, "there has never been a better time to go solar in Quincy,"

For more information or to sign up to have your house or building assessed, go to http://SolarizeQuincy.weebly.com/

$96M Needed In Downtown

Consultant: Money Targeted For Infrastructure, Parking

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy needs to invest $96 million over the next 10 years in public infrastructure and parking facilities in the downtown to jump-start redevelopment, according to a new report made public this week.

Redgate Real Estate Advisors, the firm hired by Mayor Thomas Koch as a consultant, presented a roadmap for bringing new residential, retail, and commercial developers to Quincy Center at Monday night's City Council meeting. The plan breaks up the development into four phases; each phase includes a necessary investment

Parents Weigh In On Missed School Days, Calendar

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Parents weighed in on how students should make up the 11 days of school canceled due to unprecedented snowfall at a public hearing held by the School Committee on Monday.

Options presented by the School Committee included attending school during April vacation, Good Friday, Saturdays, extending the school day by 30 minutes, as well as the option of enacting a waiver — if granted — from the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) for three state of emergency days to be disregarded as missed school days.

Students are currently scheduled to be in school until June 30 and teachers until July 1, said Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard

Snow Removal Effort Continues

Quincy's snow removal program is expected to continue at least through the rest of the week, with tens of thousands of tons of snow so far removed from City streets and sidewalks.

For the last several weeks, trucks have hauled snow to four different snow dumps in different parts of the city, and Mayor Thomas Koch said Quincy has never in his memory, even during the Blizzard of '78, removed as much snow.

"This is the most elaborate operation of its kind that we've ever conducted as a City, and it's making a real difference," Koch said. "We are working to hit as many streets as possible, but it is a long, slow, labor-intensive process. We are certainly not going to be back to 100 percent normal conditions for some time, I appreciate everyone's patience as we continue to move forward with the removal project."

While the removal program has lessened the need for major traffic alterations, the City's traffic department is this week implementing a number of temporary one-ways in some neighborhoods to both ease passage on narrow streets and to limit cut-through traffic in neighborhoods.

Engineers will be posting temporary one-ways throughout the week based off earlier engineering, with the expectation that fewer streets will be included and that additions are likely.

Council To Consider Fines For Not Shoveling

By SCOTT JACKSON

Homeowners who fail to shovel sidewalks adjacent to their properties and those who push snow into streets may one day face fines from the city.

At Monday night's City Council meeting, Councillors Kirsten Hughes, Margaret Laforest, Brad Croall, and Kevin Coughlin introduced a resolution asking the council's ordinance committee to study the legality, viability, and enforceability of an ordinance that would require homeowners to shovel sidewalks and prohibit pushing snow into streets.

The city currently requires owners of commercial properties to shovel sidewalks adjacent to land they own; failure to do so could bring a fine of $50-$75. Quincy does not have a requirement for homeowners, though other cities such as Boston and Somerville do.

The resolution introduced Monday night comes after Quincy was hit by four major nor'easters in three weeks that left the city under more than 88 inches of snow and

New Housing Authority Director Of Facilities

Marathas Hiring Official

By SCOTT JACKSON

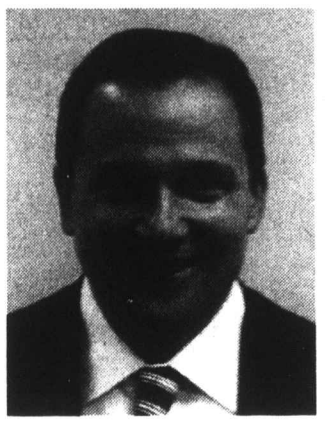
James Marathas will begin working as the Quincy Housing Authority's director of facilities later this month.

The Housing Authority's five commissioners approved a five-year contract for Marathas in a unanimous vote Feb. 26; he will earn $105,000 in the first year of the contract and is eligible for raises at the end of each year.

Marathas will begin serving in his new post March 23. In the interim, he is familiarizing himself with the agency's operations.

"We had a group conference call last week – he submitted a whole list of things he'd like to get up to speed with," QHA Executive Director James Lydon said Monday, adding that his team has already begun working on the items Marathas requested.

Marathas isn't a stranger to the Quincy Housing Authority, however, having spent much of last year supporting the agency as it began repairing widespread maintenance deficiencies identified in a report by the state's Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD). Marathas assisted the agency in his role as DHCD's director of facilities management. Prior to joining DHCD, Marathas worked in residential and commercial real estate development and ownership.



JAMES MARATHAS

In response to the maintenance concerns found by state inspectors, the Quincy Housing Authority established the new position of director of facilities to oversee maintenance, modernization, and inspection of the agency's 10 properties and 1,600 residential units.

More than two-dozen candidates applied for the facilities director position. After vetting the candidates, Lydon chose to hire Marathas in part because of the assistance he provided the Housing Authority in 2014.

"I can't wait to have him start," Lydon said.

Child Care Center Relocated After Pipe Burst

By SCOTT JACKSON

A burst sprinkler pipe has forced the Wollaston Child Care Center to move into a new space for the next six weeks or longer.

A pipe inside the attic of the childcare center's location on 47 Weston Avenue froze and then burst on Feb. 16 – Presidents Day – sending water into the building below and causing extensive damage. Pastor Adolph Wismar of the Wollaston Lutheran Church, which owns and operates the facility, said walls, ceilings, and floors inside the building had to be ripped out over the past two weeks.

"It's been gutted to the studs," he said Monday.

While repair work is ongoing in the building, classes have been moved to the church itself at 550 Hancock Street. A temporary permit was granted allowing classes to be held in the church's basement and first floor. The space inside the church is smaller than what had been available at the Weston Avenue facility.

"At our regular location we had 93 children. Our new space is approved for 72," Patricia Plummer-Wilson, director of the Wollaston Child Care Center, explained.

"Some families self-selected out and we hope to see them once we re-open."

She credited the center's staff for making the transition to the temporary space as smooth as possible.

"It's gone as well as we could hope," Plummer-Wilson said. "The teachers are really doing a fantastic job."

With the childcare center moved into the church on a temporary basis, the Asian-American senior center that uses the building on weekdays was relocated to St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church at 1 Linden Street, almost directly across the street from the Wollaston Lutheran Church. About 40 seniors gather every day at the senior center.

Wismar said the church has been working with its insurance company to get the Weston Avenue building repaired. It could be six or more weeks before it reopens.

"The contractor said it takes two weeks per floor and we'll be out six weeks or so," he said. "But that might be a little optimistic."

GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

FLAWS AND ALL

While diamond is generally associated with perfection, the fact is that most diamonds have flaws. The good news is that a diamond's "clarity" grade has little effect on its appearance, with the exception of the lowest grades. Few people can discern any visible difference in the clarity between diamonds until they reach the imperfect grades. Even then, it is difficult to see anything without magnification. Diamonds don't have to be flawless to be beautiful. The importance of clarity grade is that it gives an indication of how "clean" a gemstone is. Clarity grade is based on what can be seen while the diamond is being examined using 10X magnification. The cleaner the diamond, the more rare and costly it is.

Because perfect diamonds are rare, they are expensive. Diamond flaws and inclusions are present in virtually all of the diamonds that you will see in your local jewelry store. The amount of imperfections and the size of those imperfections will determine a diamond's clarity. The diamond collection at our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center contains virtually any shape and size your heart could desire. Please call 617-773-3636 to learn more about what we have to offer.

Roll all your debt into one new loan

You have a mortgage. And a decent amount of equity. You also have high-rate credit card debt, maybe an equity loan payment, auto loan, student loans or other debts you'd love to combine into one loan at today's still low rates... fixed and guaranteed for the next 15 years. That's what you get with a 15-Year Mortgage from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. Some people like this idea because it makes life simple and streamlined. For others, it's a fresh start and a real weight off their back. Either way, it can be a very smart idea. Is it right for you? Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, Vice President/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com. Have another loan or term in mind? Call us. We may be able to help.

200 Chili Lovers Attend 'Chili Bowl'

Event Raises $1,650 For Houghs Neck Congregational Church

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Over 200 people made their way to the Houghs Neck Congregational Church on Saturday to sample and vote on chili prepared by local restaurants and Quincy residents during the 6th annual Chili Cook-Off.

For just a $5 admission fee, patrons were free to sample as much chili cooked by the 16 contestants as they could eat.

Jack Oliverio and George Green of Coop's Bar & Grille brought their restaurant's signature chili to the event made with sausage, hamburger, corn, and black beans.

Green said their chili was "one of a kind."

"It's the best," he said. "We use sausage and a lot of people don't."

Oliverio said adding sausage made the recipe hardier and that jalepenos gave it a kick but he wouldn't divulge his secret ingredient.

Coop's Bar & Grille's recipe took first place in the restaurant category for the fifth year in a row against Louis and catering company Boston BBQ.

Kathryn Hubley, vice chair of the school committee, took first place in the individual chili category and said her winning recipe was a combination of flavors suggested by and tested by members of her family.

"I came up with a recipe and I made it for my family and then my family put input," she said. "I made it into something my family really likes."

Hubley, who was serving her chili along with her 14-year-old son Nathan, took second place three years ago and third place last year.

She purposely makes more chili than needed for the event so that she can bring any leftovers to firefighters at the Wollaston fire station, she said.

Alongside her chili, she provided mini corn muffins in case things got a little too spicy and offered additional chopped jalepenos for those looking for more fire.

"I was so happy to have won first place, it was a lot of fun," she said after learning of her victory. "I guess the third time's the charm."

"The chili cook-off is a wonderful event that supports the great work the Houghs Neck Congregational Church does for the community," said Hubley.

Christine Keating took second place in the individual chili category while Nicole O'Hare in her second year of competition took third.

Bernie Whall and Kelley McCue moved to Houghs Neck two years ago and made sure to sample every variety of chili.

"It's pretty much the best day ever," said McCue. "Five dollars for every chili."

Their favorite was the barbecue chili cooked by contestant Helen Miller, who called herself "the chili lady."

"It was amazing," said McCue. "I'm feeling a chili coma coming on."

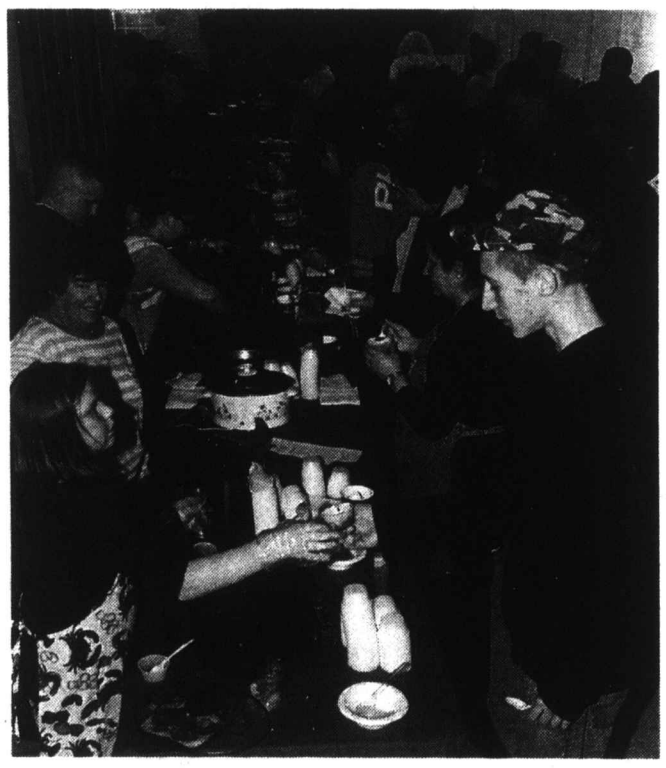
Maggie Isleb, a chef at Louis, said the restaurant's entry was a staff collaboration.

"We like kind of a loose base with a good kick to it," she said. "It's pretty much meat and veggies and a whole lot of love."

Clare and Ed Barrett traveled from Abington to attend the cook-off. "We love the chili fest!" they said.

Admission fees, a bake sale, and the sale of concessions raised a total of $1,650 for the church.

Other contestants in the individual chili category included Bill Dahlgren, Jaime Gordon, Kevin O'Brien, Kelli Stirling, Pam Craig, Madelene Cheney, team Task Force Patrol made up of Brody Gillespie and Matt Hanly, team Border Patrol made up of Jake Walsh, and team Duct Tape made up of Jordan Collins, Zack Walsh, and Kevin Toler.



SIXTH ANNUAL Houghs Neck "Chili Bowl" attracted some 200 chili lovers and raised $1,650 for the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

• On March 16, 1751, future President James Madison is born in Virginia. Madison, one of the key drafters of the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights, became America's fourth president in 1809 and is considered the Father of the Constitution.

• On March 21, 1804, French Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte enacts a new legal framework for France, known as the "Napoleonic Code." The Code strengthened the authority of men over their families, deprived women of any individual rights and reduced the rights of illegitimate children.

• On March 20, 1861, President Abraham Lincoln's youngest sons, Willie and Tad, are diagnosed with the measles. The boys recovered, but in 1862, Willie died from typhoid fever. Tad died at age 18 in 1871. Lincoln's second son, Eddie, died before his fourth birthday. Only the first born, Robert, lived to an advanced age; he passed away in 1926 at age 82.

• On March 17, 1905, future president Franklin Delano Roosevelt weds his fifth cousin once-removed, Eleanor Roosevelt. After losing her mother when she was 8 and her father when she was 10, Eleanor was raised by the extended Roosevelt family. She met her future husband when she was 2 years old and he was 4.

• On March 18, 1911, Irving Berlin copyrights the biggest pop song of the early 20th century, "Alexander's Ragtime Band." The song was easier to play than Joplin's "The Entertainer," which encouraged sheet music sales. Those topped 1.5 million copies in the first 18 months.

• On March 19, 1953, the movie world's most prestigious honors, the Academy Awards, are telecast for the first time, on NBC. Previously, audiences at home could only listen on the radio. The sealed envelope system began 12 years earlier after a newspaper printed the results prematurely.

• On March 22, 1983, the Pentagon awards a production contract to develop 55,000 High Mobility Multipurpose Wheeled Vehicles (HMMWV), nicknamed the Humvee. In 1992, a 10,000-pound civilian version, known as the Hummer, went on sale. (c) 2015 King Features Synd., Inc.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1938 POSTCARD is a view of the Robert H. Stearns Furniture Company warehouse and retail store that was at 180 Old Colony Ave. in Wollaston. Not related to R.H. Stearns in Boston, this company specialized in colonial and period furniture but carried a complete line of all types of furniture, bedding and rugs. Soon after this picture was taken Stearns, who lived on Muirhead Street, downsized and moved his company to Quincy Square behind the Dimmock Building next to the Bowladrome. In the meantime the Howard Johnson Company had decided to move all its operation from Wollaston to Cambridge when Johnson's banker Delcevare King convinced him to buy this building instead and stay in Quincy. It was to become Howard Johnson's headquarters and home to all its other operations but unanticipated circumstances resulted in it only becoming Johnson's candy and condiment factory. The headquarters offices stayed where they were. Today, this building is owned by the Eastern Nazarene College which leases office space on the second floor to the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and the entire third floor to the Chamber's Innovation Center. Taxpayers Association: Tie Pay Increases To Cost Of Living

The Quincy Taxpayers Association will demand that any increase given city employees be tied to the cost of living index.

The association's views will be placed on record at the City Council's Finance Committee meeting.

George Yarrington, executive director, was instructed by the association Board of Directors to appear before the committee and make this demand.

The cost of living has gone up 4.5 percent since the city employees received their last general increase on July 1, 1955.

PAY RAISES SURE, SAYS AUSTIN

"There is no doubt that city employees will get a pay raise, but there has been no decision reached as to what the increase will be and when it will become effective," said Edna B. Austin, Finance Committee chairman. The Quincy City Employees Association is asking for a flat $350 annual increase.

Mental Health: More Talking, Less Struggling

I found with interests the news story concerning members of the Quincy Police Department attending a new mental health training course as now required by the state's Executive Office of Public Safety and Security.

For over 27 years, I was employed by the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health and served on the front-lines dealing with subjects in mental health distress. As an officer all those years, I came to see that confrontations were often avoidable just in the way the initial response to a situation in play.

Sometimes, you are successful in talking down folks by simply talking and listening to them. Other times not the majority, you end up in struggles. My object always was to end a crisis situation as quickly as possible in order to avoid injury to either the person in distress or the officers responding to the call.

A few times I was injured but those incidents did not jade me from continuing on dealing with similar circumstances over my 27 year police career. I learned over the years that my best weapon was verbal skills and good communication. Too often incidents can escalate but the object should always be understanding that the person in psychiatric distress is not the enemy but someone in big trouble at that moment.

Using good verbal skills, I had many successes. I was a big believer in constant community policing. Knowing the folks you serve before there is a crisis to handle. I was proud of my success rate at bring a crisis to a quick and safe conclusion.

Two of my proudest moments were talking someone off a window sill and saving another person from hanging herself. To me that is why I became a police officer. I never counted my arrests, I countered how I helped out in their darkest moments.

Mental Health cops have always been ahead of the learning curve because we worked in an environment serving the mentally ill. Sadly, with so many people out there on the streets sometimes in great mental distress, police officers everywhere can encounter one of those moments I would encounter on a regular work basis.

More talking and less struggling sounds like a great twofer for both those in distress and those sworn to serve the public and keep things safe.

He's Supporting Doug Gutro For Mayor

Recently I had the privilege of being present at Councillor Doug Gutro's inaugural presentation of his candidacy for the mayor of Quincy.

This was held at Fenno House, a senior residency. Doug chose Fenno as his first presentation in his campaign because, as he said, he has a soft spot for Fenno. His grandmother had been a resident in Assisted Living.

Among his first statements was a commitment to establish Senior Safety Zones around senior buildings throughout the City. Much cheering and clapping from the elderly audience.

I had many times asked city government to post senior traffic crossing signs. This request has been ignored by the Koch administration.

Quincy city government consists of a weak city council and a strong mayor. Nothing happens in city government unless directed by the mayor. Another point that resonated with Fenno House residents was the lack of transparency in government.

Doug would post city jobs online, and seek to emulate the City of Boston by developing a website that tracks snow plowing. The old ways of doing business no longer suffice.

The Red Line is an economic lifeline for Quincy and Mayor Koch is the Chairman of the MBTA Advisory Board. We all know the debacle this winter. Mayor Koch should have made a concerted effort to insist on maintenance and improvement of this vital system.

We are keenly aware that the Mayor of Somerville has opened one new station and has another in the works - these are vital economic lifelines to a city along the Red Line. We need to restore ferry service. Why not activate the existing, dormant ferry facility in Squantum?

Doug credited the Quincy Legislative delegation for working to do just that. Doug Gutro's professional experience allows him to travel around New England learning from different city and town administrations.

As such, he has a deep knowledge of those factors that can benefit Quincy towards a brighter future.

Alexander Cox, Jennifer Small Cast In 'Musical Adventures of Flat Stanley'

Where will Flat Stanley travel next?

The show runs March 7 - 15 at the Calderwood Pavilion, 527 Tremont St. in Boston.

Playing the role of Stanley's father 'Mr. Lambchop,' Cox is no stranger to the stage. He was most recently seen in BCT's production of The Velveteen Rabbit and he has also appeared in Fame with BCT. He has appeared in numerous productions with Wheelock Family Theatre and is a sophomore at North Quincy High School.

Making her BCT debut, Small is playing the role of Stanley's friend 'Samantha.' In seventh grade at Central Middle School, she appeared in her school productions of Little Mermaid, Jr. as 'Flounder' and in Beauty and the Beast Jr as 'Belle.' She has performed with South Shore School of Theatre in Seussical Jr., Pinocchio, The Secret Garden, The Music Man, and Peter Pan. In addition to her stage credits, Small has been seen in numerous film and television projects including Dreamworks Studios' Spotlight and the film Almost Midnight.

"One of the most popular characters in children's books, Flat Stanley has become a hero to so many young students," said BCT Executive Artistic Director Burgess Clark. "With this production we are encouraging theater goers to let their imaginations soar, just as Flat Stanley does as he travels all over the world in search of adventure and fun. We hope audience members will bring their own Flat Stanleys to the theater to experience this live stage performance together."

After wishing on a star, young Stanley Lambchop finds himself in a very unique situation. He has been transformed into a very, very flat little boy- Flat Stanley! With the help of the postal service, his family and friends, Flat Stanley travels the world in search of adventure and fun! Taking audiences from Hollywood to Paris to Hawaii and back, "The Musical Adventures of Flat Stanley" is filled with infectious songs, memorable characters and exotic locales.

Directed by Toby Schine, BCT Executive Director and co-directed by Eric Love with musical direction by Jaime Castellanos, "The Musical Adventures of Flat Stanley" is based on the book Flat Stanley by Jeff Brown with book by Timothy Allen McDonald and music and lyrics by Timothy Allen McDonald, David Weinstein, Jonathan K. Waller and Stephen Gabriel.

Performances are March 7, 8, 14 and 15 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $27 and can be purchased by visiting www.bostonchildrenstheatre.org or by calling the BCT Box Office at 617-424-6634, x222.

Quincy Choral Society Spring Concert March 15

The Quincy Choral Society will hold its spring concert Sunday, March 15 at the Quincy Catholic Academy Auditorium (formerly known as The Sacred Heart School), 370 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The concert will feature the music of George Gershwin, Duke Ellington, and Jimmy Van Heusen.

The afternoon includes a silent auction and bake sale to benefit the chorus. Auction bidding begins at 1:15 p.m.

The program, "Swingin' into Spring!" begins at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $5 and will be available at the door.

The Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. Members sing with music in their hearts, performing diverse, professional quality programs designed to entertain, enlighten, and enrich the human spirit.

The chorus regularly performs locally, has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., and in Europe, and has been invited to perform at Carnegie Hall in June 2015 as part of the Masterworks Series.

Maestro John Nichols was named music director of the Quincy Choral Society in 1988. Nichols has been involved with the musical life of Greater Boston for more than 35 years as a conductor, composer, arranger, performer, adjudicator, and educator. Virginia "Gingy" Grimes has been the accompanist for the Quincy Choral Society since 1993.

Grimes received her piano accompaniment degree from Duke University and accompanies various ensembles and soloists throughout the Boston area.

Quincy Native Mind-Reading Show

Quincy native Christopher Grace, an international mentalist, will perform at the Boston Center for the Arts - Plaza Theatre, 527 Tremont St., Boston.

The show, "The Blindfolded Mad Man with Mentalist Christopher Grace" will will take place Saturday, March 7, Friday, March 13 and Saturday, March 14. All shows are at 10 p.m. and run 90 minutes without intermission.

Grace has traveled the globe and has performed more than 5,000 times over the last 15 years. This will be the first-of-its-kind show to launch in New England.

"There have been mediums and hypnotists – but nothing like what I do," Grace says. "By the end of the show, people are shaking. It can get pretty scary how far I can reach into their brains."

Grace grew up in Quincy and spent summers working the carnival circuit with his family. He would sit front row at every magic and sideshow on the fairgrounds then head to the library to inhale every bit of magical history, performance and theater he could get his hands on.

His 'techniques' date back to the turn of the 20th century, taking his audience on a wildly theatrical performance of apparent supernatural powers. Does he read minds – or use the forces of psychology, suggestion, persuasion and trickery to give the illusion of a convincing sixth sense? Grace presents his unique blend of both known as Mentalism.

The show has a circus-like quality with highly orchestrated choreography of mind reading, mental gymnastics, rapid calculations and incredible brain tricks. The highlight of the show for many is when Grace asks guests to think of a specific question that no one else would know – then calls them out. "Bostonians are naturally skeptical. I'm really looking forward to watching those skeptics in the audience squirm when I read their minds," adds Grace.

Tickets are $25. Call 617-933-8600 or visit www.blindfoldedmadman.com.

All ages welcome.

Boiled Dinner With All The Fixings

By MARIE

With St. Patrick's Day coming soon after such a historic winter, it's a good sign that spring is sure to follow.

Today's recipe is for a boiled dinner and all the fixings – with the hope that you will enjoy cooking them as much as I do.

When I make a boiled dinner, I usually use a smoked shoulder plus I also use a 2-3 pound of bottom of the round. However, you can use anything you prefer.

5-6 pound smoked shoulder
2-3 pound beef
1 large cabbage
1 turnip
2 sweet potatoes
3 white potatoes
1large onion
3-4 carrots

In a large pot cover the smoked shoulder with water, and if you are using the beef cover that also. Add the onion and cook covered for 2-3 hours deepening in the size of the meats.

While that is cooking, prepare the vegetables, cutting them the size preferred.

After the meats are done, remove and keep them in a warming oven while the vegetables are cooking. Place the vegetables in the same pot of water and cook until tender, seasoning them as needed.

I usually like to serve the dinner with the juices added to the vegetables, and then slices of the meats on top.

Here is a delicious easy corn bread that my mother always made which goes great with any dinner.

THREE INGREDIENT CORN BREAD
1 cup corn meal
4 medium potatoes (mashed)
1 tablespoon black pepper
salt if needed

Cook the potatoes and mash them. In a bowl, add the corn meal, the potatoes and the pepper and mix until blended. Place in a slightly greased pie plate and bake in a 350 degree oven for 30-35 minutes until the top is golden. Cut in slices to serve.

IRISH SODA BREAD

Here is a tried and true recipe for Irish soda bread-which is always a great addition to this dinner.

2 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 egg (slightly beaten)
2 cups buttermilk
1 1/2 cups raisins
1/2 teaspoon salt

For this recipe you can either use a loaf pan or muffin pan.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees.

Mix the flour, baking powder, sugar salt and baking soda in a bowl. In another bowl, mix the eggs, milk and raisins. Add to the flour mixture and mix (do not overmix). Bake for 35 minutes or until a toothpick comes out clean in the center. If you like caraway seeds you can add 1 1/2 tablespoons in the mix.

Portabella Mushroom Pizza

By SUZIE

As I have said before.....everyone loves pizza. Pizza can be a very healthy side dish or meal and there are a variety of ways to prepare different crusts, and substitute one thing for another.

The following "recipe" is too simple to even be called a recipe. The crust is simply a portabella mushroom that has been cooked a bit then topped with desired toppings, then baked. I made these the other night just for my husband and I, but the kids ended up wanting some as well. And loved them.

Science is just beginning to understand the health benefits of mushrooms. About a hundred are now being studied and as of right now there are about a dozen that really stand out, specifically for their immune boosting properties. Portabella mushrooms are actually matured cremini mushrooms. They have lots of fiber, minerals, and are actually high in B vitamins as well.

Portabella Mushroom Pizza

All you have to do is rinse some large portabella mushrooms and dry well. Take the stem off carefully as not to break the mushroom. (I usually chop up the stems and saute' them) Now scrape off the "gills" of the mushroom as well and discard. I do this with the back of a spoon and scrape gently.

Brush with olive oil and sprinkle with sea salt and pepper, bake with the flat side up (where you just de stemmed and de gilled) on greased cookie sheet for about 10 minutes or so at 425 until sizzling. I lately have been making a little "ring" with aluminum foil and place the mushrooms on those so they don't sit in their "juice" while baking. (Mushrooms contain a lot of water as well) No problem though if they do. Some prefer them juicier anyway.

Now remove from oven and top with some tomato sauce, and whatever other toppings you like. I normally use tomato sauce, minced garlic, some minced onion, sautéed spinach, mozzarella and parmesan cheese. Place back in oven and bake until golden and sizzling. Let sit a few minutes before you devour them. You can feel good about eating these and have no guilt!

Five Minutes To Pitch Great Business Idea

Quincy Center For Innovation Hosts Quick Pitch Competition

The Quincy Center for Innovation (QCI) will host its second annual "Quincy Quick Pitch Competition" Thursday, March 26 at the QCI, located at 180 Old Colony Ave. in Quincy.

The Quincy Quick Pitch Competition is an opportunity for entrepreneurs to "pitch" their product or idea to a panel with the chance to share up to $5,000 in cash and in-kind prizes which may be used to help further their business idea. Teams participating in the Quick Pitch will have the opportunity to meet and network with experienced venture capitalist principals, successful entrepreneurs, and business leaders who will serve as judges and witnesses to the competition.

There are two tracks to the Quick Pitch: a student track and community track. The Student Track is open to any team with at least one key member from a college or university in the commonwealth. There is a $25 entry fee for the Student Track. The Community Track is open to any person or business entity located within Massachusetts. There is a $50 entry fee for the Community Track.

The registration deadline is tomorrow (Friday). A panel of experts will review all submissions received by this date and will determine the finalists for each track. The final pitch event will be open to the general public on March 26.

Each startup will have five minutes to pitch to a panel of judges, followed by 5 minutes of Q & A from the panel. The judges will convene in private to determine the winners and they will be announced at the end of the competition.

The Quick Pitch Competition is sponsored by Friendly's Ice Cream, TD Bank and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

For detailed information about eligibility requirements and to register online, visit www.quincyinno.com.

13 Quincy Students Inducted Into National Honor Society At B.C. High

Thirteen students from Quincy were among the 175 students who were inducted into the Robert J. Fulton, SJ chapter of the National Honor Socity at Boston College High School.

Seven of the local students are seniors. They are: Joao Barbosa, Brian Djerf, Jake Dockrey, Jared McCleary, Nicholas Pham, Brendan Prendeville and Ethan Yau.

There were also six juniors from Quincy inducted. They are: John Foley, Corwin Huang, James MacDonald, Adam McCormack, Justin McGaffigan and Joshua Quinlan.

There ceremony was held at the Hunter-Fahey Commons.

As the new members of the National Honor Society came to the stage, they received congratulations and certificates from Principal Stephen Hughes and Assistant Principal Charles Drane. Earlier, the inductees received gold NHS pins that were worn on their jacket lapels during the ceremony.

During the ceremony NHS moderator Mrs. Patricia Keenan-Byrne welcomed the new members. The evening's guest speaker was Ms. Katharine Spencer, a teacher of chemistry at BC High. Ms. Spencer offered an inspiring message to the young men about living the values of scholarship, character, leadership and service as an adult. Dr. Finnegan and the BC High Concert Band provided the music for the evening's ceremony.

from the city, which Redgate maintains would be paid off by new revenue generated in the downtown.

The first phase of the project represents the next two years. No development on city-owned land is targeted for the first phase, but the recently approved Mechanic Lofts project and Quincy Mutual's proposed West of Chestnut development would both be constructed in that timeframe. The two projects include 203 residential units and 12,000 square feet of retail space.

As part of the first phase, the city would need to pay $8 million for utility upgrades and streetscape improvements along Hancock Street. Lisa Serafin, a principal at Redgate, said the city could issue new district improvement financing (DIF) bonds to fund the $8 million worth of improvements. New tax revenue from West of Chestnut and Mechanic Lofts would be used to pay the DIF bond.

"It's really foundational," Serafin said of $8 million worth of improvements. "That's how you attract additional residential development that then attracts commercial development. It's part of an ongoing chain and it starts with paying attention to Hancock Street and embracing it and invigorating it."

During the second phase, in 2017 and 2018, development would begin in the Hancock Lot. Redgate's plan has identified three parcels where residential development with street-level retail would take place in the Hancock Lot; a total of 375 residential units are seen there. To offset the loss of parking and provide new spaces for the developed parcels, Redgate suggests building a 500-space parking garage in a portion of the Hancock Lot. Phase II would also include demolition of the Ross Garage and creation of new surface parking in that area.

Phase II of the development has a projected price tag of $33 million – $20 million for new parking facilities and $13 million for utilities, infrastructure improvement, and demolishing the Ross Garage. Redgate suggested paying those off with a $13 million DIF bond and $20 million in general obligation (GO) bonds.

The city has already spent $75 million to date on downtown projects, including $40 million in DIF bonds and $35 million from federal and state sources. That money has gone towards moving the Town Brook, building the Hannon Parkway, the ongoing Adams Green Roadway project, and utility work, among other projects. Councillor Doug Gutro said he was concerned about the prospect of putting even more money into Quincy Center with no developer in site.

"After spending $75 million, seeing $41 million in new public investment is a difficult pill to swallow, basically, to invest without a specific private investment plan or concrete development plan before us," said Gutro, who is chairman of the council's downtown committee.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci expressed similar concern about funding the infrastructure upfront. He noted that Quincy's now terminated land disposition agreement (LDA) with Streets-Works required the developer to fund $289 million in infrastructure improvements, which the city would eventually buy back.

"This to me seems like a far riskier plan," Palmucci said. "It seems to me that it's risking taxpayer funds on the front end of each phase rather than on the back end. I think that's a big departure from what the mayor previously touted and we previously supported."

James Fatseas, Koch's executive secretary, replied that no developer would agree to pay for the utility and infrastructure work needed in Quincy Center so the city will need to fund those.

"That is a paradigm shift, absolutely," Fatseas said. "One paradigm shift that hasn't occurred, and what we wanted to make sure you saw, is the downtown will pay for itself. Each phase will pay appropriate tax revenue so that the moneys borrowed to build the infrastructure will be paid."

Planning Director Dennis Harrington later added that Quincy could receive between $22 million and $24 million by selling portions of the Hancock Lot to private developers.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall asked what would happen if the strong growth in the residential construction market seen in recent years falls off as the city enters the first phases of development between now and 2018.

"Do you guys see that trend continuing for the next three years?" he said. "If not, what kind of backstops do you have in place in the event the property market did cool off? How do you pivot off that?"

Serafin said the trend should continue given the need for housing and favorable interest rates.

"The need for housing in this area is documented to be very great, whether you're talking about Boston, the region, or the city of Quincy specifically. The need for new housing is continuing. The other thing that continues to be helpful are interest rates," Serafin said.

"We see the trend continuing for the foreseeable future. Again, this is something you want to get right on and strike while the iron is hot."

The third phase of the project would last from 2019 to 2023 and would focus on the area of the Ross Garage. There, Redgate sees a development with 45,000 square feet of retail space, 250,000 square feet of commercial space for offices, and 220 residential units. A new public garage with space for 650 vehicles is included in the roadmap for the third phase.

In total, Redgate estimated the third phase would cost $41 million. Nearly two-thirds of the money, $26 million, would be for the new garage and paid for with GO bonds. The remaining $15 million would go towards utilities and streetscapes and funded with a DIF bond.

The final phase would take place in 2024 and later years and feature a number of projects in the vicinity of Hannon Parkway and the Parkingway, including 350 residential units, 60,000 square feet of retail space, 200,000 square feet of commercial office space, and a 300-room hotel. A $14 million DIF bond would fund infrastructure improvements during that phase.

The construction of a new bridge connecting Burgin Parkway and Cliveden Street is also in the plan for the final phase and could be funded with money from the state's Infrastructure Investment Incentive (I-Cubed) program.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who was president of the council when the agreement with Street-Works was signed in 2011, said Redgate's report should tell developers Quincy is ready to move on.

"I saw it as personal failure that we weren't able to move forward and I think it would have been very easy to become frozen – to be stuck. We've recognized that that didn't work and that we needed to dust ourselves off, pick ourselves up, and look for a new roadmap forward," Coughlin said.

"I think the effort and the energy that has been invested in terms of putting this forward conveys a message that the city of Quincy is still open for business despite that failure."

The City Council was not asked to approve any new borrowing Monday night; each new bond would be voted on over the next several years. The disposition of city-owned land to private developers requires new LDAs, which the council would need to OK.

Redgate's report only looked at city-owned land. Pamela McKinney, of Byrne McKinney & Associates, a subcontractor brought on by Redgate, said development of those parcels will encourage development in privately held property along Hancock Street and elsewhere.

"We're trying not to get too far afield talking about parcels you don't own and control, because you don't have a master developer in hand anymore," she said.

"You have land you can use to incent others to follow a vision. You're not the only game in town. You're going to produce and incent activity by other folks who own property in the downtown."

City Pays Woodward School $1 Million In Lawsuit

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city has paid the Woodward School more than $1 million as part of an ongoing lawsuit over Quincy's management of two trust funds benefiting the private all-girls school; the two sides will go to court this summer to determine how much additional money the school is owed.

The decade long dispute between Quincy and the Woodward School began in 2005, when the chair of the school's board of trustees requested a full accounting of two trust funds that benefited the school beginning in 1953 – the Adams Temple and School Fund, established by John Adams in 1822, and the Charles Francis Adams Fund, established in 1886. The Woodward School sought the full accounting because it received lower than anticipated payments from the funds the previous two years.

A probate court judge in February 2011 ordered the city to pay nearly $3 million to the school – including $1.6 million in prejudgment interest and $1.1 million for unrealized portfolio gains. The city was also removed as trustee of the funds. In July 2014, the Supreme Judicial Court upheld the lower court's ruling that Quincy failed in its fiduciary duty, but remanded the $3 million penalty back to probate court.

City Solicitor James Timmins on Monday told the City Council the city would pay the Woodward School $1,065,762 for damages related to the sale of real estate that was included in the trusts; that figure also includes interest.

"Part of what the SJC did was they affirmed some of the damages that were awarded," Timmins said. "The parties got together basically and said 'look, the SJC confirmed these damages,' so we calculated them out and we had to do an interest calculation on it."

The two sides will go to probate court this summer as a judge determines the penalty related to the city's investment of funds in the trust.

The $1 million came from the city's account for legal judgments in the municipal budget. The judgments account was budgeted for $200,000 for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, and the account will now run in the deficit. Under state law, communities can deficit spend for legal judgments.

The city will need to clear the deficit in the judgment account – as well as a larger deficit in the snow and ice removal account – by the end of the fiscal year. To clear those deficits, the city can use free cash, transfer money from other line items, or apply it to next year's tax rate.

Water Infiltrated HN Gas Main

By SCOTT JACKSON

More than 130 National Grid customers in Houghs Neck went without natural gas service for two days recently after water infiltrated a gas main.

Gas service to the houses on Mears Avenue, Nut Island Avenue, Island Avenue and Sea Avenue in Houghs Neck was shut off on the night of Feb. 24 before being restored around 1:30 p.m. on Feb. 26. The Houghs Neck Maritime Center was kept open as an emergency shelter/warming center for residents and the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office mobile command post was on scene as crews remedied the problem.

Issues with gas service in the neighborhood, located at the far end of Houghs Neck, began after 7 p.m. on Feb. 24. David Graves, a spokesman for National Grid, said the company began receiving reports of low gas pressure in the affected area.

"We began getting reports of low or no gas pressure in Houghs Neck," he stated. "We dispatched crews to the area to determine what the cause was."

Those crews went door-to-door on the affected streets to see how many of the 135 customers had low pressure. That survey was completed around 10:50 p.m., at which point the utility shut off the gas service for safety reasons.

Workers continued to try and identify the source of the pressure problem overnight. On the morning of Feb. 25, they determined water had infiltrated a four-inch main on Sea Avenue. Clean Harbors – a company that specialized in hazardous waste disposal – was then called in to pump the water out of the main and dispose of it.

More than 30 gallons of water were pumped out of the pipe, according to Graves.

Relighting in the neighborhood began that afternoon. As part of that process, National Grid workers had to make sure every pilot light in each of the homes was lit. If residents weren't home, a locksmith escorted by Quincy police officers entered the home to undertake the relighting process.

After several hours of relighting, another pressure drop was reported at 7:40 p.m. on Feb. 25. More water was removed from the pipe at that point and pumps were put in place to keep it clear. The relighting continued overnight and went on until 1:30 p.m. Feb. 26, at which point all houses had gas service back.

It remains unknown how the water entered the gas main, though Graves said such infiltration is known to occur in low-lying, coastal areas.

Volunteers Still Needed To Count Smelt In Town Brook

By PAT ARTIS

Every March and April for centuries rainbow smelt have been returning to the Town Brook in downtown Quincy to spawn and lay their eggs.

The Stream Team Steering Committee of the Quincy Environmental Network and Wollaston Garden Club Conservation Committee conducted an educational and orientation program in the Community Room at the Thomas Crane Library Feb. 25. Paul Bergquist and Chris Lucas who are involved with the City's Town Brook Monitoring Program (2013 – 2015) spoke to the group briefly about their findings. Detailed information of these findings can be found on the city's web site at http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/PLANNING/townbrookproject.cfm.

At the meeting, new volunteers were recruited; and previous volunteers applauded for their re-commitment to help in the effort. There is still time for new or returning volunteers to select a day of the week to look for and document smelt in the brook beginning March 1 and continuing through April 30th. Volunteers choose one day/night of the week and a specific location (s) to monitor; and receive a data log to compile their weekly information. You can find more information about viewing locations and access the Stream Team data log and other pertinent Town Brook information at www.townbrook.org.

The goal of the organizers of the Town Brook Stream Team is: to educate its volunteer members and the greater community regarding the life cycle of the smelt and the brook's fragile ecosystem; to develop community advocacy for the smelt and its ecosystem; and to conduct an accurate, methodical fish count for this spring.

The Stream Team intends for this to become an annual event with the intention of collecting data for many years to come.

If you, or your group, are interested and can donate approximately 15 minutes per week to look for smelt in the brook, then join the Town Brook Stream Team by contacting us at info@townbrook.org. This is by far the most important thing you can do for the local environment this spring!

In both 2011 and 2012 Stream Team founders saw hundreds and hundreds of male smelt resting in pools in the Town Brook. A sight, not soon forgotten.

Security Our Middle Name

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

On March 6, Americans recognize Middle Name Pride Day.

At the Social Security Administration, our middle name is "Security," and every day, we do everything we can to live up to that name. As part of protecting our vital services, we safeguard against all forms of Social Security fraud.

Social Security has zero-tolerance for fraud and those who try to cheat the system. While we can't prevent all fraud schemes any more than the best police force can stop all crime, we work aggressively with our Office of the Inspector General to investigate and prosecute people who commit fraud.

Acting Commissioner Carolyn Colvin's message to those who would defraud Social Security is clear: "We will find you; we will prosecute you; we will seek the maximum punishment allowable under the law; and we will fight to restore to the American public the money you've stolen."

We provide benefits to one-fifth of the American population, including elderly retirees, people with severe illnesses, and widows and children after the death of a wage earner. Our beneficiaries also include wounded warriors and the chronically ill, all of whom tend to be the most vulnerable of our population. Protecting our critically important programs from fraud can be challenging. Yet, our standard is absolute—any fraud is unacceptable. And, our focus on preventing fraud works.

Our Office of the Inspector General works in concert with our frontline employees to identify fraud and bring offenders to justice. Together, we use a number of tools to help us accurately predict where fraud may occur. By monitoring cases closely, we identify fraud sooner rather than later—and often we prevent it before it happens. We also have stiff penalties that discourage people from committing fraud, including hefty fines, suspension of benefits, and even jail time for the most severe offenses.

We take our middle name seriously and so should you. If you suspect someone is committing Social Security fraud, we ask that you report it online at http://oig.ssa.gov/report or call the Social Security Fraud Hotline at 1-800-269-0271 immediately.

30 QHS Students Participate In Harvard Model Congress

Thirty Quincy High School students representing all four grades participated in Harvard Model Congress in Boston during February school vacation from February 19-22nd. This year celebrated Harvard's 30th year of offering a thorough simulation of all facets of American government. This educational and fun opportunity engaged 1500 delegates representing 80 schools from across the United States. Mrs. Speer, faculty advisor for All Saints Academy in Winter Haven in Florida, and QHS class of '85, was excited that her alma mater was attending.

Sen. Elizabeth Warren opened the conference with video-taped comments from Washington, DC. She was followed by Boston's Chief Environmental and Energy Officer, Austin Blackmon, Harvard '07.

Students practiced parliamentary procedures, writing legislation, compromising, debating and public speaking. Isabella Cobble, QHS '15, portrayed Representative Esty (D-CT), and she was the keynote speaker at the Large House Democratic Caucus on opening night. She reminded fellow Democrats of their recent successes and their future needs and goals.

Members of QHS's delegation were woken late Friday night for mock "midnight crises" which included the FBI contending with a high profile policy maker who had been taking bribes from the Russians, and the National Security Council which had decided to send in Navy Seals to rescue the U.S. Ambassador to South Korea who was abducted by the North Koreans.

Two delegates, Evan Bausemer and Liam Rogers, QHS '17, won special awards and recognition for their participation in the Historical Committee which returned to 1931 to revisit the Great Depression.

Former Attorney General Martha Coakley offered closing comments. She told delegates that the essence of moving forward is to compromise. She challenged all delegates with the tough task of remaining principled, but learning to compromise.

Missed School Days, Calendar

DeCristofaro.

If the DESE waiver were to be granted, the last day of school would be on June 27.

Eileen Enos, who has a student a North Quincy High School and one at Central Middle School, said her children wanted to thank the School Committee for posting an online survey seeking opinions from not only staff and parents, but from students as well, on how to best make up the lost days.

"They were stunned that you wanted to hear from them," she said.

"You guys do what you think is best because my kids have one job and their job is school."

The online survey also sought opinions on how to best prevent a similar situation during the 2015-2016 school year and included options such as starting school before Labor Day on Sept. 7, eliminating the Good Friday holiday, or replacing February and April vacation with one March vacation.

Making no changes to the school year calendar was also an option.

"Absolutely they should start before Labor Day," said Enos regarding the 2015-2016 school year. "It's three days that we wouldn't be looking for this year if we hadn't started so late in September."

Other parents rejected the idea of beginning before Labor Day and said doing so would disrupt or cause the cancellation of planned family vacations.

"Getting rid of February and April vacations and combining them into March seems to be a knee-jerk reaction to an unprecedented winter that we've had," said Jennifer Goba.

Joseph Desmond was vocal in his opposition to eliminating the Good Friday holiday and said holding school would disrupt planned religious observations.

"I just hope that due consideration is given to keeping Good Friday as the day off from school that it has been," he said.

"I'm in favor — if the waiver doesn't come through or help us in any way — to utilizing the extended day option over 36 days," School Committeeman David McCarthy told The Sun Tuesday. "Plus a Saturday, that would get us near the June 25 day for students, June 26 for teachers. I would leave Good Friday as is as it's one of the most important days of the year."

The most popular survey option with parents, staff, and students for the 2014-2015 school year was enacting the three-day waiver from DESE. Holding school on Saturdays was universally unpopular.

For the 2015-2016 school year, parents preferred having one vacation week in March and strongly disliked the option of starting before Labor Day.

Staff were evenly split on starting before Labor Day while students opted for no change to the calendar.

About 4,650 people responded to the online poll.

A letter sent by Mayor Thomas Koch to DESE cited significant and unbudgeted financial costs and scheduling hardships on parents, students, and staff as reasons for seeking the waiver.

The cost of opening school on unscheduled school days could run roughly $75,000.

Koch said the city is "millions of dollars in deficit due to snow removal efforts and is not in a position to take on this additional expense."

The School Committee will vote on how to best make up the days after the DESE and Commissioner Mitchell Chester decide whether or not to grant the three-day waiver.

"We have not received word at this point in regard to that waiver," said DeCristofaro who has spoken to Chester regarding the matter twice.

"These are just the state's or the commissioner's considerations and not something that we need to do in any way but certainly they are considerations that the committee will look into."

DeCristofaro said he was uncertain as to when he would be receiving word on the waiver but said discussion would continue at Wednesday's meeting of the School Committee.

Fines For Not Shoveling Sidewalks?

two middle school students traveling to and from school were struck by vehicles while on city streets.

Hughes said she understands concerns residents have over unshoveled sidewalks, but added it is important to learn more about the feasibility and enforceability of a new ordinance before taking action.

"Certainly this is something that is timely and as time goes on will not be foremost in everyone's mind, but it is something I want to get in front of this council because I know we've had a lot of questions and there has been a lot of discussion back and forth about the feasibility and the actual implementation of the ordinance like this in our city," Hughes explained.

"I know folks are concerned, and rightly so, about the safety of not shoveling residential sidewalks and shoveling snow [into streets], which also hinders DPW efforts to clean up post-storm. But I really think this is something that needs to be investigated with DPW, with the Legal Department in terms of enforceability, and also with code enforcement to talk about the actual reality of enforcing an ordinance like this."

5-Story Residential Building Proposed At 18-22 Mechanic St.

Neighbors Concerned About Density, Stormwater Runoff On Smelt Spawning

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The proposed construction of a new, 34-unit, five-story residential building at 18 and 22 Mechanic St. has some neighbors concerned about a possible increase in population density and the impact stormwater runoff could have on the spawning habits of smelt in the nearby Town Brook.

The parcels of land are within the Quincy Center zoning district, an area that allows for buildings up to ten-stories high to be built and eases restrictions on parking and density requirements in an effort to encourage mixed-use construction.

Attorney Edward Fleming spoke on behalf of applicant Michael Kiley, Heritage Companies principal, at a public hearing held during a meeting of the Planning Board last Wednesday.

"It's one of the first cases that's been before this board on the new Quincy Center zoning district," said Fleming.

Gary Gardner of Sheskey Architects described the site which is comprised of two separate parcels of land. The parcel at 18 Mechanic St. is 5,551-square-feet in size while the parcel at 22 Mechanic St. is 24,559-square-feet in size.

The building will contain 34 units and 38 bedrooms.

The units will be lofts, one-bedroom units, or one-bedroom den units. Four will be two-bedroom units.

The first floor will be made up of seven apartments. Each remaining floor will be made up of nine units each.

Parking underneath the building will be accessible from the rear of the site. The 38 spaces proposed by the applicant meet the requirements of the Quincy Center zoning district to provide buildings made up of at least 80 percent residential living space with one parking space per bedroom.

"We are in full compliance with the parking regulations," said Fleming.

Of the 38 spaces, 17 will be underneath the building.

No variances are being requested, he added.

Fleming called planned drainage control measures "state of the art" and said substantial landscaping will create a green space primarily behind 18 Mechanic St. where the parcel abuts the Town Brook.

The new green space will not be accessible to the public, said Fleming, but it will be visible from the pocket park of the Town Brook.

There will be no connection between the pocket park and the building's green space as the area is separated by several homes.

The parking area under the building will remain open for ventilation purposes, said Gardner, however screening will cover the openings to allow air to pass through while keeping precipitation out and obstructing the view of the interior of the garage from the outside.

A peer review of the site plan was performed by James White, senior project manager and engineer at H.W. Moore Associates.

Arlene Goodman, the property owner of nearby 31, 33, and 35 Revere Road, said her concerns revolved around a possible increase in population density in the area.

"It's too dense and it's too high," she said of the building, adding that she was worried the view from her home's windows would be obstructed by the apartments.

She was also concerned that the emptying of stormwater would have a negative impact on the smelt population in the Town Brook which she said she's noticed has declined over the last several years.

"This is a main spawning area for smelt for the Town Brook," she said. "If they describe the drainage as coming down to the Town Brook this is a major concern of mine."

The site at 22 Mechanic St. is completely paved and is currently being used for commercial vehicle parking. Surface runoff is directed without any drainage control measures over the lot and into the Town Brook, according to Fleming.

Following construction, runoff will first go through a catch basin and a stormwater quality unit to remove pollutants.

"Any water that's discharged into the brook that may very well be affecting the smelt population to date will be treated before it's released into the brook," he said.

Conditions dictate that following the construction of an outlet pipe which will disrupt the Town Brook embankment wall, the reconstructed portion of wall must match the original wall in color and materials used.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, February 22, 2015, at approximately 2:15 p.m., Sergeant Sean Duggan was on routine patrol when he came across a vehicle stopped in the left northbound lane of Burgin Parkway near Lowe's. Concerned that the vehicle could be broken down and in a hazardous spot, the Sergeant pulled up behind the vehicle and observed the driver with his arms and head sticking out the driver side window with the vehicle running. The driver appeared to be taking pictures of the pavement with some type of device as the vehicle started rolling forward. Traffic approaching this vehicle had to switch lanes to avoid hitting it and many drivers blew their horn at the driver.

Sergeant Duggan activated his blue lights and siren to get the driver's attention and have him stop. The driver continued rolling forward and then started waving his hands out the window in what appeared to be in annoyance with the Police action. The Sergeant hand motioned for the driver to pull over to the right of the roadway. Instead, the driver drove off with Sergeant Duggan driving behind him in an attempt to stop him.

After traveling about a quarter mile on Burgin Parkway, with blue lights activated and siren blaring, the vehicle pulled over. The Sergeant approached the vehicle and asked the driver, the sole occupant, for his license and registration. The driver immediately began yelling that he did nothing wrong and refused to hand over his license and registration. The driver was again asked for his paper work and he continued to yell that there was no reason to provide his license and registration. Sergeant Duggan told the driver why he was stopping him and strongly advised him to provide the documents, for a failure to do so would result in arrest. The driver suddenly pushed the door open at the Sergeant, causing him to step back into traffic. The driver yelled, "Handcuff me and arrest me then".

LT. DAN MINTON

Sergeant Duggan then handcuffed the driver and walked him to the side of the road for his safety. Officer Robert Sweetland arrived on scene to assist and immediately recognized the driver from an earlier incident in the day when he wrote the driver for a Red Light Violation at the Lowe's intersection on Burgin Parkway. The driver, a 25 year old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest and charged with, "Disorderly Conduct, Failure to Stop, Operator refusing to produce a license and Impeded Operation."

During an Arrest Tow Inventory Search, Sergeant Duggan observed an empty prescription bottle of Suboxone in another person's name. So, why was the driver taking photos? He was building his case for the first ticket by photographing various lines in the road. Nice Work!

AWARD NOTIFICATION/FINAL NOTICE SCAM: enclosed is a check of $1,897.00, which in very small print states "No cash value. Must be redeemed for cruise voucher." The award is for a cruise and includes airfare, according to the pamphlet. In small print, it states, "Government taxes and fees, reservation and port fees, and all onboard service charges are additional." If you book a cruise directly through the cruise companies, you will get the total price and most likely it will be cheaper. These offers require that you make initial payments and then are hit with additional fees. If you decide not to go, most likely you will lose your deposit and if you continue to make payments, you will find that you will be overpaying. Since the letter does not even have a company name in it, you may not get a cruise at all.

Dangerousness Hearing For Hatchet Attack Suspect

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy man charged with attacking a local attorney with a hatchet and wasp-killing spray in the Ross Garage was due back in court yesterday (Wednesday) for a dangerousness hearing.

Michael A. Kelly of 29 Miller Stile Road pleaded not guilty to three charges at his arraignment in Quincy District Court on Feb. 27 and was ordered held without bail pending this week's hearing. The 53-year-old was charged with one count of armed assault with intent to murder and two counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon on a person over 60 years old.

Prosecutors allege Kelly attacked the victim, an attorney in his 60s, around 5:30 p.m. Feb. 24 on the third floor of the Ross Garage. According to Quincy Police Lt. John Steele, Kelly began striking the victim in the head with the hatchet while the attorney was putting items into his car. The victim was able to wrest the hatchet away from Kelly and the scuffle continued until witnesses ran to break up the fight. The attorney was also sprayed in the face with wasp-killing spray during the attack.

The victim was taken to Boston Medical Center. Steele said the man was released from the hospital Feb. 26 after receiving more than 20 staples in his scalp.

A witness saw the suspect leaving the scene in a blue Jeep Grand Cherokee and was able to discretely take a picture of his vehicle, according to Steele. Investigators were able to enhance the photo and read the license plate. The victim then told investigators he was representing one of Kelly's family members in probate court.

Eastern Nazarene College, 23 E. Elm St., Quincy will host a special environmental photo exhibit March 16-27 in the college's Nease Library documenting the decline in certain species of amphibians and its significance.

The exhibit, "Naked Canaries," showcases colorful photos of amphibians taken by Northwest Nazarene University Biology Professor Dr. John Cossel Jr.

The two-week photo exhibit will culminate with a special evening showcase and lecture by Cossel at 7 p.m. March 27 in the Mann Student Center.

Norfolk County Central Labor Council Endorses Gutro For Mayor

The Norfolk County Central Labor Council announces it has endorsed City Councillor Doug Gutro in his campaign for mayor of Quincy.

"Doug has always best represented working families in Quincy and it's with great pleasure that we endorse his candidacy for mayor of the City of Quincy," said Norfolk County Central Labor Council President Bob Rizzi. "The City of Quincy needs to move forward, and we feel that Doug's thoughtful and transparent approach provides the best direction for working men and women in the city.

"The mayoral election in the city of Quincy this year will be among the most important in a generation," Rizzi continued. "The Norfolk County Central Labor Council looks forward to getting the message out to Quincy's working families that Doug Gutro is the best choice to respect and represent their concerns in the future." Rizzi said.

"I'm pleased to receive the endorsement from the Norfolk County Central Labor Council and their members," Gutro said. "I've worked hard throughout my career to fight for the working men and women of Quincy and would be thrilled to continue to do so as their mayor.

"Organized labor deserves a voice and a seat at the table in this city and if I become mayor, I promise to always communicate with and include my brothers and sisters in the labor movement," Gutro said.

The Norfolk County Central Labor Council represents 35 AFL-CIO affiliated unions throughout 28 towns in Norfolk County and has approximately 40,000 members, with thousands of members residing in the City of Quincy.

DA's Office Could Re-Open This Week

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Norfolk County District Attorney's Office in Canton may be able to reopen as early as this week following a recent fire.

The two-alarm fire at the district attorney's office at 45 Shawmut Street in Canton broke out at 1:50 a.m. Feb. 22. Falling ice and snow caused a gas leak; the gas entered the building and then ignited.

District Attorney Michael Morrissey, in a phone interview Feb. 25, said the Canton office could be able to re-open as soon as this week. According to Morrissey, an explosion in the building's boiler room caused damage to the brick façade and blew out several windows. The building's steel structure, however, is still sound, except for portions of the exterior near the explosion. A company was in the process of cleaning up fire, smoke, and water damage inside the building.

"The good news is we didn't lose a single file and none of the evidence in storage was damaged," Morrissey said. "The fire did minimal damage but was a major inconvenience."

Employees who normally work out of the Canton office have been relocated while the building is repaired. The staff has taken over the Quincy District Court office space on Hancock Street in Quincy. Other employees have moved into offices and other available space at courthouses throughout the county.

"We're being patient and we'll be able to get through," Morrissey said.

VOICE FOR HEALTH
by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor
A STEADY PROGRESSION
By understanding that each injury has its own pattern of development, detection, involvement, and resolution, chiropractors are often able to discern signs of an injury's impending development. This ability can prove to be invaluable for patients who exercise and compete regularly. When the chiropractor looks at these predictable mechanisms, he or she may develop a preventative plan based on experience with similar injuries. Because injuries leave clues, and each sport's injuries result from certain repetitive actions that involve specific joint components, injuries may be avoided if weakness can be found before the injury actually occurs. This complete understanding of the musculoskeletal system makes chiropractors a valuable resource for athletes of all levels of ability and experience.
Spinal function is absolutely necessary for optimal performance. If a nerve to a specific muscle is blocked due to pinching or irritation at the spinal level that muscle will be weak. At Family Practice of Chiropractic, we offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service. We will only accept you as a patient if we sincerely feel we can help you. Located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, we provide safe and gentle chiropractic care. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment.
P.S. Chiropractors treat individuals as a complex whole of related parts and systems rather than viewing symptoms and conditions in isolation.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
GETTING TEETH INTO BETTER SHAPE
Teeth that are uneven, overlapping, or rotated can significantly detract from the appearance of an otherwise nice smile. Fortunately, as long as sufficient tooth material is preserved, the look of select teeth can be improved by "tooth recontouring." This usually painless procedure involves removing, recontouring, and polishing the enamel to produce a more uniform and natural appearance. Many times, recontouring in this manner is all that is required to significantly improve an individual's smile. If, on the other hand, poor alignment is more pronounced, tooth enamel recontouring might be performed in conjunction with "tooth bonding." This quick and effective cosmetic procedure supplements tooth enamel with tooth-colored resin that is bonded to the tooth surface.
Good cosmetic dentistry can give you a smile that is the envy of others. Tooth recontouring is a safe and conservative way to improve your smile. For a happy, healthy, and good-looking smile, we urge you to have a check-up soon. Our recommendations for dental treatment are always in the best interest of the patient. Our dental practice is devoted to restoring and enhancing the natural beauty of your smile. We invite you to call 617 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.
P.S. One of the primary benefits of tooth recontouring is that it enables dental floss to reach pockets and crevices between teeth that were once blocked by overlapping and irregularly shaped teeth.

Presidents Take Down WR, Bow To Taunton

Tournament Run Ends In OT Loss To Tigers After Stirring Comeback

By BILL GRIFFIN

As they walked from the locker room after Friday night's agonizing 74-68 overtime loss to Taunton in the quarterfinals of the Division 1 South Sectionals, the feelings were too raw, the loss still stung too deeply for the players to put the game and their championship season into proper perspective.

But time always helps and heals. Soon, they will realize two lasting truths about themselves: They were a part of a great basketball game which will not be forgotten, and they played out a senior season full of fine memories, friendships and accomplishments which they will always treasure.

First, the game. It was a beauty, a living example of the best reason we have tournaments. Tournaments produce game likes this. It was a night of high emotion and high skill. Usually a game showcases one or the other, but not both. Quincy and Taunton played with passion and talent.

There was wide-open, eye-popping offense in the first half. There was lock-down defense in the second half. There were big runs by both sides. Emotion and momentum swung from side to side in the wild, rocking gym.

There was a stirring comeback as Quincy rose up from down 13 late in the third. And finally, there were two wonderful players: Drew Myers and Cory Green matching their games on the big stage. Myers' final three which gave Quincy the lead late in the fourth and Green's cross-court bounce pass to Jose Mercado which tied the game in the final seconds will be forever frozen in the memory.

"It's hard right now to appreciate that we were part of something special. There's nothing I can I say now that will make it easier for them. But we contended and competed with the best. That's what the tournament is about," said Quincy coach Dave Parry.

Now for the season. In one wild, improbable week, Quincy swept the city championship against North, won the Moscardelli Tournament and clinched its first league title in seven years. The winter of endless snow forced the Presidents to play five games in five nights. Nobody does that. Quincy did it and they walked away from it as champions.

"That's something nobody in the history of the school has done," said Parry. "When they have a chance to reflect on that, I think they'll see that's when they became men."

This is a team of five senior starters who have played hoop together since they were old enough to walk and bounce a ball. Myers, Colin Evans, J.T. Bain, James Lam, and Tyler Beach have a rare closeness which surely added to the meaning of their season.

This closeness also produced the one skill for which this team will always be remembered. Passing the basketball. They knew each other so well, they were so unselfish, they moved the ball so well that they were a joy to watch. Every team says it doesn't matter who scores. Few mean it. Quincy meant it. Most teams have one or two players who are willing to pass. Quincy had

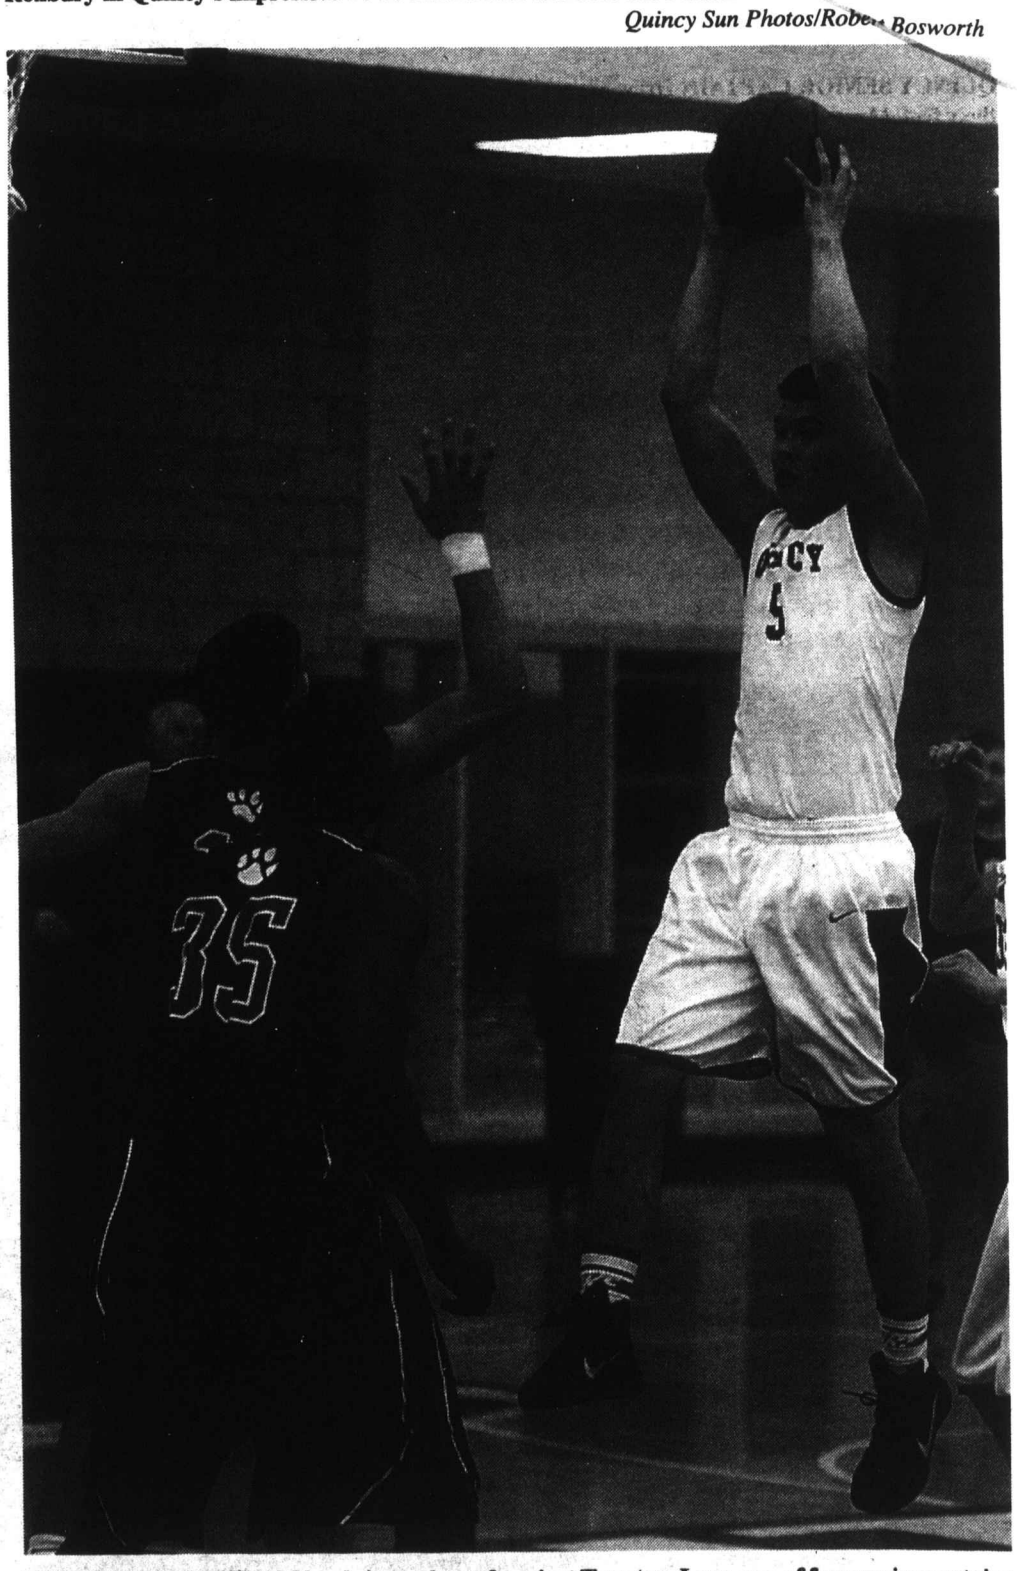
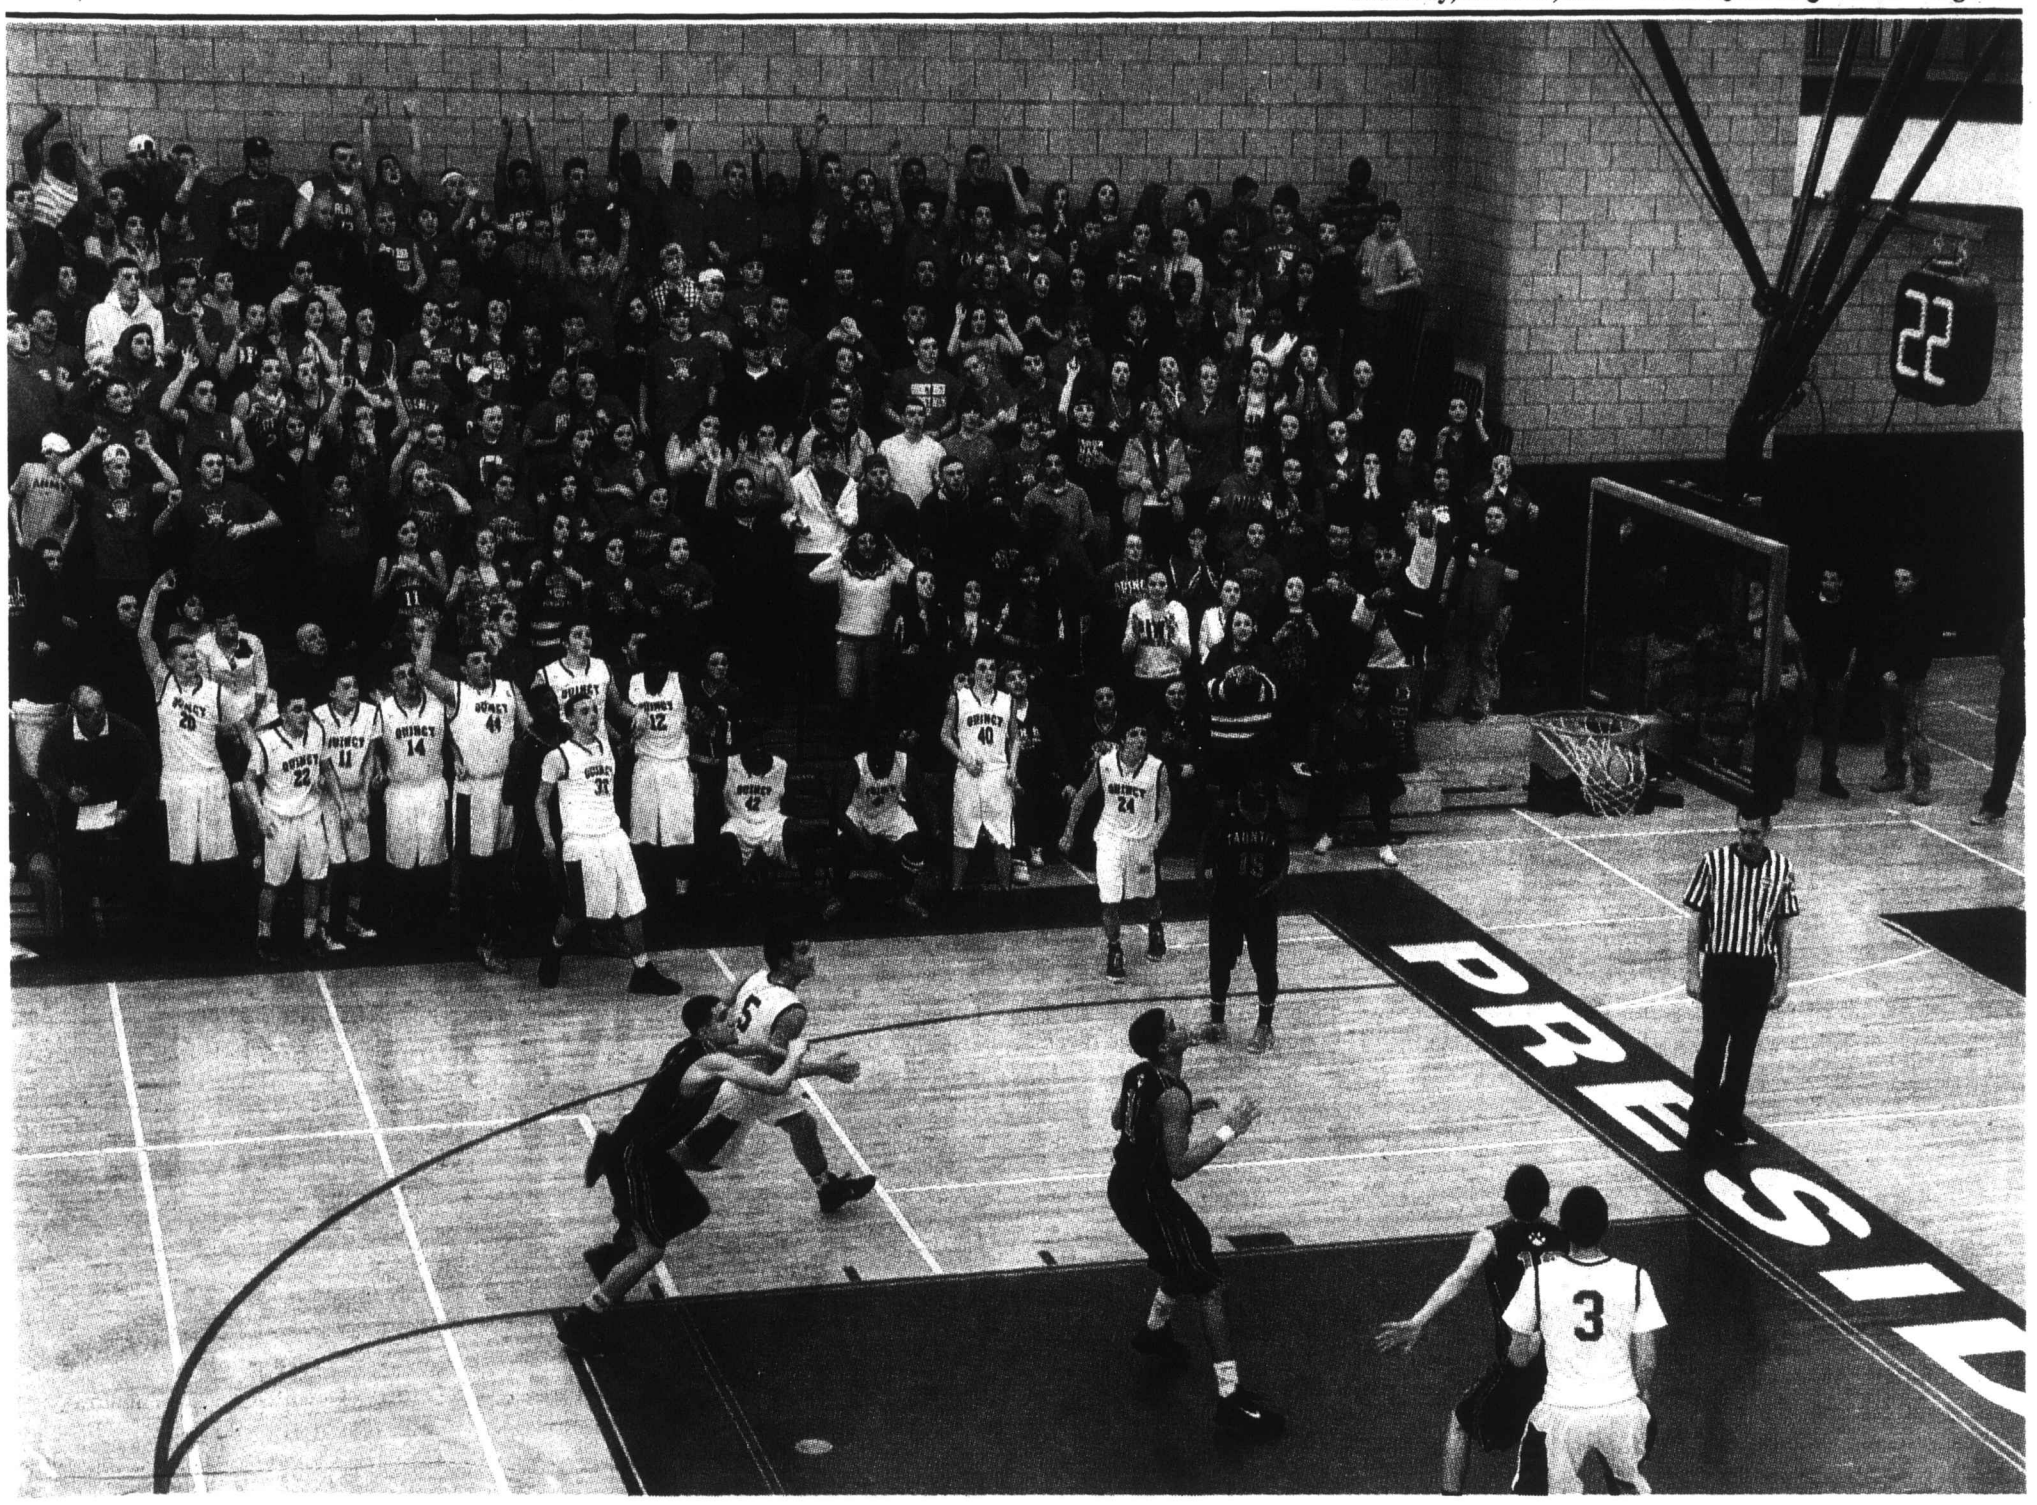
SENIOR COLIN EVANS scored 13 points in the Presidents' 74-50 first-round victory over West Roxbury Academy and contributed 10 points in Quincy's 74-68 overtime loss to Taunton in the second round of the Div. 1 South Sectionals last Friday night at QHS.



FORWARD JAMES LAM hauls in a rebound against Taunton. Lam, one of four senior captains on this year's QHS varsity basketball team, will attend Stonehill College and play football on an athletic scholarship. The team's other four starters: J.T. Bain, Drew Myers, and Colin Evans will play basketball and Tyler Beach will play baseball in college.



QUINCY SENIOR CAPTAIN Drew Myers (#33) hits a three-pointer in the fourth quarter against Taunton to give Quincy a lead late in the game and brought the Presidents' bench and fans to their feet. Myers had a team hight 26 points including 12 in the fourth quarter. Quincy rallied from 13 points but the Tigers defeated the Presidents 74-68 in overtime in the second round of the Div. 1 South Sectionals last Friday night. 'Glory With Team In Victory, Love In Defeat'

Quincy High Boys' Basketball Takes Fans On Season They'll Never Forget

By BILL GRIFFIN

You glory with a team in victory. You fall in love with it in defeat.

They are the words of the great writer Roger Kahn. They were written about the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Boys of Summer, who played more than 60 years in the past, but anyone who saw the classic Quincy played out against Taunton last Friday night knows well that the words live and live strongly in the present.

Quincy was down 13 late in the third period. The Presidents clamped down a vise of a defense which gave not a shot, not a pass, not an inch. They surged ahead by four with 35 seconds left in the game. Drew Myers shot the ball as if touched by the heavens. 35 seconds. They were 35 seconds and one improbable play away from a grand victory.

But Taunton made the play. The Tigers' terrific point guard Cory Green hit a drive and threw a pass for the ages to force overtime. Green then hit the clinching free throws in the OT to lift Taunton past Quincy, 74-68 in a basketball classic that lovers of the game will talk about for as long as there is a rim and a backboard.

It was the second straight season Quincy lost in the quarterfinals of the Division 1 South Sectionals. The Presidents, who finished the season at 17-5, advanced to the quarterfinals with a 74-50 win over West Roxbury earlier last week behind 20 points from J.T. Bain.

"There aren't many teams that could have come back like that, come back in the fourth period from that deficit against a team like Taunton," said Quincy coach Dave Parry. "I'm proud of them. A lot of teams would have hung it up. We made it a great game."

Pick it up with Taunton leading, 50-37 with 2:24 left in the third and pick it up with Myers. Quincy needed energy as much as it needed points. The Presidents needed life back in the packed gym. Just as he did against Plymouth North when his team was weary and behind in a game which would clinch the league title, Myers drained a nerveless three to light the fire. The gym exploded. Quincy had life. Quincy had a shot.

He hit two free throws and bounced a perfect backdoor feed to James Lam before the third was over. Quincy was within 54-46. In the fourth, he drove to the hoop for two buckets. He drew an offensive foul. He set up a Bain drive. He drained two threes. The second three with the quickest of releases, a tightly-guarded shot with a good measure of contact from deep on the left wing, gave Quincy its first lead since the opening quarter at 60-59 with 2:40 left and had the gym bouncing and shaking with sound.

He had 26 for the night, 21 in the second half and 12 in the fourth period. It is one thing to shoot like this in January against Middleboro. It is another to shoot like this on the tournament stage for a team with five good friends as senior starters who have been dreaming about this game since they were seven years old. The city has seen some great clutch shooting performances in the past three years. Myers was as good as any of them.

"We called Drew's number when we needed him, when we needed a run. He responded the way he always does," said Parry. "He is clutch. You look at him, at his demeanor and you even don't know the situation. He always has control of his emotions."

And there was the defense. Taunton averaged 73 points per game this season. The Tigers scored 33 in the fourth period of the opening round against Needham. They scored 22 in the first period against Quincy. Trailing by 13, Quincy came out of its 3-2 zone, went man-to-man, shirt-to-shirt and took back the game. Quincy held Taunton scoreless for nearly four minutes in the fourth. Taunton scored six points in the first seven minutes of the quarter. In the first 7:25 of the period, the Tigers had one field goal. Enough said.

"We played the zone to protect our bigs (Lam, Bain) against foul trouble," said Parry. "They shot so well we had to come out of it. The man-to-man worked great. I think we wore them down with it a little and that helped get us back in the game."

Myers, Colin Evans (10 points), Tyler Beach, and Carl Zapata hounded Taunton's shooters, but the heart of the defense was underneath with Lam (13 points, 10 rebounds, five assists) and Bain (15 points, seven rebounds, five assists). They rebounded and passed the ball brilliantly. Taunton had used second and third shots to build its lead. When Bain and Lam were rebounding out of the man-to-man, that all stopped.

"We looked at their shooting percentage at the half, and it was like 60 per cent," said Parry. "We didn't think that could keep up, but we had to rebound better. We were also able to use James and J.T. to attack down low."

And so it played out to the finish. The only thing missing was a happy ending. With Quincy up, 64-60 and 35 seconds left Green (29 points) hit on a drive. Following a miss, Green got out in transition and fired an unlikely crosscourt bounce pass through at least three players to a cutting Jose Mercado (20 points) for the tying hoop. That's three sets of arms, legs, elbows, and shoulders. If the pass glances off one of them, Quincy wins.

"I could not believe that pass got through. I think it actually did hit a leg. But give them all credit. They made the plays," said Parry.

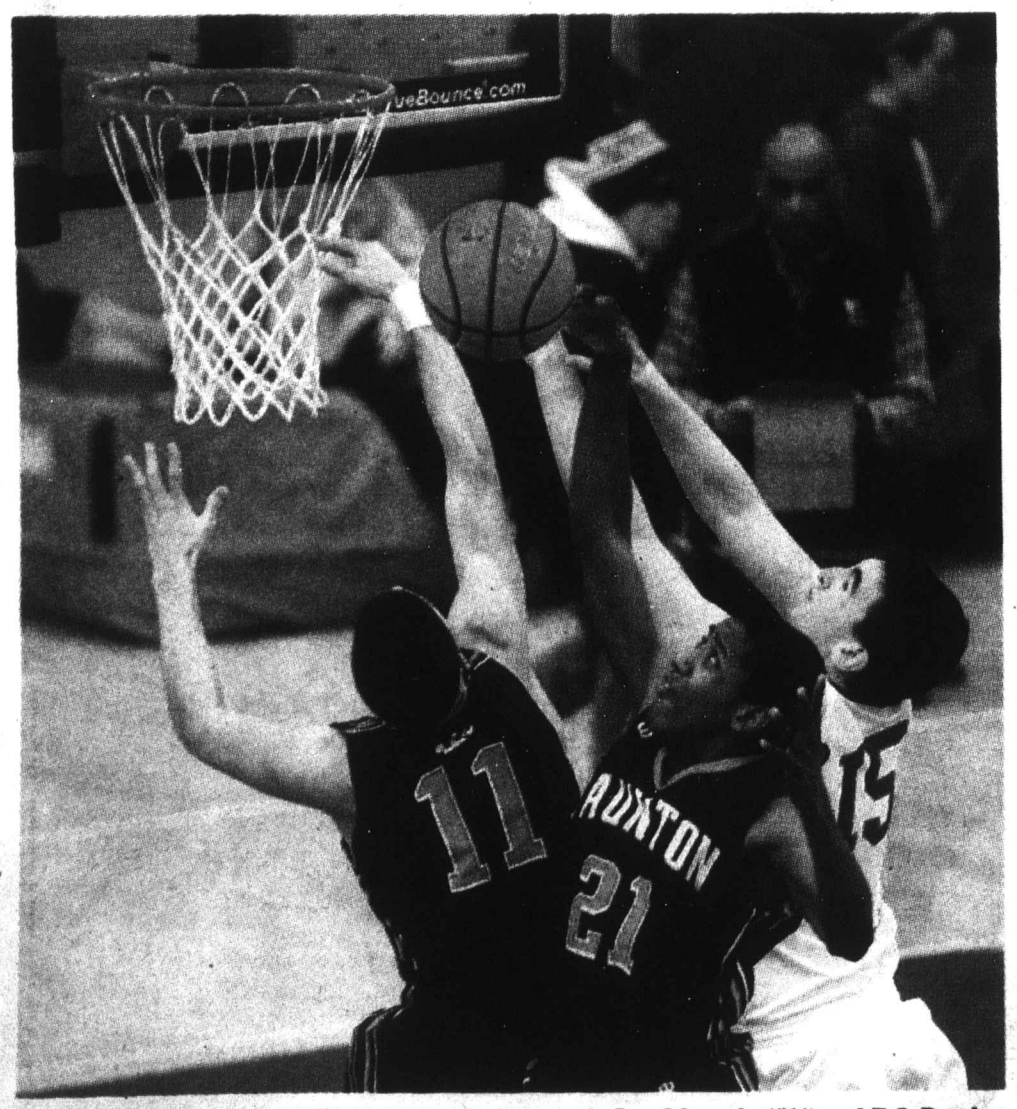
Taunton went up 68-64 early in the overtime, but Quincy never goes away quietly. Myers and Evans each hit a pair of free throws to tie it. However, Green calmly knocked home two foul shots with 0:46 left to nudge Taunton ahead, 70-68 and Mercado scored the last four points of the game to finish it.

"I couldn't be prouder of the level of our effort, with how hard we competed," said Parry.

The game began as if the final score would be 120-119. The two combined for 19 points in the first two minutes of the opening quarter. Taunton led, 22-21 after one and 35-30 at the half. The lead grew to 13 late in the third and from there Myers and Green and Quincy and Taunton played out their fine drama.

When it was over, Parry stood in the doorway of Quincy's meeting room and greeted each player. There were five senior starters. There were nine seniors on the team. There were handshakes, hugs and tears. And there were smiles.

You glory with a team in victory. You fall in love with it in defeat.



QUINCY SENIOR J.T. BAIN (right) battles Taunton's Jose Mercado (#11) and E.J. Dambreville (#21) for a rebound in the Presidents-Tigers second-round matchup in the Div. 1 South Sectionals last Friday night at QHS.

Coach Parry: 'These Kids Earned Everyone's Respect'

One opposing coach compared them to the San Antonio Spurs. Another said he had to keep from just enjoying their play while he was coaching against them. If a team has an assist-field goal ratio of 50 percent, it is considered exceptional. Quincy was regularly in the 60-75 per cent range. The ball moved. The ball always moved. It is the way the game should be played.

"Every game, every night, that was what we tried to accomplish," said Parry. "Individually and collectively, this has been a special group since they started as sophomores. You saw that in the way they related to each other and the way they shared the ball."

They are good kids, good students and good athletes. All will play sports in college. Lam will play football at Stonehill. Myers and Bain will play basketball at Bridgewater State. Evans will play basketball at Curry. Beach will play baseball at Westfield State.

I am a father of four and I know this loss is tough," said Parry. "But I know when one door closes, another opens. These kids have bright futures. When they look back, they will be happy they were part of all this excitement."

After the Taunton game the three referees walked out and spoke to Parry. All three shook his hand and said what a great experience it was to work a game that his team played. This was more than a good basketball team. This was a team which won the respect of coaches, referees, and opponents by the way they played and acted. It is hard to think of a higher compliment.

"That means a lot," said Parry. "The kids earned everyone's respect by the way they conducted themselves. A coach can't ask for more."

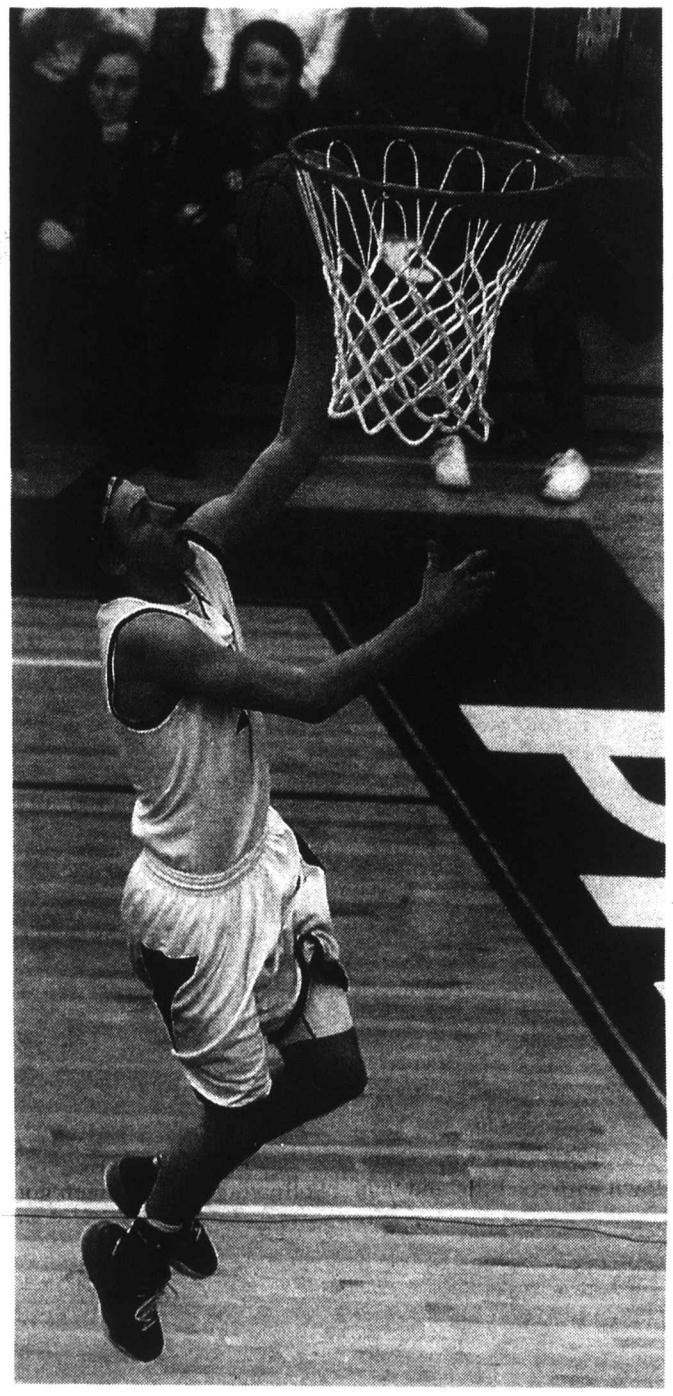
In the impressive first-round win over West Roxbury, Bain (20), Lam (16), Myers (13), Evans (13), and Beach (10) all cracked double figures and the Presidents used a tested and true formula for success: defense, passing, and spot-on outside shooting.

There was a bit of a twist. Parry usually loves to play man-to-man, but Quincy used a 3-2 zone for most of the night. It was aggressive and active. Beach made it work by chasing West Roxbury's Tysaul Horton all over the floor. In an opening win against Barnstable, Horton had 34. Against Quincy, he had 14. In the Barnstable game, Javonte Currin his six threes. The zone, which closed the middle and forced deep threes all night, held him to nine points.



TYLER BEACH scores two points with a layup against Taunton. The senior guard chipped in 10 points in the Presidents' 74-50 first-round win over West Roxbury and will play baseball at Westfield State next year.

Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

The defense opened up the game by holding West Roxbury scoreless over the first five minutes of the second period en route to a 31-20 halftime lead. It grew to 57-36 after three.

"I love man-to-man, but we thought the zone could contain their shooters," said Parry. "Foul trouble is also a consideration We can't afford to have our bigs (Lam, Bain) in foul trouble and the zone helps."

Again, the passing was brilliant. Quincy had 21 assists on 31 field goals. For most teams such numbers would be cause for a locker-room party. At Quincy, it was business as usual. The Presidents also looked to run a bit more than usual and had 20 fast-break points.

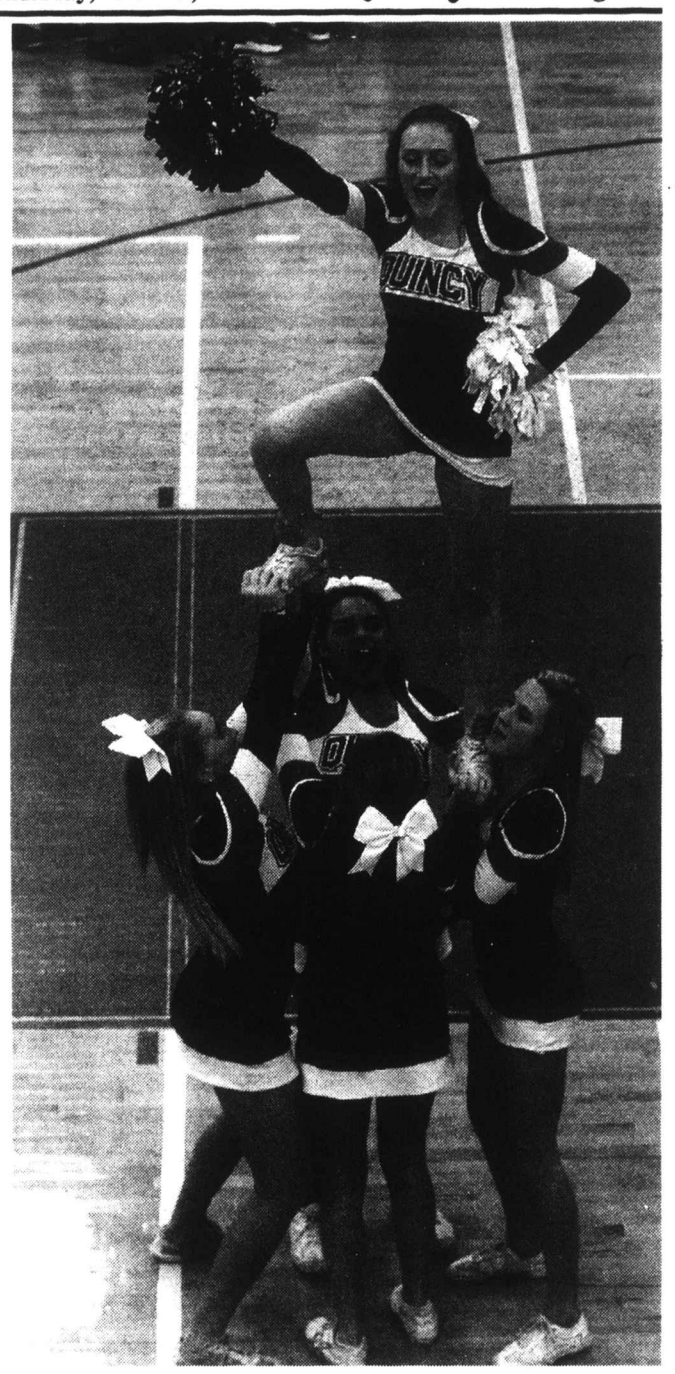
"We always look for a chance to run, but we were able to leak a man out a little more tonight," said Parry.

Myers had three threes and Beach added two. It was good to see Beach bury a couple. He is a good shooter, but he has sacrificed his offense to spearhead Quincy's defense. He did an excellent job getting the Presidents into their offense from the point, but he knew Myers and Evans were there to shoot.

"He knows what his job is: Play defense and start our offense," said Parry. "But he does the same shooting drills as everyone else, and he is an excellent shooter."

Beach enjoyed his role.

"At the beginning of the year I wanted to give the team what Chris Callahan gave us last year which was defense," said Beach. "Tonight, I just came open and my teammates found me for a couple of threes. It felt good to shoot them, but I've always loved to play defense. I enjoy the challenge."



QUINCY CHEERLEADERS and fans had plenty to cheer about this season as the Presidents' varsity basketball squad won the Patriot League Keenan Division, advanced to the second round of the Div. 1 South Sectionals and compiled an impressive 17-5 record.

Future Bright For Quincy Girls' Hoop

Presidents Bow To Durfee In Tournament; Return Five Starters To Lineup Next Year

By BILL GRIFFIN

Basketball games have a certain rhythm, pace and flow to them. As long as the wind is at your back, all is good. However, it can change in part of an instant, and when it does, it is hard to win back.

For nearly three periods, Quincy controlled Durfee in its tournament game last week. Durfee came out in a zone. Gabby Jerahian shot it down by burying five threes in the first nine minutes of the game. Liana Cunningham drained two more. Quincy hit eight threes in the first half. Goodbye, zone.

Durfee went to a man-to-man. The Presidents went inside to Nicole Jorgensen who ruled the paint with power and skill, cashing offensive rebounds, finishing power moves to the hoop and finding the open shooter for layups.

Quincy's defense hounded Durfee's guards and ushered all drivers into the middle where Jorgensen changed and blocked shots. Quincy held Durfee to five points in the second quarter. The lead stayed steady and firm. It was 21-15 after one, 33-20 at the half and 45-34 with 1:35 left in the third. All was well. The feel, the

Quincy Icemen Fall To Plymouth South In Sectionals

Team's Legacy: Qualifying For Tourney Two Straight Years

By TREVOR WENNERS

Senior captain and forward Pat Freeman of the Quincy High School boy's hockey team scored 27 seconds into their Div. 2 South first round tournament game against Plymouth South at Gallo Ice Arena but the Panthers scored five unanswered goals to win the game 5-1.

"I thought we got off to a strong start," said Presidents head coach Ted Walsh Jr. "We had a good skating game and Plymouth (South) came alive a little bit, they got their skating game going, they (only) have three losses for a reason, they're a good skating team. They're fast, they're physical, they're tenacious. They bury the puck when they get their chances."

Freeman's goal was assisted by senior captain and forward Brian O'Callaghan. Freeman finished the season with 32 points (18 goals, 14 assists) and O'Callaghan finished the season with 29 points (16 goals, 13 assists). Senior Ryan Harty who skated on the same line with Freeman and O'Callaghan tallied a line of 5-9-14 this season.

"Ryan Harty (is a) great complement to that line, he was the catalyst," said Walsh. "I thought that Pat Freeman and Brian O'Callaghan showed that they're great hockey players, that's what they are, game in and game out they compete, they play hard, they lift their team up. They're good teammates, they're good captains, they're good kids. They're everything you want in one of your hockey players and I think their legacy is just going to be their winners.

"They may have lost today but they're going to be known as winners because two years in a row they've carried this program to (qualifying for the tournament)."

The Panthers (14-3-4) evened the game at 1-1 with 9:25 remaining in the first period when forward Cian Gulsen found the back of the net.

The Panthers took their first lead of the game when forward Sean Colbert scored with 4:49 remaining in the second. Forward CJ Gustafson scored with 1:32 left in the second to give the Panthers a 3-1 lead and then they would tally two goals in the third period to make the score 5-1. George Thurston scored the fourth goal for South.

"Quincy is a good hockey program," said Panthers coach Michael McCosh. "They played hard, puck wasn't bouncing their way a couple times, and puck bounced our way a few times."

Senior goalie Ryan Higgins made 27 saves for the Presidents. Quincy finished the regular season at 8-10-2.

"I thought our goalie Ryan Higgins played great," said Walsh.

The Presidents finished strong as at a point they were sitting at 3-9 and they went on a 5-1-2 run down the stretch of the regular season.

"I told Ryan (Higgins) when we were 3-9, 'if we're going to qualify for the tournament it's going to be on your back, you're going to have to carry us," said Walsh. "I said, 'we have some kids that can score goals but you have to have to make those big saves,' and what he did from there is went 5-1-2 so that's pretty impressive.

"He's a winner. I think the world of him, (and) he stepped up as a competitor."

The Presidents final eight game stretch of the regular season went like this: they defeated Whitman-Hanson 4-3, tied Whitman-Hanson 4-4, tied Duxbury 3-3, defeated North Quincy 6-3, defeated Plymouth North 4-1, lost to Westwood 3-0, defeated Silver Lake 6-1 and defeated Abington 4-1.

Senior forward Sean Brennick tallied 5 goals and 9 assists this season for the Presidents.

"The group of seniors as a whole, I told them they have a legacy now, they've qualified for the tournament two years in a row," said Walsh. "This is a group of seniors when they were freshmen they were 2-18, so we've gone from 2-18 to (qualifying) for the tournament two years in a row and that's the way we are going to remember them. We're proud of them, there's no group of kids that I would rather be around. My favorite time of the day was going to practice with them."

Some of the youth on the Presidents registered strong seasons which included sophomore defenseman Owen Lynch (2-10-12), sophomore forward James O'Leary (5-8-13) and sophomore forward Pat Quirk (3-9-12).

"We're going to be young but at the same time some of our young guys got a lot of tournament time, a lot of experience this year" said Walsh. "So we'll see what we have coming up also to fill in the gaps, but it's awfully tough to replace what we had for seniors, there is a lot of talent walking out the door.

I don't think you can replace them. You can kind of hope that somebody is going to step, somebody may be unknown or somebody that has worked extra hard in the offseason and those things do happen and that's going to be the message from the coaching staff is that everybody in that locker room has got to be on board already, next year starts tomorrow."

NQ Wrestler Derek Huynh Competes In State Tournament

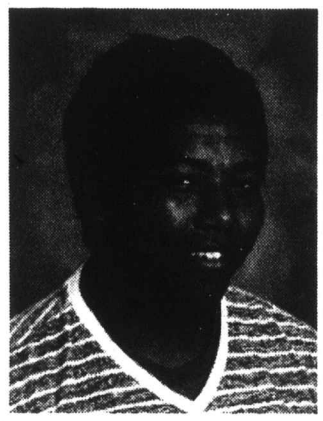
By TREVOR WENNERS

Junior captain and heavyweight Derek Huynh placed second in his weight class in the Division 2 Metro Sectional wrestling tournament and earned a berth in the Div. 2 State Tournament that took place recently at Beverly High School.

"(Derek) is one of our leaders out there," said Red Raiders head coach Mark Nutley. "Anytime a match is close we know we can count on him because he has been wrestling varsity since he was a freshman which is nice."

Huynh went 3-1 in the Sectionals which makes his record 24-8 on the season. It was Huynh's first time competing in the D2 State tournament.

"This year he came in with a great attitude," said Nutley. "He started off the year with a win at the Oliver Ames tournament, he took first place there, that was opening weekend and then he has just been on a roll since which is great, it sums up with second place finish at Sectionals."



DEREK HUYNH

Senior captain Marcello Toscanini (170 pounds) and junior captain Mac Deegan (160 pounds) have combined for a record of 44-12 on the season for the Red Raiders.

Toscanini (sickness) and Deegan (injury) were not able to compete for the Red Raiders in the Sectional tournament.

"Two kids that we were counting on to really help out (and) really, really do well in the tournament (and) have a great end to the season unfortunately couldn't wrestle which was tough for them, tough way to end the season," said Nutley.

The Red Raiders defeated Quincy 42-41 (Jan. 21) and Middleboro 42-12 this season. What are the goals moving forward into next year?

"Main goal No. 1 right now is (number of players) on the team," said Nutley. "We got to get (more players) on the team, we have to have 20 (to) 30 kids without a doubt next year, we have to be able to fill every weight class."

Other impressive wrestlers on the team this year for the Red Raiders were sophomore Tom Koch Jr. (145 pounds), freshman Dimitri Legaspi (120 pounds) and freshman Alex Pham (152 pounds).

"Dimitri at the end of the season, he turned it on," said Nutley. "His last match, we had a quad (match) and he went 2-1 that day with two big pins and the match he lost he bumped up a weight class and he lost by a point in a great match. He is another kid that got better and better and better each week that he wrestled."

Toscanini left his mark as a Red Raider which included playing for Nutley on the football field. He compiled a record of 27-6 this season on the wrestling team.

"He was huge, his only losses were in tournaments, he didn't lose a dual meet at all, he was undefeated in dual meets," said Nutley. "He was able to avenge a couple of his losses that he had in tournaments and be able to get back and beat those kids. He is going to be missed that's for sure."

Nutley talked about the program moving forward as Huynh and Deegan will have another year left. But depth is still a big key moving forward.

"We beat Middleboro, we beat Quincy, we wrestled Scituate, out of the eight matches that we wrestled (against Scituate) we won seven of them so there is some talent there," said Nutley. "We have a chance to win but we have to have those weight classes filled because we can't keep giving up forfeits, too many forfeits, that is the frustrating part about it so our No.1 priority is to get (more players) on the team."

Norfolk Registry Promoting 'Suits For Success'

Clothing Donations Benefit Local Charities

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell announces the Registry is supporting the successful Suits for Success program in partnership with Interfaith Social Services of Quincy, Father Bill's & MainSpring House of Brockton.

"By just looking in your closet or bureau, you can make a world of difference in someone's life," O'Donnell said.

Business appropriate clothing donations received through the Suits for Success program assist these organizations in providing clothes to men and women who are actively seeking employment.

"Men and women who are attempting to re-enter the workforce need to make a good initial impression, whether it's the first day-on the-job or in an interview. I hope local residents and the business community will consider making a clothing donation to this worthy endeavor. It is truly needed," O'Donnell said.

Business appropriate attire for men and women will be accepted. Suggested donations include suits, dress shirts and ties for men and dresses, pantsuits, blouses, skirts and pants for women. All clothing should be ready for a person to wear, in-style, clean, press and on hangers.

To contribute, individuals can drop off donated clothes to the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, 649 High St. in Dedham between the hours of 9-5, Monday through Friday.

For more information about the Suits for Success program, or to schedule a drop-off time, contact Alicia Gardner at (781) 461-6104 or email agardner@norfolkdeeds.org.

Conway Team Presents At Global Conference

Several members of Jack Conway & Company's leadership team participated and presented at the Leading Real Estate Companies of the World conference, which took place recently in Las Vegas.

Over 2,000 real estate professionas from more than 20 countries attended the event.

Conway CEO Carol Bulman led a contingent that included VP Al Becker, Relocation Director Dawn Stevens, and Relocation Coordinators Bonnie Stiner and Kristen Morse.

Becker moderated a panel focused on marketing and technology, while Stevens led a discussion on international relocation practices.

"It's always great to represent our company and its agents at this event," said Bulman. "We get excited to learn and share ideas, as well as forge new relationships."

"We are fortunate to have some of the industry's brightest minds in our network, and the success of the event is due in large part to the willingness of our members to share insights and strategies with fellow members," said Pam O'Connor, president/CEO of LeadingRE. "We are thankful for their contributions to the program and to our network as a whole."

Conway also walked away with three awards for marketing, including a first place prize for Internal Promotions, and honorable mentions for referral promotion and company branding.

All About Ice Dams

Question: With all the snowfall last month, our house saw a lot of really long icicles form along the eaves. A neighbor said I need to make sure there are no ice dams on the roof, but I have no idea what to look for. -- Harry in Worcester

Answer: Icicles can be helpful in locating ice dams. Areas of the eaves where the icicles are longer and more thickly clustered indicate possible problem areas. You also can spot potential ice dams by looking for thicker buildup of ice or snow along the gutters and eaves.

Eliminating ice dams is important because they can cause serious damage to the roof. Water expands as it freezes, putting pressure on gutter joints and wedging into cracks between the shingles and eaves. If the ice dam gets through the eaves and encounters the warmer air inside your home's envelope, you've suddenly got a water leak and a whole lot more problems -- damage to the ceiling and walls, mildew and more.

Inspect your home's eaves as soon as possible -- first from the ground, then standing on a ladder with a helper bracing it. Don't get up on the roof, just move the ladder around the house. If you don't feel confident about doing this, or the ice and snow on the roof seem unstable, don't get onto the ladder. Risking serious injury isn't worth saving a few dollars.

Don't try to hack away at an ice dam -- not with your hand, an icepick, an ax or anything else. This post by StructureTech (http://www.structuretech1.com/2013/02/how-to-remove-ice-dams/) shows in pictures why that doesn't work.

You may have seen on the news a tip to fill pantyhose with calcium chloride (salt or ice melt) and toss them up onto the eaves. This may work, but effectiveness is iffy at best.

If you have an extensive ice dam problem (more than one or two spots that you can treat with ice melt or salt) or notice damage, contact a roofing professional. If you detect a leak inside your home, contact a roofing professional and start mitigation measures to contain the water.

TIP: If your house was damaged in this winter's snowstorms, contact your insurance company immediately and check the website of your state's emergency management agency. You may be able to get assistance in making repairs.

Proposed 164-Unit Apartment Concerns Residents

Complex Would Be Built At 116 East Howard St.

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The proposed construction of a 164-unit apartment complex at 116 East Howard St. across from the former Fore River Shipyard has neighbors concerned that the building is too large for an area largely made up of multi-family homes and small condominium complexes.

According to attorney Edward Fleming who spoke on behalf of developer David Crocini, the plan originally called for 184 one and two-bedroom units and 301 parking spaces, however recent revisions have reduced the number of units by 20 and have added two parking spaces equaling 1.85 spaces per unit which exceeds city zoning requirements.

The 70-foot-high building was also reduced in length by 50 feet bringing it to 300 feet on East Howard Street.

Five floors of residential living space will house 800-square-foot units over one floor of parking.

Additional parking spaces will be located behind the building.

The apartments will be set back about 45 feet from the street, leaving a significant buffer zone between the residences and the road according to Brian O'Connor of architecture and design firm CUBE 3 Studio.

Site plan approval has been delayed two times due to ongoing revisions and questions as to whether such a large building would be appropriate for the area.

"There's questions about the size of this building, there's always been," said Dennis Harrington, director of the Planning Board. "No opposition to residential, no opposition to residential rental, but it is an enormous building."

"At 70 feet [tall] it is a very, very large building," he said.

The project is going by the name "The Watson on East Howard Street" as a nod to Thomas Watson who purchased a farm next to what was to become the Fore River Shipyard in 1882.

After the failure of his farming venture, he partnered with Frank Wellington and formed a ship building company known as the Fore River Engine Company, a ship building company.

The property is zoned business B which allows for residential use under the condition that the proposal go before the Planning Board and the Zoning Board of Appeals, said Fleming.

According to Fleming, following the closure of the shipyard in 1986, properties in the area became underutilized.

The site is roughly three acres in size and currently a large brick office building, which Fleming described as obsolete and essentially vacant, is located toward the front of the parcel with a large parking lot in back.

The parking lot has become overgrown with weeds and is cracked and unsightly, he added.

"I would call this a great new investment in the area of a really dynamic new building that would kickstart and hopefully encourage additional interest and investment in the area," said Fleming.

According to O'Connor, the site's location is ideal due to its close proximity to Walmart and Walgreens. "It's a really wonderful area for additional density and additional multi-family housing," he said.

Amenities will include a central courtyard with a pool, outdoor cooking stations, community seating areas, a fitness center, an indoor kitchen, a fireplace, as well as indoor bike storage.

The building will be constructed with a masonry base and fiber glass paneling.

Primary residential vehicular access to the site from Winter Street would be eliminated due to the narrow size of the roadway and the potential for traffic congestion.

Residential access would be restricted to East Howard Street.

A small, separate lot with roughly 21 spots with an entrance on Winter Street will cater to visitors and those stopping by the vistors' center and will provide a smaller secondary entrance for non-residents only.

Several traffic studies stretching from Southern Artery heading north toward Route 3A examined traffic volume, vehicle travel speed on East Howard Street, and motor vehicle crash history.

A comprehensive parking study was done 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. on two consecutive weekdays and on one Saturday.

Original traffic counts were done in September and supplemental traffic counts were done in December.

Jeffrey Dirk, a principal at civil engineering firm Vanasse & Associates, anticipated the 303 parking spots on the parcel will alleviate parking congestion in the area.

Parking is prohibited on East Howard Street and Winter Street.

"We want to make sure this is walkable and bikeable as well," said Dirk, who added that there are four bus stops servicing the area.

As part of the traffic study, the condition of the sidewalks was assessed for walkability and to ensure Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) compliance.

"We did identify locations where we will be making some improvements to make sure we have accessible crossings," said Dirk.

Those locations include the Winter Street and East Howard Street intersection which will see reconstructed sidewalks as well as the addition of wheelchair ramps.

An additional crosswalk will also be placed on East Howard Street.

As a safety measure, pedestrian actuated flashing yellow beacons may also be installed at the crosswalk.

At the Winter Street, South Street, and Des Moines Road intersection, two parking spaces will be removed to eliminate sightline obstruction.

Such safety improvements will be most beneficial on East Howard Street where the speed limit is 30-miles-per-hour however travel speeds have been consistently recorded at closer to 40-miles-per-hour, said Dirk.

Queuing and backups at surrounding intersections were not recorded, said Dirk, however a slight delay was noted at the Des Moines and East Howard Street intersection.

He assured those at the public hearing that the project would have a minimal traffic impact.

"We've been waiting for something to happen in the neighborhood," said John Hajjar, owner of property at 134 East Howard St. "The property has laid fallow more or less for 30 years since the shipyard closed...I think the proposal is a beautiful proposal for the neighborhood."

"It will increase the vibrancy of the area," he said. "I think it will be a huge improvement over what's there right now."

Patrice Sullivan who lives on Des Moines Road however, was not as pleased with the proposal. "There are accidents and near accidents all the time," she said. "So to add more cars is just another issue. I think the building is great and wonderful but it's just too many [units]."

Ann Croke of Des Moines Road said building luxury style apartments across from the less than visually appealing former shipyard is misguided.

"If you're going to have those really nice apartments that they're showing us then you're probably not walking to Walmart or Walgreens...I think the stores that you can walk to are out of synch with the apartments," she said. "It's not like you're walking to Newbury Street."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall spoke on behalf of his constituents.

"The undertone I've heard through everyone who's spoken quite frankly is that we agree that progress is needed down in this section of Quincy Point. What we're struggling with and what we hope to continue the dialogue with the applicant is an appropriate density," said Croall. "It's a lot of units; it's a neighborhood and I don't think anyone is in objection to the concept. What we're trying to do is find a size that makes sense for the neighborhood."

Harrington said the department was not ready to make a recommendation on the proposed site plans due to unresolved issues with sewer capacity on Des Moines Road and East Howard Street that must be reviewed by a city engineer.

The city traffic engineer must also finish their assessment of the site before a recommendation can be made, said Harrington.

A continuation of the public hearing on the matter will take place at a Planning Board meeting in either March or April, he said.

Paul Boudreau of 94 Bigelow St. said he was concerned the location was outside the boundaries of the downtown revitalization project site and encroached on nearby neighborhoods.

"To me this would be a total disservice to the constituents," he said. "After putting our trust in the City Council on the proposed downtown development project our worst fears are coming to bear; the project footprint was supposed to stop at the concourse."

"Now it appears that the developers are using the failure of local government to take advantage of the zoning changes," said Boudreau. "I thought we were trying to revitalize downtown while keeping the integrity of the neighborhoods around it."

The applicant was granted a special permit to construct within the Quincy Center zoning district and the site plan review was unanimously approved by the board.

Hours of construction will be Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and all construction and deliveries will be prohibited on Sunday.

As the project is in its preliminary stages, no cost or timeline for construction has been determined.

In other Planning Board news, the continued public meeting regarding West of Chestnut at 1400 and 1442 Hancock St. was postponed at the request of the applicant until the March 11 meeting of the Planning Board.

sense of the game belonged to the Presidents.

Then it all changed. Jorgensen sat with her third foul. The Hilltoppers ran nine straight points. The rhythm switched to Durfee and it would not turn again.

Brianna Camara scored 32 points and Jordyn Gauvin added 19 as No. 11 seeded Durfee rallied behind a 42-point second half to hand the No. 6 seed Presidents a heartbreaking 62-57 loss in the first round of the Division 2 South Sectionals at the Quincy High gym.

"The momentum definitely shifted at that point late in the third period," said Quincy coach Jeff Bretsch whose team finished the season at 14-6. "It's difficult to get it back especially when you've worked so hard for the whole game to keep it. Durfee got a shot of confidence, and we missed Nicole because we run our offense and defense through her."

Camara, a 1300-point career scorer who averages nearly 25 points per game, scored 20 of her points after halftime. Durfee hit seven threes in the second half. They were not shooting layups. These were contested jump shots. But everything the Hilltoppers threw up went in. The rhythm of the game was with them.

"I thought we played good defense, but it seemed like they didn't miss a shot in the second half," said Bretsch.

The Hilltoppers grabbed their first lead of the game at 51-50 with 4:55 left. They pushed it to 56-50 with 3:41 remaining. Trying to stop a good team on a run like this is like trying to push the toothpaste back into the tube, but Quincy very nearly did it.

The defense locked down and shut out Durfee for over two minutes. No layups, no jump shots, nothing. Jerahain worked herself to the line for a free throw off a tough drive to the hoop. Jorgensen scored on a power drive and then hit Sarah Gibbons with a beautiful no-look bounce pass for a layup.

It was 56-55 with 1:40 left. Quincy was right there.

"I thought we were going to win," said Bretsch. "It seemed like everything we tried worked. I am so proud of the way we competed. We didn't shrink from anything, even when we fell behind."

However, Jorgensen picked up her fifth foul. Camara and Gauvin, who combined for 51 of Durfee's 62 points, scored the final four points of the game and Durfee had its win. Camara had played for Durfee on this court as a freshman against Quincy's team which went to the sectional finals. She returned as a senior with a championship effort.

"She's one of the best players in the state," said Bretsch.

Jerahian led Quincy with 20. Her shooting in the first half was just ridiculous. She was so hot, her release so quick and sure that on her fifth three, she didn't so much catch and shoot the ball. She seemingly just redirected a pass from deep in the left corner for a clean swish.

"Gabby loves a challenge, and she looked like she was trying to match Camara basket for basket," said Bretsch.

Jorgensen had 19 points, 15 rebounds and five blocks. She abolished the layup on defense and when she was covered one-on-one, she dug out position, demanded the ball and drove it home. All five fouls were on good basketball plays, shot-block attempts on which there was some or minimal contact.

Cunningham (six points, four assists) hit her early threes. Durfee pressed for much of the game and sent three different guards at her. Cunningham handled the pressure, featuring a strong left hand and played four-star defense, limiting Durfee's senior scorer J'Lynn Jackson to four points.

"Nicole played a mature, intelligent game. She was excellent. Liana was steady against a good press and her defense was outstanding," said Bretsch.

Alyssa Camara had seven for the Presidents while Gibbons added five.

It was a terrific season for Quincy. The Presidents doubled their win total from last year, beat Hingham twice, defeated Fisher Division champion Hanover, and won their holiday tourney. Jerahian and Jorgensen made huge leaps from sophomore to junior year. Jorgensen set single-game school records for rebounds and blocked shots. Jerahian hit 10 threes in her last two games. Cunningham showed quickness, skill and unusual poise for a freshman at the point.

"I'm thrilled with the season we had. The girls made great strides and the improvement was rewarding to see. I couldn't be prouder of them," said Bretsch.

Michelle Le is the only senior on the roster. Camara, Gibbons, Ariana Paulo, and Julianna Kane established themselves as quality varsity players. Gibbons is an interesting player. It was her first year on varsity. Next season, she could well develop into a formidable inside player to pair with Jorgensen for their senior season.

In addition, Duxbury, who has ruled the Keenen Division with two straight unbeaten seasons, graduates five starters. The Presidents have everyone back. It could be Quincy's year.

"Michelle is the kind of player every coach wants. We'll miss her," said Bretsch. "The possibility for next year is exciting. Hopefully, the girls will use this game as motivation and dedicate themselves in the off-season to get better."

FRESHMAN LIANA CUNNINGHAM scored six points and dished out for assists in the Presidents' heart-breaking 62-57 loss to Durfee in the first round of the Div. 2 South Sectionals Feb 25. Cunningham is among five starters who are expected to return to Quincy's line-up next year.

Mildred H. Rickson, 85

Funeral services for Mildred H. "Mili" (Vickers) Rickson, 85, of Quincy were privately held.

Mrs. Rickson died peacefully Feb. 5 surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Springfield and was raised and educated there. She was a graduate of the former Classical High School and Quincy Junior College. Mrs. Rickson had lived in Quincy for 60 years. She was an avid tennis player and was honored as a life member of the Quincy Tennis Club in Quincy where she had served as club treasurer for 16 years. She was also a member of the Weymouth Club.

Mrs. Rickson was employed as assistant treasurer for the former Quincy Cooperative Bank in Quincy for 20 years and retired in 1994. In addition, she was a fabulous homemaker and was well known for her sewing, quilting and cooking. Her favorite pastime was caring and spending time with her family as she was devoted to her eight grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and her devoted and loyal pet dog, Barney. She enjoyed traveling with her late husband, Ken, and their many great friends.

Mrs. Rickson was a longtime former active member, with her late husband Kenneth, of Bethany Congregational Church in Quincy. They were co-chairs of the Diaconate Committee for six years and she also served as a deacon for 12 years.

MILDRED H. RICKSON

Beloved wife of the late Kenneth B. Rickson. Devoted mother of Kenneth O. Rickson of FL, Jane A. McGuinness and her husband Mark of Scituate, Sally A. Goldman and her husband Stephen of Milton, Linda S. Savage and her husband David of Quincy. Loving grandmother of James and Lauren Rickson, Benjamin McGuinness, Molly Gistis and her husband Jon, Gregory Goldman and his wife Meredith, Diana McDevitt and her husband Brady, Leah Goldman, Maxwell and Mallory Devoe. Cherished great-grandmother of twins Henry and Graham McDevitt, Olivia Goldman and Jack Gistis. Dear sister of Irene Graves of Hampden. Also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the South Shore Initiative, a Weymouth Club 501c charitable organization that promotes healthy lifestyles for children at the Weymouth Club, 75 Finnell Dr., Weymouth, MA 02188.

Thomas P. Cronin, 92

A funeral Mass for Thomas Patrick Cronin, 92, of Quincy was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Cronin died Feb. 27 after a brief illness.

He grew up in Portland, Maine, and West Roxbury. Mr. Cronin was employed for more than 40 years by the Barnstead Still and Sterilizer Company in West Roxbury and served in the U.S. Army during World War II.

He was predeceased by his loving wife of 64 years, Pauline (Rooney) Cronin, and is survived by his five devoted children, Stephen Cronin and his wife Karen of Rockland, Paula Beasley and her husband Fred of SC, Mary Fitzgerald of Braintree, Lisa Cronin Smith and her husband Tim of Scituate and Kathleen Cronin-Varroso and her husband Bill of Weymouth. Also survived by five grandchildren, Sean Cronin and his wife Kim of CO, Jeff Cronin and his wife Laura of Hanson, Caitlin Ferrero and her husband Joe of Beverly, Peter Smith of Hanover and Anna Smith of Scituate in addition to five great-grandchildren. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

The Cronin family would like to gratefully acknowledge the kind and professional care provided in his last months by the staff at the Rice Eventide Home in Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Pyne Keohane Funeral Home, Hingham.

Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery, Scituate.

Memorial donations made be made to Father Flanagan's Boys Town, 14100 Crawford St., Boys Town, NE 68010.

OBITUARIES

Helen M. 'Mimi' Bradley, 98

A funeral Mass of Christian Burial for Helen M. "Mimi" Bradley, 98, of Dorchester, will be celebrated Friday at 11 a.m. in Sacred Heart Parish, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Mrs. Bradley died March 1 at Colonial Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Weymouth following a period of declining health. She was the devoted wife of nearly 63 years to the late George R. Bradley who died in 1999.

Born August 20, 1916, Mrs. Bradley was the second of seven children born to the late Joseph V. and Elizabeth M. (Coyle) O'Donnell. Raised in Dorchester, she was a long time communicant of St. Christopher's Church in Columbia Point. In addition to her primary job raising her family, she had also worked as a sales clerk with the former W.T. Grant department store.

In retirement, she and her beloved George enjoyed many happy times traveling to many destinations around the world, but her happiest times were those spent in the company of her adoring family.

For many years, Mrs. Bradley was a member of the Cyril P. Morrisette Post #294 of the American Legion Auxiliary. She enjoyed crocheting, baking, playing cribbage and was an avid reader.

She was the loving mother of Henry P. Bradley (ret. Director, Quincy Veterans Services and ret. Quincy P.D.) and his wife Rosemarie, Joan E. Abban, and H. Micki LeMoine and her late husband Robert, all of Quincy, and the late Elizabeth E. Bradley. Dear sister of Lawrence J. O'Donnell of Newark, DE, the late Margaret Fallon and William, Philip, Joseph and John O'Donnell. She is also survived by 14 cherished grandchildren, 30 great-grandchildren and 12 great-great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by grandsons Eric and Paul Abban, and a great-great-grandson, baby Robbie Warren.

HELEN M. BRADLEY

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 3 to 8 p.m. at the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Interment will be at St. Joseph's Cemetery, 990 Lagrange St., West Roxbury.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Christopher's Church, 265 Mount Vernon St., Dorchester MA 02125, or to The Bonnie M. Conroy Memorial Fund for Pediatric Cancer Patients, c/o James & Carolyn Conroy, 141 Bromfield St., Quincy, MA 02170.

Barbara L. Coste, 82

A celebration of life for Barbara Louise (Snell) Coste, 82, of Ormond Beach, Fla., and formerly Quincy will be held March 8 at 2 p.m. in Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Mrs. Coste died Feb. 27.

She born on Aug. 27, 1932, in Brockton. Mrs. Coste lived and raised her family in Quincy for more than 40 years before retiring to Ormond Beach in 1994. She loved to dance, to sew, play cards, and was an avid reader. Mrs. Coste was a kind hearted and loving person, often putting others before herself.

Devoted wife of 58 years to Paul G. Coste and loving mother of her four children. Survived by Nancy Coste-Ploof and her husband

BARBARA L. COSTE

Thomas of Quincy, Lisa Coste of FL, Julie Kraunelis and her husband David of Quincy. She also leaves behind her grandchildren Andrew, Abigail and Emily Kraunelis and Hunter Ploof.

SQUANTUM SNOW PEAKS – Squantum Point Park's parking area is awash in "white stuff" - snow - that has been trucked from Quincy streets as part of the city's snow removal operations in the aftermath of four major storms in five weeks. More than 100 inches of snow has fallen in Quincy since Jan. 26. A similar "snow farm" has received snow at the Fore River shipyard courtesy of shipyard owner and automobile dealer Dan Quirk. This photo was taken from atop one of the towering piles of snow at the parking area. Note the parking area light in the foreground. Only about five feet of the 35-foot light post is visible protruding from the snow mountain. The third building to the right in the background is the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library at Columbia Point. Other photo on Page 35.

Snow Storm Fund To Aid Small Business

In recognizing the hardship that small businesses throughout the Commonwealth have faced in recent weeks due to unprecedented snowfall and historic winter conditions, Gov. Charlie Baker and Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito announce the Massachusetts Growth Capital Corporation (MGCC) has approved a snow storm loan fund to help small businesses regain financial stability and recover from lost storm revenue.

"While our local economies continue to bounce back, we encourage everyone to continue shopping at their local retailers, restaurants and small businesses," Gov. Baker said.

MGCC will make up to $1 million in loan funds available to provide microloans of $5,000 to $10,000 to small businesses located in communities impacted by the harsh winter weather, particularly those in Boston and in gateway cities. It is anticipated that this program will run through May 2015.

MGCC will be responsible for funding the loan, managing the loan portfolio, collection of interest and principal payments and all decision-making regarding loan approval.

For more information about the application and terms and conditions of the loan, visit www.massgcc.com.

Fitness Unlimited Member Appreciation Party March 14

Fitness Unlimited, located in East Milton square, is celebrating its 35th Anniversary with a Great Gatsby Theme Member Appreciation Party on Saturday, March 14th.

The all-day event will feature master classes, refreshments, and free raffles with prizes. Members and their guests are welcome to attend. Guests are free.

Fitness Unlimited, established in 1980, is the largest women's health club south of Boston. Its mission is to effect positive change in women's lives.

"Many improvements have been made over the years, from numerous club expansions, to added specialized programs, new equipment, and services. Fitness Unlimited has a team of committed and caring trainers and staff who are striving to empower individuals to lead a healthier lifestyle," said General Manager Beth Whitney

In January 2015, Fitness Unlimited launched Tribe Team Training, a small group personal training program, which guarantees fitness results. Fitness Unlimited also upgraded its entire line of treadmills and will soon add all new weights and racks to the free weight area.

In addition, Fitness Unlimited offers nutrition (staffed by registered dietitians), personal training, and pilates services.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Disappointed about something that didn't go your way? Cheer up. Look at the reasons it happened, and you could find a valuable lesson about what to do (or not do!) the next time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to do some reassessing of plans and goals -- even how you considered redoing your bathroom. The point is to be open to change if change can improve things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Take some time to learn who is the right person (or persons) to approach and discuss your ideas with for your new project. Also, reserve time to prepare for an upcoming family event.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Dealing with a demanding situation, as you recently did, could drain much of your own emotional reserves. Take time to relax and indulge yourself in some well-earned pampering.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The regal Lion might feel that she or he is above emotional displays. But showing your feelings can be liberating for you, and reassuring for someone who has been waiting for you to do so.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An emotionally needy person might make more demands than you can cope with. Best to ask for some breathing space NOW, before resentment sets in and makes communication difficult.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An unexpected spate of mixed signals could cause serious schedule setbacks. Best to focus on straightening everything out as soon as possible and get everyone back on track.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be aware that someone in the workplace could try to use a disagreement with a colleague against you. If so, be prepared to offer your side of the story with the facts to back you up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected challenge to a previous decision can be unsettling. But your reservoir of self-confidence -- plus your loyal supporters -- should help carry the day for you. Good luck.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While the idea of making some sort of major move in the near future continues to interest you, don't overlook a new possibility that could be emerging closer to home.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Be careful not to base an upcoming decision on gossip or anything you might hear if it can't meet provable standards. That's true regardless of whom the source might be.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might still need to do some solid reassessing early in the week before you can close that sensitive situation. A new job-related opportunity could present itself later in the week.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are extraordinarily sensitive to people's feelings, and you're always ready to offer comfort if necessary.

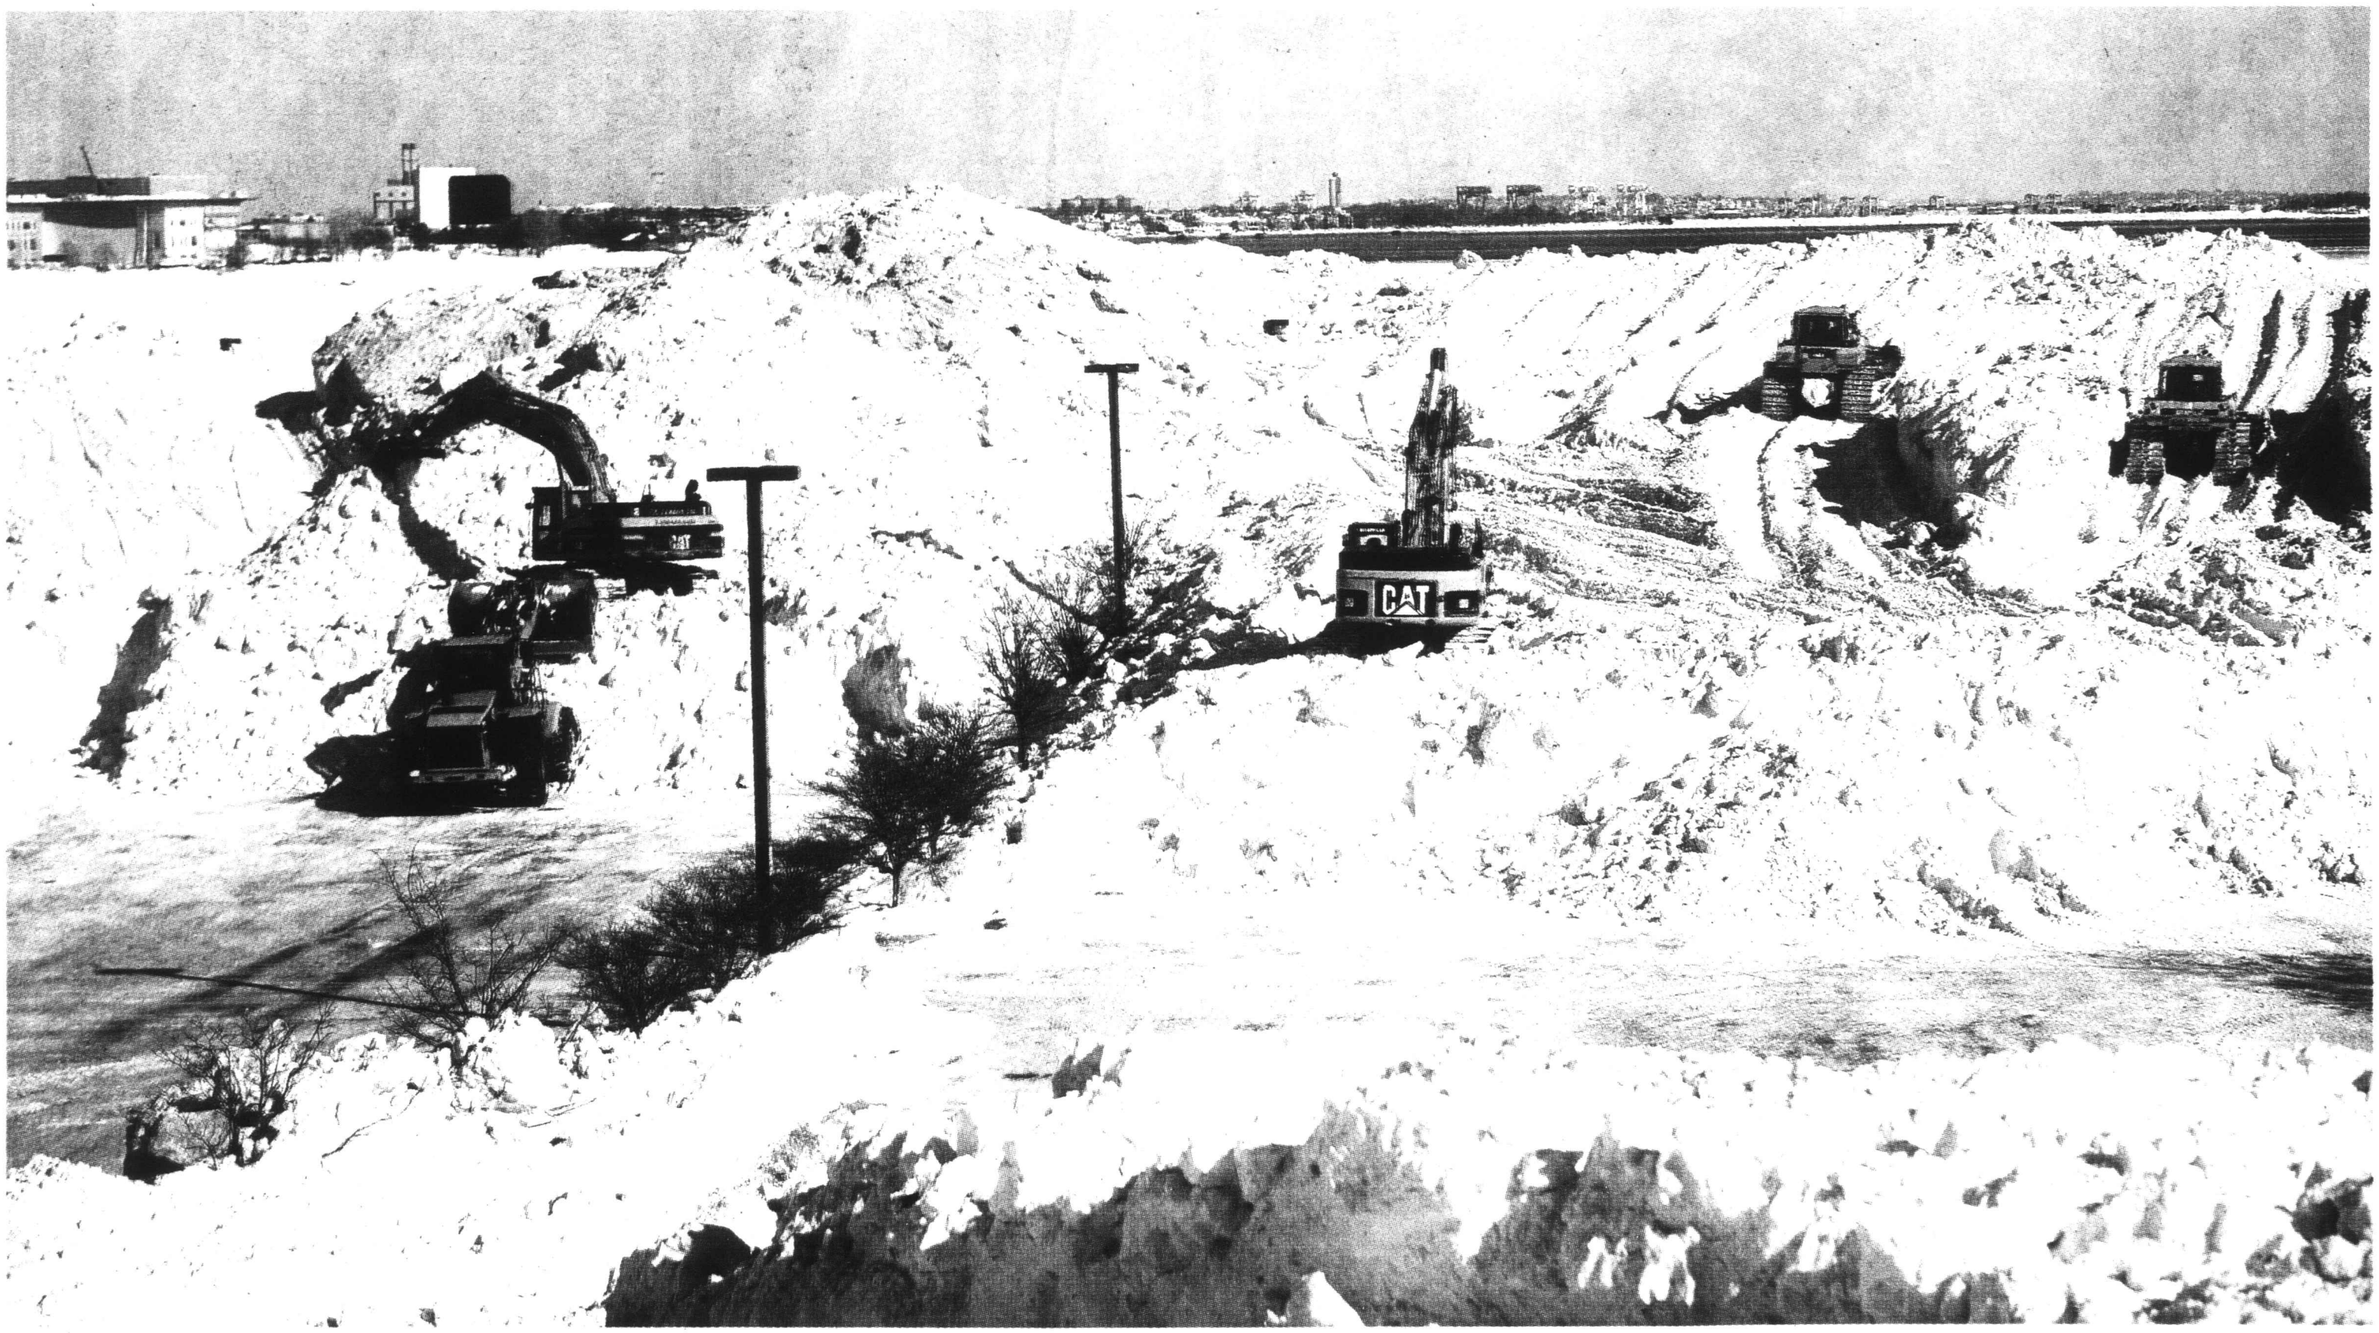
Squantum Point Park Snow Farm Keeps Growing . . . AND GROWING



SNOW CONTINUES to pile up high at the Squantum Point Park Snow Farm. This photo was taken Feb. 27. Excavators and front-end loaders move the snow into large "mountains," some that extend 60 feet in the air. Snow is being trucked to the site from removal sites that have been operating around the clock in recent weeks. More than 100 inches of snow has fallen in Quincy this winter. Boston is only a few inches of snow shy of setting a new snow record for winter. The mark of 107.6 inches of snow was set in 1995-96. Buildings visible in the background include the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library in Columbia Point and the Logan Airport Air Traffic Control Tower in East Boston.

Devoted Dad Shares Inspirational Story Of Marathon Tandem

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Dick Hoyt, the man who for 35 years has been pushing his wheelchair-confined son Rick in marathons and triathlons, told members of The Lion's Club March 5th the inspirational story of how he and his son went from participating in their first five-mile run in 1977 to today completing over 1,100 races and marathons all the while spreading their message of "yes you can."

The story of the Hoyts began in 1962 with the birth of Rick to parents Dick and Judy. Rick's umbilical cord wrapped itself around his neck, preventing oxygen from reaching his brain. He suffered brain damage resulting in spastic quadriplegia.

Solarize City Initiative Underway

More than 200 Quincy homes and businesses have received permits to install solar arrays in the past three years; the leader of a new initiative hopes to double that over the next several months.

Solarize Massachusetts selected Quincy as one of five Bay State communities – along with Provincetown and a partnership of Ashfield, Buckland, and Plainfield – to participate in this year's program. Known as Solarize Quincy, the initiative provides discounts to home and business owners looking to install photovoltaic (PV) systems through tiered pricing. Re-

Decision On School Make-up Day Monday

The School Committee will hold a special meeting on Monday, March 16 at 6 p.m. in the Coddington Building to vote on how to best make up one school snow day following the rejection of a three-day waiver from the 180-day school year requirement by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) and the rejection of an appeal of that decision sent to Gov. Charlie Baker and other state officials.

Options to make up the day include attending school during April vacation, Good Friday, or Saturday.

It was a good run.

A very good run, indeed.

After some 91 years of serving the less fortunate – especially needy children – here in Quincy and throughout the state and world, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy is dissolving.

In true Kiwanis spirit, the club recently presented contributions totaling $74,000 to about a dozen worthy organizations at a luncheon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. It marked the final time the club would extend a helping hand to organizations that serve the underprivileged and less fortunate – notably young children, one of club's missions since its inception 91 years ago.

CLEARING THE FIELD at Veterans' Memorial Stadium began last Friday. Since many of the natural grass athletic fields are still snow-covered, school officials are coordinating practice time for all the spring sports at the stadium.

Snowy Winter Impacting Spring Sports Season

Veterans' Stadium Field Cleared, Outdoor Teams To Share Site For Practices

By BILL GRIFFIN

The historic snowfall of the past winter which has left parks and fields covered under feet of snow will have an impact on the upcoming spring sports season.

However, the city and the athletic directors from each high school are working to minimize the impact and ensure that the athletes will have every opportunity to practice and play their scheduled games and matches.

The first day of practice will be Monday, March 16. Some sports will begin practice in the gym. The city has also has begun removing snow from the field turf at Veterans' Memorial Stadium to provide outdoor practice time for several sports.

"We're hopeful that the lacrosse, baseball, and softball teams from both schools will be able to use the stadium for practice time," said Quincy High Athletic Director Pat Lane. "The city will also work on clearing the track and the tennis courts to get them ready for the season."

"First of all, I want to thank the city for prioritizing our athletes. It means a great deal," said North Quincy High Athletic Director Michael Joyce. "We will rotate volleyball, baseball, and softball in our gym to start, but it essential to get outdoors as soon as possible."

The first lacrosse matches for both schools are scheduled for Thursday, March 26. Both Lane and Joyce are optimistic that they can play on the scheduled date.

"The city really is doing yeoman work, and I think we should be ready to go for the lacrosse season," said Joyce.

Sports such as baseball, softball, and the co-op golf team obviously cannot begin their seasons until the snow melts. Quincy's first scheduled baseball game is April 2. North is scheduled to begin March 31. It is highly unlikely that either game will be played.

"I think you're probably looking to near April vacation for the beginning of the baseball and softball seasons," said Lane. "We will probably schedule the make-ups from the first two weeks for sometime in May."

"I think everyone agrees that the games from the first two weeks of April will need to be to be re-scheduled," said Joyce.

As of now, the final day that a regular-season baseball or softball game can be played is Monday, May 25. Both Joyce and Lane are hopeful that the MIAA will agree to extend the cut-off date to Friday, May 29. The tournament would then begin in the first week of June.

"I got an e-mail Monday which said that the MIAA would discuss it and reach some decision within five to seven days," said Joyce.

Cooperation among Patriot League schools is essential in making the difficult scheduling work for the athletes.

"We had a league meeting and we all pretty much agreed the first two weeks of the baseball season would be canceled," said Joyce. "Everyone will work together, and try to avoid too many games in one week. It would put too much strain on a team's pitching."

The benefits of getting outside to practice in the next three weeks are substantial.

"It's huge. In lacrosse, you need it for conditioning and spacing," said Joyce. "The baseball and softball teams will at least be able to take outfield and infield practice, and work on cut-offs and fly balls."

There is good news. Adams Field drains especially well. Coach Geoff Hennessy and the city are working with a brand new track. The snow removal and March sunlight should make the tennis courts playable.

"I was reading a story by a writer who said one year he had three feet of snow on his front lawn in the middle of March and by the beginning of April, it was gone. Let's hope it happens again," smiled Joyce.

"Geoff can use the track for the running events and he has the equipment the kids can use indoors for the field events. Adams Field is just a jewel. It should drain well. Mitchell-McCoy might be the last to be ready because it gets the least direct sunlight."

New Infestation Of Bed Bugs At O'Brien Towers

Pests Found In 11 More Units

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Quincy Housing Authority, who three weeks ago had specially trained dogs sniffing out bed bugs at O'Brien Towers in Germantown, will begin chemically exterminating a newly discovered infestation of the pests next week, said James Lydon, executive director of the authority.

Lydon enlisted the help of A1 Exterminators of Lynn to provide regular services and maintenance.

The company initially brought in three Beagles to detect bed bugs through the walls and floors of the 274-unit elderly and disabled housing property.

A report issued shortly thereafter stated that bed bugs had been found in 33 of the building's units.

Following the first extermination, A1 Exterminators consultants visually inspected units two weeks ago and came to the conclusion that not all of the bed bugs had been detected by the dogs and that the infestation had continued and spread to other units.

In total, 44 units were found to have bed bugs.

Units surrounding the infested units will have to undergo chemical treatment as a precautionary measure.

Treatment will take place

Firefighters Help Quincy Woman Deliver Baby Boy

Three Quincy firefighters helped a Quincy woman give birth to a baby last week.

On March 2nd at approximately 6:30 p.m., Quincy Firefighters responded to a call for a woman in labor. When firefighters arrived on scene, they quickly realized that the baby was not going to wait to be born at the hospital.

Firefighters John Holler, Michael Flynn, and Lt. Steve Walsh arrived on scene quickly and assisted in delivering a healty baby boy.

Quincy firefighters are trained to bring resolutions to all types of emergencies, including the delivering of a baby. Actions that firefighters must take when delivering a baby include assisting in the delivery, suctioning the nose and mouth with a bulb syringe while keeping the baby warm, properly clamping and cutting the umbilical cord, administering oxygen both to the mother and the baby, and making sure that both the mother and baby remain in a stable condition.

"These firefighters did a fantastic job and will continue to proudly serve the citizens of Quincy each and every day," said Chief Joseph Barron.

Meeting Wednesday On Central Development

By SCOTT JACKSON

A community meeting was held yesterday (Wednesday) on a proposal to convert the former Central Middle School into a 45-unit residential building.

The meeting, hosted by Councillors Margaret Laforest and Kirsten Hughes, was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the new Central Middle School at 875 Hancock Street.

The city agreed to sell the former school, located at 1022 Hancock Street, to Edgewood Development Company of Plainville for $3 million in June 2014. Edgewood was one of five companies to bid on the site, and submitted the highest bid of all five.

Edgewood's plan calls for using the existing school structure and includes 94 parking spaces on site along with new trees along the perimeter.

The Planning Board, Zoning Board of Appeals, and Conservation Commission all need to approve the project.

The site of the former Central Middle School includes 85,378 square feet of land. The building has a gross area of 84,617 square feet and a livable area of 59,490 square feet. The school currently sits in a Residential B zoning district and overlooks Butler's Pond.

The building originally opened in 1894 as Quincy High School before being turned into a junior high and then a middle school. It closed in October 2013 following the opening of the new, $50 million Central Middle School one block north on Hancock Street.

Ask the GEMOLOGIST

BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN
GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

WE'RE ALL EARS

In some respects, earrings are nearly as important as makeup when it comes to brightening the face and amplifying or complementing facial features. For instance, button-shaped earrings can make a narrow face appear broader, while pendant earrings are very useful for visually lengthening a face that is wide. When selecting earrings, it is important to take the cheekbones into account. High cheekbones and hollow cheeks call for large earrings to fill in the face. In addition, large ear lobes require large earrings, and vice versa. As far as fashion is concerned, pendant earrings are perfectly suited for elegant nights and formal gowns. When outfitted with sparkling diamonds or other precious gemstones, all eyes are on the ears.

Women who can choose the right earrings for their face shape will stand out from the crowd by accentuating their natural beauty with these simple and elegant accessories. If you're looking for a lovely selection of earrings, gemstones, wedding bands, engagement rings, pendants, and watches, you will find it at our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. We are a full service jewelry store and even accept custom orders. Our prices have always been more than competitive with no fake markups in order to offer huge discounts. A better way to get money from your house

A good idea ... from Colonial Federal Savings Bank

You have a house with lots of equity. Good cash flow. Investments you don't want to touch right now. And you have something you want money for. What's the best way to get it? How about a 15-Year refinance from Colonial Federal? With fixed monthly payments, it's more predictable than an adjustable-rate home equity line. Way less expensive than credit cards. And you'll have it all paid off in 15 short years ... quicker if you make extra payments along the way.

Would a 15-Year refinance be good for you? Call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750 or apply online at colonialfed.com.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

• On March 24, 1765, the British Parliament passes the Quartering Act, outlining the locations and conditions in which British soldiers are to find room and board in the American colonies. The New York assembly refused to comply with the law.

• On March 28, 1774, upset by the Boston Tea Party and other blatant acts of destruction of British property by American colonists, the British Parliament enacts the Coercive Acts, which included closing the port of Boston and giving immunity to British officials in criminal prosecution.

• On March 26, 1804, President Thomas Jefferson attends a public party at the Senate and leads a crowd in consuming an enormous loaf of bread. The giant bread was baked to go with the remnants of an enormous 1,200-pound block of cheese given by a group of Baptist women two years prior.

• On March 25, 1958, Sugar Ray Robinson defeats Carmen Basilio to regain the middleweight championship. It was the fifth and final title of his career. Robinson is considered by many to be the greatest prizefighter in history.

• On March 23, 1962, Pakistan's governor, Ayub Khan, gives first lady Jacqueline Kennedy a horse named Sardar because of their common interest in horses. In her memoirs, the first lady referred to Sardar as her "favorite treasure." She nicknamed the jet gelding "Black Jack."

• On March 27, 1973, Marlon Brando declines the Academy Award for Best Actor for his performance in "The Godfather." American Indian actress Sacheen Littlefeather attended the ceremony in Brando's place, stating that the actor could not accept the award, as he was protesting Hollywood's portrayal of Native Americans in film.

• On March 29, 1982, the University of North Carolina wins the NCAA men's basketball championship with a 63-62 defeat of Georgetown University. With 15 seconds on the clock, Georgetown point guard Fred Brown accidentally threw the ball to Carolina's James Worthy, mistaking him for a Georgetown teammate. Worthy dribbled out the clock.

Remembering Herb Fontaine

If you knew him, listened to him or had the good fortune of working alongside him, you were saddened to hear of the passing of Herb Fontaine.

HERB

Herb Fine, known professionally as Herb Fontaine, was the longtime news editor-director of the erstwhile local radio station WJDA. Herb, who retired nearly 25 years ago, died Feb. 28.

A local legend, Herb had a nose for news and a distinctive voice for radio. My father once said he had perhaps the most recognizable voice on the South Shore.

And with very good reason.

Herb was a newsman. And a darn good one.

In an interview a week before he signed off the air one final time March 30, 1990, Herb was asked what moment stood out the most in his career.

He quickly thought back to a news story that he broke – one that would grab national headlines – nearly 13 years before his final newscast.

It was Dec. 27, 1977, and a traffic helicopter for WEEI had crashed through the roof of a 24-apartment building on Station Street in Quincy. The accident claimed the lives of WEEI reporter Henry (Chip) Whitmore and pilot Richard Bank. Whitmore had been employed by WESX in Salem, WJDA's sister station, before going to work for WEEI.

On that tragic morning, Fontaine was listening to a police scanner when word broke that a traffic helicopter had gone down near Station Street.

"It was 7:30 and 30 seconds when I first heard the news," Fontaine recalled.

"I quickly typed out some notes and gave them to (announcer) Roy Lind to read over the air. I imagine we were the first station to break the news."

The station's coverage became famous that day as dozens of radio and television stations from all over the country called looking for information. The station also got a call from an Australian newspaper reporter later that day.

"That was quite a day," Fontaine said from his broadcast booth. "It will always stand out in my mind."

Herb Fontaine was all about the news. Getting the story and getting it right. The first time. He earned a reputation of being fair from news makers throughout the city and beyond. His penchant for calling sleepy city officials in the early morning for his day-break news sound bites made him a community icon.

Herb began his career at WCOU in Lewiston, ME in 1948 and seven and a half years later he joined WJDA. For nearly 35 years he was the station's news director. Thousands relied on Herb to tell them the news daily. And he delivered each and every day he was on the air.

During his career in Quincy, Herb covered the City Council and the administrations of seven mayors: Amelio Della Chiesa, James McIntyre, Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Francis McCauley and the first few months of Mayor James Sheets' tenure.

Herb was recognized by his media peers with several distinguished awards including the UPI Public Service Award for his half-hour program "Drug Menace of 1959." The program dealt with interviews with drug addicts, law enforcement officials and public health officials.

The ultimate honor came in June, 1987, when a bronze plaque was dedicated in the Council Chamber of City Hall in his honor on "Herb Fontaine Night."

The dedication was attended by a standing-room only crowd of local and South Shore officials, relatives and friends.

The plaque featuring a likeness of Fontaine included this inscription: "The Quincy City Council honors Herb Fontaine of WJDA who exemplifies the highest ideals of broadcast journalism, accuracy, professionalism, integrity, and with fairness to all, true to his family, his work, colleagues and community."

Herb's plaque was just the third dedicated in the Council Chamber and the first in 23 years. The last had occurred in 1967 in honor of Fred Hunt, the late Patriot Ledger reporter.

Speakers praised Herb for his fairness in his presentation of the news.

"It's not everyone who gets on the wall of the council chamber," said then Mayor Francis McCauley at the dedication.

Rabbi Jacob Mann – a longtime friend of Herb – said: "If anyone has earned a good name for himself, Herb Fontaine has. This evening was a celebration of the gift of speech which has been used so well by Herb in his work."

There was also some good-natured humor that special evening.

Then City Council President Stephen McGrath acknowledged his nervousness about running the meetings after he became council president 18 months before.

"City Councillor James Sheets told me, 'don't worry. Herb Fontaine will tell you how to run the meeting.'"

Councillor John Lydon, chairman of the dedication event, referred to the "Fontaine Finger Snap" which Herb utilized when councillors running committee meetings forgot to turn on the microphones so he could record their comments for WJDA.

Herb's longtime boss, station owner James (Jay) Asher, recalled Fontaine's history of the station and his love of the city and his professionalism.

Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth called Herb a "good newsman" but kidded Herb may be "slipping."

"We've been planning this night for four or five months right under his nose and he never got wind of it," Henry quipped.

But Henry, one of Herb's longtime contemporaries and friend for many years, also struck a serious tone.

"Herb is a good newsman. One of the finest ever in the South Shore. He's fair. He gets both sides of an issue. He's accurate. You can take him into confidence.

"I am proud to be a part of this evening in Herb's honor. I am proud to be his friend."

As he took to the rostrum in the chamber, Herb read from a sheet of paper and thanked all those gathered to share with him this special evening.

"Thank you very, very much for this honor. It's something I'll never forget."

He dispelled any rumors that night that he would be stepping down. And true to his word, he worked for nearly three more years at WJDA before he retired.

"News is fascinating," he told the crowd gathered in the Council Chamber on his special night. "From one second to the next, you have no idea what's coming next. I feel that WJDA is my station, and when you feel like it's yours, you give a little bit extra. And when you do a little bit extra, it pays off."

Herb's plaque was positioned on the wall in the Council Chamber just above where Fontaine sat covering all those city council meetings. With the renovations to the James R. McIntyre City Hall Building, Herb's plaque and others will hang in museum space on the first floor. Others that will join Herb's include one for longtime City Clerk John Gillis and another for Henry Bosworth who wrote the inscriptions for both Herb's and John's plaques.

Of course, there was more to Herb than sitting behind a microphone. He was also very active in the community. He served as a Cancer Crusade Chairman and was a member of Survival, Inc., the Interfaith Shelter Coalition, Quincy Jewish War Veterans, Temple Beth El and the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee.

He was a veteran of World War II serving with the G-2 Intelligence Division for the 8th Calvary in the Pacific Theater and was discharged as a sergeant-technician.

He also covered Quincy news and politics as a panelist for Quincy Cablesystem's "Newsmakers Program" for many years.

Herb was also a dear friend to many including Win Bettinson, WJDA's longtime program director. Win retired two days after Herb 25 years ago. Together, they represented 92 years on the air.

"Some of the best years of my life was spent at radio station WJDA and Herb was by my side," Win said in a phone interview a few days ago.

"Herb was a newsman and he knew how to get stories. He was never late and was always at work by 6 a.m. He had a way of getting news.

"He was a local legend," Win added.

A legend who left his mark on the City of Quincy.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1907 postcard view of the Electric Car Terminus and Square at the end of Sea Street in Houghs Neck. The peaked roofed building in the right center with the porch is the Quincy Yacht Club, the only building in this view that remains today. In front of it with the oval sign was the widely popular Norteman's Pavilion where they featured shore dinners, boiled live lobsters and fresh shellfish, all taken from local waters. It alone attracted summer tourists by trolley and steamboat to Houghs Neck from all around Boston. On the left the building with the gable was Arthur Dunham's house where he had a grocery store and the post office. The Moxie sign was on The Boston Candy Company store. Fensmere Avenue went off on the left to a hotel. At the time of this picture, The Brockton Street Railway Company operated the electric trolleys from Quincy Square to here. They had a car barn for the trolleys on the corner of Sea and Island Avenues. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Mayor Urged To Reconsider $58,000 School Cut

The school budget committee of the Quincy Parent-Teacher Council asked Mayor Charles A. Ross to reconsider his $58,000 cut in the 1949 school budget.

The request was made in a statement issued by Earl Lantery, chairman of the committee, which was formed by the Parent-Teacher Council for the express purpose off trying to regain the money, which the mayor had stricken from the departmental budget.

The school budget advisory committee has been investigating quite extensively the cut in the school budget by Mayor Ross. "We are firmly opposed to this cut or any other cut that might be made by the council finance committee," the committee said. "We feel that the Mayor's actions were decidedly unwise."

AUDITOR OPPOSES PUBLIC FUNDS FOR CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

Quincy merchants were told that there are "limits to what they can expect from public funds," by a city official who opposes legislation requiring a $2,500 municipal appropriation to help finance Christmas decorations at Quincy trading centers.

City Auditor Leo E. Mullen told a legislative committee at the State House that a city appropriation for this purpose has been sought for several years. Mullen said, "We have done all right by the merchants. We gave them a million-dollar parking area. Talk about being Santa Claus, there are limits to what they can expect from public funds."

HOSPITAL OUT-PATIENT DEPARTMENT TO BE OPENED

Dr. Ensio K.F. Ronka, director at Quincy City Hospital, announced that the long awaited outpatient department will be opened. "For the people of Quincy it means that they will be able to get certain types of medical and surgical care at substantially reduced costs," he said.

Kelly Family Grateful For Benefit Support

The Kelly Family honored the memory of John S. Kelly, Jr. (Ras) with a benefit held at The Commonwealth Restaurant and Lounge, 79 Parkingway, Quincy, on Nov. 29, 2014.

John was a lifelong resident of The City of Quincy and a dedicated worker at Quincy Medical Center. He was a very active member of the community. John was a passionate DJ and his company, Ras Kelly Productions, infused Quincy with the Raggae Vibe.

Our Family wishes to acknowledge the support and donations which contributed to the huge success of the benefit.

Through this generosity, the event raised over $9,000 in support of food pantries and soup kitchens. In addition, the benefit helped to introduce local musicians and DJ's to a wider and more diverse audience.

All proceeds will be distributed amongst the Southwest Community Center, the Germantown Food Pantry and the Soup Kitchen of Negril, Jamaica.

We appreciate all that has been done to "Keep the Music Alive."Ras Kelly would have wanted it that way.

More Fond Memories Of Frankie Bellotti

I was very touched to read Mr. Giarratani's memories of Frankie Bellotti.

Frankie and I dated in high school in the mid-1960s and I also have wonderful memories. I remember many days after school sitting at the Wheelhouse Diner holding hands across the table and talking for hours. If he called me from home to talk he was always trying to quiet down many little brothers and sisters! I often think of all the days wearing Estee Lauder cologne because Frankie bought it for me. He loved it – me, not so much!

Frankie was a sweet and loving boy and I'm so glad he became such a special man and touched so many lives.

Rest in peace, Frankie.

Thoughts About A Sidewalk Snow Ordinance

I note that there is discussion of passing an ordinance requiring homeowners to clear their sidewalks. This in reaction to the child being struck on Berlin Street, Wollaston by a taxi cab.

I live one block over from Berlin Street. What I saw there were sheer cliffs of snow, seven feet high, lining the street. Unless a homeowner owns a bobcat, I can't see how a homeowner could be expected to clear his/her sidewalk. Add to that some homeowners are likely to be elderly.

I suppose contractors could be hired to do that work. That would be an onerous expense. Are there enough contractors to clear the hundreds of sidewalks in Quincy? There is no happy solution.

Hancock Street parallels Berlin Street. The school children would be better off if they were instructed to walk as far possible down main streets. Sidewalks had been cleared on one side of Hancock Street at the time of the accident. The clearance was so poorly done, that folks still walked in the street. They should walk opposite to the flow of traffic being careful in going around parked cars looking behind them for oncoming vehicles.

Because of liability issues, parents, not schools, should advise their children. Even now, I see school children returning from school wearing dull colored clothing. At the very least, parents should insist that their children wear bright orange knit caps. This difficult winter was a surprise to all of us.

There is no guarantee that it won't happen again.

QHS Students Displaying Art Work At State Transportation Building

Five students from Quincy High School are among the arts students in grades K - 12 throughout the state who have been selected to display their creative art works at the State Transportation Building in Boston.

The young artists with work on display are sophomore Urdinlinya Smith, juniors Karen Chen and Katherine Choi, and seniors Kurt Caberoy and Elaine Fang. They are representing the City of Quincy in this year's Youth Art Month exhibit. The students are under the direction of teachers Sarah Kerns, Sarah Kiley and Sara Knudsen.

The multimedia exhibit is sponsored by the Massachusetts Art Education Association (MAEA) in conjunction with Youth Art Month, a national celebration that emphasizes the value of art education for all children and encourages support for the quality art programs in Massachusetts' schools.

The Youth Art Month Exhibit is on display and open to the public weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through April 24th. The building is closed on Patriots Day, Monday, April 20.

Admission is free.

In Sync Center Relocates Classes To Milton High School

After Roof Collapse At Adams Street Plaza

After the roof collapse at the 550 Adams Street Plaza, local small business In Sync Center of the Arts was faced with the challenge of what to do: close up shop for the duration of the re-building of the Adams Street plaza, or find alternate space to hold their over 100 classes per week. In Sync runs four simultaneous dance classes as well as four music lessons at any given time, six days a week.

The collapse occurred at the plaza Feb. 15. Luckily, nobody was present at the time, but the studio began to feel the effects immediately with the cancellation of their February vacation camps, numerous snow day make up classes, four birthday parties scheduled to take place at In Sync and rehearsals for the dance company, who will be competing for the first time this year at the end of March.

Owner and director Teri Mangiaratti said she felt an overwhelming sense of support from other local dance studios who were willing to offer their vacant studio spaces, as well as small businesses who offered everything from their products and services, or even just a word of support in a troublesome time. The In Sync families who participate in classes reached out immediately offering support and communicating the desire to find some sort of alternate space to meet for classes.

After reaching out to numerous possible temporary locations, a helping hand was extended by the Milton Public Schools, who offered to house the business's needs at Milton High School. All of the classes that take place starting at 3 p.m. on weekdays are being held at the high school. The students of In Sync are very familiar with Milton High, as it is the location of their yearly ballet show and recital in June.

Mangiaratti, as well as the staff and students of In Sync, would like to thank Milton School Supt. Mary Gormley and others who have helped accommodate the heavy needs of a studio that is home to 1,200 students.

In Sync also thanked the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, who extended an invitation to host all of the classes that take place in the morning during the week. President Dean Rizzo has been a generous host who, like the Milton Public Schools, was more than willing to help a local small business at a moment's notice.

"The generosity and community spirit displayed during this troublesome time has been both inspiring and reassuring for everybody involved," Mangiaratti said. "It is a testament to how willing our community is to give back in any little way they can. While In Sync is housed at its temporary locations, the staff and students are eagerly working towards producing their June recital. The promise of an amazing performance, warm weather, and the repair of the studio is keeping everybody in good spirits.

For more information about the classes at In Sync Center of the Arts, call (617) 328-5678 or visit www.in-syncarts.com.

Award Celebration April 16 At Granite Links

Woodward School To Honor Judy Farmer, Therese Maloney

The Woodward School in Quincy will honor two local women of achievement at its annual Woodward Women of Distinction Award Celebration set for Thursday, April 16th at Granite Links Golf Club.

The honorees – Judy Farmer and Therese Maloney – are being recognized for supporting the Woodward community as well as the city of Quincy and greater Boston through service and volunteers efforts.

JUDY FARMER

THERESE MALONEY

Farmer has worked in the mortgage banking industry for 30 years. She is currently the Regional Lending Manager at the Quincy branch of the Bank of Canton, a position she has held for the past 18 years.

Farmer is recognized for both her professional accomplishments and her many philanthropic contributions. For almost two decades, she has served on the Board of Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP). She is a longtime committee member of the Quincy Affordable Housing Trust Fund and served on the Finance Committee at Saint Agatha's Parish for 10 years. Her compassionate and caring demeanor make her an inspirational community leader.

Maloney graduated from Woodward in 1947 and has remained an engaged and committed alumna. She is a Harvard Business School graduate, and though now retired, she was the first woman Executive Vice-President of Liberty Mutual Insurance Company.

Maloney has been recognized as a "Who's Who of American Women" and her civic affiliations are numerous. She has served on Suffolk University's Financial Advisory Board, the Board of United Way of Massachusetts Bay and Merrimack Valley, and the Liberty Mutual Board, to name a few. She remains connected to and immensely supportive of her alma mater.

For over 120 years, The Woodward School has provided girls with a college preparatory program that fosters a love of learning while providing serious instruction in academic disciplines, the arts and athletics.

Dr. Ebenezer Woodward and Mary Greenleaf, founded the School in 1869 to provide an education for the young women of Quincy. Today, The Woodward School educates students from over 30 communities in and around Boston, Quincy and the South Shore.

The Woodward Women of Distinction serve as influential role models to all of the great girls at the School. We are grateful for their support and the continuing support of all former Woodward Women of Distinction.

Citizens Bank Contributes $500 To Quincy Community Action Program

Peter Donohoe has been recognized by Citizens Bank as one of its Colleague Choice Community Awards recipients, a program that provides donations to vital nonprofit organizations serving the local community.

As part of the award, Citizens Bank will contribute $500 to Quincy Community Action Program, where Donohue has volunteered for a decade.

PETER DONOHOE

Donohue was one of 20 colleagues recognized as a Colleague Choice Community Awards winner during the bank's Credo Celebration, an eight day-long celebration of Citizens Bank colleagues, customers and communities. Credo Celebration was filled with activities, including food drives, community activities, recognition and more.

"It is a privilege to honor Peter as one of our Colleague Choice Community Awards recipients, particularly given his efforts on behalf of Quincy Community Action Program, a wonderful community partner," said Jerry Sargent, Citizens Bank, Massachusetts president. "Credo Celebration is an opportunity to honor some of Massachusetts' finest volunteer organizations, and the individuals who contribute countless hours to them. We are delighted to have Peter as a colleague, as his work reflects Citizens' collaborative spirit."

Colleagues submitted nonprofits for Colleague Choice Community Awards consideration with the 20 finalists selected by Citizens Bank colleagues.

Quincy Community Action Program's mission is to assist families and individuals in their communities to improve the quality of their lives by minimizing the effects of poverty, promoting self-sufficiency and advocating for social change.

Julia Rose Murphy In HOPE Service Program

Quincy native Julia Rose Murphy will be traveling to California next week during Stonehill College's spring break as apart of its H.O.P.E. Service Immersion Program.

In Coachella Valley, California, Stonehill's HOPE group will be working with the Coachella Valley Housing Coalition to build affordable housing. The CVHC is a non-profit housing development corporation dedicated to helping low and very low-income families improve their living conditions through advocacy, research, construction, and operation of housing and community development projects. Participants will take part in indoor and outdoor construction. They will be able to learn about the area's needs and challenges, as well experience the strong bond of community there. On the HOPE California trip, students will also be exposed to immigration issues and policy in America, and the injustices migrant farm workers face with pay and working conditions.

Students who participate in the H.O.P.E. program form community with one another during the five months leading up to their trip. They learn about the culture, history and issues of social injustice in the communities they are destined to visit and serve.

The trips themselves are truly immersive experiences, challenging students to engage the four tenets of H.O.P.E.:

- Honoring our neighbor
- Organizing for justice
- Practicing peace
- Encountering God

Upon their return, students are encouraged to reflect on their experiences and to integrate the pursuit of social justice into their day-to-day lives.

WHAT'S COOKING
with
Marie & Suzie
By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUZIE FALCO

St. Patrick's Day Colcannon Mash

By SUZIE

Colcannon is a traditional Irish dish made of potatoes, Kale or cabbage (kale when in season) and spring onions, along with a lot of Irish butter.

It is traditionally served with bacon or corned beef, but you can serve it with anything you desire. It is really delicious and good for you as well. (The Irish even have a song about it.) Traditionally, on Halloween, they used to hide coins or thimbles in the dish.

COLCANNON MASH

1 1/2 pounds organic potatoes, scrubbed well.

5 tablespoons (or more) or KerryGold Irish Butter

3/4 - 1 cup of hot milk of choice, or half and half

About half a head of finely shredded cabbage, or kale

4 scallions or so

Sea salt and pepper

Fresh parsley

Steam the potatoes in their skins for about 30 minutes. Peel them using a knife and fork. Mash thoroughly with masher. Add butter, sea salt, pepper, and hot milk, mashing more until lumps are few and far between.

While the potatoes were cooking, this is the time to cook the cabbage or kale in a little water with salt and butter until just cooked. DO NOT OVERCOOK. Drain well.

Toss in with the potatoes, add a bit more butter and the chopped scallions. Check for seasonings and sprinkle with parsley. Serve with some fish, chicken, lamb, corned beef, whatever you prefer. Remember the Irish song? Well, part of it was about the extra butter swimming on the potatoes, so you better add in some extra on the top before serving.

Porks Chop With Apple Cider Vinegar

By MARIE

When cooking pork chops, it seems that some kind of apple goes well with it, and that is why today's recipe calls for apple cider vinegar.

When my mother used to cook pork, she always brushed the pork with mustard

I did the same thing, but with the addition of the apple cider vinegar, it was quite a wonderful blend.

3-4 pork chops

1 cloves garlic

3 tablespoons olive oil

Enough mustard for coating (either Dijon or yellow)

2-3 tablespoons apple cider vinegar (depending on the amount of pork)

Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic until lightly browned. Add the brushed pork chops, salt and pepper, and sauté turning until both sides have started to turn brown. Add the apple cider vinegar and cook covered until the meat is tender. Uncover and cook turning until most of the liquid has reduced.

I served them with roasted sweet potatoes and asparagus.

Senior Social Security Update At Kennedy Center

Kristen Alberino of the Quincy Social Security office will be at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy, on Friday, March 27th at 10:30 a.m. to update seniors on any changes with Social Security.

Alberino will also talk about mySocialSecurity, a free and easy to access and use online portal to view personal Social Security accounts. Using the computers at the Kennedy Center, she will assist you in signing up for your own account that will allow you quick and secure access to your Social Security information.

Registration is required for this presentation. To register, call the Quincy Council on Aging at (617) 376-1506.

Leek, Potato Soup

By SUZIE

There is an old Irish legend that says St. Patrick was consoling a dying woman who had a vision of an herb that she needed to eat otherwise she would not survive. When she described the herb to St. Patrick, he saw it as a leek, fed it to her, and she was cured.

The Irish love leeks and use them in a variety of recipes. St. Patrick also loved "King's Soup" which was a mix of Leeks and Oatmeal. This was later turned into a Leek and Potato staple type soup. So, enjoy this soup on St. Patrick's Day this year! Hope you enjoy it as much as I do.

LEEK, POTATO SOUP

4 leeks, cleaned well (with dark green parts removed) and chopped.

3 tablespoons Kerrygold Irish butter (the best)

Sea salt and pepper

3 potatoes (I like Yukon Gold for this soup) peeled and diced

1 quart chicken or vegetable broth

1 cup cashew cream (recipe below)

Snipped chives for garnish, if desired

First make the cashew cream. Simply take raw cashews and soak in water which has been boiled for 30 minutes. This "softens" the cashews and makes them creamy. Now drain and add them to a blender or Vitamix, even a nutribullet with just enough water to cover them with about an inch extra. Blend until smooth and creamy, should look like sour cream.

Sauté the leeks in the butter on medium for about 20 minutes, stirring often. Add some sea salt at this time as well, a good size pinch (and taste when the soup is done to adjust seasonings).

Now simply add in the broth and potatoes. Combine well and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to a simmer and cook until potatoes are soft, about 20 minutes or so. Now add in the cashew cream and with immersion blender, blend until smooth and creamy.

Season with sea salt and pepper. Garnish with fresh chives and serve.

Irish Soda Bread

By SUZIE

Irish Soda Bread is a traditional product of a poor country, it was made with only the most basic of ingredients: flour, baking soda (used as a leavening agent instead of yeast), soured milk to moisten and activate the soda, and salt.

Before baking, a cross was cut on the top with a knife, to ward off the devil and protect the household. Families lived in farmhouses where most kitchens had only open hearths so the breads that developed were baked on griddles or in large black iron pots over fires. This method resulted in a loaf that was tender and dense, with a slight sour tang and a hard crust and was made every 2-3 days and eaten with the main meal, not as dessert.

Soda bread is shaped in different shapes based on the region of Ireland. In the Southern regions it is shaped and baked as a round loaf with a cross marked on top.

In the North regions of the country, the soda bread is flattened into a round disc and divided into four equal triangular shapes; each triangle is then cooked on a flat griddle.

The traditional service of the bread is for a section to be broken off, the piece then split and buttered warm.

Here is a recipe from a website called "Elena's Pantry" by Elena Amsterdam. This recipe is a delicious, healthy, high protein version of Irish Soda Bread. Delicious!

IRISH SODA BREAD

2 ¾ cups blanched almond flour

¼ teaspoon celtic sea salt

1 ½ teaspoons baking soda

½ cup raisins

2 large eggs

2 tablespoons agave nectar or honey

2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar

pinch of caraway seeds

In a large bowl combine almond flour, salt, baking soda and raisins

In a smaller bowl combine eggs, agave and apple cider vinegar

Mix wet ingredients into dry

Place dough on a piece of parchment paper and form dough into a large, flat circle that is 8 inches across and 1 ½ inches tall

Using a serrated knife, score top of dough a half an inch deep in shape of a cross

Sprinkle top of bread with caraway seeds

Transfer dough and parchment to a baking sheet

Bake at 350° for 20 minutes, then turn off oven and leave bread in for 10 more minutes

Cool bread for ½ hour then slice and serve with butter and jam

I hope you all enjoy this classic St. Patrick's Day soda bread.

School Committee Notebook

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The School Committee voted 5-2 at its March 4th meeting to not alter the 2015-2016 school year calendar.

Options included starting before Labor Day on Sept. 7 and merging the February and April vacation weeks into one March vacation week as a way to ensure the 180-day school requirement is met in the event of excessive snowfall in the future.

Committee members Noel DiBona and Paul Bregoli voted against not altering the schedule, saying they would prefer to start the school year prior to Labor Day.

• Quincy and North Quincy High School school students visited the Edward M. Kennedy Institute for the U.S. Senate in Boston on March 6. The institute educates the public on government operations and encourages public discourse.

• Grade eight Project 351 Ambassadors were recognized by the School Committee for their community service efforts. A student is chosen by their school's administration to attend a one-day event of community service honors in Boston.

One student is chosen from each city in the commonwealth to attend. The program enhances students' leadership skills and encourages the expression of humility, compassion, kindness, and generosity. Project 351 was first convened by former Gov. Deval Patrick for his 2011 inauguration.

Ambassadors from Quincy this year were Chase Reardon of Broad Meadows Middle School, Garell Willis of Sterling Middle School, and Brian O'Connor of Point Webster Middle School. Project 351 Alumni Leadership Council member Noor Al-Saad of Quincy High School was also recognized.

• Food service staff members with over 20 years of experience were recognized by the School Committee for their contributions to Quincy's public schools. Joanne Morrissey, director of the food service department, spoke on behalf of food service staff.

"The food service staff that we are recognizing here tonight have contributed significantly to the health and well-being of the Quincy Public Schools' students," she said. "Together, this group has served Quincy students for a combined total of 465 years." Some staff, she said, have been with QPS since the inception of the hot lunch program in Quincy in 1973. Back then lunch cost 40 cents and milk was 10 cents.

• Kindergarten registration for the 2015-2016 school year was held on March 3.

• High School course selection nights for grade eight parents will take place March 23 at North Quincy High School and March 26 at Quincy High School.

• QPS partners Fallon Ambulance provided 102 grade eight students and their parents CPR training and certification.

• On March 10 Opiate Knowledge Night was held at Central Middle School. The interactive program encourages parents to walk through and examine a teenager's mock bedroom and find signs of drug abuse, eating disorders, and other harmful or risky behaviors. Guest speakers Kimberly Noble, youth health connection coordinator at South Shore Hospital, and Traci Wojciechowski, regional director at the Caron Foundation Student Assistant Program, lectured parents on the effects of opiates. Nancy Holler, a Quincy resident who lost her son to a drug overdose, also shared her story.

• On Feb. 9, the City Council voted to authorize a Statement of Interest (SOI) for enrollment to the Massachusetts School Building Authority's Core Repair program for the Squantum Elementary School. The Core Repair program addresses major repairs and in some cases total school reconstruction.

• The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) has offered flexibility in scheduling testing windows for MCAS, MCAS Alternate Assessment, and PARCC due to this year's excessive snow days. The new schedule can be found at www.doe.mass.edu under "news."

• Window and door replacement projects at North Quincy High School, Wollaston Elementary School, and the Merrymount Elementary School are underway. Windows have been ordered and will most likely be installed over the summer, according Quincy Public School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro.

• Out-of-country travel was approved for the North Quincy High School trip to Paris and Bourges, France, April 14-24.

• Out of country travel was approved for the Quincy High School trip to Paris and Cote d'Azure, France and Barcelona, Spain, April 16-23.

• Overnight travel was approved for Quincy High School Student Council to the Massachusetts Association of Student Councils Annual Conference in Hyannis, March 11-13.

• Upcoming meetings of the School Committee in the Coddington Building at 7 p.m. are scheduled for:

Wednesday, March 18
Wednesday, April 8

Upcoming subcommittee meetings in the Coddington Building are scheduled for:

Special Education, Wednesday, March 25, 6 p.m.

Teaching and Learning, Monday, March 30, 5 p.m.

Facilities and Security and Quarterly Budget and Finance, Monday, April 13, 5 p.m.

A special meeting of the School Committee will take place Monday, March 16, 6 p.m. at the Coddington Building to address how QPS will make up time lost in the classroom due to snow cancellations.

QPS 'Credit For Life' At Tirrell Room March 26

Quincy Public Schools will host the 7th annual "Credit for Life" Fair Thursday, March 26 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

Some 200 students from Quincy and North Quincy will take part in the fair. The goal of the event is to provide high school seniors with the ability to be independent adult consumers and have the knowledge of personal finance to survive in today's global economy.

Fifteen booths will be set up throughout The Tirrell Room and students will have to spend from a budget based on the future jobs they foresee themselves employed in. Students will make decisions on how much money they want to spend on transportation, housing, food, clothing, savings, education, and insurance.

Municipal Election Calendar Set

- Preliminary Tuesday, Sept. 22
- Final Election Tuesday, Nov. 3

By SCOTT JACKSON

This year's preliminary municipal election has been scheduled for Sept. 22.

The preliminary election, along with the rest of this year's election calendar was approved unanimously during the March 2 City Council meeting.

The preliminary election needs to be held this year because at least three candidates are running for mayor. Councillor Doug Gutro and School Committee member Anne Mahoney formally announced their campaigns earlier this year. Incumbent Thomas Koch will formally announce his bid for a fifth term at a kick-off rally Thursday, May 14th at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

The top two vote getters in the preliminary election would face off against each other Nov. 3.

There was no preliminary held during the most recent municipal election cycle in 2013.

The deadline for voters to register for the preliminary election is 8 p.m. on Sept. 2. Absentee balloting for the preliminary runs until noon on Sept. 21.

The deadline for registering before the November election is 8 p.m. on Oct. 14. Absentee balloting for the final election ends at noon on Nov. 2.

Nomination papers for residents running for mayor, any of the nine City Council seats or three School Committee seats will be made available May 5. All candidates are required to submit at least 50 signatures to the Board of Registrars by 5 p.m. on Aug. 4 for certification.

Certified nomination papers, including a statement of candidacy, need to be filed with the city clerk by 5 p.m. on Aug. 18.

A list of candidates will be posted at the City Clerk's Office on Aug. 18. The deadline for objections and/or withdrawal of nomination papers is 5 p.m. on Aug. 20. At 10 a.m. on Aug. 21, a drawing will be held to determine ballot position for the preliminary election.

All candidates need to file a campaign finance report by 5 p.m. on Sept. 14.

The deadline for filing a recount petition, withdrawal, or objection to nomination papers following the preliminary election is 5 p.m. on Sept. 28. That is also the deadline for any candidate who won a write-in or sticker campaign to accept the nomination.

Finance reports for the final election are due by Oct. 26 at 5 p.m.

Recount petitions for the November election would need to be filed by 5 p.m. on Nov. 13.

The deadline for all candidates and non-elected political committees to file campaign finance reports is Jan. 19, 2016, at 5 p.m.

New Initiative Aims To Solarize Quincy

becca McWilliams, Solarize Quincy's lead organizer, said Monday she hopes 200 property owners sign up by the end of June when the program ends.

"The purpose of the program is to offer discounted solar panels for lease or purchase to residents of Quincy. We have volunteers from the Quincy community who are doing the outreach part. They're attending community events giving out brochures and business cards, sharing information. That means the installer we've selected doesn't need to spend money doing marketing. It reduces the cost because we're all-volunteer for the marketing and outreach portion," McWilliams explained.

"In addition, the cost is reduced because it's all happening inside Quincy. The installer will be able to install many solar panels at once in the same geographic area rather than have to go to Boston and Milford and all over the state. They're focusing on Quincy for the installation so there is an efficiency of scale there."

There is also a five-tiered system for bulk discounts; the more residents and business owners who sign up, the greater the discount. Approximately 40 households need to sign up to reach the tier five, which offers the steepest price break. The discounts are retroactive as well, meaning it doesn't matter when someone signs up as long as they do it by the June deadline.

"The more people who buy, the cheaper the actual panels will be for the installer. We're trying to reach a tier of participation for the community. If we have five households who participate in the program – that will definitely happen because I know there have been more than five households visited so far – then that's a tier one and there is a discount in the cost of the panels or there is a cheaper lease price. It goes all the way up to tier five," McWilliams said.

"We're assuming the program will hit tier five because it's really only about 40 households required. In a city of about 93,000 people that shouldn't be a problem. The discounts go retroactively back to anyone who has participated. I'm planning on getting solar panels on my house. I'm going to be signing a contract, which means I'll be in the wave of people who are early adopters but I will still benefit from tier five pricing."

Solarize Massachusetts is a joint initiative of the Massachusetts Clean Energy Center (CEC) and the Massachusetts Department of Energy Resources (DOER). The initiative is in its fifth year; Quincy had applied to participate in the program three times before being accepted late last year.

"The CEC and the DOER have been putting on Solarize programs competitively for communities for about five years. Over the course of time, Quincy has applied three times to be a Solarize community, and I guess the third time is the charm because we were finally selected this past fall along with four other communities," McWilliams said.

"We put together an application showing there was interest in the community. We had actually put up an online survey on the city website over the summer in 2014. A lot of people responded and said 'yes, I'd be interested in solar power for my home and business if there was a group purchasing discount.' From that list of people we were able to send in our application in the fall and say 'we found all this interest – there are people in Quincy who want solar.'

"The other piece of that was showing we had boots on the ground – we actually had people who could mobilize and make the program happen. At that time last year I was the chair of the Quincy Climate Action Network. We had a lot of volunteers who are members of QCAN who were interested in moving forward with the Solarize Quincy program if we were awarded it."

Before kicking off the initiative, McWilliams and other members of QCAN worked with Shelly Dein, the city's energy manager, to select a contractor to install solar panels. The group chose SolarFlair, a company based in Western Massachusetts that also has an office at the Quincy Center for Innovation.

Volunteers have attended community events in recent months to promote the program and the group has a website with information on the program – solarizequincy.weebly.com. McWilliams herself can be reached by email at solarizequincy@gmail.com. Solarize Quincy held a Solar 101 night March 3 at Atlantic Middle School and a second is scheduled for March 17 at 7 p.m. in Broad Meadows Middle School; others will be held later this spring.

The Solarize Quincy program ends June 30, but McWilliams said residents should sign up before June 1 to participate because there is a multi-step process involved. The first step is enrolling through Solarize Quincy's website.

"First you sign up for a free solar energy assessment. Only one in four potential homes or businesses are actually going to be a good candidate so we want to encourage people to sign up early, that way they can get a free assessment," McWilliams said.

"An assessment means the installer will look at an overlay map and see if the roof is covered with trees; obviously it's not a really good candidate if there are trees all over the roof. They also want to see if the roof faces south, east or west. A north-facing roof won't work because it doesn't get a lot of good sunlight. South is great but east or west can also work as well. My roof is east/west so I'm one of those people who are still a good candidate even without a south-facing roof.

"The next step is to schedule a time for the installer to actually come out and visit the home or business. They have a SunEye. It's a device that will take an optical camera that will look at the exposure to the sun and any obstructions for the roof. The SunEye is placed on a pole and held up about the height of the roof to determine if there are any trees, any power lines, or anything else that could be obstructing."

From there, SolarFlair will develop a proposal for the house outlining the number of solar panels to be used. The company will also determine if a new electrical meter is needed or if work needs to be done to make the roof more structurally sound. Homeowners and business owners need to agree sign a contract for the installation by June 30 in order to participate in Solarize Quincy.

Home and business owners can choose to either purchase the solar panels or enter into a power purchase agreement with the installer. Under the latter option, which is also known as a lease, a company would install the solar panels and the homeowner receives a discount on electricity bills over the course of a 20-year span. The city of Quincy, for example, entered into power purchase agreements when solar panels were installed on municipal buildings in recent years.

"A power purchase agreement, the way that it works is the company installs solar panels on a rooftop and agrees to give you discounted electricity for the term of the agreement. It would be a 20-year agreement and you would say 'I want you to provide me electricity at a discounted rate from this year all the way through year 20 so my electricity is cheaper than the going rate.' Obviously, as more people join the program the lease rate will go down. It gets cheaper the more people participate," McWilliams explained.

"You don't own the solar panels. You don't get to change them. You don't get to remove them. If you want to sell the house, you're selling the house with solar panels. That's not usually a complicated thing, but there could be a penalty if the person purchasing the house decides to remove them.

"With the purchase program, you get to choose what types of panels you use because you're going to own them. You have the choice between the base model (manufactured in China by a Canadian firm), U.S. made, or there is a really deluxe model made in the Philippines that is sort of the Cadillac of solar panels. That one makes a lot of sense if you're doing a very small installation because you want to be super efficient and make a lot of electricity."

There is a cost to for either purchasing the solar panels or entering a power purchase agreement. Purchasing the panels and having them installed costs between $15,000 and $25,000 for a typical five-kilowatt system – residential solar installations in Quincy average five kilowatts – and entering into a PPA costs about $2,000. Under the Solarize Quincy program, those costs will go down as more homeowners sign up.

The cost of installation can be paid through a home equity loan, like any other other renovation project would be. In the case of a power purchase agreement, the homeowner could opt to not pay any money upfront and instead pay for it over the course of the 20-year agreement.

There are a number of financial benefits to having the panels installed. Residential homeowners are eligible for a one-time federal tax credit equal to 30 percent of the installation cost and a $1,000 state rebate.

Aside from tax credits, owners of solar panels can sell excess electricity to their utility and receive a credit for a future bill.

"In a month like July when it's producing tons and tons of electricity, you're going to keep receiving a bill from whoever you receive a bill from. Whoever your provider is you're going to continue receiving a bill from them. But it will say for the month of July your cost is negative $20. They won't write you a check for $20, but they will tell you that you went into the negative," McWilliams said.

"So in August if you have some cloudy days and you're not able to produce a lot of electricity or perhaps you run a lot of air conditioning in August, then you will be using that credit on your bill."

Because electricity generated by the PV panels does go back into the grid, the solar arrays will shutdown during blackouts to prevent utility workers from being electrocuted while they work to restore power.

Additionally, those who purchase solar panels can obtain a Solar Renewable Energy Certificate (SREC) for each kilowatt of electricity produced. Those certificates are then sold for a minimum of $200 each, netting more than $1,000 for the typical homeowner with a five-kilowatt system.

All told, homeowners can repay the installation cost of new the solar panels within five or seven years; solar panels have life expectancies of more than 20 years.

"Your payback is usually five or seven years. Let's say it's year five – you'll get 15 additional years of very cheap electric because you're mostly producing your own electricity with a little bit of supplement from the utility," McWilliams said.

"That means you're not paying the monstrous utility bill you've been paying every month before you had your solar panels installed."

Because of the energy savings – particularly with electrical rates increasing statewide – residents are showing an interest in solar power even if they don't plan on staying in their current home for the life of the panels.

"We have seen that people are really interested, even if they're not planning to keep their homes for a long period of time," McWilliams stated, noting solar arrays can add on average $15,000 to the resale value of a home.

The solar panels are low maintenance. Rainwater is typically enough to keep them free from dust, but homeowners may need to spray them down during particularly dry periods.

"You can hose them off once a year to get the dust and pollen off. They actually have a slick surface on top of the glass that's more slippery than regular glass, so rain really should be cleaning them on their own," McWilliams said. "But if you have a dry summer and it hasn't rained in a month and a half and it has been very polleny, hose them off."

Residents have asked about the durability of the PV panels, given the heavy snowfall seen in late January and into February. According to McWilliams, the panels are designed to withstand 12 or more feet of snow. The worst thing snow could do is stop sunlight from being absorbed. If that does happen, residents should wait a few days for the snow to melt instead of trying to clear it off.

"There will be days that you have so much snow on the solar panels that they don't produce. The last thing you want to do is go up there with a broom or shovel and shovel them off – don't do that. You don't want to damage the fragile components. There is glass up there. You don't want to scratch it because it will hurt the production," McWilliams explained.

"What happens is the panels are a dark color so they warm up from the heat of the sun and eventually that causes the snow to melt and slide off. It will make the snow slide off all at once, so you don't want to keep your garbage cans or your car right under the side of the house where the solar panels are because the snow will all slide off at once. That is something to keep in mind but you do want it to go off on its own."

Celtic Songs, Stories Sunday At Library

JEFF SNOW

Multi-instrumentalist Jeff Snow will perform a special Celtic-inspired afternoon of music Sunday, March 15 at 3 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Snow will play music and tell the stories behind the songs of Scotland, Ireland, and England. He plays six and twelve string guitar, autoharp, Celtic bouzouki and bodhran. Snow also plays the drums and a variety of other percussion instruments. A skilled guitar player, Snow has been featured in Acoustic Guitar Magazine, to which he is also a contributor.

The event is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Struggle For Reform In Massachusetts: Lecture, Discussion Series Starts Tuesday

Professor Dan Breen will lead a six-part lecture and discussion series focusing the struggle for reform in Massachusetts beginning next Tuesday, March 17 at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The Tuesday night sessions start at 7 p.m. No registration is required.

This series is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library in memory of Abe Cohen, a lifelong fighter for justice and a dear friend of the Library.

The topics of the lecture and discussion are:

March 17: The Quock Walker Case: Massachusetts Abolishes Slavery

At the beginning of the Revolution, slavery was legal in every American colony. Even before independence was won, Massachusetts became the first state to recognize that a society that proclaimed the right to struggle for liberty could not deny that right to persons of African descent.

March 24: Women's Suffrage: Massachusetts Leads, and Falls Behind

If Massachusetts led the northern states in the fight for abolition of slavery before the Civil War, with the vital participation of women, the state proved strangely reluctant to extend the logic of freedom to women. Why was it that women's suffrage, achieved so early in Wyoming, came so late to Massachusetts?

March 31: Temperance: Will 'Going Dry' Save the Family?

The fight for Prohibition of alcohol sales was the most prominent of all reform efforts during the late 19th century. We will delve into the reasons for that popularity, as well as its colorful history in the Bay State.

April 14: Sacco and Vanzetti: Anarchism and Due Process in Dedham

With the controversial convictions of two Italian anarchists in 1921, Massachusetts became the center of a nationwide debate on civil liberties. The debate continues today, as we struggle to define what process is "due" in criminal justice proceedings.

April 21: Busing in Boston: A City Divided

Forty years later, tempers still flare over the court-ordered busing to achieve racial balance in the Boston public schools. What does that story have to tell us about the nature--and limits--of reform?

April 28: Same-Sex Marriage: The Goodridge Case Sparks a Marriage Revolution

In 2003, Massachusetts becomes the first state to guarantee marriage equality regardless of sexual orientation. We will take a look at the case that made it happen, and ask the same question we asked in regard to the Walker case--why did it happen here first?

Dr. Breen teaches history at Newbury College and legal studies at Brandeis University, and has presented numerous lively and thought-provoking lectures and discussion series at the Crane library and other public libraries in Massachusetts.

Open forum will be held prior to discussion by the committee so that parents and Quincy residents can weigh in on which make up day they find most suitable.

Students are currently scheduled to be in school until June 30 and teachers until July 1.

The school year for students must end by June 30 due to agreements with the Quincy teachers' union.

Monday's meeting will address only the one day to be made up to meet the 180-day requirement, not the additional 11 days needed to make up lost learning time in the classroom due to snow cancellations.

A motion on which day to attend school can be made by any member of the School Committee, said Supt. of Quincy Public Schools Dr. Richard DeCristofaro.

According to Kevin Mulvey, deputy superintendent of Quincy Public Schools, the cost of attending school on Good Friday for a full day would be $76,458. Attending on Good Friday for a half day would cost $50,925.

The city is "millions of dollars in deficit due to snow removal efforts and is not in a position to take on this additional expense," wrote Mayor Thomas Koch in a letter to DESE.

DeCristofaro said he was unsure as to whether the school department would face any penalties if the 180-day school year requirement was not met.

"There are a lot of grants that could come our way or not come our way so there may be some funding tied to decisions that we make and I don't know what those are and I don't think anybody does really," he said.

At a School Committee meeting last Wednesday night, committee members could not agree on how the one full day of school should be made up, however committee members Anne Mahoney, Paul Bregoli, and Noel DiBona said they were in favor of having school on Good Friday. Koch and committee member David McCarthy were opposed to the idea as they said the day held significant religious importance to a large portion of Quincy residents.

McCarthy tabled the discussion for a future meeting of the School Committee.

As of Tuesday afternoon, the school department had not received word from DESE regarding their request to extend the school day by 30 minutes for 36 days in an effort to make up 11 days of learning hours lost to snow cancellations.

Adding 30 minutes to the end of school days would roll back the school calendar to about June 25 or 26, said DeCristofaro.

The cost to make up one day through extending the school day would equal $50,509.

Options for making up lost time in the classroom in the event that the request to extend school days by 30 minutes was denied by DESE were not discussed at last Wednesday's meeting.

On Tuesday, DeCristofaro said that "right now there's no plan" if the 30-minute waiver were denied.

DESE has however allowed flexibility in scheduled testing windows for MCAS, MCAS Alternate Assessment, and PARCC due to this year's excessive snow days.

The new schedule can be found at www.doe.mass.edu under "news."

The announcement that DESE had denied the city's original request for the three-day waiver spurred School Committee members and Koch to send a letter of appeal to Baker, Speaker of the House Robert DeLeo, and Senate President Stan Rosenberg contesting the decision.

"These were three days that the government declared as states of emergency," said committee member Barbara Isola, who suggested penning the letter. "No one was moving in this state. Nobody in the Commonwealth was going anywhere. We were doing what we were supposed to do and we were staying home."

No explanation was given as to why the waiver was denied, she said. The 180-day rule, she added, could have been examined more closely considering the extenuating circumstances.

"I can't emphasize enough," said Koch. "We've broken all the records. This has been an incredible, extraordinary year…that's why it's so disappointing that the commissioner didn't take a look at this."

The Invisible Killer: Carbon Monoxide

By MIKE SLADE
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

If you have a fireplace, wood stove, gas stove, gas dryer, gas heat, oil heat, or any fossil fuel burning equipment in your home, we ask that you pay close attention to this article.

This is the time of year when people are using their heaters to keep warm. When you burn fuel of any type to create heat, carbon monoxide gas is produced. Carbon monoxide, also known as CO, is an invisible killer because it is a colorless, odorless, poisonous gas.

On Jan. 28, 2005, a 7-year old girl named Nicole Garofalo died due to her Plymouth home being filled with deadly amounts of carbon monoxide. The furnace vents to her home had been blocked by snow during a power outage.

On Nov. 4, 2005, Governor Romney signed "Nicole's Law," named after Nicole Garofalo. Nicole's Law was passed to protect the people of Massachusetts from the danger of carbon monoxide gas and to prevent carbon monoxide related deaths and injuries.

The Official Website of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Public Safety and Security states the following:

"For buildings with fossil-fuel burning equipment or enclosed parking areas, the new regulations require carbon monoxide detectors on every level of the home and within ten feet of each sleeping area and in habitable portions of basements and attics.

"Whichever alarm you purchase must be approved by an independent testing laboratory such as Underwriter's Laboratory (UL). Be sure to look for the approval label when buying alarms. The CO detectors may be: Battery operated with battery monitoring; or Plug-ins with battery backup; or Hard-wired with battery backup; or Low voltage system; or Wireless, or Qualified combination (smoke/carbon monoxide alarm).

"Acceptable combination smoke detectors and carbon monoxide alarms must have simulated voice and tone alarms that clearly distinguish between the two types of emergencies. The State Building Code mandates that only photoelectric combination alarms are permitted within twenty feet of a bathroom or kitchen."

The Quincy Fire Department has responded to numerous high levels of carbon monoxide due to people using their stoves or ovens to stay warm. This is an extremely dangerous and potentially life threatening way to stay warm.

We ask Quincy residents to never use ovens or stoves to heat their home as this poses serious risks of carbon monoxide poisoning and fire dangers as well. We advise citizens to never leave a space heater unattended and keep space heaters away from all combustible materials.

If there are citizens in Quincy who are having a hard time paying for winter heating bills, the Quincy Fire Department recommends contacting Quincy Community Action Programs' Fuel Assistance Program at 617-479-8181 x301 or www.qcap.org. QCAP administers the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LiHEAP) for the towns of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, and Milton.

QCAP can also conduct a home energy efficiency audit of your home to reduce your heating and energy expenses.

The Quincy Fire Department is dedicated to keeping the citizens of Quincy safe. If you have a questions or concerns whatsoever, please do not hesitate to call our fire prevention office at 617-376-1015.

Bed Bugs Infestation At O'Brien Towers

over a three week period.

"A1 suggested bringing in the dogs," said Lydon, because of their acute sense of smell which can detect infestations easily missed by the human eye.

The housing authority will have to go out to bid immediately for the project contract as a cost-cutting measure because "project costs are going through the roof," he said.

The original $100,000 cost of detecting and eliminating the bed bugs has gone up two, and possibly even threefold, he added.

Chemical extermination will begin Monday however the authority has opted out of heat treatment options due to cost.

The cost of bed bug management is being covered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Tenants have been directed to clear clutter from their units so that all infestations can be easily detected and eliminated.

This preliminary cleaning and decluttering step is especially important in the case of hoarders whose belongings may prevent bed bug hot spots from being adequately treated.

Residents will also be instructed to wash and dry all comforters, sheets, pillowcases, and other fabric items in their homes at a high heat as this can kill bed bugs.

They can also be eliminated by being vacuumed up.

Lydon said residents will be asked to tightly wrap and seal personal belongings prior to chemical extermination.

Bed bugs are notoriously difficult to exterminate. The bloodsucking parasites are easily carried from one home to another on a person's clothing, shoes, or personal items and can leave red welts behind after they feed on a human host.

They don't spread disease however their bites are itchy and unsightly.

Bed bugs commonly infest sofas and mattresses.

Judy Morris, elderly and disabled service coordinator for the authority, will be contacting a company that specializes in assisting the elderly and disabled with preparing their apartments and belongings for bed bug screenings and eradication, said Lydon.

At a meeting regarding bed bug prevention several months ago, Morris suggested residents not enter homes with a known infestation and to contact the authority immediately if they suspect they have bed bugs.

Lydon said that in the past year occasional complaints of bed bugs have come up at other QHA properties but the most serious and persistent infestation is at O'Brien Towers.

The bed bug sniffing Beagles will be brought in again in one month to check for possible reinfestation.

130 Participate In QHS Science, Technology Fair

10 Students Move On To Regionals

Over 130 students presented to approximately 300 spectators at the eighth annual Quincy High School STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) Fair held Feb. 25.

The event featured 115 projects from grades 9-12 and spanned fields of biology, chemistry, environmental science, physics, and engineering. Students worked individually or as a team to investigate topics such as probiotics, nutrition, alternative energy, and innovative building materials.

The in-depth project work has helped build career and life skills for success in 21st century careers, such as critical and creative thinking, communication, teamwork, and ethical decision-making. Quincy High School students work one-on-one with teachers and professionals year round to follow their natural curiosity and explore "real world" science and engineering problems.

Much of the science fair's success is due to over eighty community volunteers from science and technology fields donating their time to mentor and judge projects. Each project was assessed at three times by academic and student judges. Project scores were then tallied and weighting based on scientific approach, creativity, understanding, and presentation.

Each year Quincy High School shows a great diversity of projects and the student's enthusiasm carries the evening as they get to celebrate their accomplishments with the community. One volunteer said the best part of the evening is seeing how proud the students are of their work. They are dressed professionally, introduce themselves properly, and speak passionately about their project to judges. These are great students participating in a fabulous real-world training.

2015 Quincy High School STEM Fair Winners:

- 1st Prize: Leanne Gough, Grade 10: The Effect of Added Quantities of Macromolecules and Freeze Away Chemical Spray on Benign Tumor Growth With Initial Testing on Epidermal Keratinocytes
- 2nd Prize: Megi Maci, Grade 11: The Effects of Monosodium Glutamate (MSG) on Brine Shrimp
- 3rd Prize: Rachel Shen, Grade 9: Water Cultured Hydroponic Lettuce

2015 Honorable Mention

- Rachael Zisk, Grade 10: Assessing the Effect of Artificial Sweeteners on Daphnia
- Kalima Bukenya, Grade 11: Build A Water Bio-Filtration System
- Junbong Jang & Kyle Vo, Grade11: Defense against EMP
- Luke Marcheski, Grade 10: The Wind Turbine Car Part Four
- Minhthu Nguyen, Grade 10: Efficiency of Solar Cells
- Manal Khan, Grade 11: Isolation of Lactose in Milk
- Grace Baker, Grade 11: Detecting pollutant ZNPO4 with V. fischeri bacteria using the Kirby-Bauer disk diffusion susceptibility test

On Saturday, March 14th the top Quincy High School projects will compete at the South Shore Regional Science Fair held at Bridgewater State University.

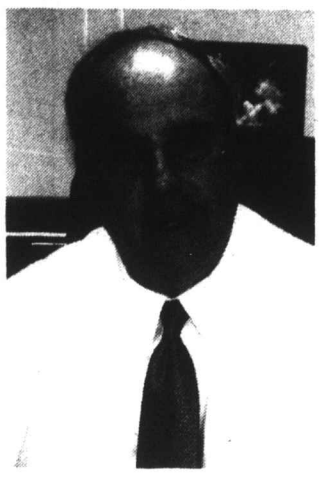
Dave McCarthy Candidate For Councillor At-Large

Dave McCarthy, a three-term member of the Quincy School Committee, will be seeking the open councillor at-large seat on the Quincy City Council this fall.

McCarthy has spent over a decade on the Quincy School Committee and said it is time to make a change and see if he can help the city of Quincy in all areas citywide. The seat is opening because Councillor Doug Gutro is running for mayor this fall.

"I'm excited about getting going and looking forward to a busy summer," McCarthy said. "The last 11 years on the committee have been very busy and very productive. I've enjoyed helping the Quincy Public Schools. We have accomplished a tremendous amount of educational progress to make the school system one of the best overall systems in the Commonwealth."

McCarthy was elected in 2003 and re-elected in 2007 and 2011. He served as vice chairman from 2008-2010.



DAVE McCARTHY

He also is a past member of the Quincy Park/ Recreation Board during his tenure on the committee.

After his election in 2003, McCarthy was appointed chairman of the Health, Safety, and Security subcommittee. As an advocate and career professional in the security/safety field, he helped institute citywide security policies and procedures, lobbied for additional security personnel to be added to the system, and implemented the popular "School Messenger" system, now Honeywell Instant Alert, which broadens communication announcements with high school, middle school and elementary parents.

"We are a leading city and school system in regards to safety and security," McCarthy said.

In addition he worked with the school system on a new Health Curriculum for 6th, 7th, and 8th grade levels citywide, assisted the high school principals on the re-implementation of identification badges, coordinated new alarm systems for both high schools, and enhanced all around awareness and knowledge of today's secure environment. He also championed the creation of the High School level Health/Life Intervention program that works closely with the Mayor's Drug Task force and has led the push through outside assistance for Alcohol/Drug addiction awareness in the system.

"The drug problem is here and we can't just hope it goes away," McCarthy said.

"It's a horrific problem that is evident throughout the commonwealth and the nation. It needs attention all the time. We must continue to try to find ways to assist those that need help and guidance. I have been to too many wakes/situations where someone who is 25 years old or younger is gone or on a non-stop course to that ending. That should never happen," he said.

Over the last 11 years, McCarthy has served on a variety of subcommittees within the School Committee. He has been the chairman of the Facilities/Building Needs subcommittee for the last four years and has played a pivotal role on the committee in the construction of the new Quincy High School and new Central Middle School.

"The finalization of Quincy High School was very exciting," McCarthy said. "The new school has brought Quincy to the next level as a state-of-the-art facility and an academic leader on the South Shore. Central Middle School which is now opened and operating gives Quincy another educational advantage as it's a tremendous learning facility.

"I think the families of Quincy are very pleased with the Central Middle School and the 80 percent reimbursement from the state is always a welcomed plus to the City. Next up is Sterling Middle School. Already in the MSBA system for approval, Sterling will be another reason to live in Quincy and get a great education in a superb atmosphere."

McCarthy served as the chairman of the Budget and Finance subcommittee for two years and sat on the Policy committee as well. He has made it a point to work closely with the administration and the superintendent to ensure all budget options and policy decisions are reviewed in depth.

"The financial landscape of the school system is a focal point for the city and it must be kept in a healthy state," McCarthy said. "Its healthy status dictates numerous items citywide. Folks who move into any city ask two questions: How's the neighborhood and how's the school system? The management of the budget is the key to a balanced productive school system. The superintendent and his staff manage our expenses very well," he said.

As an advocate of Special Needs, McCarthy is a member of the Special Education subcommittee and has been on this subcommittee for all three terms.

"The Quincy Public School's Special Education department does a tremendous job with all levels of the program," McCarthy said. "This special group of children are wonderful. I will never forget them and work as hard as I can to get what families need. Quincy does a superb job working with these families in trying to get the resources they need. We always need to be focused as a team to ensure success in this very important area of life for families that need resources."

McCarthy says he is focused on a city-wide run for councillor.

"The issues facing most municipalities of our size are similar. I think the current and past administrations during my years in public service have moved the ball well, but issues need closure and we have our fair share.

"It's no secret that the downtown is number one. If elected it no doubt will be the biggest issue to solve both financially and the execution must be accomplished correctly. When I say execute correctly my thoughts are to work with administration on the plan that causes the least amount of disruption, protects the citizens of Quincy's interest and is financially solid.

"It's all easier said than done but the downtown needs a face-lift. No disrespect to the merchants in Quincy Center but we must continue to revitalize that area," he said.

The second issue that stands out, McCarthy said, is the communication with the administration, whomever that is.

"Making sure matters get significant review time on large and small projects, addressing the issues in a timely fashion and making sure the correct approach is met. I've noticed many times that information is not supplied by one side and pursuit of the information is not pursued by the other side.

"There are many other day to day issues that can't be ignored as we focus on big issues in the city. All issues and all concerns need to be heard and addressed."

If elected councillor at-large, McCarthy said he would be involved in all aspects of city government.

"The education system, public safety, public works, veterans services and all which have been supported immensely must continue to be maintained and sustained. All departments need good annual budget and program reviews which go on and must go on.

"Fairness and proper protocol with labor must be addressed, it all works when we work together," he continued. "Labor must be involved in the city, be at the table and participate with the administration. We can agree to disagree but we need to have that chance to sit down with all parties involved in any work conducted in the city and talk.

"The Labor unions both city departments and outside labor discussions should and will occur all the time. When proper deliberations occur all parties on both sides are treated fairly."

McCarthy described the next few years as "very critical" to the city's future.

"I promise to work very hard on all matters within the city and capitalize on every opportunity available. The major projects that will be ongoing will impact the city. Public safety, public works, education and veteran support will be matters that I hope to strengthen. As new programs, projects, and facilities are orchestrated in Quincy stability is needed to ensure success in all departments," McCarthy said.

"Effectiveness on the Quincy City Council at-large means to be involved citywide," he said. "I pride myself on being involved, active and responsive. Quincy is a diverse community with a tremendous foundation second to none. My involvement will be to build on that foundation. Quincy is poised to be more vibrant and attractive than it is today. Positioned as we all know close to Boston, but close to most vacation spots north and south, Quincy is a city that can blossom even more in many positive ways.

"I ask for your support this summer and eventually this fall as I run for the Quincy City Council. I feel I can help this city at all levels."

McCarthy currently sits on the Board of Directors for South Shore Mental Health as well as the Board of Trustees for the Carroll School for the Blind.

He is the Director of Industrial Security at General Dynamics in Needham where he has been for over 30 years.

McCarthy and his wife, Rosanne (Johnson), have been married for almost 30 years. They have eight children, ages ranging from 23 to 9 and are proud to call Quincy their home.

"I am honored to represent Quincy and look forward to speaking with many constituents this summer as I work towards election to the Quincy City Council."

McCarthy and his campaign supporters will hold an organizational fundraiser later this month to address city issues and campaign discussions.

Quincy Choral Society Spring Concert Sunday

The Quincy Choral Society will hold its spring concert Sunday, March 15 at the Quincy Catholic Academy Auditorium (formerly known as The Sacred Heart School), 370 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The concert will feature the music of George Gershwin, Duke Ellington, and Jimmy Van Heusen.

The afternoon includes a silent auction and bake sale to benefit the chorus. Auction bidding begins at 1:15 p.m.

The program, "Swingin' into Spring!" begins at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $5 and will be available at the door.

The Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. Members sing with music in their hearts, performing diverse, professional quality programs designed to entertain, enlighten, and enrich the human spirit.

The chorus regularly performs locally, has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., and in Europe, and has been invited to perform at Carnegie Hall in June 2015 as part of the Masterworks Series.

Maestro John Nichols was named music director of the Quincy Choral Society in 1988. Nichols has been involved with the musical life of Greater Boston for more than 35 years as a conductor, composer, arranger, performer, adjudicator, and educator. Virginia "Gingy" Grimes has been the accompanist for the Quincy Choral Society since 1993.

Grimes received her piano accompaniment degree from Duke University and accompanies various ensembles and soloists throughout the Boston area.

For more information about this and future concerts, visit quincychoral.org.

Civil War Commemoration Service April 12 At Quincy Community United Methodist

This year marks the 150th anniversary of the end of the Civil War and to honor this historic milestone, Quincy Community United Methodist Church will hold a commemorative service on Sunday, April 12, at 10:30 a.m.

The service will feature hymns once sung by Civil War soldiers as well as songs of hope and freedom, which originated in slavery. A coffee hour will follow.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is conveniently located diagonally from the Wollaston T station, and is fully handicapped accessible. A handicapped entrance is located in the front, the door closest to the flagpole. For more information please call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Squantum PTO Offering Four Scholarships

Squantum School Parent Teacher Organization is offering four scholarships this year to be awarded to graduating seniors who attended the Squantum School.

The scholarships include:

Two $250 Squantum School PTO scholarships available: one male and one female recipient.

Two $100 Virginia Marie Whalen Memorial Scholarships, in memory of Virginia Whalen who worked as a lunch matron at the school for 30 years.

Application forms are available in the guidance offices at North Quincy High School and Quincy High School. Applicants can also pick up applications in the Squantum School office.

Applications must be completed and returned to the Squantum School on or before April 17th. Winners will be chosen by lottery drawing under the direction of the Squantum School PTO.

Quincy Kiwanis Club Leaves Legacy Of Service

Quincy was "born" just nine years after the service organization's first club was established in Detroit, MI in 1915. Quincy Kiwanis's application for a charter was accepted on March 24, 1924. A month later on April 23, 1924, the Quincy club received its charter.

The idea for a club was conceived by a group of young men who were members of the Quincy YMCA who sought an opportunity to be of greater service to their community. Prominent among these founding members were Arthur Burgess, Frank Foy, Lawrence Lyons, F. Warren Crane, J. Sumner Swingle, Guy W. Shaw, William Hibbett and Dr. William Michael.

Kiwanis, for those who don't know, is an acronym and stands for "Kiwanis Is Where A Need Is Served."

And over these past 90-plus years, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy served this community and served it well.

Dedicated members raised money through such efforts as golf tournaments, bowling tournaments, hockey tournaments and other initiatives. Charitable dollars were earmarked for a wide range of worthy projects and needs but most of the money focused on one demographic: young children.

One of the club's main initiatives during the 1980s and 1990s was raising money for the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute at the New England Medical Center in Boston. Members who donated $1,000 to the institute received a "red jacket" symbolizing their commitment to young children who require special equipment and devices as trauma victims.

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy had raised and donated the most money to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute. Kiwanis leaders from the New England District have remarked that the institute was essentially "built" by caring and generous Quincy Kiwanians.

"Since 1981, our support of the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute in Boston has been a remarkable testimony to the spirit of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy," said Richard T. Sweeney, Jr., a 39-year club member and a distinguished past president.

"The Pediatric Trauma Institute at the New England Medical Center was the pioneer in the treatment of young trauma victims. Quincy Kiwanis, as a club and as individuals, rallied to endorse this specialized area of pediatric medicine and to this day we are recognized as the most financially supportive club in the New England District," Sweeney added.

The club has been very responsive to the needs of local children, too. Working with the Quincy Public School system, children lacking some of life's most basic necessities (clothing, food, shelter) have benefited from the club's generosity. These needs could simply be some winter clothing like a pair of mittens and warm hat. Kiwanis has been there to help fill the cracks when subsidies don't go far enough for families who are really down on their luck.

We've also helped hundreds of local students go on and attend college through the club's scholarship funds.

Financial assistance has also been extended to children who desire to attend summer camp and have helped support Special Olympics. One year, the club purchased a specially built bicycle for a handicapped Quincy child.

Quincy Kiwanis has also supported a long list of local charitable organizations including Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, youth sports teams, Salvation Army, Red Cross, Cerebral Palsy, Fr. Bill's Place and so many more.

The reach of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has also extended far beyond the city. The club was a generous supporter of an initiative to eradicate Iodine Deficiency – one of the leading causes of preventable mental handicaps – around the globe.

And the club's generosity was the hallmark at its final luncheon held March 4 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. Checks representing a total of $74,000 were distributed to such groups as Maria Droste Services, DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), and Quincy Public School Special Education.

While fundraising and serving the community brought us together in purpose, it was friendship that bonded us through the years. Personally – and I probably speak for many other Kiwanians – getting to know fellow members was an experience I'll always cherish.

And there are many members who left an indelible mark and I'll never forget because of their kindness. Members like the late Arden Schofield who made sure we all sang in earnest whenever he led us on the piano in "God Bless America."

Arden, a proud World War II Army veteran who served in the 106th Infantry Division, was an Ex-POW. He was captured during the "Battle of the Bulge." He epitomized "The Greatest Generation" and was the

ONE OF THE signature events for the Kiwanis Club of Quincy was an annual youth hockey tournament held at the Quincy Youth Arena. The tournament attracted thousands of youngsters from the city and region as well as nationally and internationally.

IN RECENT YEARS, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy sponsored a Junior Heroes ceremony. Youngsters from local schools at all grade levels were recognized for their good deeds to their school community and other service initiatives.

Both have written books about their inspirational story. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

WHILE THEY BELIEVED their son's first words would be either "hi mom" or "hi dad," Rick Hoyt surprised his parents when he communicated "Go Bruins" using a special computer for the first time.

The diagnosis left him unable to speak and without use of his arms or legs.

At eight-months-old, Rick saw various doctors who all delivered the same bad news to Dick and Judy.

"We took Rick to the specialist and they did all kinds of tests and the tests came back and they were very negative," said Dick. "They said 'forget Rick, put him away, put him in an institution, he's going to be nothing but a vegetable for the rest of his life.'

"Today, Rick is 53 years old and we still haven't figured out what kind of vegetable he is," he joked.

While Dick is able to make light of those words now, at the time of his son's diagnosis, he and his wife were devastated.

"On our way home from that doctor's appointment, Rick's mother and I, we cried," he said.

The crying led to a discussion about their son's future and how to best integrate him with kids his age without physical disabilities.

"We're going to bring Rick home and we're going to bring him up like any other child," Dick told his wife. "And that's what we've done."

Rick's parents were certain that his disability limited only the use of his body but not his mind.

"We tried to get him in public school and they said 'no, he doesn't understand and won't be able to learn,'" recalled Dick.

Determined to prove the school administrators wrong, the Hoyts contacted a team of engineers at Tufts University in 1972 and commissioned them to build a $5,000 computer which would allow Rick to communicate by tapping his head against a headpiece attached to his wheelchair.

Rick's mother insisted her son's first words would be "hi mom" while Dick was certain they would be "hi dad."

His first words using the computer were instead "Go Bruins!"

"We knew right then and there that he understood everything that was going on and he loved sports," said Dick.

Armed with his new communication device, Rick went back to be interviewed by the school administrators who had not long before denied him entry into public school. He answered their questions correctly and, as Dick said, "they had no choice" but to admit him.

Rick finally attended high school in 1975 at the age of 13, graduated, and moved on to receive his degree in special education from Boston University.

It was in 1977 that Dick and Rick participated in their first race.

At the time, Dick was 40-years-old and had no training as a marathon runner. He jogged one mile, three days a week as a way to maintain his weight but was in no shape to complete a race, especially while pushing his son's wheelchair that was not built to accommodate long-distance runs.

The former Lt. Colonel who was with the Air National Guard for 37 years decided to participate in the five-mile run to benefit a lacrosse player who had been paralyzed in a car accident at the urging of his son.

"He said 'dad, I want to do something for him," said Dick. 'I want to let him know life goes on even though he's paralyzed. I want to run in the race.'

"Everybody thought that we would just go to the corner and turn around and come back," he said. "Well, we didn't. We finished the whole five miles coming in next to last but not last!"

After returning home from the race, Rick used his computer and typed out the message that would inspire his father to continue running.

"Dad, when I'm running it feels like my disability disappears," it read.

"[Rick] called himself free bird. Now he was free and able to be out there competing and running with everybody else," said Dick.

Following their first race, the duo traveled to New Hampshire to meet with an engineer who designed a marathon-worthy wheelchair that they called a "running chair."

They competed in marathons throughout Massachusetts but had their sights set on running and completing the Boston Marathon in 1981.

There was, however, a problem. Their application was rejected by the Boston Athletic Association (BAA).

Marathon Tandem Dick, Rick Hoyt: 'Yes You Can'

"They said 'no, you can't run with us because you're different from everybody else,'" said Dick.

They were even denied entry into the wheelchair division because contestants at the time were required to propel their wheelchairs under their own power.

Despite this, they were allowed to line up behind registered competitors and completed the marathon as unregistered runners.

They finished in three hours and eighteen minutes, beating 85 percent of all other runners, said Dick.

After their impressive performance, the BAA continued to deny the Hoyt's official entry to the Boston Marathon because the duo failed to complete a race within a specific qualifying time.

Dick was 40 and Rick was 20. To officially compete, Dick had to complete a marathon in under two hours and fifty minutes — the qualifying time for a 20-year-old.

"That was their way they thought of getting rid of us," he said. "They said 'there's no way a 40-year-old man can push his 20-year-old son in a wheelchair and run under two hours and fifty minutes.'"

That fall, the pair traveled to Washington, D.C., and competed in the Marine Corps Marathon — also called "The People's Marathon" — a race with no qualification restrictions.

They finished in two hours, forty-five minutes, and twenty-three seconds, qualifying them for the Boston Marathon.

They could no longer be denied official entry.

In 1985, Dick and Rick tackled their first triathlon after nine months of intense training.

Dick didn't know how to swim and hadn't ridden a bike since the age of six.

He was looking to buy a new home at the time and decided to settle in Holland, Mass., right by the Hamilton Reservoir.

"I'll never forget the first day I went down to jump into that lake. Guess what happened? I sunk," said Dick.

He could only swim 15 feet.

Every day after work while the weather was still warm he would get in the water and push himself to swim a few more feet than the day before. During the winter he joined the YMCA and continued to improve on his swimming skills.

They finished their first triathlon coming in next to last "but not last," he emphasized.

The self proclaimed "triathlon freaks" have competed in over 280 triathlons since.

Rick is the first disabled person in the world to ever compete and complete an Ironman triathlon and "because of his efforts they now have a physically challenged division," said Dick.

In 1992, they made their way 3,770 miles in 45 days across the country without taking a day off.

"Other people that had done it, they did it by themselves; they said that was impossible," he said.

They completed their cross-country trek and without skipping a beat and went the following day to Vermont to compete in a triathlon.

The duo's best time for completing a marathon was recorded during the Marine Corps Marathon in 1992.

They clocked in at two hours, forty minutes, and forty-nine seconds.

Dick took time during his presentation to reflect on the Boston Marathon bombings in 2013.

"We had a really good run in 2013 but I noticed a lot more activity at the 22-mile marker so I noticed a lot more police there," he said.

After asking an officer what had happened, he learned of the two bombs that exploded at and near the finish line.

He and his son were unable to continue the race and vowed to return in 2014 along with the Hoyt Foundation Boston Marathon team.

It was their 32nd and last Boston Marathon.

Dick and Rick will continue competing in about 20 shorter races and triathlons yearly however Rick will now run the Boston Marathon with the help of Bryan Lyons, a Hoyt Foundation member.

Formed in 1989, The Hoyt Foundation is a non-profit organization that provides inspiration to disabled youth, encouraging them to become active members of their community.

More than anything, Dick said he wanted to see the marathon bombing trial come to an end quickly.

"This trial that's going on, I just don't like what's going on. I'm not for all this time they took to get all these lawyers and everything that's going on, it really bothers me," he said. "I hope it wraps up quickly and they don't drag it out."

Dick said that people with and without disabled family members often approach him and tell him their own stories of hardship.

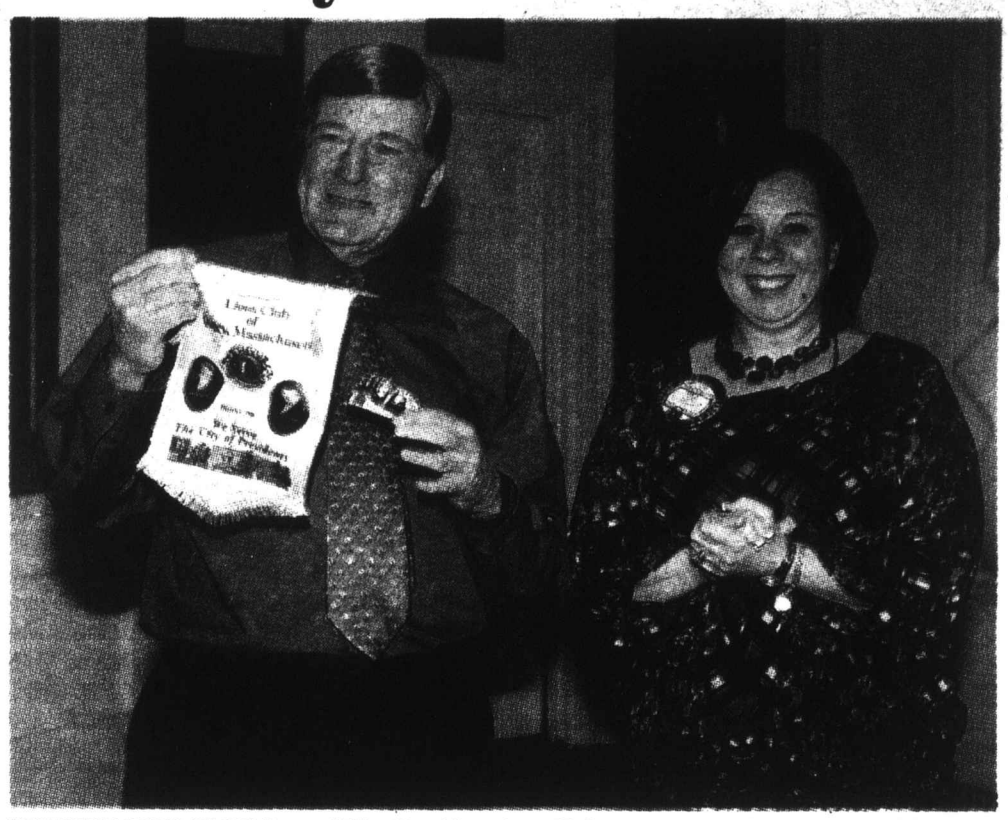
"A lot of people come up to me after I speak and they say 'I'm going home now and hugging my kids,' so it's very powerful," he said.

Lion's Club member Sean Glennon said he was moved by Dick's words.

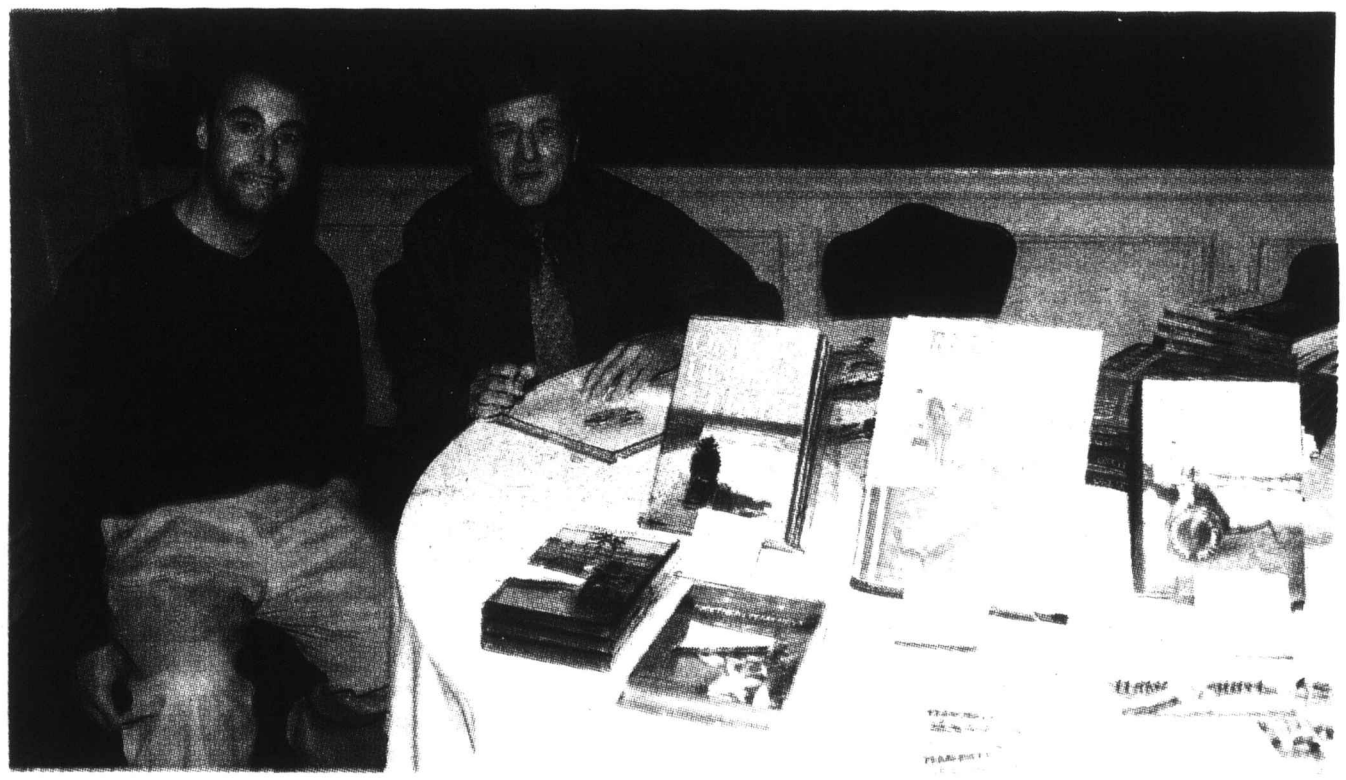
"I've never really known the backstory...I never realized it was the son who actually wanted to do it. It's just amazing," he said. "I'm in awe of the whole thing."

"We've been able to break down a lot of barriers along the way," said Dick. "There isn't anything you can't do as long as you make up your mind to do it."

"There's no such word as 'can't' in the Hoyt vocabulary," he said. "Our message is 'yes you can' and we've been using that for 35 years now."



QUINCY LIONS CLUB Second Vice President Amy Huber presents a club banner to Dick Hoyt after speaking at a club luncheon March 5 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Hoyt also received a small Lions statue as a token of appreciation from the club.



AFTER THE LUNCHEON, Dick Hoyt signed copies of books that he and his son Rick have written. Here Dick signs a copy of one of the books to Joe Daley of Weymouth. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

South Shore YMCA Partners With National Inclusion Project

Offering Summer Camps In Quincy, 2 Other Towns

The South Shore YMCA has partnered with the National Inclusion Project to implement Let's ALL Play—Inclusion in its Day Camp programs at Camp Gordon Clark in Hanover, Quincy Summer Day Camp at Eastern Nazarene College, and Nature Adventures Day Camp at the South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell.

The partnership allows children with disabilities to enjoy successful recreational experiences in a more inclusive setting at camp. As part of this initiative, the National Inclusion Project provides a program model, funding, specialized staff training and ongoing support to accommodate campers who may benefit from more positive behavior techniques and social skills coaching.

The South Shore YMCA is one of the select organizations throughout the country that the National Inclusion Project has chosen to partner with this year.

"We believe our partnership with South Shore YMCA will get us one step closer to making the inclusion of children with disabilities the expectation and not the exception," said Jerry Aiken, National Inclusion Project Executive Director.

Last summer, the South Shore Y partnered with National Inclusion Project to pilot Inclusion Camp offerings at Camp Gordon Clark in Hanover. With the support of a Behavior Specialist, a position made possible through the National Inclusion Project grant, Camp Gordon Clark was been able to offer two levels of inclusive camp opportunities last summer.

For the duration of the camp season, an inclusive Traditional Day Camp was offered with supports for children ages 3-15 with autism, ADHD, sensory processing disorder or learning disabilities to participate and benefit from the full camp experience. A one-week Sensory Smart Camp was also offered for campers ages 5-12 years who wanted the traditional camp experience but would benefit from lower staff ratios, additional supports and shorter days. During the week, campers took part in traditional camp activities as well as specialized social thinking instruction and sensory diet opportunities.

Following the success of Inclusion Camp at the Y's Hanover Day Camp location, the South Shore Y looks forward to expanding Inclusion Camp offerings at both its Quincy Summer Day Camp and Nature Adventures Day Camp in Summer 2015.

For more information on South Shore YMCA Inclusion programming, contact Lisa Drennan, Association Director of Inclusion, at ldrennan@ssymca.org or visit ssymca.org.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

SENIORS' DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE!

If you are an older person with mobility issues, you should know that it is never too late to reduce your risk of becoming disabled. According to the largest and longest running study of its kind, which involved 1,635 sedentary men and women ages 70 to 89, taking up exercise significantly reduced their chances of becoming disabled. Not only did simple exercise, such as walking, reduce their short-term, acute disability risk, but it also reduced their long-term risk of chronic disability. This study confirms that adopting exercise even at an advanced age helps older men and women preserve their independence. The chiropractor can help by removing obstacles to exercise, such as painful joints, contracted muscles, and compromised nerve activity. Our mission is to improve the quality of your life. At Family Practice of Chiropractic, we strive to have our patients reach their fullest innate potential. We work to restore your health and guide you in a personalized approach to overall wellness. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Let us help you live life without pain. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. The study mentioned above shows that even those who belatedly adopt a more healthful lifestyle can regain previously lost muscle mass and stave off frailty.

Grace Geary Named 'Litttle East' Conference Rookie Of The Year

After enjoying their best season in the 34-year history of the program, UMass Boston women's basketball placed a program-record three players on the Little East Conference All-Conference Team.

Freshman guard and Falmouth native Grace Geary - who capped her outstanding high school basketball career as a senior at North Quincy High School – became the third player in four years, and fifth player in program history to earn the Little East Conference Rookie of the Year Award.

Junior Olivia Murphy of Canton picked up her second-straight First Team All-Conference selection, while Geary and senior Kirsten Morrison (North Reading) each were picked for the Second Team. Geary was also named as one of the five players on the LEC All-Rookie Team.

The last time the Beacons had two players picked to an All-Conference Team was 1995, when the conference's coaches were still picking an Honorable Mention All-Conference Team, in addition to the First and Second Teams. UMass Boston led the Little East with their three All-Conference players, while UMass Dartmouth and Keene State each placed two players on the top two teams.

GRACE GEARY

Geary joins Morrison and Murphy as Rookie of the Year Award winners, after dominating the circuit in her first year with the Beacons. Geary finished in the top five of the conference in seven different categories, including leading the Beacons in scoring (14.1 ppg), assists (3.7 apg), steals (2.4 spg), assist-to-turnover ratio (1.4) and made 3-point field goals (51). With two-thirds of the Beacons backcourt departing after last season, Geary earned 19 starts in 25 appearances and finished third on the team with her 29.6 minutes per game. She finished third in the conference in 3-point field goal percentage (36.7) and also in free-throw percentage (80.8 percent).

The four-time LEC Rookie of the Week award-winner finished in double-digits 18 times and recorded 20 or more points on five occasions. She was at her best against the Little East Regular Season Co-Champions. In two games against UMass Dartmouth, Geary torched the Corsairs for 24.5 points per game, to go along with her 12 rebounds and 11 assists. She was nearly as good against LEC Tournament Champion Eastern Connecticut State University, as she averaged 16.5 points and chipped in nine rebounds and eight assists. In helping the Beacons to their first-ever LEC Title Game appearance, Geary averaged 15.3 points, 4.3 rebounds and 3.7 assists in three contests.

Fitzy-Nolan Games Showcase City's Basketball Roots

13th Annual Event At QHS March 20

By BILL GRIFFIN

Quincy's basketball roots run strong and deep.

They begin with the golden days of hoop in the 1960s and trace their way to the brilliant basketball the city has seen for the past three years. They touch the best of amateur, prep school, Division 1 college, the NBA, and also grace the international stage.

There will be memories and stories and laughter about all this plus a fine night of basketball at the 13th annual Fitzy-Nolan Games at Quincy High school Friday, March 20 beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The games are held in honor of North Quincy coach Bob "Knobby Nolan" and former Quincy High star and Boston State coach Paul Fitzpatrick. Nolan coached North from 1965-1977 and compiled a 153-63 record. His teams won five Greater Boston league titles, including the 1972 team which went undefeated before losing in the old Boston Garden to Catholic Memorial in the sectional finals.

Fitzpatrick was a point guard on the 1966 Quincy team which included Paul Beston and Jim Rendle and advanced in the old Tech Tourney in the Garden. He played for ex-Celtics star Jim Loscutoff at Boston State. Fitzpatrick later coached Boston State to the NCAA Division 3 National Tournament in 1977.

"The big reason to hold the games in Quincy is keep the memories of those two men alive," said Leo Papile who played for coach Nolan, graduated from North in 1971 and went on to a storybook basketball career which reached from Quincy to distant countries and back to Quincy again for these games.

This is the second year the games have been held in Quincy. They were started at Mount Ida College by coach Rico Cabral in 2002 after Fitzpatrick's death. Fitzpatrick had worked as an assistant at Mount Ida. Nolan's name was added to the games when he died in 2008. Papile brought the games to Quincy last year, and he promises to keep them here as long he is above ground and breathing.

"They were Quincy icons. They were known by their nicknames," said Nolan "All you had to say was Fitzy or Knobby, and everyone knew who you were talking about. Fitzy was a competitor like a pit bull. He was like 5'6" and he'd take your head off.

"Knobby was from the Greatest Generation. He cared about doing things the right way and getting kids into college as much as he did about winning games."

Papile founded the Boston Athletic Basketball Club in 1977. In the 6:30 game, the BABC sophomore team will play a select team of high-school juniors from the south district. At 7:45, the BABC juniors will play a select team of seniors from the south district.

Quincy's sharpshooter Drew Myers was voted onto the South senior squad. North Quincy's Solomon Umoren and Quincy's James Lam were named by North Quincy coach Kevin Barrett and Quincy coach Dave Parry to play on the team. Quincy native and BC High star Jack Loughnane will play for the BABC juniors.

Parry will coach the South senior squad. Barrett and North graduate George Ruggierio, who survived a near-fatal car accident two years ago and has had a Hall of Fame coaching career at Medfield and Cohasset, will lead the South junior team.

"It should be a great night. Fans will have a chance to see Quincy kids play against elite competition, against kids who will be scholarship players for Division 1 schools," said Papile.

Papile has coached the junior BABC team for 38 years. His daughter Britney is now director of the program. The BABC has won 17 national championships, played in 28 title games, made the final four 44 times, and produced 248 Division 1 college and 19 NBA players.

The NBA list includes Phil Pressey of the Celtics, Nerlens Noel of the 76ers and last year's Rookie of the Year Michael Carter Williams. The BABC is the best of the best.

"The games Friday night work out well. It's the end of the high school season and the beginning of our season. We'll go on and play throughout the summer," said Papile.

Proceeds from the game will go to help send Quincy kids to summer basketball camps which was something Fitzpatrick and Nolan both cared about deeply.

"Last year we were able to raise money for four full scholarships and a partial scholarship for kids from Quincy and North to the Hoop Mountain camp at Roger Williams College in Rhode Island. It is one of the elite camps in the country,"

Quincy Kiwanis Club Leaves Legacy Of Service

perfect Kiwanis ambassador who always had a smile on his face and a twinkle in his eye.

There were other members who were unforgettable. Like the late Al Kelly who was the heart and soul of our "Young Children Priority One" initiative for many years.

And Aldo Saluti who invited me to my first meeting. Aldo and his wife, Sally, were terrific and devoted and gave much of their time to the club and other Kiwanis activities and traveled extensively throughout New England representing the club at various functions and conventions.

"Being a member of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has been an important and meaningful part of my life," Sweeney said in capturing the sentiment of so many Quincy Kiwanians.

"The focus of Kiwanis is about being of service to our community and especially to assist underprivileged children. It is also about the enduring friendships that have been created with others who share the same desire to promote the ideals and good will that Kiwanis stands for," Sweeney said.

As a young man, Sweeney was fortunate to have met former Quincy Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, one of the original charter members of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy. He had the opportunity to visit and speak with the former mayor many times.

"He spoke about the early days of Quincy Kiwanis and what it meant to the founding members. He gave me his 55-year Legion of Honor Past President pin and other memorabilia which was presented to the Quincy Historical Society," Sweeney recalled.

For Sweeney and many Quincy Kiwanians, the club was much more than service. It was about social activities and friendships.

"Through Kiwanis, we have been able to develop strong friendships and bonds with people we may have never otherwise met. It has been a very rewarding experience working on various projects and fund raising events, attending club members, interclub meetings and district functions, all for the common goal of helping needy children," Sweeney pointed out. "In addition, there was the camaraderie of Installation Nights, Ladies Nights and clambakes in the summer at various locations.

"Kiwanis was also about family, as many of our spouses and children participated with us at hockey tournaments, Salvation Army Christmas bell ringing, Christmas Parade floats, Special Olympics and most recently at the senior breakfasts we sponsored at 1000 Southern Artery," he added.

Quincy Kiwanis also paved the way to serve the organization at the division, district and international levels. Some of us attended international conventions and gathered a full appreciation of what Kiwanis is all about. And we made other friendships along the way.

There are memories for all of us. Like seeing the excitement on kids' faces as they got ready to take to the ice at one of our hockey tournaments.

Some youngsters were just happy to be there. I remember one kid who glanced over at two tables of trophies displayed inside the rink near the gate to the ice. One of them asked why were there so many? A Kiwanian replied that both the winning team and runner-ups would receive trophies. The kid then looked at one of his teammates and beamed, "You hear that? We're going to get a trophy too."

They knew they probably didn't have a chance to win the game but Kiwanis made sure they felt special just for participating.

I'll also remember the day I went to tour the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute in Boston. It was Saturday, July 16, 1999. It happened to be the same day that John F. Kennedy Jr.'s plane was reported missing off of Martha's Vineyard. But before the news of that tragic day unfolded, there were nurses and doctors who escorted the Kiwanians throughout the trauma institute. We also saw children who were in beds recovering from various injuries.

The medical personnel reiterated time and again how important Kiwanis and its fundraising has meant to their success in saving children's lives. They were tremendously grateful for all that Quincy Kiwanis and other Kiwanis clubs have done to advance pediatric trauma emergency response and medicine over the years.

Now, 91 years since its founding, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy will be remembered for the same reason it has been existence all these decades.

Service to the community.

Sweeney summed it up this way:

"The legacy of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy is in the spirit and memory of the hundreds of women and men who were unselfishly committed and dedicated these past 91 years to assisting underprivileged children. However, the greatest legacy of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy is in the hearts and minds of the thousands of young children and teenagers who have received camperships, scholarships, recognition, medical assistance and countless other life-changing assists.

"I have always said and will continue to say that I am proud to be a Kiwanian but especially proud to be a Quincy Kiwanian," Sweeney concluded.

This story is dedicated to every man and woman who joined the Kiwanis Club of Quincy and served its mission and this community.

With its departure as a service organization, it's the end of an era in Quincy.

We are all proud to have been a part of a wonderful organization and to help those in need during these past 91 years.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Monday, March 2, 2015, at approximately 11:24 p.m., Officers Jay Borden and David Zupkofska were dispatched to a call in the area of Southern Artery and Washington Street for a report of a disturbance. Communications informed the responding units that the male caller said that his girlfriend had punched him, then bit him in the face and fled the residence toward Washington Street.

Officer James Cassidy, who was working at a nearby detail, spotted the female in question at the Tedeschi's store on Washington Street. As he detained her, Officers arrived at the residence and interviewed the victim. He was holding his eye, appeared out of breath as he said, "She ran that way," referring to his girlfriend and pointing toward Washington Street. The victim was advised that an Officer was with her.

He stated that he was in bed watching a movie on his lap top and his girlfriend was watching TV on the couch. He said that he was just about to fall asleep when his girlfriend came in to the room intoxicated. He believed that she drank at least one bottle of wine and was being loud and obnoxious. He told her that he was trying to sleep and had to get up soon for work. He said "She flipped out" and began yelling and banging a small table causing his lap top to fall to the ground. He got up to try to calm her down and when he did this, she grabbed his cell phone and threw it at the flat screen TV on the wall, causing not only his phone case to break, but also the TV screen. The boyfriend then grabbed his phone and attempted to call the Police, but she stopped him by punching him 3-4 times on his right cheek and then closed in to his face with hers. She then bit him just over his left eye and clamped onto the skin with her teeth and tugged. He grabbed her arms and face and pushed her off. He stated that she fled and he was able to call 911.

Officer Borden went to Officer Cassidy's location to question the girlfriend as to what transpired. She stated that they were both in bed and started arguing about money. The argument escalated when she questioned him about pictures of other females on his phone. She said he became angry, so she started to get off the bed and it was at this point that he grabbed her. She punched him and then grabbed his cell phone that was on a table, and threw it at the TV causing the TV screen to break. She stated that he then grabbed her neck, held her arms and pushed her onto the couch. She bit him in an effort to try to get away from him and in return, he struck her in the head with her phone. She was able to break free and ran out of the apartment to the area of Tedeschi's.

LT. DAN MINTON

The boyfriend and girlfriend were examined by Fallon Ambulance EMTs, but refused treatment. The boyfriend had a noticeable bite mark over his left eye that appeared to break the skin. He also had a red mark on his right cheek where he stated he had been punched. The girlfriend had some redness on the right side of her neck, with some minor scratches on her cheeks and arms. There was a piece of glass or plastic in her hair from what was believed to be her cell phone, but that was never located.

While in the apartment, Officer Borden observed three near empty or empty liquor bottles (1.5 Liter Sutter Home wine, 750 ML Crane Lake wine both empty, and 750 ML Cognac 3/4 finished). The boyfriend did not appear to be intoxicated, however, the girlfriend had glassy bloodshot eyes and admitted that she had "3 glasses of wine." There was a table tipped over with a lap top on the floor in the bedroom. The TV had a large crack in the bottom left of the screen, and it appeared as though something was thrown at it. Plastic remnants of the victim's phone case were on a table below the crack in the TV.

After assessing the damage in the apartment along with statements from the boyfriend and the girlfriend, Officer Borden determined that the girlfriend, a 26 year old Boston resident, was the primary aggressor. She was placed under arrest and charged with "Assault and Battery (Domestic) and Malicious Destruction over $250.00. The boyfriend was advised of his rights to obtain a restraining order, but rejected the idea at the time, adding that he would go to court on his own because he had to work. Nice Work!

ROBO-CALLS: are recorded calls that are sent out to thousands of people at once and often involve a sales pitch, instructing you to push "1" to speak to a representative and sometimes to push "2" to be removed from the list. In most cases these calls are illegal. Do not push 2 because you are confirming that this is a valid number and this may result in even more calls. Some robo-calls are permitted but are limited to reminders for appointments and from candidates running for office. Charities requesting donations may also call as long as there is no sales pitch.

C3 Workshop: many parents of seniors across the country have received a letter from this company which starts out, "You and your student (Name) are scheduled to participate in an educational group presentation followed by a personal interview to help determine college admission and financial aid eligibility." The letter goes on to state the time of the interview, with a reservation number. Be sure to read this letter thoroughly and then start asking yourself questions, such as:

Did I sign up for this?
Who scheduled me for the personal interview?
How did this company get my child's name?
Where is a return address on the envelope?

Did you notice the line, "Every family's situation is different, so results vary and cannot be guaranteed." This should be eye opener. Try a Google search of this company with the word "scam" after it and see what others are saying.

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Secretary Of The Interior

I am in need of a new washer and dryer and want to remodel my laundry room at the same time. It is a very small room with no windows. I welcome your ideas to brighten the space. Carmen

Proper lighting and choice of colors are the solutions you need.

Be sure you have enough light in the room. It might be as easy as adding a floor lamp or increasing the lumens in your light bulbs. If the budget allows, consider installing overhead or recessed lighting.

If you choose white appliances, I would recommend a white wall color so the washer and dryer blend into the wall and make the room seem larger. Then your artwork and accessories can be bright crayon-box colors or pastels. If you choose stainless appliances, try a soft yellow, a spring-like green, or an icy blue to brighten the space. Then choose artwork with large white mats, white or silver frames, or a lot of white in the composition. I have designed laundry rooms (and nurseries, too) and hung a faux clothesline up against the wall and added a few items of children's clothing for some whimsy; it's always a hit with the homeowner. (If you like this idea, take a trip to Goodwill and buy children's clothing there for a minimal price.)

I'm building a new house and am stumped on completing my kitchen plan. We have chosen espresso cabinets and want a peach wall color. But I don't know how to choose colors for the backsplash and countertops. Should I go light to contrast the cabinets? Drake

BARBARA GRACEFFA

Choose a light hue for the countertops and a medium one for the backsplash. This light-medium-dark combo is interchangeable and works perfectly for cabinet, counter, and backsplash choices. However if you choose too light for the countertops, you'll see every single crumb. (Readers, the same is true for dark countertops, the crumbs are very visible!)

Since building a kitchen is a long-term investment, I recommend neutral colors for the cabinets, counters, backsplash, and floors. You can always change the color of your walls, window treatments, and accessories as you choose and the neutrals with go with all future décor items.

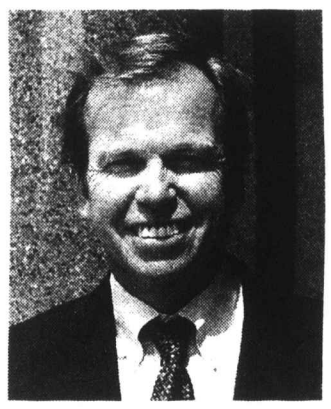
Strong Housing, Mortgage Finance Numbers Reported In February

Real Estate Sales 'Heated Up' Last Month Despite Historic Snowfall

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reported surprisingly strong housing and mortgage finance numbers in the Norfolk County real estate market for February 2015.

"Despite historic levels of snowfall experienced in Norfolk County during the month of February, real estate sales and the average sale price of properties heated up and showed marked improvement from February 2014 numbers. Furthermore, the mortgage market also showed significant gains in February as an improving economy, coupled with continued low interest rates. resulted in increased mortgage refinance activity," O'Donnell said.

While the total number of deeds recorded in February 2015 increased by only 1 percent, compared to February 2014 numbers, the total volume of commercial and residential real estate sales rose by 27 percent, with overall sales of $334 million. Average sale price of commercial and residential property for the month of February 2015 also was up 25 percent to $740,024, compared to the same time last year.



WILLIAM P. O'DONNELL

"What these figures clearly show is that despite the brutal winter, there is a healthy pool of home buyers out there wanting to purchase property," O'Donnell said. "The numbers also show that prospective home buyers are competing amongst themselves for a limited number of properties. This seller's market is clearly driving up real estate prices. Usually, without a significant spike in inventory, real estate prices will rise."

The total number of mortgages recorded in February 2015 rose 53 percent to 1,960 from 1,280 in February 2014. Total mortgage indebtedness for the same contrasting period of time actually fell by 73 percent. This was attributed to a $2.5 billion mortgage that was recorded against multiple properties in Massachusetts, including a Braintree property, in February 2014.

Homestead recordings, which provide limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000, fell 3 percent from February 2015 to February 2014. A total of 557 Homesteads were recorded versus 575 during this comparative time period. Information regarding the Homestead Act can be found on the Registry's website at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

O'Donnell also reported good news on the foreclosure front. The total number of foreclosure deeds recorded fell 14 percent in February 2015 as a total of 25 foreclosure deeds were recorded compared to 29 in the previous February of 2014.

"While one foreclosure deed is one too many, I am encouraged by its downward trend," O'Donnell said. "Anyone who has received a Notice of Foreclosure from a lender is encouraged to contact our partners Quincy Community Action Programs at (617) 479-8181 ext. 376 or Neighbor Works Southern Mass at 508-587-095 ext.46. Both agencies can provide guidance and assistance to homeowners."

"While the inclement weather experienced in February had a disruptive impact on commerce, the Norfolk County real estate market appears to have weathered the storm," O'Donnell added.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High Street, Dedham is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A pesky health problem should clear up soon. Meanwhile, travel -- both for personal as well as for business reasons -- is strong in the Aries aspect this week, and well into the next.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Look for Bovines to be on the move this week, whether it's traveling for fun or for business. Other "moves" include workplace adjustments and, for some, relationship changes.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Geminis who have just gone through a hectic period involving job and/or family matters might want to take some well-earned time out to relax and restore those drained energy levels.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A romantic situation seems to have stalled, just when the Moon Child was expecting it to go forward. Could that be a bad case of miscommunication going on. Talk it over openly and honestly.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Showing a genuine interest in something that's important to a friend, family member or colleague could open a communication line that had been pretty much shut down for a while.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Making a potentially life-changing decision takes as much knowledge as you can gather, plus determination and patience. Take your time working it out. Don't let anyone rush you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You should be back on schedule and heading in the right direction after clearing up a misunderstanding. But there could still be some setbacks. If so, correct them immediately.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A business matter keeps you pretty busy, but try to squeeze in time to be with family as well as close friends. You need the good vibrations you get from people who care for you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Investing in an attractive prospect (business or personal) with little or no information can be risky. Avoid future problems by getting all the facts before you act.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone close to you might have an unexpected reaction to a decision you feel you're prepared to make. Listen to his or her point of view. It could prove to be surprisingly helpful.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't give up yet. That once warm, personal relationship that seems to be cooling off fast could recover with some tender, loving care, and who better than you to provide it?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Career matters are strong this week. You might want to enter a training program to enhance your skills. Also, consider getting professional help in preparing a brilliant resume.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of respecting the feelings of others, which is one reason people feel comfortable having you in their lives.

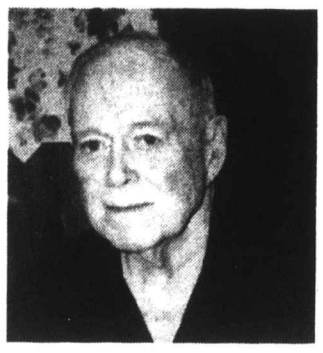
OBITUARIES

Paul Shuley



PAUL SHULEY

A funeral Mass for Paul Shuley, 86, of Quincy was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Shuley died March 4.

He graduated from Roxbury Memorial High School. He was a U.S. Navy veteran who served on the USS Missouri. Mr. Shuley worked for Commercial Union Insurance for 45 years.

He was an avid Red Sox fan and could be found on his front porch watching the game and admiring his view of the water. He was a member of the American Legion. He enjoyed reading and listening to music. His main passion was spending time with those he loved. Mr. Shuley will be sadly missed.

Beloved husband of 60 years of A. Marie Shuley (Connolly). Loving father of Diane Gill and her husband John of North Weymouth and Maureen Eyler and her husband Joe Montalvo of NY. Devoted Grampa of Matthew Gill and Erik Eyler. Caring brother of Donald Shuley and his wife Karen of FL and the late Joseph and Walter Shuley. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, North Weymouth.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Memorial donations may be made to Massachusetts General Hospital, Cardiology Research, Boston, MA 02114.

Paul Crozier, 66

Funeral and interment services for Paul Crozier, 66, of Quincy were privately held.

Mr. Crozier died unexpectedly March 3.

He always stayed in close touch with his family's activities and was there at important moments in their lives. A good friend to business associates and many others outside his family, he was always there to offer help to anyone who needed it. Mr. Crozier was loved and will be greatly missed by all who knew him well.

Beloved son of the late Patrick Crozier, lieutenant Quincy Fire Department, and Mary Crozier. Brother of William Crozier of Weymouth, Margaret Borowko of Hingham, Patrick Crozier of Milton and the late Mary O'Neill and James Crozier.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Attack Suspect Denied Bail

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Quincy man charged with attacking a local attorney with a hatchet and wasp-killing spray in the Ross Garage is due back in court April 1 after being denied bail during a dangerousness hearing.

Michael A. Kelly of 29 Miller Stile Road is facing one count of armed assault with intent to murder and two counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon on a person over 60 years old for his alleged involvement in the Feb. 24 attack. Kelly, 53, pleaded not guilty at his arraignment on Feb. 27 at Quincy District Court and was ordered held without bail pending a dangerousness hearing.

During the March 4 hearing, Judge Mary Heffernan ordered Kelly held without bail while charges are pending. She also scheduled a pre-trial hearing for April 1.

Prosecutors allege Kelly attacked the attorney, who was representing Kelly's ex-wife in a probate court matter, the same day he missed a court date in which he was to pay his ex-wife as part of a $30,000 judgment against him.

Police say Kelly attacked the victim, an attorney in his 60s, around 5:30 p.m. Feb. 24 on the third floor of the Ross Garage. According to Quincy Police Lt. John Steele, Kelly began striking the victim in the head with the hatchet while the attorney was putting items into his car. The victim was able to wrest the hatchet away from Kelly and the scuffle continued until witnesses ran to break up the fight. The attorney was also sprayed in the face with wasp-killing spray during the attack.

Quincy police arrested Kelly around 1:30 p.m. on Feb. 26 near his residence. His SUV was seized and police executed a search warrant on his house.

The victim was taken to Boston Medical Center and released Feb. 26 after receiving more than 20 staples in his scalp.

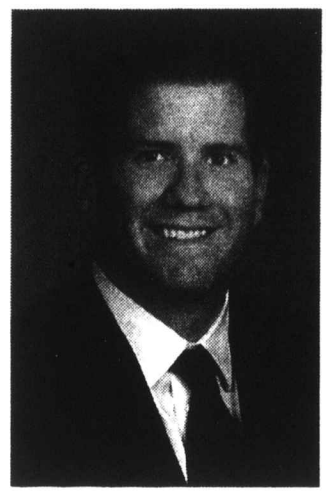
Joseph Murphy, Brian O'Dwyer Join Arbella Board

The Arbella Insurance Group announces the appointments of Joseph G. Murphy, former Massachusetts Commissioner of Insurance, and Brian O'Dwyer, senior partner at O'Dwyer & Bernstein, LLP, to its Board of Directors.

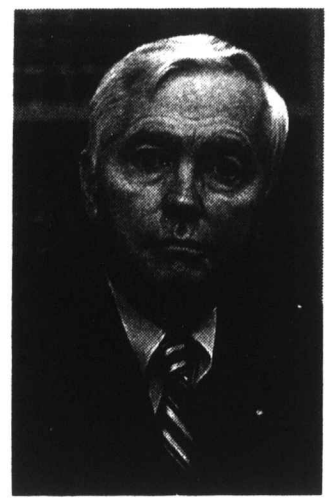
Both Murphy and O'Dwyer bring a vast understanding of the legislative and regulatory issues facing the insurance industry today.

As Massachusetts' Insurance Commissioner from 2010-2014, Murphy played an active role in the implementation of auto insurance reform, stabilizing health insurance costs for individuals and small businesses, and ensuring the solvency of Massachusetts-based insurers.

Prior to his appointment, Murphy served as First Deputy Commissioner, with oversight of the day-to-day operations of the Division. "As Insurance Commissioner, I was very familiar with Arbella," said Murphy. "They are a service oriented carrier and have performed well in this very competitive market. I am excited to be a part of their board."



JOSEPH G. MURPHY



BRIAN O'DWYER

As Commissioner, Murphy was active in the National Association of Insurance Commissioners ("NAIC"), the Government Relations Leadership Council, Property and Casualty Insurance Committee, Antifraud Task Force, the National Insurance Producer Registry Board of Directors and the International Insurance Relations Leadership Group.

A Senior Partner at O'Dwyer & Bernstein, LLP in New York, O'Dwyer has more than 40 years of experience in Labor Relations, Employee Benefits, Personal Injury, and General Litigation. An advocate for immigrants' rights, O'Dwyer founded the Emerald Isle Immigration Center, which is the largest Irish immigrant center and advocacy group in the United States. O'Dwyer has also worked extensively in the political arena, concentrating largely on promoting Irish and Irish-American interests. He served as national chairman of Irish-Americans for Clinton-Gore in 1992 and 1996 and Irish-Americans for Gore in 2000, and was a founding member of both the National Democratic Ethnic Coordinating Committee and Irish American Democrats.

"I am very familiar with Arbella. I'm confident that my regulatory background in the insurance sector will be beneficial and I look forward to being a part of its very dedicated and tenured board," said O'Dwyer.

Fitzy-Nolan Games Showcase Hoop Roots

said Papile.

The BABC will present lifetime achievement awards to Quincy's Guido Pettinelli and George "Trigger" Burke. Pettinelli was a Quincy police officer who volunteered countless hours to give kids a chance to play basketball. Burke is a member of the UMass Hall of Fame who has donated money and time to provide opportunities for Quincy kids to play sports.

"My daughter and I have been fortunate in basketball," said Papile. "I go back 40 years in Quincy and this is a chance to honor two men who made so many things possible for me and so many other people. They gave their time, pushed me in the right direction and it made all the difference."

The Quincy roots reach into the past and present. Matt Ramponi is an assistant at Quincy High and the BABC. Britney Papile now coaches at Tilton Academy in New Hampshire. One of her players? Former North star Anthony Green. Green will play for Northeastern next year. This season, he helped Tilton to 27-4 record, a victory in an international tourney in London, and a first-ever unbeaten mark in the New England Prep School Council League.

"The Quincy basketball roots have really spread around, haven't they," smiled Papile.

Papile has done much of the spreading. He coached the Maine Lumberjacks in the CBA against men like Phil Jackson and George Karl. He was an assistant to Rick Pitino from 1979-1981 at BU. He was an associate coach to Kevin Mackey on the Cleveland State team which advanced to the NCAA regionals in 1987 with a stunning upset of Indiana.

He served as Assistant Executive Director of Basketball Operations for the Celtics for 10 years. In 2012, he helped prepare the USA Basketball Team for the World Championships. He has 16 years experience in the NBA. He currently evaluates talent for the Clippers.

He has done all this, but he is still, and always will be, a Quincy guy.

"You know what I remember," he said. "I remember going to St. Ann School and playing against Sacred Heart as I went up grade by grade. One year we played them for the CYO championship and we had 1500 people in the gym on a Saturday afternoon to watch us. We crushed them."

That is a story from the rare, old times. There will be more at the Fitzy-Nolan games. If you love basketball and its stories, be there.

Sunlight Can Zap Leather Furniture

Question: My sister-in-law said that my new leather sofa is going to be ruined because it's in a room that's too sunny. I've never heard of such a thing. What do you say? -- Chad B., Denver

Answer: She's right -- sunlight can damage leather. The sun's ultraviolet rays have a bleaching effect on leather -- drying it out and causing the color to fade and cracks to appear in the surface. That goes for wood furniture, too. Even faux leather, cloth and other furniture materials are at risk from excessive sunlight.

At the same time, there's nothing better than lounging on the sofa on a warm day with the sun streaming in. Having a house with a lot of natural sunlight in the main living areas also is nice, but creates a problem for keeping furniture looking good.

It's not hopeless, though, even if your sister-in-law's advice seemed a bit alarmist. There are a number of things you can do to protect your sofa from sunlight.

First, if you bought your sofa at a large furniture store you may have been offered UV protection as an extra feature. Or, the UV protection could have been added to the leather by the manufacturer. If you're not sure, check your purchase receipt, or contact the store or the manufacturer to find out.

If it wasn't included by the store or manufacturer, you can treat the leather with a conditioner that includes UV protection. Again, check first with the manufacturer (you can almost always find information on its website) to see if any leather conditioners should be avoided for your specific model sofa.

Even with a UV protectant on the leather, you still need to limit the sunlight that actually reaches the surface. It's fine to let the sun stream in while you're using the room that the sofa is in. You can place a throw or afghan over the parts of the sofa that are hit directly by sunlight. But when you're not using the room, close the curtains on windows through which the sun is streaming directly. This not only keeps out light, it helps maintain the temperature of the room -- another factor that affects the look and lifespan of your furniture.

TIP: Spilled water on your leather sofa? Blot it up immediately and let the area dry away from direct sunlight.

Send your home tips and questions to ask@thisisahammer.com.

And also requesting that Serena L Santoro of Andover, MA and Chris J Nelson of Quincy, MA be appointed as Personal Representative(s) of said estate to serve on the bond.

You have the right to obtain a copy of the Petition from the Petitioner or at the Court. You have a right to object to this proceeding. To do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance and objection at this Court before: 10:00 A.M. on 04/01/2015. This is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline by which you must file a written appearance and objection if you object to this proceeding. If you fail to file a timely written appearance and objection followed by an Affidavit of Objections within thirty (30) days of the return date, action may be taken without further notice to you.

The estate is being administered under formal procedure by the Personal Representative under the Massachuetts Uniform Probate Code without supervision by the Court. Inventory and accounts are not required to be filed with the Court, but recipients are entitled to notice regarding the administration from the Personal Representative and can petition the Court in any matter relating to the estate, including distribution of assets and expenses of administration .

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY

Proposed Flood Hazard Determinations for the City of Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, and Case No. 15-01-0275P. The Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) solicits technical information or comments on proposed flood hazard determinations for the Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM), and where applicable, the Flood Insurance Study (FIS) report for your community. These flood hazard determinations may include the addition or modification of Base Flood Elevations, base flood depths, Special Flood Hazard Area boundaries or zone designations, or the regulatory floodway. The FIRM and, if applicable, the FIS report have been revised to reflect these flood hazard determinations through issuance of a Letter of Map Revision (LOMR), in accordance with Title 44, Part 65 of the Code of Federal Regulations. These determinations are the basis for the floodplain management measures that your community is required to adopt or show evidence of having in effect to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program. For more information on the proposed flood hazard determinations and information on the statutory 90-day period provided for appeals, please visit FEMA's website at www.fema.gov/plan/prevent/fhm/bfe, or call the FEMA Map Information eXchange (FMIX) toll free at 1-877-FEMA MAP (1-877-336-2627).

Docket No. NO14P2745GD
In the matter of:
Jeanne Balboni
Of: Quincy, MA
RESPONDENT
Alleged Incapacitated Person

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, a petition has been filed by Barbara Levine Kravetz of Sharon, MA in the above captioned matter alleging that Jeanne Balboni is in need of a Guardian and requesting that Tracy Cavalleri of Plainville, MA (or some other suitable person) be appointed as Guardian to serve Without Surety on the bond.

The petition asks the court to determine that the Respondent is incapacitated, that the appointment of a Guardian is necessary, and that the proposed Guardian is appropriate. The petition is on file with this court and may contain a request for certain specific authority.

You have the right to object to this proceeding. If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 A.M. on the return date of 03/18/2015. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

THE NEW OSPREY platform in Houghs Neck is attracting more than Ospreys and Red Tailed Hawks. This week, a snowy owl stopped by to look for a quick lunch. Snowy Owls migrate from the Arctic from November until late March.The open snowy ground of the marshes and frozen beaches resemble the Arctic, which attracts the snowy owls to this area.

Police Dept. To Purchase New SUVs

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Police Department will purchase new SUVs for patrol officers using a $200,000 appropriation authorized by the City Council Monday night in a unanimous vote.

Police Chief Paul Keenan said the money – drawn from the city's free cash account – would go towards five new Ford Police Interceptor SUVs; depending on the final price there could be enough to purchase a sixth vehicle. The department bought six of the SUVs in November 2013, and Keenan said they proved invaluable this past winter.

"Any purchases now we're going to try and use the SUV – the interceptor package they call it," he explained.

"They've proven invaluable this winter. We wouldn't have been able to get around – the chains are OK to put on the Crown Vics but that's not a good solution in a city our size with the hills and whatnot we have."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked the chief how many vehicles the po-

June 26 Final Day Of School For Public School Students

School Committee Votes 5-2 For Half Day On Good Friday

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The last day of school for Quincy's public school students will be Friday, June 26 following a vote Monday night by the School Committee to determine how the 11 days of classes canceled due to snow would be made up while conforming to the 180-day school year requirement.

In a 5-2 vote during a special meeting, the committee chose to have students attend school on Good Friday on April 3 for half a day with a release time of 11:25 or 11:55 a.m. for elementary school students, and 11:45 a.m. for middle and high school students.

Tuesday, April 14 will not be an early release day for middle school students however for high school and elementary school students it will remain early release.

The last day of school will be a half day, however half days will count as full days.

Teachers' last day will be Monday, June 29.

Parents who opt to have their child or children not attend school on Good Friday for religious reasons must present a note of dismissal to the school principal, according to Supt. of Quincy Public Schools Dr. Richard DeCristofaro.

In addition to going to school that Friday, students will be making up two days of school by extending the school day by 30 minutes for 24 days.

Committee members were given two options for

$200K For Pothole Repairs

By SCOTT JACKSON

The extent of potholes created by a record-breaking winter remains unknown, but the city has an extra $200,000 at its disposal to fix them over the next several months.

The City Council on Monday voted unanimously in favor of appropriating $200,000 of the city's state-certified free cash to the Department of Public Works for pothole repairs. That money will be evenly split between funds for purchasing asphalt and funds for paying contractors to fill in the potholes.

Public Works Commissioner Daniel Raymondi updated councillors on the city's effort to fill in the potholes in light of this winter's extreme weather. A total of more than 108.6 inches for the season was recorded at Boston's Logan Airport, the most in reported history, with a majority of the snowfall since late January. An extended cold snap seen in February also contributed to the pothole problem.

"We've set the record for the most snowfall – we've had nine feet of snow over the past six or eight weeks. We've removed enough snow to fill the Empire State Building," Raymondi said.

"It's one thing to do a little damage to a roadway that has to be plowed continuously for two months – damage to you catch basins, damage to your manholes, damage to your road, uplifting of existing potholes and all of that. When you put a heavy-duty loader on

School Site Development Calls For More Units, Parking

Old Central Would Not Be Razed • Additions In Rear Would Be Removed

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Those who attended a community meeting last Wednesday regarding the revised plans to convert the old Central Middle School at 1022 Hancock St. to a 46-unit condominium complex were largely pleased to see the 121-year-old building preserved but raised concerns that parking would be inadequate.

The meeting, which was held in the auditorium of the new Central Middle School opened in 2013, was the first step in the project's approval process according to Timothy Higgins, Edgewood Development Company vice president.

Because the site is on border territory of ward 1 and ward 5, the meeting was co-hosted by Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest and Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes.

The school building, erected in 1894, will not be razed, however conceptual site plans call to have newer additions constructed in the 50s to the back of the building removed, making way for a terrace overlooking abutting Butler's Pond.

Water runoff currently flows over the parking lot and enters the pond untreated, however developers plan on installing catch basins at different locations in the parking area as well as secondary storm water treatment units to remove 80 percent of suspended solids before water is discharged into the pond.

Years of untreated runoff has resulted in the collection of sediment at the bottom of the pond and on the pond's banks, according to Higgins.

"What we're doing here will help that," he said. "We'll be adding treated water to the pond."

ARTIST RENDERING of 1022 Hancock Street, a 46-unit condominium that is proposed for the old Central Middle School. The 121-year-old school building that at one time served as Quincy High School would be converted into studios, one-bedroom and two-bedroom condo units as well as some two-bedroom town-house style units.

The parking lot will be repaved.

Trees between Butler's Pond and the building may or may not be removed following a survey of area plant and animal life according to the project's landscape architect.

Units will range in size from 700-square-feet to 1,600-square-feet at a cost of $325,000 to $385,000.

The building will consist of four studios, 18 one-bedroom units, one one-bedroom unit with a den, 18 two-bedroom units, and five two-bedroom townhouse-style units.

Original site plans called for 39 units however that number was increased to 46 to maximize the use of space within the building, according to Edgewood.

Windows will be replaced to reflect building styles of the 1800s and to maintain a historic feel.

Asbestos still needs to be removed from the basement and furnace room, said Gerard Lorusso, president of Edgewood, however the building's top floors were cleared sometime within the last 10 years.

Developers are considering heating the building electrically due to its efficiency and resulting lower costs for residents living in central units above the first floor.

According to Lorusso, the target buying audience for the building will be young, first time home buyers with and without young children, young single people, and empty nesters.

Building amenities will

Stabilization Fund At $10 Million

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy now has $10 million in its stabilization fund after the City Council approved an allocation of $2.8 million into it Monday night.

The council voted 9-0 in favor of appropriating $2.8 million from the city's state-certified free cash into the stabilization fund. Money in the stabilization fund, also known as a rainy day fund, can be used for unforeseen needs or capital expenses. No money in the fund can be spent without a request from the mayor and a two-thirds vote from the council.

After Monday's appropriation, there is now $10,093,487 in the stabilization fund. The fund had less than $1 million in it at the end of fiscal year 2010, which ended June 30, 2010.

"This is a commitment the council and the mayor have made to put money every year out of the certified free cash into the stabilization fund," Councillor Michael McFarland, chairman of the council's finance committee, said at Monday's meeting.

The stabilization fund grew to $1.55 million by the end of FY2011, $4.5 million by the end of FY2012, $6.01 million at the end of FY2013, and $7.29 million by the end of FY2014.

WELCOME TO QUINCY – Quincy High School and participating families are hosting 11 students from Calabria, Italy. On Monday, they toured the school and had the opportunity to visit City Hall and receive greetings from Mayor Thomas Koch. Shown here with the students are QHS Teacher Jessica Amira (far left), Mayor Koch (center) and Italian educator Claudia Bianco (far right).

Police Seek Suspect In Convenience Store Robbery

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Quincy police are still searching for the man they say robbed a West Street convenience store Saturday afternoon.

According to Quincy Police Lt. Jack Sullivan, an unidentified male entered the Corner Store in West Quincy Saturday at roughly 2:15 p.m. and threatened the store's owner with a black knife.

Two customers were in the store at the time of the robbery.

The suspect made off with an unsubstantiated amount of cash and headed east on West Street toward Doble Street.

Police are looking for a white male in his mid to late 30s who is about 6-feet-tall.

Stills from surveillance camera footage released by police show the suspect wearing a grey sweatshirt with the hood partially covering his face, black Under Armour pants, and white Nike sneakers.

He was also wearing yellow dish washing gloves and is described as having an athletic build.

"This is a very active investigation," Sullivan said Tuesday.

Anybody with information is urged to contact Detective David Pacino at (617)745-5786. Those who wish to remain anonymous can submit a tip to the Quincy Police Department Facebook page by clicking "submit a tip" at the top of the page.

ELEVATING DIAMONDS TO NEW HEIGHTS

Prior to the introduction of the now famous Tiffany setting in 1886, engagement diamonds were set in bezel settings that concealed much of their beauty. The Tiffany setting, however, physically elevates the diamond dramatically upward in the fingers of a raised claw that is much higher than the band. This dramatic open mount was introduced in the era of Art Nouveau, when a fluid delicacy and romance returned to jewelry design. Held aloft in this manner, the diamond invites the fullest amount of light to enter its core, enabling it to exhibit the maximum amount of brilliance and sparkle. In this setting, the diamond can be fully appreciated for its cut, color, and clarity.

There are many alternative variations of the Tiffany setting. The diamond collection at our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center contains virtually any shape and size imaginable. We maintain, along with three other jewelers, a permanent presence in the diamond centers of the world. This established relationship affords us the ability to bring you all the qualities, sizes, and shapes at value prices. You will also find a lovely selection of birthstone jewelry, pendants, watches and earrings. Please call 617-773-3636.

Don't Forget: We pay cash for Gold - Platinum - Diamonds... highest prices paid.

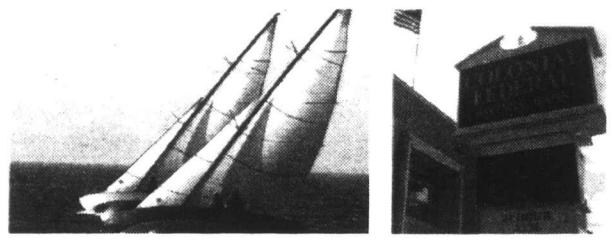
Finally ... you get to do what you want to do



The question now – what's the best way to pay for it? Maybe you're simplifying your life. Maybe you're complicating it. Either way, you're at the point where some new doors are opening. You have resources. You have options. What you want is a lender you can talk to – someone you like, whose judgment you trust and respect – to help make the financing happen intelligently. At Colonial Federal, we specialize in working with people like you. Here you deal directly with lenders who actually like coming up with good ways to make things happen. Including sometimes being able to make customized loans. Sound interesting? Like to talk? Call Angela Blanchard, Vice-President/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750 or apply online at colonialfed.com.

Nora's Cycling Cross-Country For Adults With Cancer

Like many of us, Nora Canavan has been impacted by cancer.

One of her uncles passed away from a cancerous brain tumor 15 years ago. Her grandmother battled breast cancer. And one of her friends from college was also diagnosed with the dreaded disease.

How we respond to life's unfair twists and tragic turns – either our own or to those we know and love – helps define us.

Nora is no exception. In fact, she is a shining example of taking a negative and turning it into a positive.

Later this spring, Nora will set off on a 4,000-mile bicycle trek across the country in support of the Ulman Cancer Fund for Young Adults, a non-profit organization dedicated to empowering young adults in the fight against cancer.

"I needed to do something productive because cancer just affects people and makes a huge change in their lives," says the 23-year-old lifelong Quincy resident. "But it doesn't always have to be a negative thing.

"You can make it into a positive one. You can get together with your community and just bring strength. I want to be part of the positive change instead of the negative conniption you always hear with cancer."

Nora says cancer has had a major impact on her life. She lovingly remembers her uncle who passed away when she was just a kid.

"He was an awesome uncle and lived right down the street from us. I have a large Irish family and we are all really close. My cousin used to come over to our house almost every day and my uncle would pick him up. My uncle would always tease us and we thought he was so funny.

"We'd see him every day and we saw how the cancer affected him."

Nora, a 2009 graduate of North Quincy High School and 2013 graduate of Bentley University, has also seen how cancer can impact young adults.

At Bentley, she was a Residence Assistant and one of her resident students was diagnosed with cancer just before she graduated.

"Luckily, he's in remission but it hit close to home. One of my friends has cancer and so I was motivated after he went into remission to do something more."

Something much more.

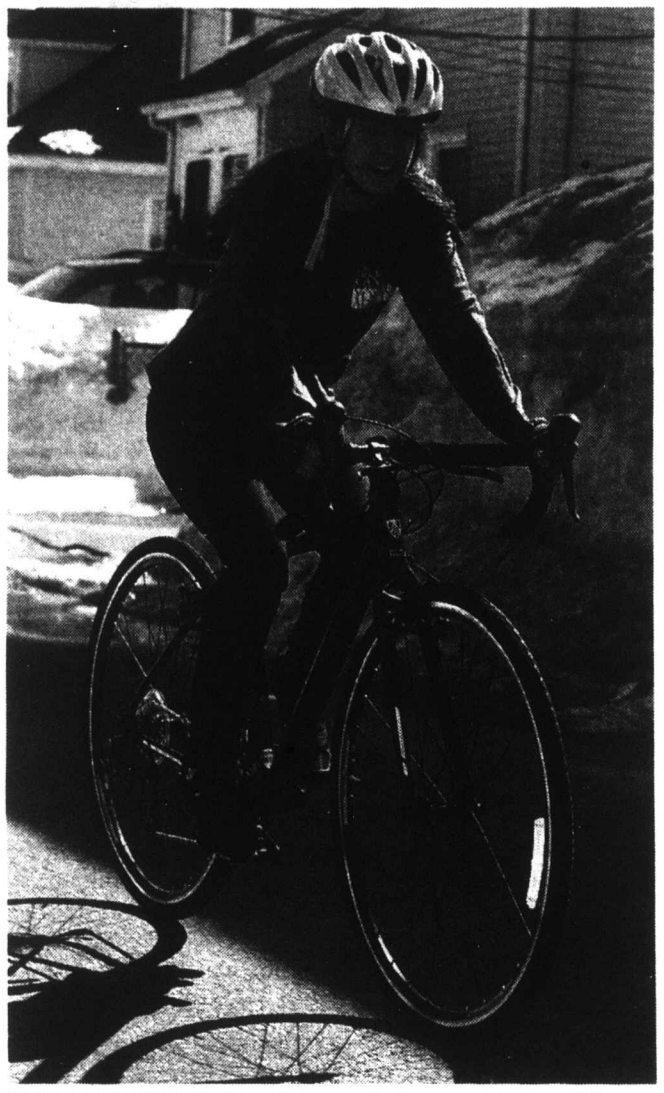
Like 4,000 miles on a bike more.

One of her friends from Bentley completed the 4K for Cancer cross-county cycling trek last summer. She then decided to saddle up for adults with cancer herself.

"I saw what she was doing and thought it was awesome. I decided I wanted to do something like that. I talked to my mom (Fiona Durkin) and asked why don't I try something like this? It is so motivating. Once I heard about it, I was really moved.

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH



NORA CANAVAN, 23, a lifelong Quincy resident, will be cycling 4,000 miles to support adults with cancer. Here she takes a spin on the specially-made Trek bicyle that she'll pedal cross-country beginning May 31.

"I had to do something and I decided to do the 4K for Cancer. From there, I applied and started fundraising. People have heard about it and are amazed," she says.

Her fundraising has exceeded her expectations. So far, she's raised $10,000 but hopes she can collect more as her ride departure date approaches.

Nora will start her cycling ride in Baltimore, MD on May 31 and arrive in San Diego, CA on Aug. 8. Along the way, she'll cycle between 50 and 130 miles a day for 60 days. Her route will take her through Washington, D.C., and 10 states including North Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Kansas, Colorado, Nevada and California. She'll celebrate her 24th birthday July 13th in Green River, Utah.

Parts of the route are major roads but no interstates. She'll travel through the plains and mountains and bike along the Pacific Coast Highway from San Francisco to San Diego.

There are 10 rest days built in the trip. On these days, Nora and the other cyclists will visit oncology centers and give out scholarships to young adults with cancer.

"We'll be giving back to the communities. The money we raise really goes right back to young adults with cancer. The rest of the days we'll be biking and raising awareness along the way," she says.

It will be a "coast-to-coast" excursion. Literally. Before she departs from Baltimore, she and other cyclists will dip their rear wheels into the Atlantic Ocean. When the reach San Diego, they'll put their front wheels in the Pacific Ocean.

"That's going to be my favorite part. We're literally going coast-to-coast," she says with a big smile.

Nora will be among four or six cyclists in her pod. The whole group has 29 cyclists in her team. In all, there are about 120 riders taking the trip.

She and the other cyclists will be staying in YMCAs, churches and also with host families.

"People in these towns know (the cyclists) are coming so the whole town turns out to meet us. They are excited to see us because it's a big thing to do. And we're excited to see them. They'll tell us about their stories and we'll tell them about our families."

She has no trepidation to embark on this kind of trip. The distance ahead and the demanding physical nature of cycling cross country is the furthest thing on her mind.

"I can do this. I should do this. I want to do this," she says simply but emphatically.

"You don't choose to deal with cancer every day if you get cancer. This is obviously not as big a deal as getting cancer. But you don't choose to fight that fight every day but you get up and you fight it.

"I feel like I want to fight a fight worth fighting."

Nora is a distance runner but has been going to spin classes three times a week to prepare her for her ride.

"Biking is not my forte, but I am learning," she says with a positive attitude. Nora's never biked more than 20 miles in a day but says her body and mind will be ready for the 100-mile days that await her in a few months.

She will be cycling on a special dark-green Trek bike that's equipped with thicker tires because she'll be climbing two mountain ranges, including the Rockies. All of the riders have the same type of bike.

She also has to learn how to fix and maintain the bike. "When you're going 4,000 miles, you may have a broken wheel or spoke so these bikes they teach you how to fix them."

As the ride departure inches closer after a very snowy and frigid winter, she says she's eager to meet her teammates. "I feel like they're going to be so cool because we'll be like-minded people who want to bond. Let's bike across American for adults with cancer. I'm excited to meet them."

She's also excited to get a close-up look at the country's diversified topography, including red earth.

Perhaps the most difficult part of her trip will be leaving her close family behind. But she'll get a warm send-off from her mom, sisters and her boyfriend who are driving to Baltimore to be with Nora when she departs on her trek.

"I am very close to my family but I know I have to do this," she says.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 2, 1863, responding to acute food shortages, hundreds of women riot in Richmond, Virginia, breaking windows and looting stores, before Confederate President Jefferson Davis threw his pocket change at them from the top of a wagon. Davis ordered the crowd to disperse or he would order the militia to fire on them.

• On April 3, 1882, one of America's most famous criminals, Jesse James, is shot to death by fellow gang member Bob Ford. Detective magazines had glamorized the James gang, turning them into Robin Hoods. In reality, Jesse James was a ruthless killer who stole only for himself.

• On March 31, 1931, Knute Rockne, the legendary Notre Dame football coach, is killed in a plane crash. He was 43. From 1918 to 1930, Rockne compiled a record of 105 wins, 12 losses and 5 ties, and won six national championships.

• On April 1, 1948, Soviet troops begin stopping U.S. and British military trains traveling through the Russian sector to and from Berlin. In June, the Soviets began a full-scale blockade of the U.S.-British-French sectors. Thus began the Berlin Blockade, when U.S. aircraft began dropping supplies into Berlin.

• On April 4, 1968, Martin Luther King Jr. is shot to death at a hotel in Memphis, Tennessee. A single shot fired by James Earl Ray from more than 200 feet away struck King in the neck. The death of America's leading civil-rights advocate sparked a wave of rioting in black communities around the country.

• On April 5, 1976, Howard Hughes, one of the richest men to emerge from the American West, dies while flying from Acapulco to Houston for medical treatment. Hughes' bizarre behavior grew worse in his final years, as he became obsessed with privacy and sometimes worked for days at a stretch in a black-curtained room without sleeping.

• On March 30, 1980, a floating apartment platform for oil workers in the North Sea 235 miles east of Scotland collapses, killing 123 people. No one was expecting that a large wave would collapse and capsize the platform.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A real photo postcard of the Wollaston School's float in Quincy's Tercentennial Celebration Parade in June, 1925. The Adams Building in Quincy Square, patriotically decorated for the occasion, is in the background. The parade was held on the last day of a weeklong celebration marking the 300th anniversary of Quincy's first settlement by Captain Richard Wollaston at what became known as Mount Wollaston. Over 140,000 spectators viewed the three-hour parade that included 10,000 marchers and 182 floats in five divisions. In front of City Hall on a special viewing stand, Quincy's Mayor Perley Barbour hosted the Governor along with dozens of invited state and municipal officials from cities and towns across the Commonwealth. This Wollaston School float depicted the scene at the settlement's trading post when Captain Myles Standish, in the armored suit, arrived from Plymouth to arrest Thomas Morton for his unacceptable behavior. Morton had taken over the settlement shortly after Captain Wollaston left; he renamed it Ma-re-Mount and conducted what the Pilgrims at Plymouth, and other early settlers, considered heretical and dangerous activities. He was later sent back to England. The Wollaston School float shared first prize with the Hancock School in the parade's school division. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy License Board Briefs

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Quincy License Board took the following action at its March 10th meeting:

• Approved: the request of the Bill Dunn, Jr. Memorial Scholarship for a Special Use Permit for the 8th annual Bill Dunn, Jr. Memorial Road Race on Saturday, June 27. The race consists of a five-mile race and two-mile walk through Houghs Neck.

The memorial race is in honor of Bill Dunn, Jr. who lost his life in July of 2006 while boating. All proceeds from the race go to the Bill Dunn, Jr. Memorial Scholarship. In years past, the scholarship has been awarded to the Broad Meadows Middle School, two Quincy High School football players, a student at Quincy High School, The Houghs Neck Manets, Holy Trinity Parish, Children's Hospital, and Atherton Hough teachers.

• Approved: the request of Soloman Yilma d/b/a Donut & Donuts Coffee at 1461 Hancock St. for a Common Victualer License. Yilma will now operate the establishment and plans no changes to the business.

• Approved: the request of Jane and Mike Smeglin for a Special Use permit for the 7th annual Smegs-Legs Run on Oct. 10. The race is run to honor the memory of Chris Smeglin who died October 2008 while training for a triathlon.

All proceeds from the rain or shine event will go to the Chris Smeglin Memorial Fund to be distributed to various charities. This year's charities include Access Sports America, the Broad Meadows Middle School Physical Education Program, and the Houghs Neck Community Council Scholarship Fund.

• Approved: the request of the Friends of Troop 6 for a One Day Beer and Wine License for the 5th annual Adult Pinewood Derby on April 11 at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 7-11 p.m. The event raises funds for Troop 6. Food will also be served.

• Approved: the request of Walid Masoud, d/b/a Sepal at 527 Washington St. for a Common Victualer License. The 19-seat restaurant will serve Middle Eastern food. Masoud has been in business since 1992 and has operated restaurants in Watertown, at MIT, and the CambridgeSide Galleria.

• Approved: the request of Sukhmani Market at 1229 Hancock St. for a Common Victualer License. Manju Kaishal said the business will serve only coffee. The business will be next to the Sher A Punjab Indian restaurant. Kaishal will manage both businesses.

QHS Boys' Basketball Are Champions

Quincy High's boys basketball team overcame a 13-point deficit and nearly defeated a strong Taunton team.

The boys from Quincy demonstrated great courage, character and sportsmanship. It was a disappointing loss, but I am certain the overall experience gained will work to their advantage.

During the past four years I have come to know and love these kids; they have so much heart, they are all champions.

Roccuzzo Named Purchasing Agent

By SCOTT JACKSON

Agrippino A. "Rocky" Roccuzzo of Lancaster Street was sworn in to the $17,861 post as Quincy's purchasing agent.

Roccuzzo, 49, had been employed as a purchasing specialist with the Braintree-based Hazeltine Corporation. He was one of a number of new city officials sworn in during a City Hall ceremony presided over by Mayor Arthur Tobin.

John P. Comer, also of Lancaster Street, was named chairman of the Board of Assessors at an annual salary of $22,545. The 45-year-old Comer previously served on the board from March 1970 to February 1976, when he went to work as an aide to the Committee on Ways and Means on Beacon Hill.

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, pastor emeritus of Quincy Point Congregational Church, was sworn in as director of citywide planning at an annual salary of $1. He had served in a number of community posts, including chairman of the Planning Board.

Gerald L. Gallinaro of Bowes Avenue was appointed to the unpaid position of harbormaster. The 25-year-old graduated from Massachusetts Maritime Academy and was vice commodore of the Town River Yacht Club.

Three women – Claire Harrington, Barbara Sage, and Patricia J. Ceriani – were appointed assistant assessors. The mayor said they were the first women ever appointed to the part-time, $1,200 a year position. Kendall Mills was also appointed to the same position and Wilbur Bevans and Paul Barry were re-appointed assistant assessors.

MORRISSEY SEEKS PUBLIC HEARING ON MBTA

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey urged MBTA Director Robert Kiley to hold a public hearing in Quincy that would allow South Shore commuters to ask about service issues encountered over the past winter.

"I have asked the MBTA to come to Quincy so that commuters can explain exactly how they feel about the service they have been receiving this past winter and also to let the MBTA explain their situation in this matter," Morrissey said.

"I think that commuters should be given some explanation for the breakdowns, parking lot conditions, and slow downs in service they have had to face this winter."

QHS Drama Club To Present 'Once Upon A Mattress'

Performances March 27, March 28, March 29

The Quincy High School Drama Club is very proud to present "Once Upon a Mattress", a musical tale adapted from the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, The Princess and the Pea.

Performances will be held Friday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, March 28 at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 29th at 2 p.m. at the Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St., Quincy.

Tickets can be purchased in advance by calling Deb Dyer at 617-593-1056 and at the school store from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tickets can also be purchased at the door. They are $12 for general admission and $5 for students under 18.

The original production of "Once Upon A Mattress" opened on May 11, 1959 on Broadway for a total of 244 performances. It had also received several Tony nominations and was adapted to television in 1964, 1972 and 2005.

It is the story of life in a fictional medieval kingdom ruled by the devious Queen Aggravain and the mute King Sextimus the Silent. They are looking for a princess for their son, Prince Dauntless and have ruled that no one else in the kingdom may marry until he does.

The Queen makes it difficult for any would-be princesses to pass her tests. When Princess Winnifred arrives by swimming the moat, she is put to the test of being sensitive enough to not be able to sleep on 20 downy mattresses because there is a pea beneath the pile. Many more twists and turns ensue as "Once Upon a Mattress" is a delight for audiences of all ages.

The Quincy High School Drama Club and children's ensemble have been rehearsing since January and look forward to performing this comedy/musical.

The cast includes: Erin McMillen, Maura MacDonald, Grace Austen, Rachael Zisk, Amanda Burke, Lydia Culp, Kate Stevenson, Kelsey Dyer, Emily Crosta, Christina Haley, Leanne Gough, Courtney Smith, Emily Barker, Nora DeBonis, Julia Doyle, Cailyn Halley, Shelby Maze, Terry McMillen, Sammy Pendleton, Kelly Donahue, Chrissy Broderick, Brianna Cristiani, Kelsey Dunn, Julia Ford, Angela Grasso, Julia Larkin, Alexis Marshall, Rachel Knight, Kendall Kelleher, Shaheen Soto, Brooke McCarthy, Allie MacPherson, Joe Scott, Raymond McCarthy, Austen Kimmell, Jack Donnell, Rob Smith, Billy Maier, Joe Cristiani, Noah Culp, Curtis Ajavon, Jake Louzan, Jake Morse, Nick Warner, Aidan Dennis, Bryan Hanly, Lezly Acevedo, Tess Louzan, Isabelle Assaf, Grace Healy, Grace Cunniff, Adam Maier, Joey Dyer, Bobby Stevenson, Cady Kelly, Paige Maze, Sarah Gorham, Lucy Lynch, Jennifer Small, Megan Lyons, Kate Lyons, Jeff Burke, Shane Cunniff, Maeve Lehan, Lilly Hanly, Abby Hanly, Olivia Herman, Aisling Mannion and Isabelle Hanley.

Director Margaret Spencer performed with Fontbonne Children's Theatre from the age of 10-17. After performing with the ESP Playhouse at M.I.T.'s Kresge Theatre, she pursued a bachelor's degree in Drama and Speech at Northeastern University and studied voice at The New England Conservatory of Music. She co-founded the improvisational comedy troupe, The Three Penny Company and appeared on several episodes of Channel 5's "Jabberwocky."

As a senior, with a concentration in acting and directing, Ms. Spencer took an independent study course in theatre Education and the rest is history. After receiving her Master of Arts in Teaching from Boston College in 1975, she began her career in QPS and has been writing and producing shows with Quincy's children ever since.

Ms. Spencer was one of the founders of Raise the Curtain and served as its director and administrator for over 20 years. She is a recipient of the Outstanding Arts Educator of the Year Award from the MA Alliance for Arts Ed.

Although she retired in 2010, she continues to teach an acting class for the talented and beloved performers of Quincy High. This year, Ms. Spencer has been nominated by the Tony's for Excellence in Theatre Education Award. It is the first year this award will be given to celebrate the educators who have transformed lives through the power of the arts. The recipient will receive a cash prize for his or her school of $10,000. The ceremony will be held in New York City on June 7.

Many people along with Ms. Spencer make these quality shows possible: Michael Murray, Musical Director; Thomas Doucette, Fine Arts Educator at Quincy High, Technical Director and Scenic Designer; Paul Cheney and his carpentry class; Renee Smith for Costumes along with many behind the scenes and the support of Principal Larry Taglieri.

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures program invites the public to explore the history of Town Brook from the Souther Tide Mill to Miller Stile Road on Saturday, March 21 at 10 a.m.

The walk will be led by local historian and past President of the Wollaston Garden Club Pat Artis and President of the Friends of the Souther Tide Mill Doug Morrill. Participants will also be looking for smelt swimming up the brook to spawn.

Participants should meet at 10 a.m. at the CVS parking lot located next to the Mill at 626 Southern Artery. Call 617-472-0799 for more information and inclement weather rescheduling.

Quincy Toastmasters Open House March 30

Quincy Toastmasters invites residents to its open house on Monday, March 30 at the Fore River Club House, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy, from 7:15 to 9 p.m.

"Quincy Toastmasters provides a supportive and positive environment where members have the opportunity to develop their communication and leadership skills," says Bill Dunn, club president.

This Toastmasters meeting will include prepared speeches, table topics (impromptu speeches) and evaluations.

Club Member Loretta Connolly, who is also the club treasurer, will be the table topics master. "Table topics are one of my favorite parts of the meeting," says Connolly. "This is where guests and members are randomly selected to speak for one to two minutes. It helps you think and speak clearly on your feet."

For more information, contact Seth Magaw at Seth.J.Magaw@ricoh-usa.com.

Quincy Toastmasters, part of Toastmasters District 31, meets each Monday 7:15 p.m. at the Fore River Club House in Quincy. For more information about this event and the club, visit http://675.toastmastersclubs.org).

WHAT'S COOKING

Marie & Suzie
By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUZIE FALCO

Shredded Cabbage, Sausage & Rice

By MARIE

When food shopping recently, I was prepared to buy a head of cabbage, and then saw packages of shredded cabbage and bought that instead.

It's not only for making cole slaw, but very versatile for other recipes as well as you will note in today's recipe.

SHREDDED CABBAGE

8 ounces of cabbage
2 pork or chicken sausages
2 tablespoons tomato sauce
1/2 cup minute brown rice
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 cloves of garlic (chopped) grated favorite cheese for top
salt and pepper to taste

First cook the rice according to directions, and set aside.

Cook the sausages and then cut in small slices. Set aside.

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and add the cabbage. Cook until cabbage is the way you prefer it. Add the sliced sausage, the rice and the tomato sauce and cook until well blended.

The sausage can be eliminated if you wish, but if you decide to cook them, an easy way is to place them in a baking dish or pan, prick each one with a fork, add a smidgen of water on the bottom of the pan and cook in a 350-degree oven until done.

Breakfast Muffin

By SUZIE

How many mornings do you want a hot breakfast, but just don't have the time? Well, here is a healthy and delicious recipe just for you, and all you need is a mug and a microwave!

That's right. Baking your own "muffin" in a mug. Try it out! Also makes a great snack to satisfy that sweet tooth in the middle of the day.

1 tablespoon melted butter
1/2 cup quick cooking oats
1 tablespoon chopped almonds
1 egg
1/2 cup milk of choice
2 teaspoons honey or maple syrup
2 tablespoons raisins
a pinch of cinnamon

Simply mix all really well in your mug. Put in microwave on high for 2-3 minutes until done! Let cool a bit. Enjoy!

Cheeseburger Pie

By MARIE

During the school vacation, plus the snow days, some of the grandchildren had a sleep-over.

I found a recipe for cheeseburger pie that was different than the norm that I cooked for them as one of their many meals-and they enjoyed it.

CHEESEBURGER PIE

1 pound ground beef (or turkey)
1 medium onion (chopped)
salt and pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1/2 cup Bisquick mix (I used organic)
2 eggs
1 cup milk

Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

Grease a 9-inch pie plate.

In the hot oil, sauté the onion, add the meat and season with salt and pepper until browned.

Spread it on the pie plate and then sprinkle with the cheese.

In a bowl, mix the milk, eggs and the Bisquick mix well together and pour onto the pie plate.

Bake for 25 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean in the center. Cut in slices-delicious!

'Doubt' Play At ENC April 23-25

The Eastern Nazarene College Theatre Department will present its production of "Doubt" Thursday, April 23 through Saturday, April 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center on the college's main Quincy campus.

Set in New York City in the 1960s, "Doubt" takes place in a Catholic parochial school, where the school's principal – a conservative nun – suspects a popular, progressive priest of molesting the school's first African-American student.

The play won the 2005 Pulitzer Prize for Drama and the Tony Award for Best Play before being made into an Academy Award-nominated film starring Philip Seymour Hoffman and Meryl Streep.

ENC's production of "Doubt" will be directed by senior ENC student Evan Detwiler.

"Doubt poses a number of questions for audiences to consider," said Tara Brooke Watkins, the production's producer and artistic director. "What is it like to be a woman in a man's world? What is it like to be a black woman in a white world? What is it like to be labeled a homosexual? And is everything as black and white as we would like for it to be?"

To address the questions, Watkins noted, Detwiler has created a concept that uses tones of black, white and grey throughout the play's set and costumes. The production will also be presented in a "black box" format in order to bring the audience into the story.

Eastern Nazarene College is located at 23 E. Elm Ave. in Quincy. Tickets for "Doubt" are $10 general admission, $8 students and seniors. For tickets or more information, call the ENC box office at 617-745-3715 or visit www.brownpapertickets.com.

Health, Wellness Fair At South Shore YMCA

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will host the third annual South Shore Health and Wellness Fair Friday, April 3, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy.

The fair is open to the public.

The event focuses on business-to-consumer health and wellness-focused consumers.

Exhibits for $250 and sponsorships ranging from $500 to $5,000 with commensurate levels of benefits and plenty of publicity, including traditional and social media, billboard advertisements, and local newspaper advertisements, are still available.

For more information about exhibiting or sponsorships, contact the Chamber offices at 617-479-1111 or legankenny@southshore-chamber.org.

Laurel Egan Kenny, COO, said, "This event is an amazing example of partnership with our host, the South Shore YMCA in Quincy, promotion of our sponsoring and exhibiting members, and public service in that the event promotes health and wellness among our constituents in the communities we serve through health and wellness screenings, demonstrations, education, and of course giveaways and prizes."

Police To Purchase New SUVs

lice use. The department, according to Keenan, uses 18 or 19 patrol vehicles on busier nights. Many of the frontline patrol vehicles run around the clock, accumulating 35,000 to 40,000 miles each year. By the time the vehicles reach 90,000 miles, they are placed in reserve, giving each vehicle a frontline lifespan of about two years.

"We're a 24-hour operation, as you're aware," Keenan said. "The vehicles take a good size pounding. Some nights they don't turn the vehicles off. One officer gets out, the next officer gets in and goes out on patrol.

"We try and keep the fleet as up to date as we possibly can. What happens with the frontline cars, usually they get to about 85,000 or 90,000 and we try and put them in a second tier. The first tier we try and keep as new a vehicle as we possibly get. The second tier is used as spare vehicles – we like to keep five or six as spares because a lot of times the vehicles go in for repairs, they get damaged in accidents, that type of thing,

"When they're no longer serviceable as spares, we hand them down to some of the specialized units. The Special Operations Unit will get some cars. The DARE, the community police officers get the third tier cars."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said residents shouldn't be concerned about the department replacing vehicles so frequently.

"There is a fear that when the public sees this $200,000 expenditure they may think that it's lavish and maybe unnecessary. I think it's important to note these vehicles are being operated 24/7. It's not mileage that you watch when you deploy a vehicle like this, it's hours of operation. It's almost like a marine engine," McNamee said.

"And also it's local driving – these aren't on the Mass Pike – so they do wear out."

In total, Keenan said the department has between 60 and 65 cars at any given time. That includes marked patrol vehicles and unmarked cars used by detectives and the Narcotics Unit.

The Police Department recently completed the purchase of six new K9 vehicles and a SWAT van using grant money. Grants have also been used to pay for the purchase of new motorcycles; Keenan said all but two motorcycles in the department's fleet are up to date.

Keenan added that he hopes to acquire a patrol wagon in the future.

"The wagon goes out and picks up prisoners that may be intoxicated or that type of thing," he said. "And everyday we bring prisoners back and forth from the courthouse – we might have five or six or ten prisoners that we bring up. After a holiday weekend on a Tuesday we might bring 20 prisoners up to the courthouse."

In addition to the $200,000 for new vehicles, the council unanimously approved an appropriation of $669,813 from free cash to personnel services for superior officers in the Police Department.

The appropriation was needed to cover raises for superior officers over a three-year period beginning July 1, 2012, and ending June 30 of this year. The city and superior officers union were unable to reach an agreement on a three-year contract for that period and the union sought arbitration.

"We were unable to settle with the superior officers union and they took us to arbitration. This is the agreed upon amount in the arbitration to settle that contract," Councillor Michael McFarland, chairman of the council's finance committee, said Monday. "This settles all contracts through June 30, 2015."

McFarland added that the arbitration award represents annual raises of 1 percent, 2 percent, and 2 percent over the three-year period, which is the same increase other municipal employees unions received in their contracts.

Meeting Wednesday On Granite Street Project

Councillors Kevin Coughlin and Kirsten Hughes co-hosted a meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St., to discuss the proposal of Anton Cela to build a residential development at 151 Granite St.

The proposed project is a 56-unit residential building to be a condominium with units sold to individual owners. The project requires applications to the Planning Board for site plan review and Zoning Board of Appeal for a special permit and variances.

Man Arrested For Assault, Battery Dies In Police Custody

Massachusetts State Police from the Norfolk County District Attorney's office responded to the Quincy Police Station Sunday following a QPD report at approximately 3:45 p.m. that a 34-year-old Quincy man in police custody had been transported to Quincy Medical Center and been pronounced dead.

According to a spokesperson for Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey, the initial investigation indicates that Kevin T. Shaw, 34, of Granger St., Quincy, had been arrested Saturday evening for assault and battery following an incident with an unrelated male party known to him in which Shaw was also visibly injured. At this time it appears that both combatants in that incident refused medical treatment.

Quincy Police report entering the cell where Mr. Shaw was detained when he did not respond during a regular cell check and performing CPR until ambulance personnel arrived.

The investigation is continuing, including the review of surveillance video. An autopsy was conducted Tuesday. The cause and manner of death were left undetermined pending toxicology testing.

Batting A Thousand During Tax Season

By KRISTEN ALBERINO
Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Spring training for major league baseball teams begins in March. As you prepare to meet the April 15 deadline to file your taxes, here are some Social Security tax tips to help you knock the ball out of the park! Batter up!

FIRST BASE

If you changed your name due to marriage or divorce, or made another legal name change, make sure you change your name on your Social Security records and with your employer. Changing your name on all of your records will avoid a "mismatch" with our records (which could delay your tax return) and improper recording of your earnings. To learn more about your Social Security number and changing your name, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber.

SECOND BASE

You will need Social Security numbers for your children if you want to claim them as dependents on your tax return. In most cases, parents request a Social Security number for their newborn child at the hospital when applying for a birth certificate. If you didn't apply for a number for your child then, you can apply at your local Social Security office or by mail. Claiming your dependents will maximize your tax refund or minimize any amount you owe. To learn more, read our online publication, Social Security Numbers For Children, available at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs.

THIRD BASE (Bases loaded)

If you receive Social Security benefits, you need to pay federal taxes on some of your benefits if your total income, including Social Security and all of your other taxable income, is $25,000 or more, and you file federal taxes as an individual. Married couples filing joint returns need to pay federal taxes on income of $32,000 or more. To learn more about taxes and your Social Security benefits, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/planners/taxes.htm.

CLEANUP HITTER:

Now that you're working hard and earning Social Security credits, you can check your Social Security Statement online. Doing so will ensure that you have all your bases covered for the years you've worked. You can open or access your personal my Social Security account at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

A GRAND SLAM:

If you own a small business, Social Security has a free electronic filing option that allows you to prepare and submit W-2s for your employees at www.socialsecurity.gov/employer. Registering online gives you freedom from paper forms and it's free, fast, and secure.

Follow these tips, and cover all your bases. To learn more about Social Security, visit www.socialsecurity.gov.

Manet Health To Honor Sen. Keenan

Manet Community Health Center's Board of Directors will award its most prestigious honor, the Manet Medallion, to State Senator John Keenan for his exemplary leadership on emerging and escalating public health issues, including mental health and substance abuse, at Manet's 2015 Dinner and Auction.

The public is invited to the annual event, Manet's biggest fundraiser of the year, which has been rescheduled to Wednesday, May 27, and will take place at the Granite Links Golf Course in Quincy.

The 35th anniversary Dinner Sponsor is Steward Health Care, comprised of Steward Medical Group, Steward Health Care Network, and Steward Hospital Group, together the largest fully integrated community care organization and community hospital network in New England. One highlight of the evening will be presentation of the Manet Medallion, which is given to an individual or organization who has demonstrated leadership and goodwill in community health.

The 35th Anniversary Dinner and Auction will enable Manet to introduce the public, donors and friends to Manet's new Chief Executive Officer, John J. Holiver, and share Manet's recent achievements, made possible in part by the generous support of the community. A few of the 2014 accomplishments that will be noted include:

• Completion of an an impressive renovation of Manet's North Quincy practice site, complete with 44 exam rooms, new space to grow wellness, specialty care, and behavioral health programs, plus an onsite Pharmacy and Vision Center;

• Addition of several new primary care providers, including Dr. Vikram Butani, Dr. Khyati Patel, and Dr. Karla Talledo Thais;

• Opening of a new practice site in Taunton to care for the medically underserved; and

• Recognition earned as a Level 3 Patient Centered Medical Home for our North Quincy, Houghs Neck and Quincy Medical Center practice locations.

The event will be hosted by Manet's Board of Directors, led by President Joseph Reardon and CEO John Holiver. It will include a cocktail hour, plated dinner, desserts, along with stories from grateful patients, an update on Manet's expansions, and a silent auction and raffle.

A wide range of sponsorship opportunities are available, along with individual tickets at $135 – each in recognition of Manet's 35 years of service. All tickets are tax-deductible. Support from the community, philanthropy, private and public grants in 2014 helped Manet provide over 14,000 patients with over 53,000 medical visits.

For sponsorship or individual tickets, contact Manet's Development Office at 617-690-6352 or events@manetchc.org. or visit the Manet at https://www.facebook.com/ManetCommunityHealthCenter

Notable Quincyites Topic At Adams Academy March 26

Notable Quincyites from the past and present will be featured at the next Quincy Historical Society program, Thursday, March 26, at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

Area journalist Jack Encarnacao will highlight a number of the personalities from his new book, Quincy, Legendary Locals, a survey of individuals who've made an impact on Quincy from the earliest times to today. The presentation features national leaders like John Adams and John Hancock and stars like Lee Remick and Ruth Gordon, but it also focuses on the many people who have contributed to Quincy by helping others, by public service, by sheer force of personality, or by being unforgettable characters.

The evening is a chance to remember familiar faces and to recall some who may have slipped from memory.

Everyone is welcome. Admission is free. Encarnacao will do a book signing following the program.

the road, when you start removing snow from our sidewalks, we don't really know the extent of some of the damage."

Raymondi showed the council a list of pothole requests reported by residents; the list was more than 50 pages long, though Raymondi said that would only represent a fraction of potholes that need to be filled. Pothole repairs, he estimated, will continue through the end of the current fiscal year on June 30.

"We need to blitz it and keep it going," the commissioner said. "This list will not die come April or May or June. This will be ongoing through the end of the fiscal year and into the next."

Over the past week DPW crews have been using 12 tons of asphalt per day, according to Raymondi. The city pays between $100 and $120 for each ton, putting the weekly cost for asphalt between $6,000 and $7,200.

Moving forward, Raymondi said contractors would likely focus on one neighborhood at a time while DPW workers complete pothole repairs requested by residents and others they spot in the area. The list of potholes awaiting repairs is reconciled throughout the day.

Residents who wish to report a pothole can do so by calling a special hotline at 617-376-1914. Raymondi said the department keeps track of all requests.

"We do pay attention. We do document them," he said. "There is no black hole that a pothole call is going to literally fall into."

Councillor Doug Gutro suggested Raymondi place the list of pothole requests on the city's website so residents could keep track of it. The commissioner replied that it is something the department can do.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall asked Raymondi what the city would do in instances where DPW workers or private contractors hired by the city caused damage to private property while removing snow.

"I want to be mindful about getting off track here, but I have been receiving the question," Croall said.

Raymondi responded that residents should document the damage by photographing it and then contact the city's Legal Department or his office.

"The mayor has made it quite clear to us that if we damaged a fence, we are going to fix it. If one of our contractors damaged a fence, either the contractor is going to fix it through their [insurance] policy or we need to work it out with them," Raymondi explained.

"Rest assured, if we caused the damage we will repair it."

The commissioner also announced that street-sweeping and curbside removal of yard waste, both of which had been scheduled to commence later this month, will now start April 6 because of this winter's snowfall.

Three Memorial Square Dedications April 30

By SCOTT JACKSON

Memorial squares will be dedicated next month to three Quincy residents who lost their lives during the Vietnam War.

The City Council approved the dedications Monday night in a series of unanimous votes. All three dedications will take place on April 30 during Vietnam Veterans Day in Quincy.

The square at 260 Quincy Avenue, in the vicinity of Charlesmount Avenue, will be dedicated to Private First Class John P. Coughlin, U.S. Marine Corps. The square at 561 Willard Street will be dedicated in memory of Chief Petty Officer George R. Levesque, U.S. Navy. The square at the corner of Alrick Road and Adams Street will be dedicated to First Lieutenant Alfred V. Schofield, U.S. Army.

Gutro Seeks Public Meetings On Center Redevelopment

By SCOTT JACKSON

Councillor Doug Gutro wants the city to hold public meetings for residents before any funds are spent on the new downtown redevelopment strategy unveiled earlier this month.

Gutro, the chairman of the council's downtown committee who is challenging Mayor Thomas Koch in this year's election, introduced a resolution seeking the public meetings Monday night. He noted public meetings were held throughout Quincy prior to the city's agreement with previous master developer Street-Works.

"Five years ago, pre-Street-Works, we had the opportunity for a pretty extensive public information roll out and public strategy that included neighborhood meetings throughout the city and a variety of different places prior to the City Council actually casting votes on appropriations for the downtown development," Gutro said.

"This resolve simply asks the administration to have a comparable public information rollout involving a neighborhood meeting schedule before we have to opportunity to vote on some of the financial asks relative to the Redgate program."

Redgate's plan, first made public during the March 9 council meeting, would require the city to borrow $96 million over the next decade to improve infrastructure, utilities, and parking facilities in Quincy Center. According to the plan, the money would incentivize new residential, retail, and commercial developments that would generate enough new revenue to pay back the bonds.

The resolution was referred to the administration and the council's downtown and oversight committees in an 8-1 vote. Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee voted against the referrals, calling the resolution argumentative and premature.

"The resolution I find to be very argumentative. There has been no evidence...as we've pressed the restart button on the downtown redevelopment that the administration has done nothing that is not transparent, nothing that hasn't fostered public involvement, as well as the one-on-one updating of city councillors as to what their intent is and what their strategy is," McNamee said.

"Absent some evidence that these things are lacking from the current efforts for the downtown redevelopment, I find the resolution argumentative and premature. I just don't think it's appropriate at this time."

Learn more about Spectra Energy's Atlantic Bridge Project

Thursday, March 26, 2015
5:30 p.m. – 7:30 p.m.
Sons of Italy Social Center
120 Quarry Street
Quincy, Massachusetts

To efficiently and effectively address the need for diverse, reliable natural gas supplies and additional pipeline infrastructure here in the Northeast, Spectra Energy is proposing to expand its existing Algonquin Gas Transmission and Maritimes & Northeast Pipeline systems.

This expansion, called the Atlantic Bridge Project, will bring abundant, domestic natural gas into the region by November 2017. The project is in the development stage and currently includes:

- The construction of approximately:
  - 10.9 miles of 42-inch diameter mainline take-up and relay pipeline in New York and Connecticut;
  - 10.4 miles of 36-inch diameter loop extension pipeline in Connecticut;
  - 2.6 miles of 36-inch diameter loop pipeline in Connecticut;
  - 10.1 miles of 30-inch diameter loop pipeline in Massachusetts; and
  - 2.2 miles of 12-inch diameter loop pipeline in Rhode Island.
- The construction of a new compressor station in Weymouth, Massachusetts;
- The addition of two new compressor units, for a total of 18,615 additional horsepower, at two existing compressor stations in Connecticut; and
- Modifications to existing meter stations in New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

At the Open House, Spectra Energy representatives will be available to answer questions about the proposed facilities, safety, land acquisition, environmental and permitting processes, construction and operation, and other aspects of the project.

The public is invited, and we encourage all interested persons to attend.

SEN. JOHN KEENAN (center) was recently honored as the Arc of Massachusetts' 2014 Legislator of the Year. Making the presentation is Leo Sarkissian (left), Executive Director of the Arc of Massachusetts and Senate President Stan Rosenberg.

Sen. Keenan Receives Award From Autism, Disability Community

The Arc of Massachusetts recently recognized State Senator John Keenan (D – Quincy) as their 2014 Legislator of the Year.

The Arc is a charitable organization that supports persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities, advocates for greater funding and access to programs, and helps families coordinate services for their loved ones.

Keenan received the award after successfully pushing for transportation services that help persons with disabilities participate in community and work programs. The Arc also cited his history of advocacy for family support services, and for clarification of criteria used to determine eligibility for programs offered through the Department of Developmental Disabilities and the Department of Mental Health.

"I have been amazed and inspired by the determination of these individuals," Keenan said at the event, speaking about those who are affected by a disability, "and by the dedication and efforts of their loved ones." After the event he met with constituents and with representatives of The Arc, and said that he would continue to push for adequate funding to disability services in Massachusetts that "equal the measure of a supportive, compassionate and caring society."

Keenan has filed a bill in the current legislative session that would further update DDS eligibility criteria, reducing the department's reliance on IQ testing as the primary criteria. The bill would require a functional assessment and an in-person interview to determine the appropriate level of services for each applicant.

QCA Student Matthew Brandi Semifinalist In Geographic State Bee

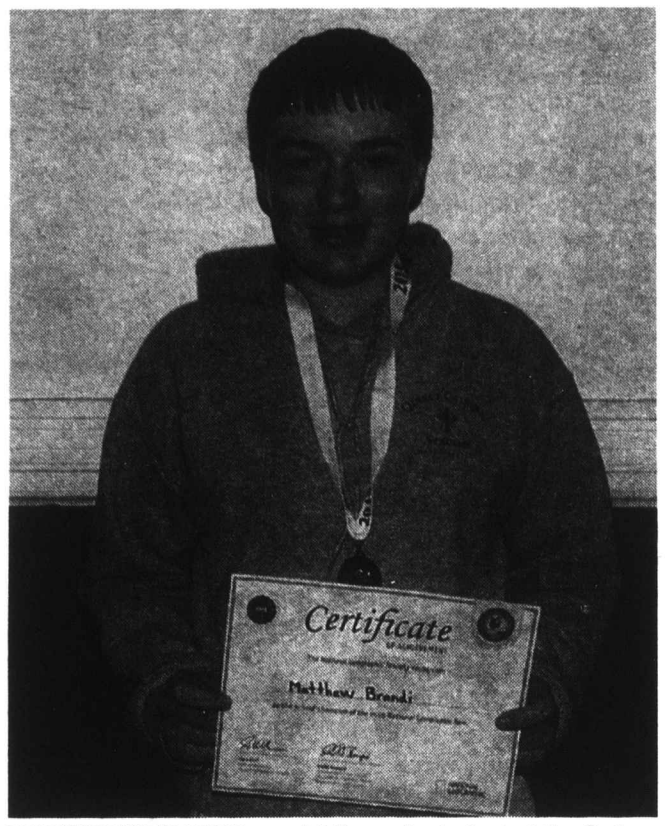
Quincy Catholic Academy's Grade 8 Student Matthew Brandi has been notified by the National Geographic Society that he is one of the semifinalists eligible to compete in the 2015 Massachusetts National Geographic State Bee, sponsored by Google and Plum Creek.

The contest will be held at Worcester Academy March 27.

This is the second level of the National Geographic Bee competition, which is now in its 27th year. School Bees were held in schools with fourth-through-eighth grade students throughout the state to determine each school champion. School champions then took a qualifying test, which they submitted to the National Geographic Society. The National Geographic Society has invited up to 100 of the top-scoring students in each of the 50 states, District of Columbia, Department of Defense Dependents Schools and U.S. territories to compete in the State Bees.

Each state champion will receive $100, the "National Geographic Atlas of the World, 10th Edition," a medal, and a trip to Washington, D.C., to represent their state in the National Geographic Bee Championship to be held at National Geographic Society headquarters, May 11-13, 2015. The national champion will receive a $50,000 college scholarship and lifetime membership in the Society. The national champion will also travel (along with one parent or guardian), all expenses paid, to the Galapagos Islands, where they will experience geography firsthand through up-close encounters with the islands' unique wildlife and landscapes. Travel for the trip is provided by Lindblad Expeditions and National Geographic.

National Geographic Channel and Nat Geo WILD will air the 2015 National Geographic Bee Championship final round, moderated by award-winning journalist Soledad O'Brien, on Friday, May 15, at 8 p.m. ET. The final round will be aired later on public television stations.



MATTHEW BRANDI, an eighth grade student at the Quincy Catholic Academy, will compete in the 2015 Massachusetts National Geographic State Bee Friday at Worcester Academy.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GUMS, CHEEKS, AND TONGUE

The dentist and hygienist are as concerned about the soft tissues in patients' mouths as they are about their teeth. Nearly everyone occasionally experiences a sore on the lips, tongue, gums, roof of the mouth, or the inner cheeks. Depending on the cause, it may either go away with time or be successfully treated with over-the-counter drugs. Most common mouth sores, such as canker sores, heal within seven to ten days. However, a mouth sore that has not healed within two weeks may signal a more serious problem. Causes can include an infection or frequent contact with a jagged tooth, which may prevent healing. In some cases, a sore in the mouth may be an early sign of cancer.

During a typical checkup your dentist or dental hygienist will remove the plaque and tartar from above and below the gum line of all teeth. We believe in preventive dentistry. Our promise to you is that our office will provide you with dental care of the highest quality available, utilizing the most modern procedures and an extremely qualified staff. Please call 617 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. West Of Chesnut Project Approved

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two new buildings with a combined 169 apartments and 12,000 square feet of ground floor retail will rise in Quincy Center over the next 16 months, filling in the cavernous hole and vacant lot left behind by the city's previous master developer.

The Planning Board unanimously approved a certificate of consistency for the West of Chestnut project March 11, which confirms the proposal meets the standards laid out in the city's 2007 Urban Renewal Plan for Quincy Center.

West of Chestnut – a project undertaken by Quincy Mutual and Gate Residential – will be the first piece of private redevelopment to take place in the downtown. The project will be set in the 1400 block of Hancock Street, where previous Street-Works broke ground on its Merchants Row project in the summer of 2013 before halting the project that fall.

Quincy Mutual, an early investor in Street-Works' plan, spent much of 2014 securing the land and putting together a new plan for the site, which was unveiled last November. Work on the new project will commence this month.

"We're going to mobilize this month and break ground in earnest in April, but we're going to have activity on the site this month," Gate Residential Principal Kyle Warwick said after the board's vote.

"We are going to run in parallel on a bunch of different processes, including the design, because the design has gone from a conceptual design back in November to construction documents being worked on now. It's a process we embarked on and invested in hoping we got to this point, so everything is lining up right now and we're going to continue the momentum we created."

Once completed, both buildings in the West of Chestnut development will stand six-stories tall, with five floors of apartments sitting atop the retail space on the first floor. The 64-unit building on Hancock Street should be completed by April 2016, according to Warwick, and by June or July of next year the 105-unit building on the corner of Chestnut Street and Cottage Avenue will be finished.

"The building on Hancock will open first; we're planning on April of 2016, then later in June or July the second building on Chestnut," he said.

Apartments in the two buildings will range in size from studio to two bedrooms, and rents will be comparable with those of other apartment buildings in Quincy Center. Studio units will each be roughly 520 square feet. One-bedroom units will range in size from 680 to 750 square feet with one-bedroom units that include a den topping out at 790 square feet. Two-bedroom units will average 1,000 square feet. The largest units in the building, with two bedrooms and a den, will have 1,100 square feet of space.

Aside from the two buildings, another notable feature of the proposal is a new public road bisecting the site. Known as Chestnut Way, the one-way public road would run across the property from Chestnut Street to Hancock Street, separating the Granite Trust Building from the new Chestnut Street/Cottage Avenue building and running through the Hancock Street building.

Residents living in either of the buildings will have access to two one-story buildings housing a fitness center and clubhouse area on either side of the new Chestnut Way. A private courtyard with a dog washing station, play lawn, fire pit, and outdoor kitchen will also be available.

No retailers have signed on to the project as of yet, but Warwick said there has been a lot of activity on that front. The developers envision a combination of lifestyle and convenience retail on site, as well as a new restaurant.

"We have a lot of activity on that – lifestyle retail, convenience retail. Restaurants are also interested in the space," Warwick said. "So a nice combination I think that will supplement our internal mix of uses as well and provide activity around the edges as we provide the activity within."

An underground parking garage beneath the L-shaped building on the corner of Chestnut Street and Cottage Avenue will accommodate 75-vehicles. Thirty spaces will be available at ground level – 16 for tenants and 14 to be shared by tenants and the public. Bicycle racks will also be made available on site; the developers hope to attract professionals in their late 20s or early 30s who are more likely to rely on bicycles and public transit to get around.

The Planning Board attached 13 conditions to its approval of the project during the March 11 meeting. One condition calls for restoring the façade of the historic Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock Street.

"Repairing the historic stone on the building and waterproofing details and the like, repointing and fixing the façade over a couple-year period – more immediate on our side of Chestnut Way in the rear," Warwick responded when asked what the developers would do to the building.

"That will become part of our new way; the backside will be cleaned up and will be part of the boundary of this new way connecting Chestnut [Avenue] and Hancock."

Another conditions calls for the developers to pay for the relocation of overhead utility lines on Foster Street, Chestnut Street, and Cottage Avenue into underground conduits.

"We are undergrounding several utility lines that are on poles right now so those will go away. That's going to be on our nickel and part of our infrastructure commitment," Warwick said. "It's on city property but we're doing it."

Other conditions include substantial completion of the project by Nov. 1, 2016, with the Planning Department notified of any delays; submission of a parking management plan for any restaurant on site to the Planning Department for approval; and submission of a signage package to the Planning Department for approval before occupancy certificates are awarded.

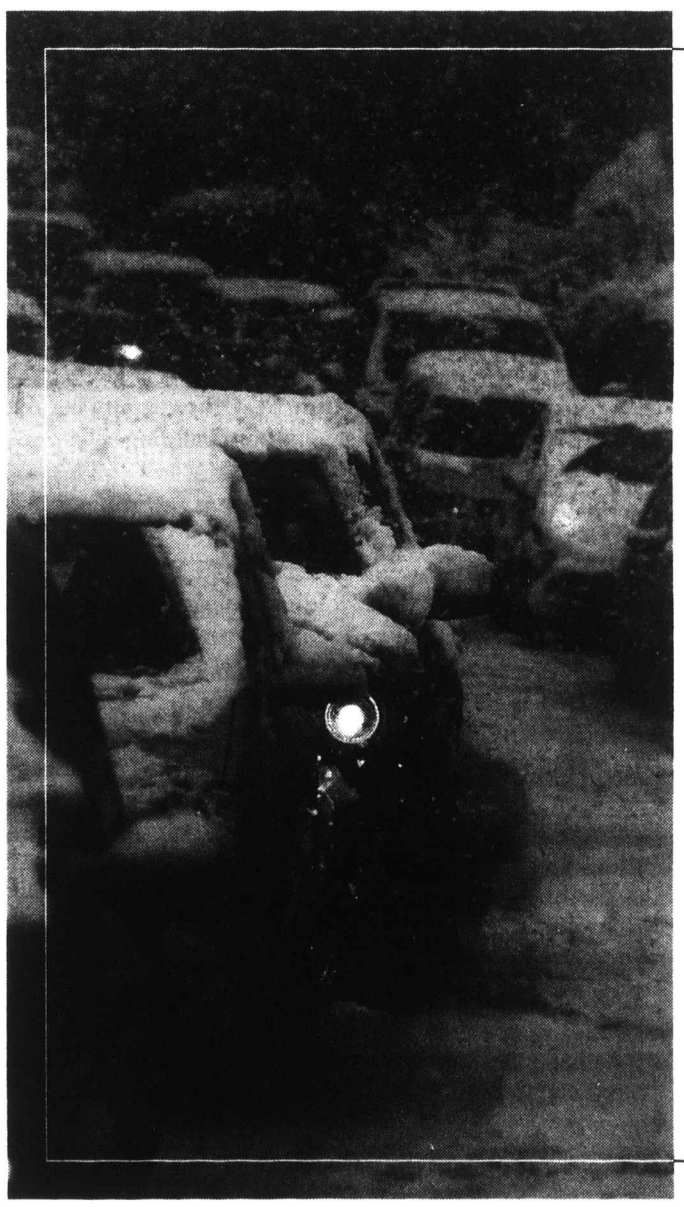
The project must also comply with a state environmental permit, which was awarded to the city in 2012 for the entirety of Street-Works' $1.6 billion downtown project and remains in effect even after the developer left town.

A public hearing on the proposal was held during the Planning Board's meeting on Jan. 21, at which time several union members urged the developers to use organized labor during construction.

After the Planning Board's vote, Warwick said the two sides have held discussions following that meeting.

"A lot of discussion," Warwick said when asked if an agreement had been reached. "To be inclusive and open is our agreement."

West of Chestnut is the first of two developments Quincy Mutual plans to undertake in Quincy Center. The second project, known as East of Chestnut, will be constructed inside the insurance company's parking lot. That development will incorporate more than 220 residential units and additional ground floor retail. There is no timetable for that proposal.



First Settled Female Minister At Church Of The Presidents To Be Installed April 12

Rev. Rebecca Heather Froom

REV. REBECCA FROOM

Members, friends, and the greater local community of United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) in historic downtown Quincy will gather Sunday, April 12 at 3:30 p.m. to celebrate the installation of the church's first settled female minister, Rev. Rebecca Heather Froom.

A Unitarian Universalist installation service recognizes that a minister is settled in a particular congregation, and highlights and reaffirms the bond between the minister and that congregation. The service becomes a call to the greater community to bear witness and to celebrate.

Rev. Froom has served as minister of the church since July 15, 2014 for this 375th year, bringing a renewed commitment to spiritual practice and social justice. She, along with the elected leaders of the UFPC Board, have chosen as their special 375th Anniversary project, the formation of an Archives Committee and staff to examine, catalog, study and share the contents of the church's extensive historical records and archival materials.

Rev. Froom is the 35th minister installed at the church since its formation in 1636, and the first female. The community is invited to attend this historic installation.

United First Parish Church is located in Quincy Square at 1306 Hancock St.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday March 11, 2015, at approximately 9:50 p.m., Officers Andrew Keenan, Joseph Paccioretti and Paul Foley, with his K9 unit, were dispatched to a Water Street address on a report of a "Breaking and Entering in progress." As the Officers were en route, the Dispatcher informed them that the female caller stated that a man was trying to gain access to their house from the rear door.

Upon arrival, the Officers immediately proceeded to the rear of the house but no one was there. Officers Foley and Keenan met with the caller/resident, who excitedly said, "Someone just tried to break into my house." She gave a thorough description and direction of the male suspect's flight. She said that he fled down Water Street toward Brook Road.

At this time, the caller's upstairs neighbor came down to report that he also saw someone at her back door. He confirmed the description, adding that the suspect ran into Kincaide Park. Officer Foley attempted a track with his K9 unit, Rex while Officer Keenan interviewed the victim in depth as to what happened.

The victim said she heard her dog barking at the rear door and that her dog only barks when someone is at the door. As she went to check the door with her 11 year old daughter, the banging on the door started up again and then the door knob began to turn. As the door began to open, she slammed the door shut and then grabbed a knife from the kitchen for protection. She put the dead bolt on when the door began to open again. Fearing that the male would force open the door, she said she opened the door armed with the knife and confronted the male. The male said, "Hey you get high?" She yelled no and to leave her house. The dog began to bark and the suspect said, "Hey let me in I'm afraid of your dog. You have to let me in." This made no sense since the dog was in the house and she wasn't going to put the dog out to let him in.

It was at this point that her upstairs neighbor came out to see what was going on and the suspect fled. The caller said that she would "absolutely be able to identify the guy if I saw him again." The upstairs neighbor said that he was alerted initially because the dog was barking and there was yelling. He went out to his back porch and saw the male on the porch and then saw him flee.

LT. DAN MINTON

After gathering information from the victim and the witness, Officer Keenan joined Officer Foley as he attempted to track the suspect. Officer Foley's tracking led them to the area of Water Street towards Brook Road, where they located a male who fit the description given by both witnesses.

Officer Foley read the suspect his Miranda rights and explained the reasoning for the stop. The suspect stated he understood his rights and was willing to talk. When asked where he was coming from, the suspect said, "I was walking around -I had to go around." Since this made no sense, he was asked again and he said, "Back home - I had to go around." He was very evasive in his answers. Officer Foley asked him about his encounter with the caller and the suspect said, "Man I was just asking her if," then paused and blurted out, "Man I don't know I'm f@#$%^ up." Officer Keenan noticed a pocket knife clipped to the suspect's left front pocket.

As the Officer removed the knife, the suspect stated, "I'm not going to lie man - I have a pipe on me." He added that he used it to smoke "a little weed." When the Officer removed the pipe, he immediately recognized it as a pipe commonly used for smoking crack cocaine. When confronted with this observation, the suspect said, "Yeah man - that's my crack pipe. I was just smoking crack. I'm not going to lie." As the Officers were speaking with the suspect, a female approached the Officers and said, "I can't let him go to jail alone. Arrest me too." She said she was the suspect's girlfriend, adding, "I was smoking crack with him too - you have to arrest me with him." She was instructed to sit down on the curb until the Officers were finished with the suspect. She interrupted by saying, "I think I have warrants and we were all just smoking crack in the house." A quick warrant check showed that she did not have any warrants, so she was sent on her way.

The victim was brought to the scene and identified the male as the suspect. The suspect, a 50 year old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest and charged with, "Breaking and Entering in the Nighttime for a Felony and Possession of a Class B drug (Subsequent offense). He was found guilty of Possession of a Class B substance in South Boston District Court in 2005. Nice Work!

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICES? No – actually it is the INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, with no "S" at the end. Citizens across the country are receiving recorded calls claiming to be the Internal Revenue Service. The obvious giveaway that it is a scam is that the caller refers to the IRS as "services." The recording states that this is the final notice and that the IRS "will be filing a law suit against you." Again, this should be a sign of a scam because the IRS does not file law suits against individuals. As for the "final notice," you should be questioning how this could be the final notice since you have not received any notices to this point. The IRS will find you if they want you. Based on past tax returns, they know your address and where you work. VERY IMPORTANT: the IRS does not call you – a letter is sent with instructions to call them. If in doubt of the telephone number, use "google" to verify it. The area code used by the scammer is from the Seattle area.

Frances Gibson Hockey, 84

A memorial service for Frances Gibson Hockey, 84, of Quincy will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Salvation Army Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Hockey died March 11 after a brief illness.

She was born September 7, 1930, in Rossie, N.Y. She was the daughter of the late Paul and Hazel Gibson of Rossie, N.Y., and sister to the late Stanley Gibson of Oxbow, N.Y.

She was the loving mother to her sons Timothy of Lowell, David of Whitman, and Daniel and Steven, both of Quincy. She is also survived by daughters-in-law

FRANCES HOCKEY

Shirley of Lowell and Jennifer of Quincy. She was grandmother to Christian Hockey, Shannon Hockey, Erin Hockey, Kyra Hockey, Tyler McDaniel, Shawn and Theresa Burke and the late Steven Hockey. She is also survived by her nieces Penny and Karen, Louis, Joy and nephew Larry. She was the former spouse of the late Robert Hockey of NY.

Mrs. Hockey was a long-term survivor of polio and despite her handicap, raised four boys and went on to finish her bachelor's degree in social work from Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy. She previously worked for and was a member of the Salvation Army. She enjoyed collecting teddy bears, family gatherings, had a biting wit and great sense of humor, and was an avid reader.

Memorial donations may be made to the Quincy Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Janet M. Connolly, 53

A funeral Mass for Janet M. Connolly, 53, of Quincy, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Ms. Connolly died peacefully Monday after a long, courageous battle with cancer at her brother Gerald's home, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Dorchester, raised and educated in Quincy and graduated from North Quincy High School, Class of 1980.

Ms. Connolly was employed in the healthcare industry for many years as a certified nursing assistant and medical biller.

She enjoyed bike riding and the outdoors. Janet was devoted to her family and especially to her nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephew.

Beloved daughter of the late Barbara A. (Carroll) and Patrick L. Connolly, Boston Police Dept., Retired.

Devoted sister of Patrick L. Connolly, Jr. and his wife Maureen of Duxbury, Brian J. Connolly of Boston, Douglas J. Connolly of Quincy, Gary F. Connolly of Quincy, Gerald V. Claire B. Briere, 95

A funeral Mass for Claire B. (Boucher) Briere, 95, of Westford and formerly Quincy was celebrated March 14 in St. Catherine of Alexandria Church, Westford.

Mrs. Briere died March 11 at the Westford House after a brief illness.

She was born in Westford on March 21, 1919, a daughter of the late Eugene and Bertha (Milot) Boucher. Mrs. Briere was a longtime resident of Westford and was formerly of Quincy. She attended Westford Academy and was a parishioner of St. Catherine of Alexandria Parish.

Prior to her retirement, she was employed at Westford Anodizing for several years. Earlier in her life, while residing in Quincy, she was employed in sales at the Bargain Center in Quincy for 20 years. Mrs. Briere was a member of the Cameron Senior Center in Westford and enjoyed reading and music. Her greatest joy was spending time with her family and friends.

Wife of the late Leo J. Briere. She is survived by her two children, Elaine Hickey and her husband John of Westford and Robert Briere and his wife Judith of North Weymouth; six grandchildren, Lisa Koch and her husband Edward of VA, Lori Bancroft and her husband Ronald of Pepperell, Leslie Doherty and her husband Jonathan of Westford, John Hickey and his wife Kristel of Tyngsboro, Michelle Gaudette and her husband Scott of NH and Stephen R. Briere of NY; and also 14 great-grandchildren, three great great-grandchildren, a niece, Paula Brule of Westford, one great niece and one great nephew. She was the sister of the late Gisele "Lou" Brule who passed away Sept. 28, 2011, and Lana M. Boucher who passed away March 6, 2015, and aunt of the late C. Lana Boyd.

Funeral arrangements were made by Healy Funeral Home, Westford.

Interment at St. Catherine Cemetery, Westford.

Memorial donations may be made to Friends of Cameron Senior Center, P.O. Box 2223, Westford, MA 01886.

include an exercise room, storage space for each unit, and bicycle racks.

Currently there are 79 parking spaces on the site, which is just a six-minute walk from the T.

Edgewood is proposing 90 spaces, equaling almost two assigned parking spots per unit.

"We don't anticipate a parking problem," said Higgins.

Problematic, said some at the meeting, was the parking situation at the Hamilton Building apartment complex across the street.

Since the high-rise charges for parking in its lot, tenants of that building began parking in the lot of the old Central Middle School following its closure as a way to avoid parking fees.

"When the school closed, it was immediately a parking area for the building across the street," said Charles deVarennes who lives on nearby Bridge Street. "Once you displace that, they'll be on Butler Road and Bridge Street."

"I think we, as residents near these places, have to consider the impact when a project like this comes in," he said. "Even though they conform to have two spaces per unit, who's to say there's not three cars that are going to be living in that space. It's the way of the world. Everyone has a car."

His concerns stemmed from an incident in which he was injured and due to cars parked in the area surrounding his home an emergency vehicle was delayed in reaching him.

Nearby Interfaith Social Services also contributes to traffic and parking congestion in the area, he said.

"They service 60,000 people a year," he said. "There's a huge influx of cars."

Despite this, deVarennes said he was happy to see the building being repurposed rather than being torn down.

"Preserve it if you can," he said.

One woman who declined to give her name said she was pleased to see the building turned into condos rather than apartments but was worried 90 spaces just wouldn't cut it.

"They park in front of [the old Central] building, they park on Butler Road and I'm just afraid if they don't allow enough parking for this project that the people will start parking out in the street again," she said.

Future discussions with the city's Affordable Housing Trust Fund Committee will dictate whether developers plan on providing affordable units within the building or plan on making a payment in lieu of to the trust to go toward city projects.

In Quincy, all residential developments with more than ten units must either include one unit per ten of affordable housing or pay the trust fund directly.

The proposal must now go before the Planning Board for site plan approval, the Zoning board of Appeals, and the Conservation Commission.

Abutters within 300 feet of the site will receive notification of all scheduled meetings involving the project.

Developers estimate construction will begin within the next two to three months and will conclude by next spring.

Houghs Neck Church Yard Sale Saturday

Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., will host its annual Giant Indoor Yard Sale on Saturday, March 21 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The sale will include knick-knacks, glassware, small kitchen appliances and accessories and small furniture. Some clothing in good condition, bedding and curtains will also be for sale.

There will also be books, toys and tools.

An all-day snack bar will start with Ralph's famous breakfast sandwiches.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church

The Sunday morning worship service at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. starts at 10 a.m.

Pastor Felix Carrion will lead the service and preach the sermon "Our Spiritual Resources." Janice Hughes and Molly Jacobs will serve for the Diaconate. Nancy Jacobs, Liturgist, will call to worship and read the scripture lesson. The newly formed children's choir will sing "Don't Build Your House on the Sandy Land" under the direction of Minister of Music Steve Reed.

Following the pastor's children's message the Sunday school and nursery begin. A coffee hour hosted by the Jacobs family will follow the service.

Thursday evenings at 7 pm Hatha Yoga class takes place in Fellowship Hall with Linda Beck, certified teacher. Bring water, a mat and $5.

O'Donnell Warns Homeowners Of Deed Scam

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell is warning homeowners about a direct-mail solicitation deed scam.

According to O'Donnell, some Norfolk County residents have received direct-mail solicitations offering them a certified copy of their property deed for an "outrageous fee" of anywhere from $59.50 to $83.00.

Providing a certified copy of property deeds is a service provided by the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds for a charge of only $1 per page plus an additional $1 for postage in the case of a request received by mail. Average Registry fee for providing a certified copy of a deed is usually $2.

A recent example cited by O'Donnell was a deed solicitation received by a Weymouth resident from a private company in California. The solicitation was labeled Recorded Deed Notice and requested the homeowner forward a check to them in the amount of $83 for a copy of the homeowner's deed. In this case, the Weymouth resident would have been charged $3 by the Registry for providing a mailed copy of the deed, $2 if the resident had picked it up at the Registry.

"While the practice may be legal, it's certainly not ethical," said O'Donnell. "These direct-mail companies are preying upon the innocent assumptions of Norfolk County residents, many of them first-time homeowners. Consumers are interpreting these notices as a bill, since they have a due date. I urge Norfolk County citizens not to fall prey to these types of misleading deed scam advertisements."

Those who receive such a deed solicitation notice are asked to contact the Registry's Customer Service Department immediately at (781) 461-6101 or by email at registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org.

Additionally, homeowners who desire a copy of their deed should also contact the Registry's Customer Service Department. The Registry will provide a copy of a deed for a nominal fee of usually $2.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Department via telephone at (781) 461-6101, or on the web at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Marathoner Patrick Foley Raising Funds For Hospital Cancer Center

For the sixth year in a row, Quincy's Patrick Foley will be running the Boston Marathon and collecting money for charity with a night of food, music, and prize raffles on Saturday, March 28 at J.J. Foley's Cafe in Boston.

Foley has run the marathon for the last 10 years. He began collecting money for charity six years ago.

Proceeds from this year's event will go to the Massachusetts General Hospital Cancer Center.

The fund raiser will run 7-11 p.m. at 117 E. Berkeley St., Boston. Donations of any amount will be taken at the door.

"It's always such a big hit for us," said Foley.

Raffle items will include Boston Red Sox tickets, New England Patriots tickets, JetBlue Airways tickets, restaurant gift certificates and more.

The fund raiser has brought in $145,000 to date, said Foley, and always draws a big crowd.

Mitigating Water Leaks

Question: I've read that ice dams and roof damage can lead to water leaks, but how can I find them? And what can I do if I find a leak? -- Janice L., Portsmouth, N.H.

Answer: If you've noticed ice buildup along your eaves outside, it's a good idea to check inside in those same areas for water leaks. Take a flashlight and go to the part of the house that's as close as possible to the suspect area. Using the flashlight, check the wall and ceiling for light-brown water spots or streaks. If you see them, a leak likely has been occurring for a few days.

Run your hand along the wall and ceiling around the area, whether you see water spots or not (stand on a stepladder, not a chair or furniture). If the drywall or ceiling plaster feels damp, cold or a bit spongy in one spot, a leak may be forming. If you smell mildew or mold in an area, dampness is a problem and may be caused by a leak. Mark this and other potential problem areas with a pencil or blue painter's tape.

A leak needs to be addressed as soon as possible. Contact a roofing professional to schedule an inspection and get a quote to remove the ice dams and repair the roof, as well as seal up leaks.

Before the contractor arrives, start minimizing the water damage indoors. Open up the wall or ceiling a bit to let water flow through freely. In the ceiling, punch a small hole in the center of the damp or water-stained area with a nail, and place a bucket underneath to catch drips.

Leaks behind a wall are more complicated: Often a section of drywall needs to be cut away, as close to the leak source as possible, and a bucket or pan placed beneath the drip. If you have no experience repairing or replacing drywall, enlist an experienced friend or call a contractor to quickly stop further damage until the roof can be repaired. You also may need to contact an electrician to make sure any wiring in a leak-affected area is OK.

TIP: To avoid dampness or leaks in the cellar, shovel snow a foot or two away from the foundation when possible.

Jokes Abound At Annual St. Patrick's Day Luncheon

Event Raises Money For Quincy Parks Conservancy

By SCOTT JACKSON

More than 300 attended the city's annual St. Patrick's Day Luncheon and were served a sizable portion of corned beef, cabbage, and jokes.

The $50 per plate luncheon was held March 13 at the Tirrell Room on Quarry Street. Proceeds from the event benefited the Quincy Parks Conservancy, which is raising funds for a new loop track at Faxon Park.

Speakers at the luncheon hit on three main topics: This year's mayoral race between incumbent Thomas Koch, Councillor Doug Gutro, and School Committee member Anne Mahoney, the record-breaking snowfall seen this winter, and plans to revitalize Quincy Center.

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti, who emceed the event with Koch, worked all three into his opening salvo.

"Squantum Point Park, that big snow park, have you all seen it? Why didn't we just put all that snow in the hole in Quincy Center? I'm confused – it would have evened out," the sheriff quipped.

"There are a few things that we're going to find when that snow melts right around Labor Day. We're going to find Doug Gutro's political career underneath it – they're running for mayor, I don't really mean it, but they are targets. Ron Mariano's last opponent will be under the snow. Bill Delahunt's bong will be under the snow. And (former Ward 3 councillor) Larry Chretien – has anyone seen Larry Chretien in 10 years?"

"The sheriff reminds me of my neighborhood," Koch replied. "I live in North Quincy and every year we have some new chins that move in. The sheriff is quite familiar with that hole in Quincy Center because he's fallen into it about four times coming out of Alba's."

Bellotti later joked about Mahoney's base of supporters.

"If Anne Mahoney wins this year she will be hosting this next year with 6,000 of her Facebook friends. People who haven't been out of their house in 20 years will be coming here for Anne Mahoney's luncheon," he said. "They'll come once and go back in their house for 30 more years after that."

Bellotti wasn't alone in joking about the mayor's race. David Murphy, the chairman of the Quincy Parks Conservancy, held up a blown up photo of Gutro kissing an elderly woman at an event last fall that Murphy claimed was from celebrity gossip website TMZ.

"This is a man that will do virtually anything on the campaign trail," Murphy joked.

Murphy also ribbed Koch for the downtown project, telling the crowd the mayor has visited several cities that will serve as role models when Quincy moves forward on new plans.

"He has been very busy; as you know, the city is taking a bit of a different tact on the downtown. His travel schedule has increased dramatically," Murphy said. "I know he was in Newark, N.J., Detroit, Mich., and Atlantic City looking for some role models for our downtown."

During his appearance at the event, Gutro read a letter he said he sent to Gov. Charlie Baker asking him to appoint Koch to a new job with the state.

"Think of all the friends you'll make here in Quincy. There of course is me [and] another dear friend, Anne Mahoney, who feels the exact same way about this. There is someone else here in Quincy who will think hiring Tom Koch onto your team is the best thing ever that has been done by anyone, anywhere. That's Bill Phelan," Gutro said.

"It's a pretty incredible opportunity, governor. You'll make Tom Koch happy, which will make his family happy. You'll make Bill Phelan happy, which will make his family happy. Bringing the Kochs and Phelans together will be better in Quincy than melting any of the snow. No one has ever been able to do it and you can."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall got in on the action, making light of those who blame everything on Koch.

"He's been taking a lot of flak for everything around town – the fire at City Hall, the FEMA flood maps and pretty much everything else. The most alarming thing was the MBTA. Believe me, I'm a rider, I'm on there everyday but I thought that might have been a little bit of a stretch," Croall said.

"But then I started to think about it and what I did was no called, no showed into work for about nine days. My boss called me up and said 'Croall, where the hell are you?' I said it's Mayor Koch's fault. I started to realize quickly that I got a free pass there so I started applying the same line of reasoning into all of my daily activities. I haven't paid my National Grid bill in about six weeks and I figure when they shake me down I'll just blame that on Mayor Koch. I'm going to leave here today, my car is unregistered and uninsured. God forbid I get pulled over but I'll just blame it on Mayor Koch.

"I'll eventually arrive home to my beautiful wife who is pregnant and probably walking across the hardwood floor barefoot happy, sad, glad, angry. God knows what is going to come down the pike, but when she unleashes the beast I'm just going to blame it on Mayor Koch."

Koch poked back at The Patriot Ledger for how it covered the impact of snowstorms in Quincy this winter. In particular, he took aim at an editorial that scolded him for not wanting to fine residents who don't shovel their sidewalks; businesses that don't shovel can be fined.

"The Ledger, they think it only snowed in Quincy the way the coverage has been," Koch said. "They did an extensive editorial about how I should be, as mayor, fining Mrs. Jones if she doesn't shovel her sidewalk – put an ordinance in and enforce the sidewalks for safety."

"I happened to take a ride up to Crown Colony. Anyone ever seen the Ledger headquarters at the big, beautiful 400 Crown Colony Drive with the sidewalk unshoveled?" the mayor said, showing a large photo of the Crown Colony building with the sidewalks clearly still covered in snow.

"It's going to make The Quincy Sun front page," Bellotti chimed in, "because he did shovel the sidewalk."

A couple favorite bits from years past returned again this year. Bellotti handed out "Thank You Notes," in the style of Tonight Show host Jimmy Fallon.

"Thank you, Boston 2024, for giving us 7,500 more reasons not to like Deval Patrick," Bellotti joked. "Can you believe they're paying Deval Patrick $7,500 to travel the world to be our ambassador a day? Wouldn't it be better for all of us if we just paid him five grand to stay home?

"Thank you, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, for not being here.

"Thank you, Quincy voters, for giving us 30 years of sober mayors, driving the rest of us to drink.

"Thank you, dad, for giving me a name that allows me to do this every year and still stay elected."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest brought back her "You Might Be A Necka" routine, her riff on Jeff Foxworthy's "You Might Be A Redneck."

"If your house doesn't have curtains but your boat does, you might be a Necka," she said. "If you consider any trip across Southern Artery going abroad, you might be a Necka. If the dogcatcher calls for backup when visiting your house, you might be a Necka. If you prefer to burn your lawn rather than mow it, you might be a Necka.

"If Yellow Cab won't drive you past the Adams Shore library, you're not a Necka – you're from Germantown. If you enter Campbell's Soup brand clam chowder as your own at the Houghs Neck ChowdaFest, you are not a Necker. If Quincy Bay is frozen and you think it's a short cut to Boston, you are not a Necka. If you have ever caught fish at the Nut Island treatment plant in Houghs Neck and tried to sell it at the Asian supermarkets, you are definitely not a Necka."

Automobiles Need Seasonal Checkups

Recommendations From AAA

With the change of seasons most people examine their wardrobes. Last season's winter coat is inspected for wear, and boots, sweaters and wool slacks go back in the closet and the warm weather clothes come out of storage.

AAA reminds motorists that cars also need seasonal checkups.

AAA recommends that motorists use a simple checklist to determine their car's spring and summer maintenance needs. Most of the items on the checklist can be inspected by car owners in less than an hour, but several others should be performed by a certified technician.

John Paul, AAA's Southern New England's Car Doctor, suggests the following items should be on your spring car care checklist:

Battery and Charging System – Have the battery and charging system tested by a trained technician. A fully charged battery in good condition is required to start an engine during this past winter, but most people don't realize it is summer heat that can cause a battery to fail with little warning.

Battery Cables and Terminals – Check the condition of the battery cables and terminals. Make sure all connections are secure and remove any corrosion from the terminals and posts.

Drive Belts – Inspect belts for cracks or fraying. Don't just look at the smooth top surface of the belt, but turn it over and check the grooved underside where most belt wear occurs.

Engine Hoses –Visually inspect the cooling system hoses for leaks, cracks or loose clamps. Also, squeeze the hoses to check for any that may be brittle or excessively spongy feeling and in need of replacement. Don't be that driver with the car that overheats this summer.

Tire Type and Tread – If you put winter tires on, it is time to replace them with your summer set. If you keep the same tires on your car, spring is a great time to inspect the tires and wheels for damage caused by potholes.

Once the potholes are filled in, it is time to have the car's wheel alignment checked. At the same time the garage will check the vehicle's suspension for wear and damage. If the car has a vibration, consider wheel balance to prevent further wear to the tires. This is also a great time to check your car's spare tire and jack.

Tire Pressure – Check tire pressure frequently even during the warm weather months. The proper tire pressure levels can be found on a sticker located on the driver's side door jamb. And, don't forget to check the air in the spare tire. Temporary spare tires will generally have much higher tire pressure.

Air Filter – Check the engine's air filter by holding it up to a 60-watt light bulb. If light can be seen through much of the filter, it is still clean enough to work effectively. However, if the light is blocked by most of the filter, replace it.

The engine air filter is not the only air filter in the car. Many cars today have cabin air filters. A blocked cabin air filter will reduce heater/defroster efficiency.

Coolant Levels – Check the coolant level when the engine is cold. If the coolant level is low, add a 50/50 solution of coolant and water to not only maintain the necessary antifreeze capability but also help against overheating by raising the coolant boiling point. The level of antifreeze protection can be checked with an inexpensive tester available at any auto parts store. Today car engines use many different types of engine coolant. Follow the car's owner's manual to use the proper type.

Lights – Check the operation of all headlights, taillights, emergency flashers, turn signals, brake lights and back-up lights. Replace any burnt out bulbs. Winter potholes are tough on vehicle lamps

Wiper Blades – Blades should completely clear the glass with each swipe. Replace blades that leave streaks or miss spots. Good wipers are necessary for spring showers

Washer Fluid – Fill the windshield washer fluid reservoir with a premixed cleaning solution. Washer fluid works much better than plain water.

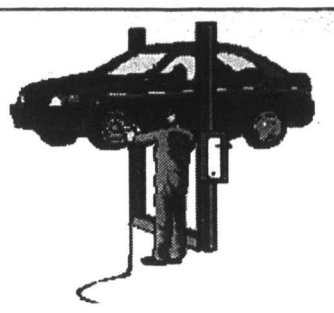
Brakes – Have brakes inspected by a certified technician to ensure all components are in good working order.

Transmission, Brake and Power Steering Fluids – Check all fluids to ensure they are at or above the minimum safe levels.

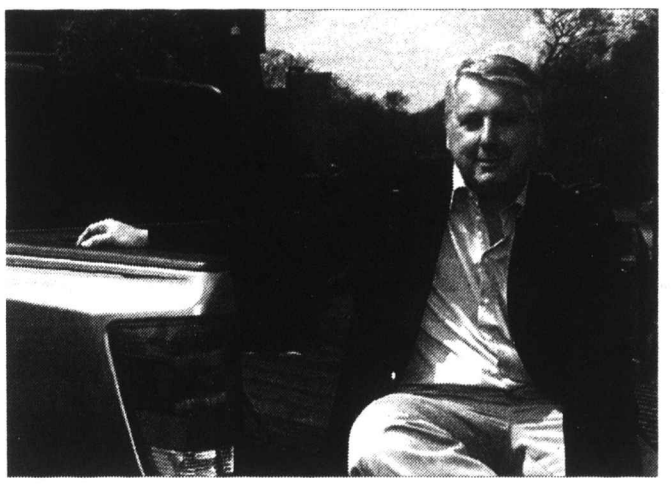
Emergency Road Kit – Update the car's emergency kit for summer weather. The kit should include:

Flashlight with extra batteries
Window washer solvent
Premixed engine coolant
Ice scraper
Cloth or roll of paper towels
Jumper cables
Work gloves
Warning devices (flares or triangles)
Drinking water
Non-perishable snacks (energy or granola bars)
First-aid kit & necessary medications
Basic toolkit (screwdrivers, pliers, adjustable wrench, duct tape)
Mobile phone car charger

SPRING CAR CARE



Ask John Paul: AAA's Car Doctor



JOHN PAUL - AAA's Car Doctor

Question: My wife has a 2013 Honda Accord EX-L, which is about 18 months old and has just less than 8,000 miles on it. It is garaged in an under-the-house garage that is not heated but that does not freeze or get very cold.

Recently, because of the weather she did not use it for about ten days or less. When she went to start it, the battery was too dead to start the car. It started after a charge and has worked since then. After a little driving, the car was taken to the dealer, who checked it and found the battery to be mostly charged and with no drain when the power was off. The dealer said it was not uncommon for a good battery to drain in as little after 10 days of standing. Doesn't sound right to me but is it?

As an aside, my 2006 Subaru Outback sits outside and the 8-year-old battery, to which I have paid no attention, starts the car with no trouble.

Answer: In the case of your car I don't think the problem was the car sitting for 10 days but more that in the past 18 months the car only has been driven 8,000 miles. What could be happening is due to your wife's driving habits the battery is not getting fully recharged after each start. Then combining the period of inactivity and some parasitic drain the battery became discharged to the point that the car didn't start.

Most cars have some constant drain on the battery but in general it less than 50 milliamps (0.050 ampere) drain. Considering the reserve capacity of an original equipment Honda battery it should stay charged for at least a month.

Question: We bought a 2014 Camry last summer, and have put nearly 9,000 miles on it. Our problem is that, with a mix of city and highway driving the average miles per gallon is barely 20 (as shown on the dashboard gauge and self-calculated.) At lower speeds, the car feels a little sluggish in its response.

Could this have an impact on the mileage? Are there any other things we could look at to improve mileage? The dealer said there were no issues it could find, but we are frustrated with the poor mileage.

Answer: The EPA rates the Toyota Camry at 25/35 and 28 MPG combined for the four-cylinder model and 21/31 and 25 MPG for the six-cylinder model. Before I went looking for additional problems I still would want to see a few more miles on the car.

I have seen some cars not

NQHS Hockey Hall Of Fame Welcomes 18 New Inductees

16 Former Players, Two Friends Inducted

The North Quincy High School Hockey Hall of Fame recently inducted its fourth class at a ceremony held at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. Over 220 people filled with friends, family and former players came together to celebrate the induction of 16 former players and two Friends of the program

Hall of Fame member Jim Fatseas hosted the evening, opening the night with a brief history of the NQHS program covering the mid 1940s, playing games and practices on outdoor ice, to the building of the Youth Hockey rink to today's program.

Present Head Coach Matt Gibbons introduced his co-captains Mike Finn, Matt Monahan and Andrew Kiley and provided a recap of this past season.

Committee member Al Grazioso brought up the two friends of NQHS Hockey. Dick Riley took the stage to accept on behalf of his late wife Janet. Janet was an unbelievable supporter of both high schools, but had a special place for North Quincy. Whether it was finding extra ice time for the team, words of encouragement coming into a game or practice, Janet was always there, a fixture at the rink.

Vinnie Cameron inducted close friend Dave Sommers as NQHS Hockey Hall of Fame's second Friend. Dave was a manager for various sports, with a passion for hockey. Dave rarely missed any sporting event during his school years and stands true even today. Whether at a rink, in the gym, or around a backstop Dave was always there. A very positive attitude was and is his trademark.

The first group of inductees was the class of 1948. These three gentlemen were part of the founding fathers of the program. They went before the school committee without a coach or any equipment and proposed the NQHS Hockey be considered a varsity sport. Those three were Bob Richards, Bert Nogler and Bunky Chafe. Nogler told of finding some wrenches to open up a fire hydrant to flood an area in Montclair to practice and play pickup hockey.

HOF member Peter Gill inducted class of 1951 star

Dick Gallagher. Rick Gallagher accepted on behalf of his late dad.

Fred Cobban a Hockey and Football HOF member welcomed two new players from the 1960s. George "Rick" Jakub (1965), and former Quincy Public School educator Dave Higgins (1961) accepted their honor.

Grazioso and Cameron presented Mick Struzik (1971), Bobby Golden (1971) and Dave Noonan (1974). Another emotional moment came when Dave Losordo went up to receive his younger brother Keith's award posthumously. Keith passed away shortly after high school in a motorcycle accident. Keith was a talented player, leader and captain of the 1972 team.

Former Coach Kevin Jago brought up two of his former stars Pete Furtado (1985) and Jay Rodriguez (1988). Jay and Peter were part of a strong group that returned NQHS Hockey to relevance in the 1980s, securing a number of Tourney berths.

Bob Doyle a very successful coach in his own right with many post season appearances shared stories and moments of accomplishment with his group including John Gladu (1993), Brendan O'Brien (1995), Mike Sullivan (1999) and Paul Graham (2005).

Each inductee had a moment to speak about their High School experience and thank those that helped them reach this special level. A reunion like atmosphere filled the Neighborhood Club in Qincy.

The Committee would encourage anyone who feels a former player or Friend they deem worthy of the Hall of Fame, to nominate that person. Nominations may be submitted via email to Kevin Jago at Kevinj.bos@transgroup.com, Fred Cobban at fcobban@comcast.net or Sandy Verhault at Verhaultsandy@gmail.com.

Registration For Spring Programs At YMCA

The South Shore YMCA announces registration for spring programs at its Quincy Branch and Emilson Branch in Hanover will open Tuesday, March 24th at 8:30 a.m. for YMCA members and Friday, March 27th at 8:30 a.m. for non-members.

The spring program session runs from April 6th to June 20th and is 10 weeks.

The South Shore YMCA's Quincy and Emilson branches are offering a wide range of programs for all ages, interests and ability levels. From swim lessons and recreational sports to inclusion programs and April vacation activities, the Y's Quincy & Emilson Branches have programs available that meet the needs of all children, teens, adults and seniors.

Branch specific Spring Program Guides, which contain a full listing of all program offerings for the Spring session at the Y's Quincy and Hanover locations, are available on the South Shore YMCA's website, ssymca.org.

Quincy Lions Run/Walk May 9

The Quincy Lions Club 18th Annual Run/Walk for Sight will be held Saturday, May 9 at Pageant Field.

Online registration for the Run/Walk is open.

Registration at the event starts at 7:30 a.m. A Kids Fun Run begins at 8 a.m. and is free to children under age 12.

The main race will start at 9 a.m.

For over 70 years, the Quincy Lions Club has been serving the Quincy community. In addition to providing hundreds of area residents with free vision and basic health screenings each year, the club annually awards thousands of dollars in college scholarships to graduating seniors from Quincy and North Quincy High School.

The Quincy Lions Club Run/ Walk is the Club's signature fundraising event, and 100% of the proceeds raised support the club's community outreach initiatives. Visit www.quincy-lions.org/5k-run-walk-for-sight for registration and sponsorship information.

Lions Clubs International is the world's largest service club organization with more than 1.3 million members in approximately 45,000 clubs in more than 200 countries and geographical areas around the world. Since 1917, Lions clubs have aided the blind and visually impaired and made a strong commitment to community service and serving youth throughout the world. Five Local Runners On Dana-Farber Marathon Team

Five Quincy residents will be running the 119th Boston Marathon as members of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team.

The five residents – Maureen Bolton, Oscar Carlos, Kristen Ihde, Christopher Nix and Thomas Ward – will be among the nearly 575 Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge teammates from across the United States and around the world who will run Massachusetts' historic marathon route from Hopkinton to Boston with a goal to raise $5.2 million for cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Invitational runners, runners who receive their entry from Dana-Farber, have a fundraising commitment of $4,000.

Own entry runners, runners who have joined the DFMC after obtaining their own race entry, have a fundraising commitment of $3,500.

A cornerstone of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge is its Partner Program. Each year, approximately 50 current and former pediatric cancer patients of Dana-Farber's Jimmy Fund Clinic are paired with DFMC runners as "Patient Partners". For the young patients, their partnerships with Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge runners provide a unique and friendly focus outside their illnesses.

Another two dozen Partner Program families are paired with runners through the "In-Memory Program" in remembrance of their children's brave struggle with the disease. All of the children and families in the Partner Program serve as special motivation for the entire DFMC team.

The Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge is one of multiple ways runners can support the lifesaving mission of Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Participants can run on the Dana-Farber team in the Boston Marathon, the B.A.A. 5K, the Falmouth Road Race, and the B.A.A Half Marathon, or run in any race, of any distance, in any city, while raising funds for Dana-Farber and the Jimmy Fund. For more information visit RunDanaFarber.org.

This year marks the 26th annual running of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge. One hundred percent of the money raised by the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team funds Dana-Farber's Claudia Adams Barr Program in Innovative Basic Cancer Research. The Barr Program supports uniquely promising science research in its earliest stages, providing researchers with critical resources to test their leading-edge ideas. Findings from Barr Program research can provide the results necessary to seek additional federal funding as well as novel clinical insights.

To contribute to the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge, go online to www.RunDFMC.org or contact the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge office at (617) 632-1970 or dfmc@dfci.harvard.edu.

Best Yet To Come For QHS Diver Bailee Carey

Sophomore Has Already Medalled At Sectionals, States

By BILL GRIFFIN

The image of the diver is a solitary one, a gifted athlete standing alone on a platform.

There is no one there to help her. No coach. No teammates. Just her. She must handle the nerves and the pressure of the moment by herself. She has practiced her routine for endless hours, but she still must summon a rare mix of calm, skill, and grace under pressure to precisely execute her dive.

BAILEE CAREY

Quincy High sophomore Bailee Carey has done all this, and she has done it remarkably well for someone who didn't begin diving until she was 13. As a freshman and sophomore, she has twice qualified for sectionals and twice qualified for states. She has combined and combined well the physical and mental demands of her sport at a young age.

"There is a special pressure that goes with diving," said her diving coach Ruth Langton. "It's difficult especially for an underclassman like Bailee. A diver must be able to block out everything and find that calm place for herself before she dives. It's hard. A diver needs her own routine to get ready. Bailee has one that works for her."

It involves music and exercise.

"There is pressure, especially before the first dive," said Carey. "I listen to a lot of music and I do jumping jacks. I think the music is what helps most finding that place I need to be to dive. It calms me. The nerves are still there on the platform, but after the first dive, I'm relaxed and more confident."

The results are impressive. As a freshman, she finished sixth in the states. As a sophomore, she lost just one dual meet and that was by a single point. She took second in the Patriot League meet, seventh in the sectionals and eighth in the states.

In the sectionals and states, the top eight take the podium and are presented medals. In two years, in four chances, Carey has been on the podium three times. This is especially meaningful because the sport is traditionally dominated by upperclassmen who have been diving for years. Not only is Carey only a sophomore, she has only been diving since age 13. The best is yet to come.

"Finishing sixth in the states as a freshman has definitely been the high point for me," said Carey "It meant a lot to be on the podium because most of the girls were a lot older, and I was able to compete with them."

"It is rare for a diver to accomplish so much as a sophomore," said Langton.

Carey enjoyed swimming, tumbling, and gymnastics when she was younger. The transition to diving was a natural one. The inspiration came from the magic of the Olympics.

"I was watching the Olympics on TV and the flips and twirls were amazing," said Carey. "The divers were doing them off a 10-meter board which is like three stories high. I decided that I wanted to experience some of that. I love to fly in the air."

Carey's strengths are her entry and her dives towards the board. She expanded her routine this year by including more difficult and demanding dives which can gain more points in a meet, but also carry a greater risk.

"Bailee is a very precise diver. Her entry is spot-on" said Langton. "This year, she stepped out of her comfort zone and tried more and more difficult dives. She's now comfortable with entering the pool either feet-first or head-first. Her work ethic is strong, and she is very focused. She won't stop working on a dive until she gets it right no matter how long it takes."

"I'd like to improve my reverse dives, the ones going away from the board," said Carey. "I set goals, but they are immediate ones. I just try to make my next dive more perfect and more precise. If I do that, things like sectionals and states will take care of themselves."

Carey is also that rare athlete who is a swimmer and a diver. She swims on Quincy's 200-meter freestyle relay team which qualified for sectionals. After hours of practicing alone, she relishes the joys of being a teammate.

"I love it," she said. "There's no pressure like there is in diving. I enjoy being with my teammates. All I want to do is what's best for them, for the team. It's a good break from diving."

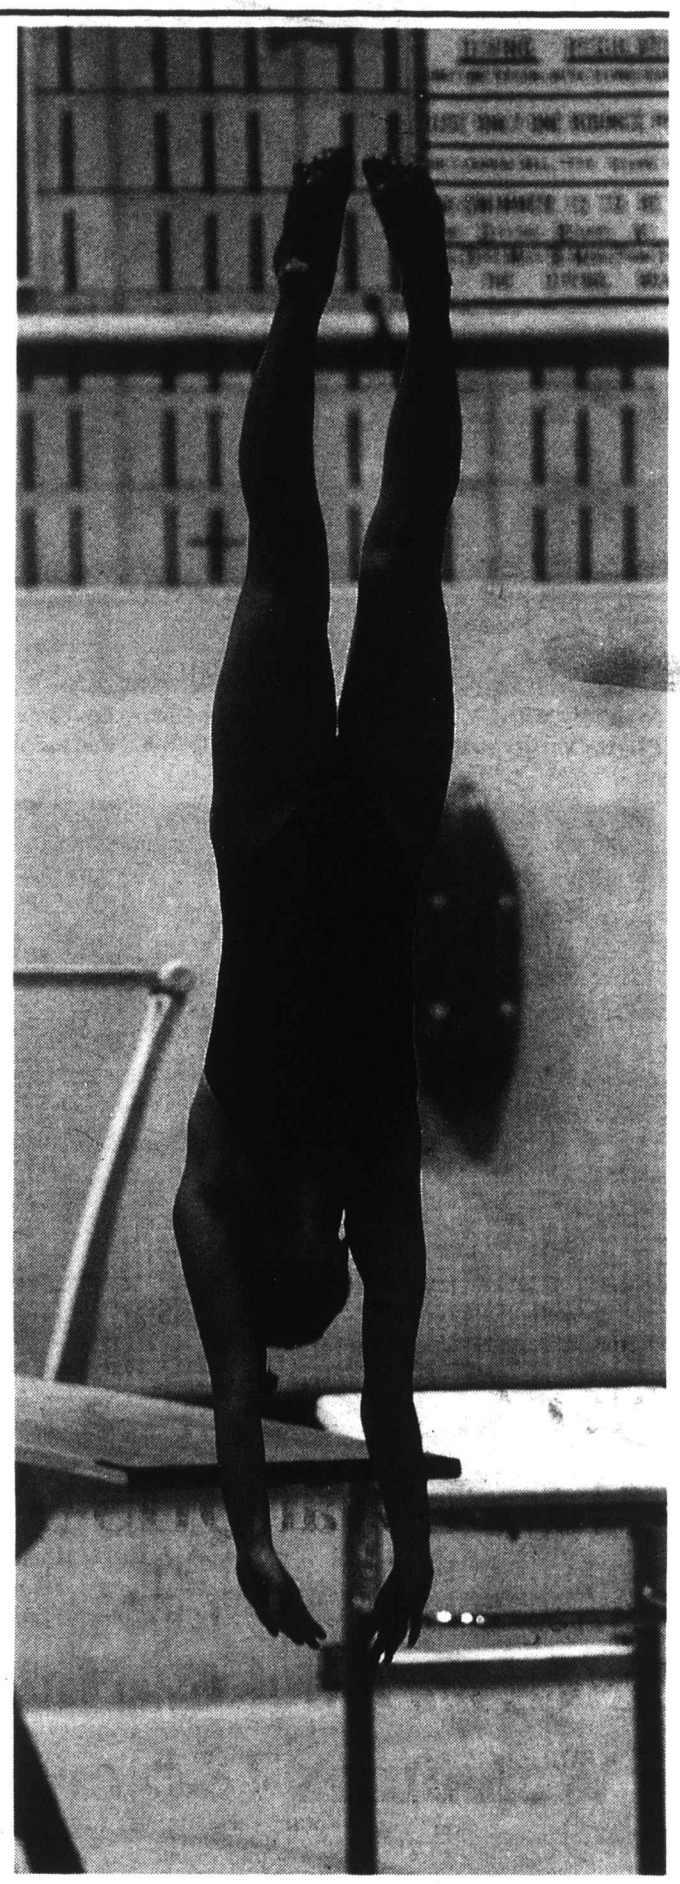
"It is rare to have a diver who can swim competitively," said Quincy swim coach Marisa Forrester. "Bailee is a great kid. She's very social, and she gets along well with all her teammates. Being on the relay team works well for her."

Langton agrees the relay team is a healthy outlet for a diver.

"It's good for her," said Langton. "Divers tend to be separated from the team. They practice by themselves. They can feel isolated. Swimming relay gets Bailee involved with her team, and that is a good thing."

Carey is also a cheerleader for the football team. Not surprisingly, she loves the more difficult moves which send her flying through the air. She has often climbed to the top of the human pyramid, the routine which both entertains and frightens spectators. How can they possibly do it?

"I love being at the top," she smiled. "I love feeling weightless, just soaring through the air. Cheerleading is like tumbling in mid-air. It's a thrill and I like the smiles on people's faces who watch us."



QUINCY HIGH SOPHOMORE Bailee Carey shows the impressive form that has catapulted her to the medal stand in the sectionals and state diving competitions as an underclassman.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE

While chiropractors may specialize in the manipulation of joints and vertebrae in the back and neck, the benefits of chiropractic treatment extend far beyond. Chiropractic theory holds that back pain is often due to "subluxations" (vertebral misalignments) that can lead to compressed nerves, which produce pain in the back or other areas served by the nerves. Thus, subluxations can adversely affect the functioning of organs throughout the body due to impeded nerve flow. It therefore makes sense to keep the spine free of subluxations as a preventative measure against disease. Those who visit chiropractors regularly without any specific complaints or symptoms may well be doing one of the best things they can to ensure that they remain healthy.

Although chiropractors are typically thought of as back pain specialists, they're also interested in the overall wellness and health of your body. At Family Practice of Chiropractic, we offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where specific advice will be given on exercise, nutrition and relaxation. Call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and let us help you take control of your health.

P.S. Subluxation misalignments may be physical, emotional, or chemical in cause or result from an incident such as a sports - or automobile accident - related injury

TARYN URBANUS of Quincy, a junior at the University of Connecticut, recently competed in the Zone A diving championship in Buffalo, N.Y. Urbanus placed second on the 3-meter board and third on the 1-meter board. She qualified to compete on both boards at the 2015 NCAA championship in Greensboro, NC. A team captain, she began the season breaking both UConn's pool and record at the first the first meet this season. A 2012 graduate of Quincy High School, she broke the records at QHS for 1 and 3 meter. She is a two-time All American for HS diving. Prior to UConn she dove with South Shore Diving Club. Morrisette Baseball Meeting March 24

Morrisette Legion Baseball will be holding a meeting Tuesday, March 24 at 7 p.m. at the Post, Liberty Street, Quincy, for all players and or parents for the upcoming season.

Returning players or parents of the Senior and Junior Legion teams should attend. Anyone who is thinking about trying out should also attend.

For more information, contact Steve Maze at 617-777-8956. Other coaches are Rick Beach, Gerry Shepherd and Kyle Ainsley.

QPS 'Credit For Life' At Tirrell Room March 26

Quincy Public Schools will host the 7th annual "Credit for Life" Fair Thursday, March 26 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

Some 200 students from Quincy and North Quincy will take part in the fair. The goal of the event is to provide high school seniors with the ability to be independent adult consumers and have the knowledge of personal finance to survive in today's global economy.

Fifteen booths will be set up throughout The Tirrell Room and students will have to spend from a budget based on the future jobs they foresee themselves employed in. Students will make decisions on how much money they want to spend on transportation, housing, food, clothing, savings, education, and insurance.

BUT BEFORE FRANK Santoro was a true blue Presidents' fan, the retired QHS principal grew up a North Quincy supporter and played basktball for the Red Raiders and legendary coach Bob "Knobby" Nolan. NQ Alumnus Frank Santoro Now Loyal QHS Supporter

Allegiances To Red And Black, Blue And White Run Deep

By BILL GRIFFIN

How could this happen? Dare we call it treason?

A man spends his whole life as a North Quincy partisan. He manages the football team. He plays for Knobby Nolan on the basketball team. After graduating, he drives the team bus for football and basketball so he can watch the games.

His father was a loyal North Quincy supporter. His son and daughter played at North. He met his wife in tenth grade at North. His best friend served as a model for the school's mascot. He will surely root for the Red Raiders for as long he walks and breathes.

Not so much. Despite all this, Frank Santoro is now Quincy High's most fervent fan. Fan might be too weak a word. It has become just a bit more than that. Why? The answer is this: Outside of family, one of the strongest bonds in life is that between a teacher and student.

Santoro became principal of Quincy High in 2005, and everything changed and changed completely.

"How could I not be true blue? How could I not support my kids?" he smiled. "I always thought it was important to get to know the kids outside of the classroom. I used to sit in on all three lunches and just talk to them.

"I never missed games, plays, or concerts. It is important for the kids to know you care about what they do. I always loved sports, so I was drawn to them because of the kids."

Santoro retired in 2013. Now, he goes to games. Always, he goes to games. If Quincy plays, Frank Santoro goes. He watches football, boys soccer, girls soccer, boys volleyball, girls volleyball, boys basketball, girls basketball, hockey, baseball, softball, boys lacrosse and girls lacrosse. If Quincy played wiffleball, Santoro would go. He dresses in Quincy blue and he goes.

"I've always loved high school sports," said Santoro. "I think they are more exciting than the college or pros. It's especially good when the students get behind a team and support it. There's nothing better for building school spirit."

Road trips and the limits of time are not a problem. In February, Quincy played a tourney hockey game in Bourne at 4:00. Quincy played a tournament basketball game at home at 6:30. Santoro was there and on time for both. Perhaps he owns a time machine.

A week earlier, Quincy's basketball team clinched the league title with a win over Plymouth North. The game began at 4:00. It gave the Presidents their first league championship in seven years. It was a big game. However, Frank Santoro had more than basketball on his mind. He had places to go.

"When are they going to get this started?" he said glancing at the clock before tip-off. "I got a hockey game to go to at 6:30."

Not only does Santoro go to the games, he is a believer. A true believer.

"I think if we had gotten past Taunton, we would have given Catholic Memorial a great game. And watch out for the girls basketball team next year. We could have one of the best teams in the state," he said.

His conversion has led to several interesting discussions. His son Michael played golf, football, basketball and baseball at North. His daughter Lori played basketball. His best friend is Al Yacubian. When Yacubian was at North, he posed for a caricature which is now on the shield of the school's mascot. His friends and family have noted his changing of allegiance with interest.

"There have been some heated discussions. I just got a letter from Al, and he is still giving me a hard time," said Santoro. "I have some allies coming in the next generation. My grandson Joseph (Scott) played football and wrestled for Quincy. I have a grandson, Andrew, who is coming to Quincy High next year, and he'll play football."

Santoro learned early of the power for good that sports can bring to a young life. A kidney illness kept him from playing sports until basketball season in his senior year at North. He stayed as close as he could to the teams and the games. He was a manager on Ken McPhee's great teams in the mid-1960s. Finally, he was

SCHOOL COMMITTEE Vice Chairwoman Kathy Hubley reads a book to kindergarten students at the Squantum School as part of "Read Across America" day March 2. Hubley and other guest readers participated in the program that commemmorates the birthday of Dr. Seuss. Students throughout the Public School system in Quincy logged their reading time and every minute counted as a mile. Then at the end of the month, schools will tally the amount and see how far across Massachusetts they have been able to travel. Photo Courtesy Kathy Hubley cleared to play hoop. He played one year for Knobby Nolan, and it changed his life.

"I never would have gone to college if it weren't for Knobby," said Santoro. "Every Saturday he would tell me to put on a tie. He would pick me up and drive me everywhere to visit colleges. He took me as far as North Yarmouth, Maine.

"I ended up going to Quincy College. I played for Bob Basiliere, and he helped me get into Framingham State. That's how I became a teacher. That's how I found out what I wanted to do in life – through sports."

While he was teaching in Boston during the day, he drove the North team bus at night. It was the perfect job for Santoro. He got paid. He got to watch the games. He also drove the Quincy College bus. One night, there was surprise and a bonus treat.

"I drove up to North Essex Community College, and a referee didn't show up. I got to referee the game," he remembered.

Santoro is especially close with the current senior class at Quincy. They are the first class to come through the new high school, and they are a remarkable group of athletes and people.

"It's been a privilege to see them grow up as athletes and as young men and women," said Santoro. "They are respectful, and they can hold an intelligent conversation. I just enjoy talking with them and being around them."

Clearly the feeling is mutual. Before every basketball game, Carl Zapata walked over the Santoro, and shook his hand. After a snowstorm last winter, James Lam and Jake Bergonzi walked halfway across the city to shovel out Santoro's driveway. Before a lacrosse match last spring, Kayla McArdle skipped up to Santoro and sang out that her injury was healed. She would play her final match of her senior season against North.

Quincy and North. North and Quincy. The rivalry is eternal. A man is on one side or the other. He does not change. Unless. Unless you've lived just the right life, and the change fits perfectly.

A teacher would understand. Ask Frank Santoro about that.

become fully broken in until 12,000 miles. In addition the fuel available during the winter that allows for easier stating can result in up to a 10 percent reduction in fuel economy. At this point if the mileage isn't where you think it should be I would ask the dealer to perform a fuel economy efficiency test to verify the miles per gallon.

Although it is not uncommon to be unable to match or exceed the EPA MPG numbers a 30 percent deficit seems excessive.

Question: I own a 2012 CRV that I love except for one issue. Occasionally, when I take my foot off the gas to slow down, then step on the gas again, nothing happens. The car does not accelerate for a couple of seconds, then when it does accelerate it jumps ahead because I've pushed too hard on the accelerator.

I've had it to two mechanics, one being a Honda dealership, but they are not able to reproduce the problem and therefore cannot diagnose it. Any ideas from you would be greatly appreciated!

Answer: It is always difficult to diagnose and repair vehicle where the problem doesn't happen on a regular basis. I have checked for updates and technical service bulletins and didn't find any that would apply. There are several possibilities but at best they are just guessing.

I hate to say it but if there is no check engine light that comes on and all the data looks correct, time may be the best diagnostic tool. Perhaps keep a log of when and where the hesitation happens and at what seed and temperature. These will be clues to help the shop get the car repairs.

Question: I recently purchased a small camping trailer that I plan to use this summer for family vacations (if the snow ever melts). I plan to tow the trailer with my 2010 Honda CR-V and I'm considering a backup camera to make hooking up the trailer easier, is there something you can recommend?

Answer: There are many DIY'er camera kits available that may fit your needs. Some are very sophisticated and will replace the review mirror; others have a portable display similar to a navigation unit. Some backup cameras are even wire-less to allow for easier installation.

Recently I was testing a unique system from Yada (www.letsyada.com) it is a wireless backup camera that has an accessory camera. This system allows you to add an additional wireless camera to the rear of the trailer. This way you can use one camera for aligning the trailer or just general vehicle maneuvers and the second camera for backing the trailer into position. Seems like a very clever idea.

Joshua Green Graduates AF Basic Training

Air Force Airman Joshua L. Green of Quincy recently graduated from basic military training at Joint Base San Antonio-Lackland, San Antonio, Texas.

The airman completed an intensive, eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness, and basic warfare principles and skills.

Airmen who complete basic training earn four credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Green is a 2013 graduate of North Quincy High School.

RELIGION

Quincy Point Congregational

Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., will celebrate Youth Sunday on March 22.

The youth of the church will lead the congregation in prayer and song at the 10 a.m. worship. The sermon will feature a skit called "M&M." After worship, there will be coffee and light refreshments in the social hall. Sign the Birthday and "Thinking of You" cards.

Some tickets are still available for the "Home Sweet Home" evening Saturday, March 21 at 6 p.m. in the church social hall. The event will raise funds for Neighborworks' "Home Sweet Home" for veterans program. Proceeds will be used to purchase supplies for families in their new homes.

There will be musical entertainment and a silent auction with Red Sox and Patriots items. Food will include chicken and gravy, chili, beef stroganoff, a baked potato bar with all the fixings (sour cream, cheese, veggies and bacon), salad, corn bread and desserts. The best dressed in country-western style will receive a prize.

Tickets are $15 per adult and $10 per child age 7-12. Kids 6 and under are free. To purchase tickets contact the church office @ 617-773-6424 or office@quincypointcong.org.

The church's mission for lent is to help support DOVE. The church is collecting the following items to meet everyday needs of women and children seeking shelter from abusive relationships.

Supplies needed are: Q-tips, cotton balls, laundry detergent, Lysol wipes, Lysol floor cleaner, moisturizers (Aveeno cream or oatmeal lotion) Eucerin cream (regular or generic), full size toothpaste and full size deodorant. Items can be returned to the church up until Easter.

Prayer Service For Marathon Runners April 19

A Prayer Service for Peace and Blessings of runners on the Vigil of the Boston Marathon will be held Sunday, April 19 at 6:30 p.m. at St. Agatha Church, 432 Adams St., Milton, near the Quincy line.

Bethany Congregational

On Sunday, March 22, Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will have a Worship Service and Sunday School at 10 a.m. The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach the sermon entitled "Choices We Make." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Worship Services and its activities: a Youth Group, a Men's Group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Bible Study Class.

The church office is open 8:30 a.m. to noon, then 1 - 4 p.m. Please visit our website at bethanychurch.tk for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, if you're unable to attend worship service, the Bethany Church Service is broadcast on QATV at 6:00 p.m. Thursdays and 10:00 a.m. Sundays on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

United Methodist Church Beach Blanket Bingo

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its fourth annual Beach Blanket Bingo Sunday, March 22.

Everyone is encouraged to attend worship dressed in his or her favorite summer, tropical, or Hawaiian-style ensemble. After worship, everyone is invited to come downstairs to the fellowship hall for a little bit of summer.

At the "Cheeseburger in Paradise Beach Shack," partygoers will enjoy cheeseburgers and frappes. Desserts and tonic will also be available. Those who choose to do so may give a donation to help defray expenses.

After the lunch, the party will continue with beach-themed games such as "pin the beak on the flamingo" and a beach ball toss. For those who prefer to relax, chaise lounges will be available in the adjoining "tropical paradise." Music will be provided by Jeannie and John O'Connor.

For more information call the church at 617-773-3319.

DeMolay Devotional Day

The First Baptist Church of Wollaston will be hosting DeMolay Devotional Day Observances Sunday, March 22, at the 10:30 a.m. Worship Service.

Joining First Baptist will be members of Old Colony Chapter of DeMolay (which has been meeting at First Baptist Church since fire destroyed the Quincy Masonic Building in 2013).

Members of DeMolay will assist in the Worship Service. Rev. Stephen A. Trimble, a Past Master Councilor of Cape Cod Chapter of DeMolay and the Interim Pastor of First Baptist Church will preside. The Guest Preacher will be the Rev. John R. Odams (also a Past Master Councilor of Cape Cod Chapter of DeMolay), an advisor to Old Colony Chapter and the Pastor of Pilgrim Church in Dorchester.

DeMolay is an organization dedicated to preparing young men to lead successful, happy, and productive lives. DeMolay opens doors for young men aged 12 to 21 by developing the civic awareness, personal responsibility and leadership skills so vitally needed in society today. DeMolay combines this serious mission with a fun approach that builds important bonds of friendship among members in more than 1,000 chapters worldwide. More information can be found at www.oldcolony-demolay.org.

OBITUARIES

Bryan N. Stoker, 51

A funeral Mass for Bryan N. Stoker, 51, of Quincy was celebrated March 13 in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Stoker died at home March 9.

Born on Oct. 25, 1963, in Lawton, Okla., he was the loving son of Larry Stoker and the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard and Mary (Tebo) Stoker-Stande.

He was a graduate of Quincy High School and worked as a bar manager at the Rathskeller, formerly of Boston, from age 17 until its closing. Mr. Stoker was a true Rathskeller "icon" and will always be associated with live music at the Rat. He also worked as a tunnel worker for Local 88 in Boston for several years.

Mr. Stoker was the loving father of Bryan and Krystina Stoker, former husband of Donna (Monteiro) Stoker and longtime companion of Cynthia and her daughter Briana. He was the dear brother of Joanne D'Andrea, Larry Stoker and Jae Stoker. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Private interment.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association, 330 Congress St., Suite 501, Boston, MA 02201.

Mary Foy

A funeral Mass for Mary (Kennedy) Foy of Quincy, formerly of Milton, was celebrated March 11 in St. Agatha Church, Milton.

Mrs. Foy died March 8.

Beloved wife of the late James. Mother of Michael J. Foy and his wife Sharon of Marshfield and Veronica M. Foy and her fiancé Paul Kilduff of Hanover. Sister of Patrick Kennedy of Ireland.

Funeral arrangements were made by Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Interment at Milton Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Assn., 480 Pleasant St., Watertown, MA 02472.

Bertel L. Carlson, 97

Funeral services for Bertel Leonard Carlson of Quincy will be held at a later date.

Mr. Carlson died peacefully March 10 after a short illness. He was 97 years, seven months, and two days old.

He was the first son of Gustav Walfrid Carlson and Ingrid Erika Karlsson of Aland, Finland, and was born in Dorchester. Up until his death he lived independently in Quincy. His late wife was Elin Marie (Anderson) Carlson. He is survived by his daughter, Beverly Ann Cyr of Littleton. His son, Wayne Leonard Carlson, predeceased him in 1994. He is also survived by his brother, Paul V. Carlson of NH and his wife Agnes. Brother of the late Herbert A. Carlson. He is survived by a brother-in-law, and sister-in-law, Victor and Elsa Anderson of Quincy.

Mr. Carlson is survived by three grandsons, Darrell Joseph Cyr and his wife Stephanie of Hingham, Wayne Leonard Carlson, Jr. and his wife Judy of NY, and Randall Leonard Cyr and his wife Shana of VA, and eight great-grandchildren; Nick, Tim, Chris, Regan, Aidan, Ella, William and Madison. He is survived by his very special friend of many years, Lois Pietila of Quincy. Mr. Carlson is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Mr. Carlson's occupation was that of a finish carpenter and he was a proud, lifelong member of the carpenters' union. For many years he owned property in Quincy, bringing it from a rundown condition to a pristine condition when it was sold in the late eighties.

Mr. Carlson enjoyed dancing, music, reading, sailing and generally being active. He often took his family on camping vacations throughout New England. He was a longtime member of the Frihet Temperance Lodge.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Perkins School for the Blind, 175 North Beacon St., Watertown, MA 02472 or the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, 101 First Ave., Suite A, Waltham, MA 02451.

Christine A. D'Arrigo

A funeral Mass for Christine A. D'Arrigo of Quincy was celebrated March 14 in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Ms. D'Arrigo died March 11.

She was an avid runner, who was a member of the Y We Run Running Group, the Marshfield Road Runners and had completed the San Diego and Phoenix Marathons and the Connecticut Ultra Marathon at Lake Waramaug. She was a tireless volunteer and participated in and contributed to many charitable organizations.

Beloved daughter of Maria C. (Palermo) D'Arrigo of Quincy and the late Dominic H. Sister of Dominic D'Arrigo of AZ and Mariann Mohan and family of Chatham. Aunt of Mackenzie D'Arrigo of AZ. Also survived by many aunts, uncles, cousins and friends.

Funeral arrangements were made by Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Sister Joanne Westwater, 84

A funeral Mass for Sister Joanne Westwater, 84, of Quincy was celebrated March 14 in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Sr. Joanne died March 8.

Born in Boston on May 5, 1930, to the late Joseph and Martha (Early) Westwater, Sr. Joanne was a devoted Sister of the Good Shepherd for more than 50 years. Sister of the late Agnes, Joseph, Donald Westwater and Evelyn (Westwater) Doyle, she is survived by her sister, Sister Martha Westwater, SCH, of Wellesley, her brother Robert Westwater and his wife Marie, of Reading, and her sister-in-law, Lou Westwater of VA. Sr. Joanne is also survived by 11 nephews and nieces, and 23 grandnephews and grandnieces, who were the lucky recipients of her fun and generous spirit.

Sr. Joanne was put on this earth to save it and she spent every ounce of her being focused on doing so. An unwavering advocate for the poor and those in need of counseling, she was committed to serving those communities, and was still actively ministering people until her passing. Sr. Joanne was well known and dearly loved and will be especially remembered for her huge heart and her unique way of getting things done.

She graduated in 1947 from St. Margaret's School in Dorchester and later attended Boston College where she received a bachelor's of science degree in 1953 and a master's of science degree in social work in 1955. She also earned a certificate in theological studies from Providence College in 1962.

In 1963, Sr. Joanne entered the Novitiate of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd in Peekskill, N.Y., where she received her formal training in the care of children and families. She made her first profession of vows in 1966 and pronounced her final vows in 1977. Sr. Joanne was a psychiatric social worker in the residential program at Mt. Florence in Peekskill until 1969. God Saw You Getting Tired

God saw you getting tired
And a cure was not to be,
So He put His arms around you
And whispered "come to Me".
A golden heart stopped beating,
Hard working hands at rest,
God broke our hearts
To prove to us
He only takes the best.

Marjorie F. Greene, 81

MARJORIE F. GREENE

A funeral Mass for Marjorie F. (Rogers) Greene, 81, of Quincy was celebrated March 14 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Greene died peacefully March 8.

She was a loving mother, and a deeply sensitive woman of compassion, intelligence, and beauty.

Mrs. Greene was born in Boston in 1933 to devoted parents Carmelita and Edward Rogers and was a sister to Edward, Constance, and William. She graduated from the State Teacher's College at Boston in 1955 with a degree in education and went on to become a creative and passionate kindergarten teacher in the Quincy Public School system who was remembered with affection by her students and their parents for her unique talent for fostering an enthusiasm for reading. She also served as the education coordinator of CCD at St. Ann Parish, where she was an active parishioner.

Mrs. Greene left teaching to devote herself to the education of her children and to embrace family life. Her love for and appreciation of music led to her membership in the Quincy Choral Society and the Eastern Nazarene College Choral. She continued her education with studies in classical music and writing and also traveled across the U.S. and abroad, embracing life filled with an appreciation for conversation, laughter, music, culture, and gardening, and above all the everyday experience of the people she encountered and those close to her.

She had a special love for the ocean and Cape Cod, which she passed on to her four children and five grandchildren. To them, she shared her abundant and renewed joy in her last years. She strove to understand herself and to enrich relationships until the end with grace, kindness, and above all empathy. Her strength, independence, and spirit were a great gift to all.

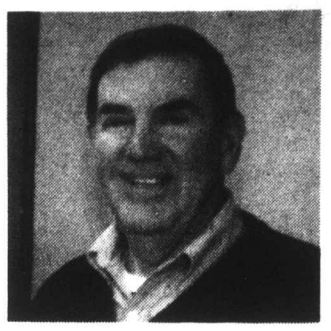
Mrs. Greene is survived by her four beloved children: Mary and her husband Jeff Majors; Carol and her partner Craig Kalpakjian; Victor and his wife Kim (Corcoran), and their three children Victor, Joseph, and Kathryn; and Donald and his wife Ashley (Fawcett) and their children, Aidan and Erin; she is also survived by their father, Victor Greene, of Quincy. She will be missed by her many adored nieces and nephews and her loving friends and neighbors.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Mount Calvary Cemetery, Roslindale.

Memorial donations may be made to Italian Home for Children, 1125 Centre St., Boston 02130-3445 or the Foundation for Sarcoidosis Research, 1820 Webster Ave., Suite 304, Chicago, IL 60614.

Robert A. Mastico, 80



ROBERT A. MASTICO

A funeral service for Robert A. Mastico, 80, of Quincy was held Monday in Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Mr. Mastico died March 10 after an extended illness.

A graduate of Northeastern University, he was a former partner at Forte Technology and a worldwide traveler. Mr. Mastico loved boating, fishing, playing the trumpet and especially spending time with his family and friends on Cape Cod.

Mr. Mastico was a lifetime member of Town River Yacht Club. He was a mason in Rural Lodge. He was the chief of the Clan McGregor. Mr. Mastico honorably served his country in the U.S. Army. He was a longtime member of Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Beloved husband of Nancy (Sarkisian) Mastico for 56 years. Devoted father of Robert A. Mastico, Jr. and his wife, Helen N. Mastico, of Hanson and Karen J. Kearns and her husband, Ronald R. Kearns of Braintree. He was the loving and proud grandfather of Naomi, Rose, Nathaniel, and Jasper Mastico, and Robert and Lauren Kearns. He was also the loving brother of Evelyn Erickson of Quincy and the late Roy Mastico.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY

Proposed Flood Hazard Determinations for the City of Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, and Case No. 15-01-0275P. The Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) solicits technical information or comments on proposed flood hazard determinations for the Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM), and where applicable, the Flood Insurance Study (FIS) report for your community. These flood hazard determinations may include the addition or modification of Base Flood Elevations, base flood depths, Special Flood Hazard Area boundaries or zone designations, or the regulatory floodway. The FIRM and, if applicable, the FIS report have been revised to reflect these flood hazard determinations through issuance of a Letter of Map Revision (LOMR), in accordance with Title 44, Part 65 of the Code of Federal Regulations. These determinations are the basis for the floodplain management measures that your community is required to adopt or show evidence of having in effect to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program. For more information on the proposed flood hazard determinations and information on the statutory 90-day period provided for appeals, please visit FEMA's website at www.fema.gov/plan/prevent/fhm/bfe, or call the FEMA Map Information eXchange (FMIX) toll free at 1-877-FEMA MAP (1-877-336-2627).

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An unexpected problem should be handled as quickly as possible so that it doesn't cause too much of a delay. Someone who knows what you're facing could provide needed advice.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An unsettling situation seems to be taking forever to be resolved. Fortunately, your Bovine aptitude for patience is strong this week, so you'll be more than able to wait it out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Taking a stand against an uncalled-for situation involving a friend or co-worker isn't easy, but somehow you'll rise to the challenge and do it. Rely on advice from someone you trust.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) There are still some questions on all sides that need to be dealt with in order to allow hurt feelings to heal. Get your workplace tasks done early so that you can devote more time to loved ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Consider a new spring makeover that will show all you Leos and Leonas in your best light. A new hairdo and some fashionable new clothes can help put a fresh glow on your image.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some stormy, emotional weather can blow up in the workplace when an irate co-worker has strong words for you. But if you believe right is on your side, you'll be able to ride it out.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Creating more balance in your life is especially important now so that you're not distracted when you get into projects that will make demands on both your physical and mental energies.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) As much as you enjoy being right when others are not, show your generous side by offering to use what you know to everyone's benefit. This way, you gain admirers and avoid resentment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good week for the Archer to aim at healing relationships. Whether it's at home, at work or among your friends, get everyone to set things straight and make a fresh start.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although you like things done your way, this is a good time to listen to ideas from others. You might even find yourself agreeing with one or more of their suggestions.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor positive action to reclaim your ideas from someone who might want the glory without doing any of the work. Expect to find many people rallying to support you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might feel uneasy about taking that step forward at work or in your private life. But who knows better than you that while treading water keeps you afloat, it doesn't get you anywhere.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of creating positive attitudes and making people feel good about themselves.

Fr. William English Honored As 'Irishman Of The Year'

'I Want You All To Know I Love You Dearly'

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Rev. William J. English was named Irishman of the Year during the March 13 St. Patrick's Day Luncheon.

A native of County Tipperary in Ireland, English served as pastor of Most Blessed Sacrament Parish and later Holy Trinity Parish in Quincy from 1990 until 2010. He left for Ireland in 2010 and suffered a heart attack, which has kept him from being able to remain active in the priesthood.

Mayor Thomas Koch presented the award and said he would ask that some of the luncheon's proceeds be given to Holy Trinity Parish in English's honor.

"Fr. English has blessed us with his service to us on behalf of the Lord; he is truly a friend. You talk about Irish wit; there is no one better with the one-liners. He could keep us here laughing all day," Koch said.

"We all know Fr. English to be an amazing individual, a wonderful human being, and friend to all."

With English unable to attend the luncheon for health reasons his close friend, the Rev. James DiPerri, accepted the award on his behalf, receiving a plaque and shillelagh from the mayor.

"It's an honor to be here to accept this award on behalf of Fr. English," DiPerri said. "He loves Quincy. He served well in Quincy. With his bump in the road in terms of health, he continues to pray. I have him on the phone here, so he has heard what has been said."

DiPerri also told an anecdote about English's first meeting with the Rev. Cornelius Heery, the late, longtime pastor of Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy.

"When Fr. Heery met him at the airport – our beloved Fr. Heery from Sacred Heart in North Quincy – Fr. English carried his trunk as he was about to begin his four years of seminary training at St. John's in Brighton for the priesthood of the Archdiocese of Boston," DiPerri said.

"Being the strong Irish farmer that he was, he was able to – at Fr. Heery's amazement – carry the trunk on his shoulder four flights up with all his belongings without pausing or being out of breath."

English was able to address the crowd over the phone and expressed his love for Quincy.

"Although my heart is weak, it does not affect my love for Quincy. Though I cannot see you, I want you all to know that I love you dearly. I have spent the last 20 years of my happy priesthood with you. So today, I wish you all well and I pray that St. Patrick will bless all of you and your loved ones always," English said.

"I want to thank especially Mayor Koch and the committee for this award and recognition, which I shall always treasure. You know, Tom, that there are four provinces in Ireland and as run for re-election for four more years, I wish you all the best my friend. May God bless you and all the good people of Quincy always. I love you all dearly."

Genesis Chamber Singers Debut Concert March 29

GENESIS CHAMBER SINGERS, Quincy's own professional chamber vocal ensemble, will present their debut performance at the Crane Public Library on Sunday, March 29 at 3 p.m. Admission is free. Led by artistic director and Quincy resident Joseph Young, the 8-voice mixed voice ensemble performs unaccompanied classical choral music in intimate spaces for intimate sized audiences. The group's mission involves making direct and meaningful connections with audience members of diverse backgrounds and varied musical knowledge and experience. Members of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, Genesis brings engaging performances to audiences exclusively on the South Shore of Boston. The eight singers all have degrees in music performance, and some have or are pursuing masters degrees as well. Joseph Young is completing his DMA in choral music at Boston University, studying with Ann Howard Jones. Repertoire on the program includes music of Josef Rheinberger, Samuel Barber, Charles Stanford, Edward Elgar, Sir Arthur Sullivan, and a world premiere of a work by Boston composer Adria Stolk. The Genesis Chamber Singers' performance is supported by Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For more information, visit www.genesischambersingers.com.

High School Students Tour Kennedy Institute For U.S. Senate

At the invitation of Mayor Thomas Koch, 70 students from North Quincy and Quincy High Schools had the opportunity for a special pre-opening visit to the Edward M. Kennedy Institute for the United States Senate March 6.

The Institute is located on the campus of the University of Massachusetts in Dorchester and will open to the public March 31.

The students were accompanied by Mayor Koch, QHS Principal Lawrence Taglieri, NQHS Principal Robert Shaw, and staff members Al Costa, Danielle Fernandez, Meg McMillen and Sue Nash. The Quincy Public Schools group was among the first to see the Institute's exhibits, including a unique full-scale representation of the United States Senate chamber.

Cutting-edge technology is evident throughout the Institute, realizing the late Sen. Kennedy's goal that the Institute will "serve as a new model for civic education and public discourse." The highlight of the visit was the virtual experience in the Senate chamber where students were assigned roles and participated in discussion, debate, negotiation, and voting on an immigration reform bill and Presidential appointments.

Quincy High School student Stiven Kodra said, "Going to the Edward M. Kennedy Institute was a great experience. Seeing a model of the actual Senate and being able to participate in a debate on current issues gave me better insight into how the government operates on a day to day basis."

Classmate Marina Chafa took away from the experience that "... issues, such as the ones we discussed, are not cut and dry. There are many opinions, therefore, what I learned is it is important to aim for compromise on these issues in order to reach the best results."

North Quincy High School student Thomas Murphy said, "I loved how realistic and well-thought out the museum experience was. We got a chance to talk about current issues and to give a voice to our opinions."

Another North Quincy High School student Kevin White noted "I really enjoyed being able to interact with my classmates and the staff at the Institute. They were so helpful and excited to have us."

making up the days.

The option denied by the board would have extended the school day by 30 minutes for 24 days but did not have students attending on Good Friday, a Saturday, or during April vacation; all days presented as options for making up the one day needed to meet the 180-day requirement. If option B were to be chosen, students would have been released Monday, June 29 and teachers the following day.

Prior to last night's vote, students were scheduled to be in school until June 30 and teachers until July 1, leaving them one day short of meeting the 180-day requirement.

At a School Committee meeting held at the beginning of the month, committee members could not agree on how the one full day of school should be made up. However, committee members Anne Mahoney, Paul Bregoli and Noel DiBona said they were in favor of having school on Good Friday. Mayor Thomas Koch and committee member David McCarthy were opposed to the idea as they said the day held significant religious importance to a large portion of Quincy's residents.

"It's one of most important days of the year," said McCarthy. "Just in regards and respect for those folks. Good Friday is a very important day to a lot of people."

"We have a large Christian community and Good Friday is the most solemn, holy day in the Christian calendar and with respect to all religions but the reality is we would be changing something that has been a tradition for a long, long time having that day off," said Koch at a March 4 meeting. "For a lot of folks it's not a day off holiday, it's a solemn, holy day."

Scheduling school on a Saturday was unpopular with Mahoney, Bregoli, and DiBona, who said that doing so would possibly disrupt scheduled visitation time for parents who may only be able to see their children over the weekends.

Because a consensus could not be reached, the discussion was tabled by McCarthy for a future meeting.

Koch and McCarthy's opinion on the matter hadn't changed and on Monday night both voted against having kids in school on Good Friday.

According to Kevin Mulvey, deputy superintendent of Quincy Public Schools, the cost of attending school on Good Friday for a half day will be $50,925.

The 24 days to be extended by 30 minutes are:

March 23-27, March 30, April 1, 2, 6, 8, 9, 10, 13, 15, 16, 17, 27, 29 and 30 and May 1, 4, 6, 7 and 8.

About 4,650 people, including parents, students, and staff, responded to a school year calendar survey which was closed March 2 on the Quincy Public Schools website. The survey revealed that holding school on Saturdays was a universally unpopular opinion while most agreed that attending on Good Friday was preferable.

A waiver sent to the Department of Secondary and Elementary Education (DESE) and Commissioner Mitchell Chester requesting that the school day be extended by 30 minutes for 36 days to make up lost time in the classroom was denied, however a letter sent to the school department on Friday indicated that two full days of school could be made up through 30-minute extensions.

"What [Chester] said was the district must add four days to the calendar in addition to the five days we have in the calendar already so that equals nine days," said DeCristofaro. "He decided to let us use two extended days to help us fulfill our calendar."

Five snow days are scheduled at the end of every school year.

The School Committee also recently sent a letter of appeal to Gov. Charlie Baker, Speaker of the House Robert DeLeo, and Senate President Stan Rosenberg contesting the decision by DESE to not waive three state of emergency days from the school calendar, however their appeal was denied.

A letter sent by Mayor Thomas Koch to DESE cited significant and unbudgeted financial costs and scheduling hardships on parents, students, and staff as reasons for seeking the waiver.

DESE has offered the school district flexibility in scheduling testing windows for MCAS, MCAS Alternate Assessment, and PARCC due to this year's excessive snow days. The new schedule can be found at www.doe.mass.edu under "news."

Storm Costs Snowball

Estimated $12-13M For Plowing, Snow Removal, Salt, Clearing Roofs

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The nearly nine and a half feet of snow that fell in Quincy this winter has left the city with an estimated $13 million tab for snow plowing and removal as well as salt and other costs brought on by the snowiest winter on record.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the tab for this winter's historic snowfall could rise to $13 million. The mayor is hoping for state and federal reimbursements to help pay down a portion of the debt.

Koch is also optimistic that the state will enact special legislation that would allow municipalities such as Quincy to appropriate money over as many as five years to eliminate the massive debt that occurred with snow removal efforts.

"My guess is the snow deficit from this winter will be between $12 million and $13 million – that includes everything like snow plowing, snow removal, salt and clearing roofs of schools and city buildings," Koch said last week.

The city is also anticipating property claims from homeowners who experienced property damage by snow equipment. But those claims will be paid from a claim and judgment account – not the snow budget.

The city had allocated $1.7 million for snow and ice removal in fiscal year 2015 that ends June 30. The

QHA Unveils No Smoking Plan

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Quincy Housing Authority is hoping to go smoke-free, said Executive Director James Lydon.

The plan was unveiled at the authority's monthly meeting last Wednesday.

Through the Prevention and Wellness Trust Fund sanctioned by former Gov. Deval Patrick which awarded $1.7 million to Quincy and Weymouth in January, smoking cessation as well as hypertension screening, substance abuse counseling particularly in relation to alcoholism, and falls prevention programs are slowly being rolled out at the housing authority.

The initiative awarded $42 million to nine communities for the implementation of up to four preventative health initiatives per community and is aimed at cutting long-term healthcare costs.

The money, made possible through non-federal Affordable Care Act dollars, will be given out over the course of four years.

"With this grant, we're focusing on smoke-free housing and tobacco cessation services," said Ashley Stockwell, community outreach specialist at Bay State Community Services.

Stockwell works directly with residents of public housing informing them and preparing them for non-smoking policies.

Committee Votes 5-1 For 'Beyond The Bell' Program

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy Public Schools students will take part in out of school activities beginning May 1 in lieu of having to attend extended school days, which were scheduled to begin Monday.

The new program, known as Beyond the Bell, was put in place to help make up for school days cancelled this winter because of heavy snow. In total, 11 days of school were cancelled in January and February, which would have pushed the last day of school to June 30 with another day to make up.

The School Committee during a special meeting on March 16 voted to hold extended school days through early May, which would have counted for two school days towards the state's 180-day requirments. The committee also approved holding a half-day of school on April 3, Good Friday, which counts as one full day, and April 14 was made a full day for middle school students to satisfy a minimum hours requirement. April 14 remained a half-day for elementary and high school students. Those changes moved the last day of school for most students to June 26. The final day for graduating seniors is unaffected by snow days and remains May 29.

On March 18, the committee rescinded that vote over concerns about transportation and approved the

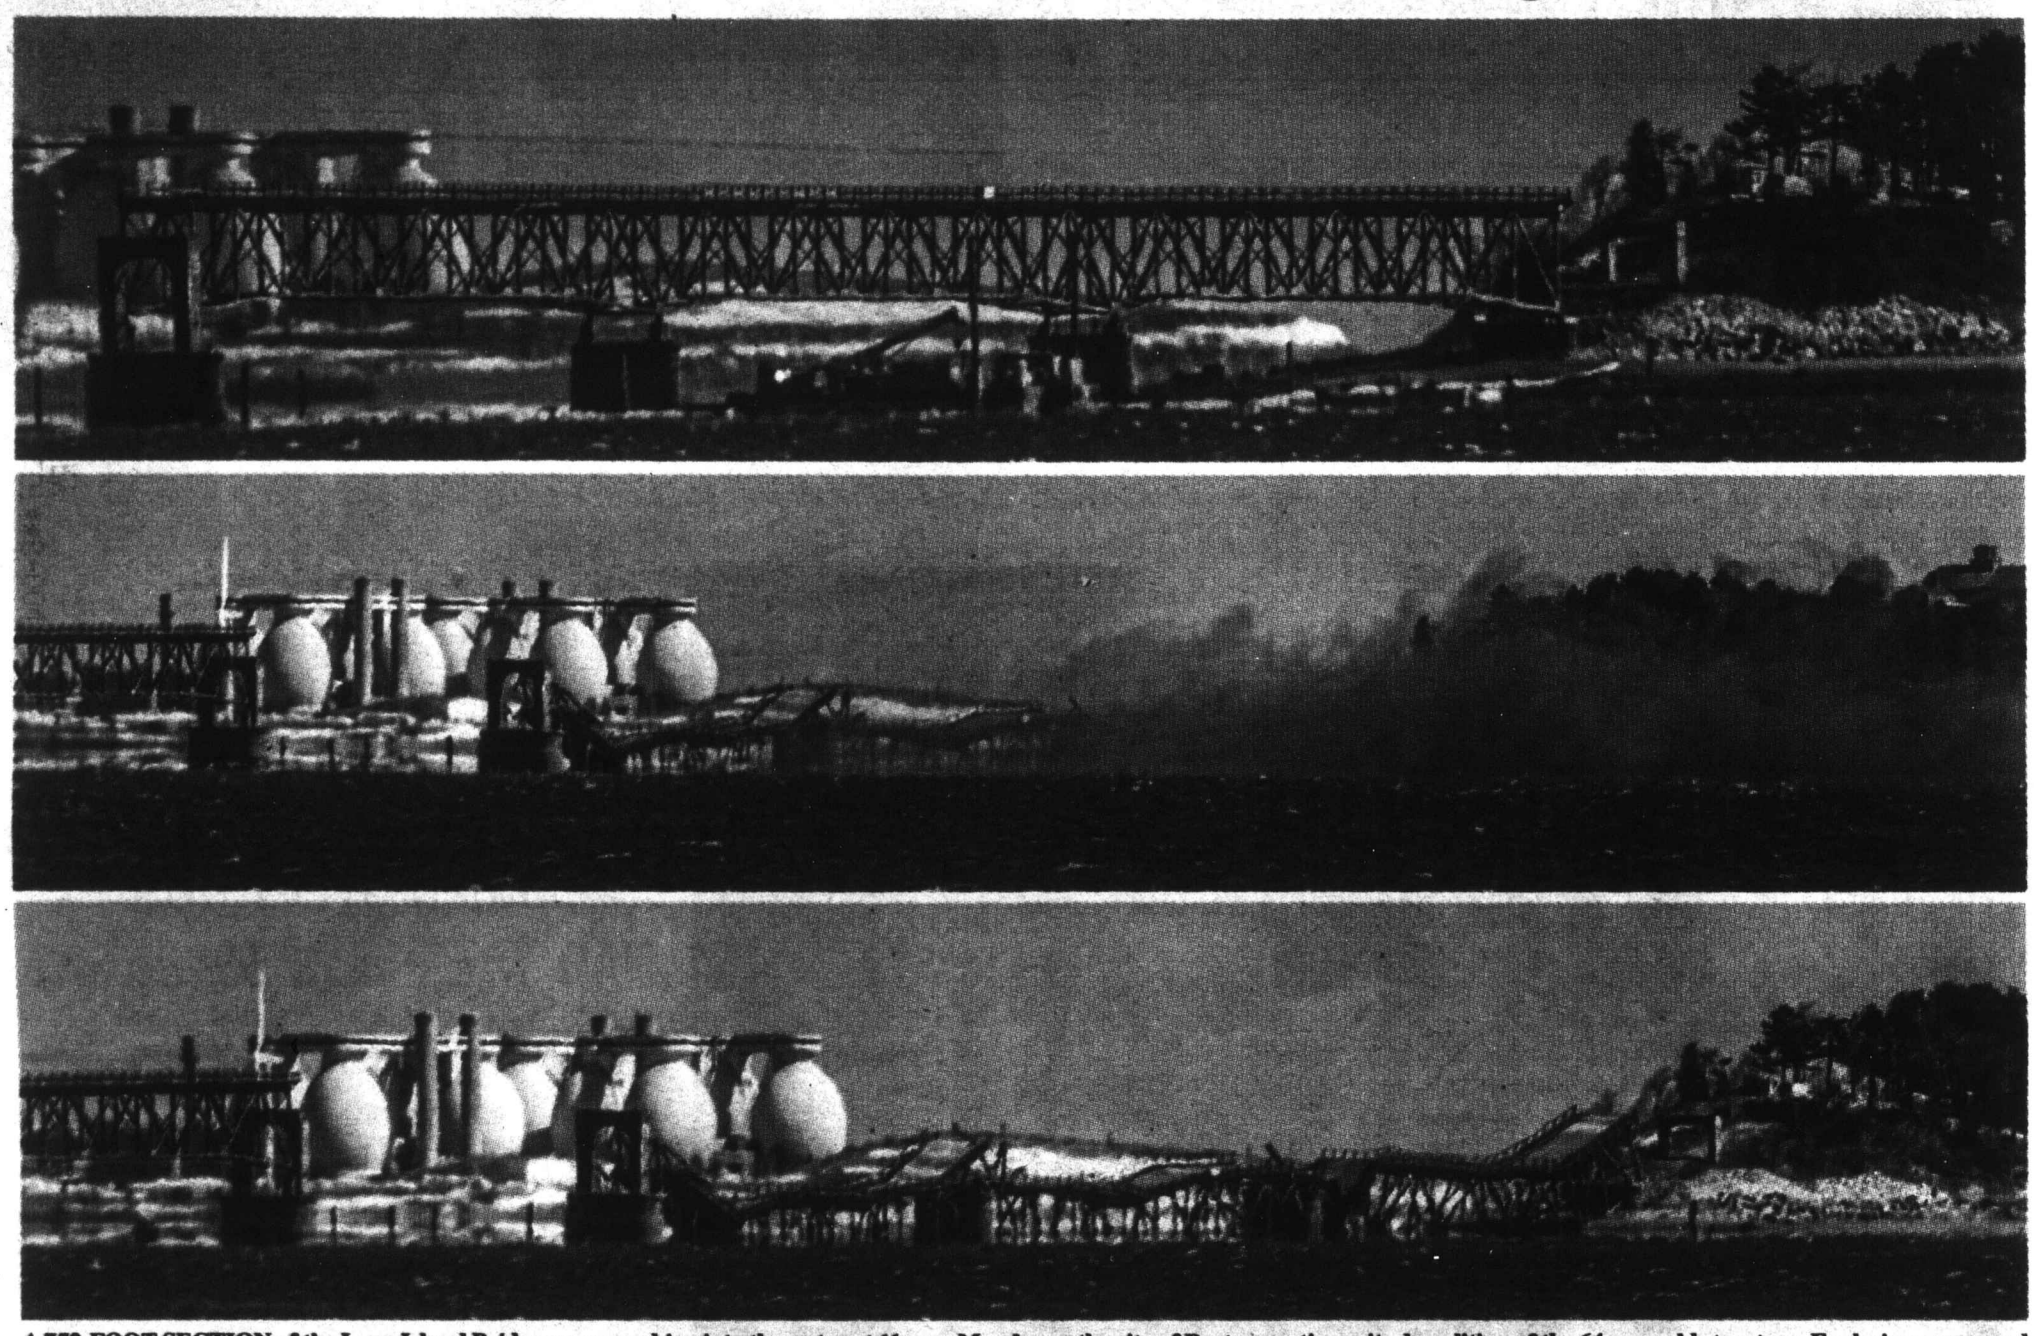
Explosives Demolish 750-Foot Section Of Long Island Bridge



A 750-FOOT SECTION of the Long Island Bridge came crashing into the water at 11 a.m. Monday as the city of Boston continues its demolition of the 64-year-old structure. Explosives were used Monday and will be used at least three more times over the coming weeks as the process continues. The bridge opened in 1951 and closed in October 2014 over longstanding concerns about its structural integrity. Boston is paying $20 million to demolish the bridge. Design of a new bridge will cost $9 million and construction will cost at least $80 million. In the background is the MWRA treatment plant on Deer Island.

New Elementary Report Cards Next Fall

By SCOTT JACKSON

A team of Quincy Public Schools teachers and administrators is working on new report cards and grading rubrics that will be implemented in grades 1-5 at the start of the next school year.

Erin Perkins, the school system's coordinator of elementary curriculum and programs, presented an update on the effort to revise the report cards during the School Committee's March 18 meeting. Several teachers who have been working on the new report cards and grading rubrics over the past five months joined her.

The new report cards will be completed electronically through the Aspen system currently used by middle and high school educators. Parents and students will have access to them online through the same system; printed copies will be issued as well, for at least the 2015-2016 school year.

"The new elementary report card is aligned to the standards," Perkins explained. "It is teacher created. It has been developed by the teachers – classroom teachers, special education teachers, ELL (English language learners) teachers, and the academic program teachers have all played a role in this process. It is electronic – we've been working with Aspen throughout the course of the year and we will continue to do so."

Currently, elementary students are graded on a 1-4 scale, with 1 being the highest grade. Numerical grades will still be issued under the new system, but starting next year 4 will be the highest grade and 3 will mean proficient.

The new report cards include marks for different standards students should be achieving.

In a draft copy of the fifth grade English language arts report card, for example, students would be graded on their ability to determine the main idea/theme of a story or poem; accurately quote from a story while explaining the text; and determine how a narrator's or speaker's point of view influences the description of events, among other standards.

A draft of the mathematics standards for fourth graders was also shown at the meeting. Those include the ability to solve problems using addition and subtraction of fractions and mixed numbers with like denominators; classify shapes by the properties of their lines and angles; and identify, convert, and understand customary and metric units of measure.

Students will also be graded on their effort and completion of homework in each subject area.

GOLDEN GLOW

Topaz may be the birthstone for November, but that does not stop lovers of fine jeweled pieces from shopping for honey topaz year-round. The tone of this golden gemstone not only goes with just about everything, but the color pairs lusciously with yellow gold settings. From a practical standpoint, topaz has a rating of 8 on the Mohs scale, which means that it can be worn every day without inordinate fear of damage. The gemstone's structure also lends itself to being cut into a wide variety of shapes, including square, round, octagon, pear, oval, heart, and even fancy shapes. Cushion cuts (square shape with rounded corners) capture the incoming light, giving honey topaz an enhanced golden glow.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

• On April 12, 1633, the inquisition of physicist and astronomer Galileo Galilei begins. Galileo was ordered to turn himself in for holding the belief that the Earth revolves around the Sun. At the trial, he was sentenced to three years in prison and ordered to recite once a week the Seven Penitential Psalms.

• On April 10, 1866, the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is founded in New York City by philanthropist Henry Bergh, who pleaded on behalf of abused workhorses. By the time Bergh died in 1888, 37 states had passed anti-cruelty laws.

• On April 6, 1896, the Olympic Games are reborn in Athens 1,500 years after being banned by Roman Emperor Theodosius I. A crowd of 60,000 spectators welcomed athletes from 13 nations to the international competition.

• On April 8, 1935, Congress votes to approve the Works Progress Administration, a central part of President Franklin Roosevelt's "New Deal," an expansion of the federal government as an instrument of employment opportunity and welfare. The WPA employed more than 8.5 million people on 1.4 million public projects before it was disbanded in 1943.

• On April 9, 1959, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) introduces America's first astronauts: Scott Carpenter, L. Gordon Cooper Jr., John H. Glenn Jr., Virgil "Gus" Grissom, Walter Schirra Jr., Alan Shepard Jr. and Donald Slayton. The seven men were selected to take part in Project Mercury in 1961.

On April 11, 1961, Bob Dylan plays his first major gig in New York City, opening for bluesman John Lee Hooker at Gerde's Folk City. Dylan was too young to obtain the necessary union card and cabaret license needed to appear on a regular bill at Gerde's. One of the club owners, Mike Porco, signed as Dylan's guardian.

• On April 7, 1970, the legendary actor John Wayne wins his first -- and only -- acting Academy Award, for his performance in "True Grit." Wayne appeared in some 150 movies over the course of his long and storied career.

Koch Makes 3; Phelan 4?

The mayor's race will officially become a three-candidate field next month when incumbent Thomas Koch launches his bid for a fifth term this fall.

Koch told The Sun he'll be sending out letters to supporters in April announcing his candidacy for re-election. A campaign kick-off is also set for May 14th at the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Also running for mayor are School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney and Councillor Doug Gutro. Both announced their campaign bids in January.

KOCH

MAHONEY

Koch's decision to not immediately announce after his challengers entered the race sparked speculation that he might take a job in the Baker administration. He told us that he was never offered a job from the governor whom he publicly endorsed after the primary election and would not have taken one if it had been offered.

He says being the mayor of Quincy is "the greatest job because you can affect change."

Koch said he decided on launching his re-election bid in the early spring because "running a city is a full-time job. Opponents have to start earlier than an incumbent would. I've never said I am not running. I've indicated at some point I'd make things official. I will do that (next month). This is the time frame we've chosen."

Asked if he ever contemplated not seeking a fifth term, Koch replied:

"No. I never thought about not running. You get caught up every day in the job that you don't spend a lot of time thinking about the next campaign. Honestly, there are times you think about the amount of time you're away from your family, the additional stress it may bring on a marriage because of that. I'm cognizant of that but I've had great support from my family.

"I love this city. I've been in government for 28 years and there's no better job in public service and government than a strong mayor in a city.

"You can affect change. You get blamed for everything and I understand that. I'm not looking for credit when things get done. You do the job every day whether it's shaping the Adams Green and the downtown or building a new school or replacing windows on other schools and rebuilding seawalls – we set the agenda. We set the agenda based upon what this administration hears from the public."

So while it becomes a three-candidate race in April, there's some speculation that a fourth candidate will jump into the field. That would be former Mayor Bill Phelan who was unseated by Koch in 2007 and lost to Koch again in a mayoral rematch in 2009.

Phelan piqued some political interest when he established an exploratory campaign committee with the state Secretary of State's office. The committee allows Phelan to raise and spend campaign money. However, Phelan did not disclose what office he might be seeking when he set up the committee.

PHELAN

We recently caught up to Phelan and asked him about his political plans this year but he remained mum on the subject.

So, the speculation continues to swirl. Will Phelan take another shot at winning back the mayor's office? Could he be lining up a run for the open council at-large seat that Gutro is vacating to run for mayor? Or how about the open school committee seat that Dave McCarthy is leaving to run for councillor at-large?

Phelan began his political career winning a school committee seat in 1999. Two years later, he unseated incumbent Mayor James Sheets who sought a record seventh two-year term. So it's not too much of a stretch to think Phelan would run again for school committee.

As for the 2015 mayor's race, some have characterized it as a referendum on Tom Koch's eight years as the city's chief executive.

Does Koch see it that way or it is about the vision each of the candidates will project for the city's future?

"I certainly hope it's about ideas. I hope it's based on good dialogue. Elections are about the future. In this election, Tom Koch is not the only one with a record. We have a city councillor (Gutro) who has been on the council for 14 years. We have a school committee member (Mahoney) with 10 years on the School Committee. We all have a record.

"I think the records come into play," Koch continued. "I think decisions come into play. I think the most important piece is leadership. This is the type of job you need a proven leader. You need someone who can dream for the city, provide leadership for the city but day-to-day get the job done for the city.

"I know elections are about the future so hopefully it's about ideas and certainly I'll put my record against anyone's."

Campaigns are also about fundraising and Koch has a significant advantage over his two challengers, according to the most recent filings with the state Office of Campaign and Political Finance.

For the period March 1 through March 15, here's what the three mayoral contenders reported:

• Koch raised $67,875 and started the month of March with a balance of $126,961. He spent $1,772 and has a balance of $193,063. Included in the mayor's receipts was a $1,000 donation from Quincy auctioneer Edward Smith and $500 donations from 14 different individuals. Under state law, individuals can now contribute a maximum of $1,000 to a candidate in a calendar year.

• Gutro raised $1,206 and started the month of March with a balance of $31,154. He spent $1,465 and has balance of $30,894.

• Mahoney did not report any new receipts and began the month with a balance of $19,321. She spent $479 and has a balance of $18,841.

• Phelan reported $100 in new receipts - $50 from his wife and $50 from himself. He reported no expenditures and has a balance of $100.

To view the reports visit the Massachusetts Office of Campaign and Political Finance website at www.ocpf.us/

The election season will not officially get underway until nomination papers are released by the city Board of Registrars Tuesday, May 5. To be on the ballot, those seeking the mayor's seat, city council or school committee must submit nomination papers with at least 50 valid signatures by Tuesday, Aug. 4 at 5 p.m.

Election dates are Tuesday, Sept. 22 for a preliminary election and Tuesday, Nov. 3 for the final.

This fall will also mark the first time voters will elect a mayor who will serve a four-year term.

FINN'S IN – There will be only one open city council at-large seat in the fall election. That's because Councillor at-large Joseph Finn has decided he will seek an eighth term this fall.

FINN

Michael McFarland is also seeking re-election at-large this fall. The third at-large councillor - Doug Gutro - is vacating his seat to run for mayor.

Finn was first elected to the council in 2001 and will finish his seventh term this fall. He's in his second one-year term as city council president.

There was some speculation that Finn would retire at the end of his current term but he told The Sun Monday that is running for re-election. Finn has served as executive director of the Mass. Housing and Shelter Alliance – a $10 million non-profit organization - for 12 years.

Only one candidate has emerged for Gutro's open seat: School Committeeman David McCarthy announced his plans to run at-large earlier this month.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN April 1923 postcard view of Saint Joseph's Catholic Church on the corner of Washington and Pray Streets in Quincy Point. Until 1917 when this church was built and the parish established, the Catholics in Quincy Point attended St. John's Church in Quincy Center. This building is a stucco structure styled after a typical Spanish Mission, which was a departure from the Gothic seam-face granite churches built at that time. In 1927, the parish built an adjacent school where the Sisters of St. Joseph taught the three R's, and discipline, to hundreds of youngsters from the Point and beyond. The school was open for almost 80 years when changes in demographics in the neighborhood resulted in enrollment drops forcing its closing in 2006. Today, the school building is home to the QCAP Early Learning Center which was dedicated to Rosemary and Archie Wahlberg. The church doesn't look like this postcard. It was completely remodeled in 1947 and again in the 1990s. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

'You Are Loved, You Are Not Lost'

(Editor's Note: Jim Bailey is a Quincy firefighter. His son, Jeff, lost his battle with narcotics last fall.)

By JIM BAILEY

Consider this an open letter to all the addicts, dabblers, weekend users of percs, oxy and the needle. To users of narcotics of any kind. To casual users, and those of you who may think they are developing a problem, or know someone who may be.

I know something about your life, and what you are going through. I know of the pain you are in, almost constantly.

I am an officer on the Quincy Fire Department, a paramedic of over 25 years and the father of an addict who lost his battle with narcotics this past October. So, all you users out there, I know of what I speak.

Humble beginnings. Usually not the reference you'd make on your start to using.

Popping a few 5s you took from your mom's medicine chest. Chewing up some 10s on a Friday night with the rest of the crew. With a few beers, it seemed probably one of the best nights ever. Or so you thought.

Humble beginnings for you may have innocently tumbled into more pills, 30s maybe. Sniffing some Oxys now, because it's better. Right, you guys; it seems those 10s don't do it any more. You're not waiting 'til Friday night either. It's turned into most nights now, and some daytimes too.

Critical stage here, boys and girls. This is when you either smarten up and realize the kick has changed. Or you go on with it and see, face to face, the precipice. When you start to feel bad about your little habit, and feel guilty about trying to feel good, how do you guys fix that? More pills, right?

Another turning point here guys. You are just one bad decision away from jumping into the life with both feet, and maybe using the needle. C'mon guys, it's a lot cheaper and easier to get, right?

My son Jeff and I talked about his story many times, in his animated way, about his descent into hard drugs. We held each other, and cried.

I gave him my "Dad's take" on his situation, and how his actions have affected everyone in his life. Jeff told me of the shame he carried, made worse because he thought I had no pride in him. He had been in pain for a long time. And shamed about being an addict. I was glad we could talk about it. We hung on each other and cried.

I told my son we all loved him, and always would. That's one thing you all must realize. You are all loved by the people in your life. But the people in your life who love you so much, at the same time, hate what drugs have made you become.

Shipyard Awarded Second Nuclear Sub Contract

The Fore River Shipyard has been awarded a contact for a second nuclear-powered submarine at a cost of $33 million dollars.

The award was announced jointly by Congressman James A. Burke and Senators Leverett Saltonstall and Edward M. Kennedy. The contract is the second to be awarded to the Quincy yard for a nuclear-powered submarine.

COUNCIL TO STUDY METER REMOVAL PLAN

The City Council will include a study of the parking meter removal question when the special committee headed by Councillor George G. Burke meets in his office.

Councillor James S. McCormack who proposed the study committee and Councillor Carl W. Anderson, who is a leader in the movement for the abolition of parking meters, are the other committee members.

The Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce through its traffic and parking committee opposed removal of the meters from the big parking areas.

LEE BACKS MAYOR ON RETIRING METERED PARKING

Planning Director James Lee, in a letter to Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, supported the mayor's position in opposing the removal of parking meters. Both Della Chiesa and Lee noted that parking meters control parking and bring annual revenue of $110,000 a year to the city.

(Editor's note: The parking meters were not removed from the parking areas until the mid-1980s when they were replaced with a validated parking system.)

Quincy's Colman Gillis Wins BC High Oratorical Competition

Colman Gillis of Quincy, an 8th grader at Boston College High School, Arrupe Division, won the Latin Grade 8 Oratorical contest at the 10th Annual Latin and Greek Declamation March 4.

At BC High the celebration is a long-standing tradition between classmates competing in "declamations" of classical texts in the original Greek and Latin language. Leading up to the finals, the Classics department held oratory rounds to whittle the pool down to the best of each grade. The semi-finalists assembled in the Bulger Performing Arts Center during 2nd period to compete for the pride of Exelauno Day declaimer.

Colman's winning passage was from the Aeneid of Vergil Book 4. 621-629: The Curse of Dido upon Aeneas and his descendants, the Romans.

The judges for the competition were Beth Killorin, Michael Frost and Eugene Holmes, teachers at BC High.

Maria Droste Spring Fashion Show April 23

Maria Droste Counseling Agency will present its annual Fashion Show, "Bringing Hope to Life," Thursday, April 23 at Lantana's, Randolph.

Honorary chairpersons of this year's event are Rosemary and Archie Wahlberg of Quincy.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. and feature a cocktail hour, dinner, music, live and silent auctions. The night will culminate with a spring fashion show.

The show is dedicated to the memory of Darlene Sheehan.

The fashion show will feature male and female models. Ladies will wear selections from Boston coututier, David Josef. A selection of accessories will be provided by designer and Quincy native Tia Reilly.

Men will wear fashions from a collection from Hajjar's Apparel for Men of Quincy.

Hair styles will be under the direction of Susan Canavan, Aura of Qiuincy and makeup provided by Brittany Fasano.

The staff of counseling professionals at the Maria Droste Counseling Services Agency based in Quincy believe in four basic values: acceptance, respect, compassion and healing. Staff offer affordable and timely mental health and holistic services to all in need. Since 1992, the staff and volunteer professionals have provided critical support to individuals, couples and family groups on an adjustable fee scale based on each client's ability to pay. The sliding fee scale is made possible by donations from the community.

For tickets and reservations to the fashion show, call 617-471-5886 or visit www.mariadrostecounseling.com.

'Confessions Of Seed Snatcher' HN Garden Club Topic April 1

The Houghs Neck Garden Club's April 1st program is "Confessions of a Seed Snatcher" with Marie-Patrice Masse.

Masse will speak on collecting seeds as well as an "indoor seed-collecting field trip." She brings many different kinds of seed in their natural states, seed pods, stalks, flower heads, and gives participants the opportunity to gather seeds to take home. Members may bring seeds to share as well.

Hosts for refreshments will be Joanne Bythrow and Carol Johnston.

The meeting will take place in the Community Room at Nut Island, 149 Sea St., starting at 7 p.m. with refreshments and brief business meeting followed by program at 7:30 pm.

Julie Bloomer Volunteers With Habitat For Humanity

Julie Bloomer of Quincy, a member of the class of 2018 at Providence College, recently spent a week working with Habitat for Humanity as part of the College's Campus Ministry program.

Bloomer was among more than 130 Providence College students who volunteered to spend their spring break working at Habitat home sites in nine locations in the United States. They participated through the Habitat campus chapter at PC, which is sponsored by the chaplain's office. Bloomer worked on a home project in Kittanning, PA

Founded in 1976, Habitat for Humanity International is a nonprofit, nondenominational Christian housing organization.

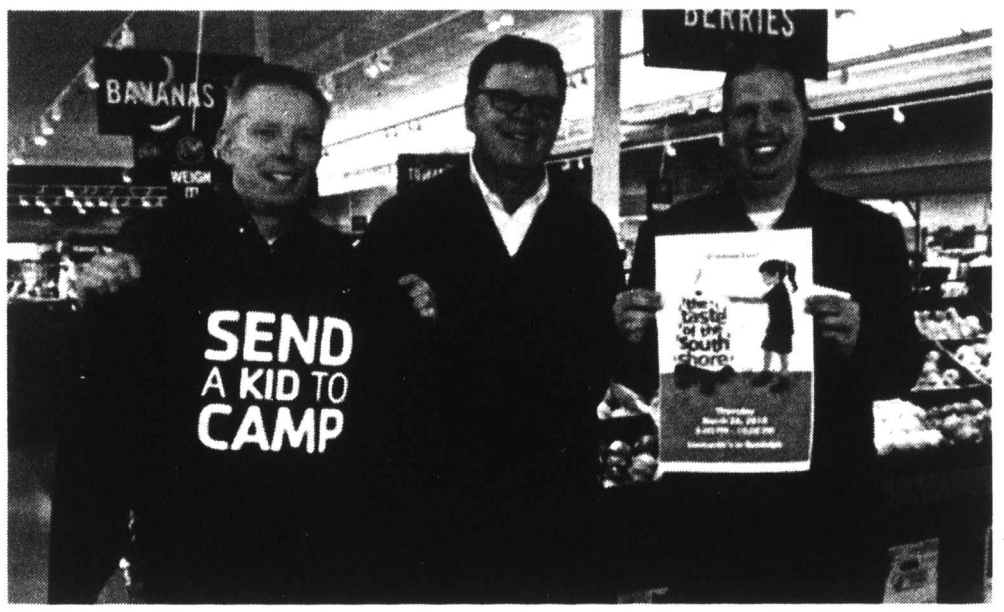
Habitat builds and rehabilitates simple, decent, affordable houses in partnership with those in need of adequate shelter and other volunteers who work through more than 1,900 affiliates worldwide.

Taste Of South Shore To Benefit YMCA

The South Shore YMCA announces Stop & Shop Supermarket Company LLC has signed on as the Lead Sponsor of the Taste of the South Shore.

The annual event that supports the South Shore YMCA's Send a Kid to Camp Appeal will take place March 26 at Lombardo's in Randolph. As the Lead Sponsor, Stop & Shop has donated $35,000.

The Taste of the South Shore raises funds to benefit the Y's Send a Kid to Camp appeal, with a goal of giving 500 local children the opportunity to attend South Shore YMCA Resident and Day Camps this summer by raising $125,000. Camp provides children with the opportunity to be part of a community and offers an environment which fosters belonging, acceptance, independence and relationships. The camp experience not only develops social skills, self-esteem and overall emotional intelligence, it builds future leaders.



STOP & SHOP Supermarket Company has signed on as the lead sponsor of the Taste of the South Shore. The event – set for March 26 – will raise money to send kids to the South Shore YMCA's resident and day camps this summer. "Rooted in Quincy for over five decades, Stop & Shop is committed to giving back to its neighbors in surrounding communities who have helped make the Company what it is today," said Stephanie Plaines, Vice President of Finance, Stop & Shop. "Stop & Shop has a longstanding commitment to investing in the health and well-being of children, making our partnership with the South Shore YMCA and its effort to send kids to camp a natural fit. We are honored to help provide local children with the opportunity to attend camp."

"Thanks to the committed efforts of South Shore YMCA staff and members and generous donors such as Stop & Shop, who take action to address the needs in our communities, local children, who otherwise would be unable, can attend South Shore YMCA Resident and Day camps this summer and learn critical life skills," stated Paul Gorman, President, South Shore YMCA. "We are so grateful that Stop & Shop is helping our organization give children the opportunity to learn, grow, and develop social skills and self-esteem within our camp setting."

Guests will join event co-chairs Paul Wahlberg, Executive Chef of Alma Nove and Wahlburgers at Hingham Shipyard and Julie Ellis, Co-owner of The Chef's Table, at the Taste of the South Shore and sample food and beverages from a combination of 40 of the area's best restaurants, wineries, and breweries, enjoy bottle signings and photo opportunities with KEEL Vodka spokesperson and former NFL player Matt Light, and have the opportunity to win a year of free dining.

To purchase tickets or learn more about sponsorship opportunities, visit www.ssymca.org/donations or email Mary Orne at morne@ssymca.org.

Houghs Neck Garden Club Awards For H.S. Seniors

The Houghs Neck Garden Club (HNGC) is granting Awards to graduating high school seniors from Houghs Neck who have been accepted to a school of higher learning and are concentrating in the field of horticulture, botany, oceanography, environmental studies or an allied field. Applicants must currently be Houghs Neck residents and have been for at least two years.

Applications are available from local high school counselors or by contacting a member of the HNGC. Completed, signed applications must be delivered to Carol Johnston, 46 Bay View Ave., Quincy, MA, 02169. The deadline for submitting applications is May 1.

Upon timely receipt of completed applications, accompanied by a written statement of each student's educational goals, the HNGC Student Awards Committee will review and consider materials. Student(s) granted an award will be notified by phone or mail by May 15.

Helen Murphy Takes Part In Alternative Spring Break

Helen Murphy, a student at Ithaca College, recently participated in the college's Alternative Spring Break program.

Alternative Spring Break gives Ithaca College students the opportunity to grow personally and professionally by working at a variety of sites, ranging from the coasts of North Carolina and Virginia to inner-city Washington, D.C., to Native American territory in New York. The annual program is run by the Office of Student Engagement and Multicultural Affairs.

Murphy, a sophomore public and community health major in the School of Health Sciences and Human Performance, traveled to Outer Banks, N.C., to work with the North Carolina Coastal Federation in the upper Outer Banks region on coastal preservation projects, including coastal cleanups and reef restoration.

Easter Bread

By MARIE

Today's recipe for a delicious Easter bread is from my daughter Ann Marie, and one that she has used for a while.

I plan to make it for Easter. She made it last week and it was so delicious that I wanted to share it with you.

For this recipe you do not need to use a mixer, as it mixes well just by hand. It can be made a head of time and you can use any flavoring including anisette, vanilla, almond or lemon extracts.

I've also included a recipe for a wonderful easy frosting to go with the bread.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Whatever you decide to use for the flavoring in the bread can be used for the frosting as well.

EASTER BREAD

3 cups of flour
1 stick of butter
4 eggs
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 tsp of salt
4 tsps baking powder
2 tsp of your desired extracts.

Mix sugar and butter together, add dry ingredients alternately with the egg and flavoring. Mix well until it becomes a dough. It can be shaped in 1 log or in 2. Bake on cookie sheet for 25 minutes or if a toothpick comes out clean in center

Frosting: 1/8 cup warm milk, 1/2 cup powdered sugar, 1/2 tsp flavoring, mix together till smooth. When cooled spread on bread and add colored sprinkles if desired.

Happy Easter!

Crackers

By SUZIE

Here is a great cracker recipe that is high in protein and low on the carbs. These make a great snack and are loaded with flavor as well as being highly nutritious!

Almonds are a very good source of vitamin E, manganese, biotin, and copper as well as they are a good source of magnesium, molydenum, riboflavin (vitamin B2), and phosphorus. And although many people stay away from nuts because they are afraid of weight gain, the opposite is actually true. People who eat almonds and other nuts regularly tend to weigh less as well as being healthier in general, including less cardiovascular issues.

The almond that we think of as a nut is technically the seed of the fruit of the almond tree, a medium-size tree that bears fragrant pink and white flowers. Like its cousins, the peach, cherry and apricot trees, the almond tree bears fruits with stone-like seeds (or pits) within. The seed of the almond fruit is what we refer to as the almond nut. Who knew? Well, now you do. Enjoy these yummy crackers!

1 1/4 cups blanched almond flour (NOT almond meal. Bob's Red Mill makes a great brand but there are others)
1/8 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. baking soda
1/2 cup freshly grated organic cheddar cheese (I like it SHARP)
1 1/2 T olive oil
1 large egg

Directions

Preheat oven to 350. Grate 1/2 cup cheddar cheese.

In a medium-sized bowl, combine almond flour, salt, baking soda and cheese. In a smaller bowl, whisk together the egg and oil. Pour the egg mixture into the dry ingredients and stir until well-combined.

Cut two pieces of parchment paper the size of your cookie sheet. Put one piece of parchment on cutting board and put dough on top, or half the dough if baking on small baking sheet. (I made the dough into the shape of the parchment.) Put second piece of parchment on top of the dough and roll out with rolling pin until dough covers the parchment sheet.

Remove top parchment and cut dough into pieces 2 inches square. (A pizza cutter would be perfect for this if you have one.) Slide the parchment with the cut dough onto baking sheet and bake crackers 12-15 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Let crackers cool on the baking sheet for 30 minutes.

Ziti With Sausage & Cream Sauce

By MARIE

Although I prefer tomato sauce with pasta as opposed to white sauce, I recently found today's recipe that was made with a cream sauce that was easy to make and so flavorful.

It's made with sausages and the combination with the sauce was different and enjoyable. Any kind of sausage can be used-chicken, turkey or pork sausage. I used the pork sausage.

Ziti With Sausage & Cream Sauce
1 pound pork sausage with skin removed
2 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons butter
1 small onion
1 cup heavy cream
salt and pepper to taste
1 pound ziti
1/4 cup Parmesan cheese

Heat the butter and the oil-add the onion and sauté for a couple of minutes. Add the sausage and cook moving it around until lightly browned.

Reduce the heat to low and add the cream, salt and pepper, and continue to cook stirring until well blended.

Cook the ziti according to directions.

In a bowl, place the pasta, toss with the sauce, and sprinkle with the cheese.

READERS FORUM

'You Are Loved, You Are Not Lost'

My son was taken with the lifestyle and was addicted to the trappings of using as much as the drugs themselves. Does that sound familiar to any any of you? I'm sure some of you readers are there, too.

When he was off heroin and using Suboxone, he would miss the mechanics of using, which would lead him back into it.

I know, boys and girls, that being an addict is a tough, guilt-ridden life. Just like making a string of bad decisions brought you to where you are, it takes just a few good decisions to turn yourselves around.

I am not an addict. I am a public safety provider who has seen the mess that narcotics make of your lives. I have been in your living rooms, bedrooms, the bathrooms, either saving one of you with Narcan or having to tell your wailing parents, that even Narcan and CPR won't be enough this time. That, my friends, is a far uglier sight than the worst, bloody, weeping infected tracks I have ever seen.

The loss,.anger and despair you see now in your parents' faces – you all know that look. Multiply that 10 times. That is what overcomes your loved ones, with your cooling body lying there. A shell now. Maybe wearing a shirt your mother always liked to see you in.

The outpouring of grief and sadness and shame continue long after you are in the ground.

"Yeah, boy, it sure feels good gettin' high, doesn't it?"

It's good decision time, my addicted friends. You all know the routes. My son Jeff was in one form of rehab or another seven times. It breaks my heart none of these worked for him. Probably most of you guys have already been down that road. Stick with them or revisit them. They can work.

Don't be afraid to open up either. Open up to friends-of-old who you dropped during your descent into addiction. Reach out to family members who may, or may not know your plight. I'm sure the last thing you want to see is another disapproving relative; they do want to help.

Reach out to the church. Clergy members live to help people in need. Keep your doctor (primary care physician) in the loop. If you see a therapist or have in the past, go back. Tell him or her of your addiction. It's all confidential. Talk to a cop on patrol about what's going on with you. Knock on the door of your local fire station. First responders live to help out too. You're not locked into anything if you reach out in this way.

Some of you may already have a relationship with police and the courts. But look for help beyond that.

Cops' kids have died of overdoses. Firefighters' kids have died of overdoses. The illness knows no boundaries.

Try rehab again. Try Suboxone again. Try Methadone again.

I know through my late son the despair you feel and the self-loathing that makes it all too easy to just use. That's the cycle you guys out there must beat.

Know that you are all loved, though you may hate yourselves.

I was angry yesterday when I heard another young man had killed himself with the needle.

Know this people, and I say again. You are loved, you are not lost. It's time to make some good decisions.

Blue-Collar Quincy Needs Heavy Industry

To make Quincy prosperous, heavy industry is needed.

Developing downtown Quincy will not do it. Building apartment and condominium buildings will not do it. Building a park with statues will not do it.

Quincy is, and forever will be, a blue collar city. Many trainable jobs with big paychecks are needed to provide a comfortable middle class life style for our citizens.

The prime real estate for heavy industry in Quincy, the Fore River Shipyard, is mostly used as a parking lot and snow farm. Not only is there space enough for heavy industry, but it is connected to sea access.

The prior attempt to revitalize heavy industry at that site was shipbuilding which had already proven to be a losing game. Failure was preordained. Someone like Steve Jobs is needed to search this great country for an industry that is looking for a home in Quincy.

Questions Police About SUVs

I read in the Sun, that Paul Keenan wants to replace a few SUVs for the police. What I would like to know is, why does Keenan need new SUVs when he has a fleet of them sitting around the city, watching time go by.

You can find them in parking lots, at car washes, fire houses, ect. I will go one better. I will challenge Paul Keenan to a polygraph test to his claim that this city is patrolled 24/7. Yes, I do agree that these "patrol cars" are "running" 24/7, but never leave their sitting positions unless called by dispatch.

We (Ward 4) never see a patrol car (SUV) unless they are in a funeral, and then they speed by after, to get back to their position in a parking lot. We (in Ward 4) also see the motorcycle officers (in funerals) speed by, with lights on both during and after a funeral. After a funeral, the bikes, speed by in formation with their sirens and lights going to Gods knows where.

This is our leadership, at the police department? Nominations papers come out in a few weeks.

'Beyond Bell' Program Replaces Extended School Days

out of school program.

The School Committee's vote on March 18 means the last day of school for most students will remain June 26; the extended days will not happen while a half-day will still be held on April 3 and middle schoolers will have a full day April 14. The School Committee voted 5-1 in favor of the revised plan. Committee member David McCarthy, who opposed holding school on Good Friday during previous meetings, cast the lone dissenting vote. Barbara Isola was absent from the March 18 meeting.

Principals and teachers will come together this week and start working on specifics for the Beyond the Bell program, Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said Tuesday. The activities will begin May 1 and end on June 13 with Quincy's annual Flag Day parade. Teachers will lead in class reflection time the following school week.

"We're building a lot of different programs for kids after school. We're looking at many different opportunities," the superintendent said. "We're building this thing that fits into the family schedule."

DeCristofaro said the Beyond the Bell program wouldn't be reminiscent of other school projects, where students and parents sit around the kitchen table to work together and bring something into class.

"The whole idea of this being project based – it's much more thematic based, looking at our history," he explained. "These are really afternoon programs for the kids that offer opportunities they might not have had."

School officials are working with community partners on the programs. The superintendent mentioned that the Quincy Fire and Police Departments could provide afterschool programs for students, on top of programs they normally put on in the classroom. The YMCA, National Park Service, and Quincy Historical Society are other community partners who will likely participate in the program.

"The community partners already do so much," DeCristofaro said. "This would be an extension of that."

More information on the program will be unveiled during the regular School Committee meeting on April 8 and a teaching and learning subcommittee meeting April 27.

State approval for the plan to replace two school days with the Beyond the Bell program was not needed, but school administrators have consulted with state officials on the plan.

During the March 18 meeting, DeCristofaro told the committee he had reached out to the MBTA about altering bus routes. The transit agency was noncommittal about being able to do so.

"They knew they could do something but they didn't know if they could do everything we needed to do. It became a bit problematic when I contacted them and say they said 'we don't know whether we can do the full "S" schedule,' their school trips," the superintendent said.

"They're still trying to work that out but I realized in talking to the School Committee that this was going to become a real problem with 500 students and parents that would be very, very concerned about our transportation, in particular for our middle school students."

DeCristofaro added that he learned about the ability to hold programs outside the classroom in lieu of making up days from his counterpart in Braintree though messages from Dr. Mitchell Chester, the state's education commissioner, alluded to the program.

"I received a call from Braintree Superintendent Maureen Murray sharing that Braintree Public Schools had been granted a one-day waiver for a special out of school project-based learning concept that was approved by their school committee with guidance from the Department of Education," DeCristofaro told the committee.

"The commissioner's weekly message had alluded to the idea, but in multiple phone conversations with the [Department of Elementary and Secondary Education] staff including the commissioner over the last three weeks it was never really offered in any way. It was never offered as a concept."

School Committee vice chairwoman Kathryn Hubley said it was disappointing to have to amend the vote taken two days prior, faulting the MBTA and the education commissioner.

"We called the last meeting to get a vote out there because parents need to plan. We needed to have this done," Hubley said. "That's why I'm very disappointed we're bringing this up again. In my opinion, MBTA is not being the partners with us that I would hope they would be and the commissioner did not make this option easily known to us, and that's disappointing as well."

Committee member Noel DiBona said the policy subcommittee should look into making the out of school program a requirement in the future if a certain number of days are cancelled during the school year.

"We as a committee right now need to look further in September about putting something into policy about putting some type of project when we hit like the four-day mark and when we hit the eight-day mark. We need to put these projects into place, have it in policy, talk about in September and have it for next school year," he said.

"To say this will only happen this year is not a good, proactive approach for this committee. We need to do a better job with that."

Committee member Anne Mahoney, who is running for mayor in this year's election, said she was frustrated by the process and faulted school officials for not knowing the out of school program would be an option.

"My frustration is very high, not just as a School Committee member but as a parent and somebody who is trying to plan their day and plan around my children's schedule," she said.

"What's really frustrating though is that we did have a School Committee meeting back in February that we cancelled, which we could have started this discussion. We held out to have conversations. We held out for information from the commissioner. The commissioner did have this information here; we didn't inquire about that. That's us. We could have inquired; we didn't know what that language meant. Braintree did it and thankfully they did."

Veterans Clinic Opens

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new clinic for local veterans opened this week at Manet Community Health Center's North Quincy location at 110 West Squantum Street.

The Quincy Community Based Outpatient Clinic, which is operated by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and will serve some 1,400 veterans in Quincy and surrounding communities, began seeing patients Monday. Quincy clinic patients may confirm their appointments by dialing the call center at 857-364-4418.

A ribbon cutting ceremony marking the opening of the new center will take place next Monday, March 30, a 1 p.m. U.S. Rep. Stephen F. Lynch, VA Boston Healthcare System Director Vincent Ng, and Manet CEO John J. Holiver are among the officials scheduled to attend the ceremony, along with leaders of local veterans organizations.

The CBOC had been located at the former Quincy Medical Center, but closed when the hospital shutdown late last year and was converted into a standalone emergency department.

The new location offers more space and is accessible by public transportation, according to Ng.

"The new clinic is the result of reviewing several different locations in the Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth areas in an effort to continue our footprint in the Quincy community," he said in a press release.

"The 1,400 veterans in that area are used to receiving high-quality, timely care from staff they know and trust and we want that quality of care to continue with as little inconvenience to veterans as possible. I also want to thank the veteran community for their continued support during this transition."

Manet and VA Boston staffs are working together to ensure a seamless entry and warm welcome for the veterans.

"As a federally qualified community health center, Manet is honored to offer our hospitality and fellowship to VA Boston Healthcare," Holiver said. "To that end, we see our North Quincy location as a wonderful resolution for both the VA Clinic and Manet and representative of new beginnings and a new partnership."

Feel free to wear your comfy jammies and bring along your favorite stuffed friend, as we read stories about ducks.

Camp Frozen Story Concert

On Wednesday, April 22nd at 10 a.m. in the large meeting room at the Main Library join 4th and 5th grade students from Beechwood Knoll School as they perform a concert production of their original play "Camp Frozen", the tale of a winter weekend gone terribly wrong that includes favorite songs from Frozen.

Shipwreck Detective

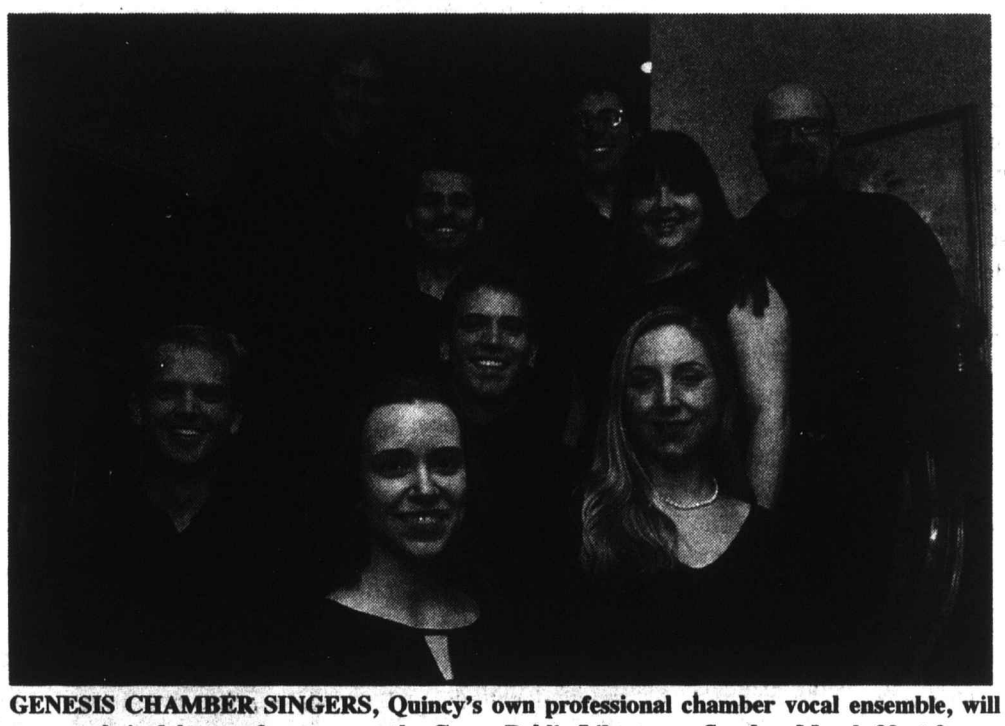
Did you know there's a wild ocean place just off the Massachusetts coast? Stellwagen Bank National Marine Sanctuary, 10 miles off the coast of Scituate, is home to an amazing array of wildlife and shipwrecks, some you have to dive deep to explore!

On Thursday, April 23rd from 10 to noon, come explore the ocean floor and uncover the maritime secrets just off our shores. Become and ocean archeologist, map a shipwreck, try on SCUBA diving gear, learn about the fish and marine life that inhabit the Sanctuary, or listen to a story. Come for the full session, or stop in and try an activity or listen to a story. This program is for all ages; families welcome.

Stellwagen Bank National Marine Sanctuary encompasses 842 square miles of ocean, stretching between Cape Ann and Cape Cod offshore of Massachusetts. Renowned for its biological diversity and remarkable productivity, the sanctuary is famous as a whale watching destination and supports a rich assortment of marine life, including marine mammals, seabirds, fishes and marine invertebrates. The sanctuary's position astride the historic shipping routes and fishing grounds for Massachusetts' oldest ports also makes it a repository for shipwrecks representing several hundred years of maritime transportation.

Saturday Storytime @ North Quincy

Join us for a family storytime full offspring stories about butterflies. This program is for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult on Saturday, April 25th at 10:00 a.m. at the North Quincy Branch Library. No registration required.



GENESIS CHAMBER SINGERS, Quincy's own professional chamber vocal ensemble, will present their debut performance at the Crane Public Library on Sunday, March 29 at 3 p.m. Admission is free. Led by artistic director and Quincy resident Joseph Young, the 8-voice mixed voice ensemble performs unaccompanied classical choral music in intimate spaces for intimate sized audiences. The eight singers all have degrees in music performance, and some have or are pursuing masters degrees as well. The ensemble feaetures Sopranos Barbara Hill and Katie Boardman; Altos Von Bringhurst and Caroline Olsen; Tenors Trey Pratt and Elijah Hopkin; and Basses Eli Blaisdell and Dominick Matsko. Repertoire on the program includes music of Josef Rheinberger, Samuel Barber, Charles Stanford, Edward Elgar, Sir Arthur Sullivan, and a world premiere of a work by Boston composer Adria Stolk. The Genesis Chamber Singers' performance is supported by Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For more information, visit www.genesischambersingers.com. Photo Courtesy Joseph Young

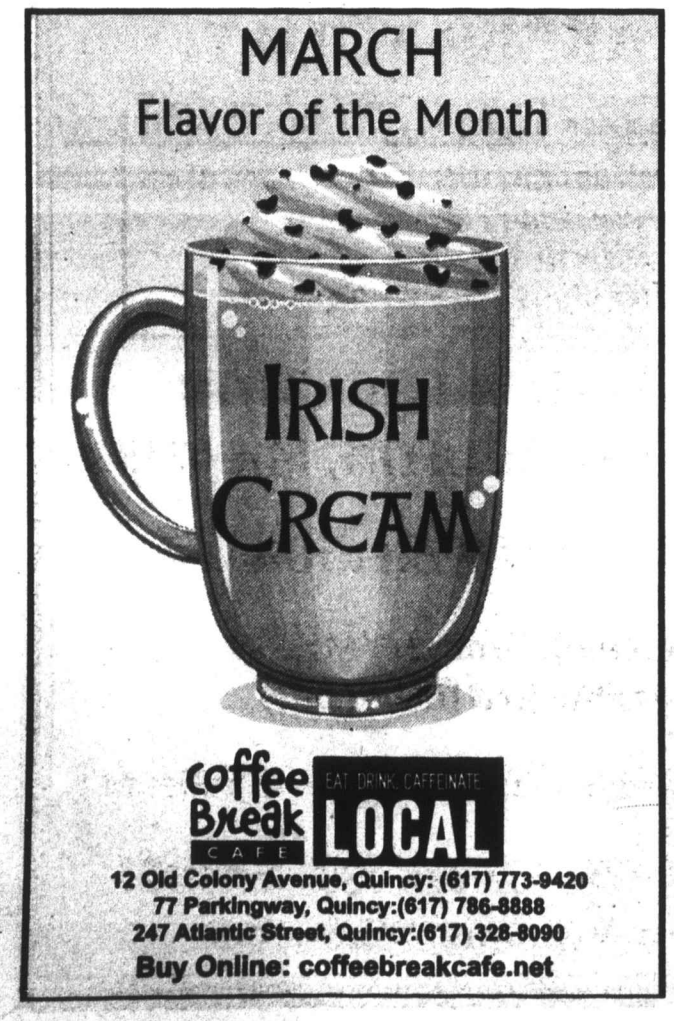
E-mail reservations are preferred and all reservations will be confirmed. Children must be accompanied by and adult.



Skills USA Medalists Recognized; More School Notes

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ten members of Quincy High's SkillsUSA team were recognized recently by the School Committee.

Thirty-four students from Quincy High competed in a district SkillsUSA competition in February. The ten students recognized by the school board March 18 all medalled at the competition.

The students recognized were:

Leanne Gough, Gold Medal, criminal justice; James Hagborg, Gold Medal, electronic technology; Jessica Siders, Silver Medal, advertising design; Brianna McCombs, Silver Medal, criminal justice; Ryan Foy, Silver Medal, electronics technology; Cristian Pegueiro, Silver Medal, internetworking; Joseph McMahon, Silver Medal, technical computer applications; Hanson Le, Bronze Medal, electrical construction wiring; Bernardo Teixeira, Bronze Medal, technical computer applications; and David Pham, Bronze Medal, telecommunications cabling.

SkillsUSA provides educational programs, events and competitions that support career and technical education in secondary schools. This year, 127 students enrolled at SkillsUSA at Quincy High, up from 89 in the previous school year.

Students in the program provide assistance during open houses and parent teacher conferences, usher at Quincy Symphony Orchestra concerts, and serve as ushers and present colors at Quincy High's commencement ceremonies.

Henry Yip, the school system's Career and Vocational Student of the Year, was recognized by the committee as well. Yip, an information technology major at Quincy High, is ranked sixth in his class with a grade point average of 4.5 and has never missed a day of high school.

"He is quiet and unassuming yet charming and witty, and he possesses a character that is respected by peers and faculty alike," Ed Holmes, a QHS information technology teacher, said.

"Besides his academic and technical achievements, Henry is also a well-rounded student with extremely diverse interests. He is a member the National Honor Society and National Science Honor Society as well as Quincy High School's varsity volleyball team. Henry participates in Book Club, Science and Engineering Fair and SkillsUSA."

Yip thanked the teachers he's had for helping him along the way and said he would continue to prove he was a worthy recipient of the award.

"Quincy Public Schools has created an outstanding environment and handed each student the keys to success. Statistics and ranks do not determine who we are," Yip said.

"As Winston Churchill once said, 'success is not final; failure is not fatal. It is the courage to continue that counts.' The success of winning this award is not the end. As I continue on to college and the world of work thereafter, I will try my best to prove that this award presented to me was a worthy investment."

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy was recognized for its recent donations to the school system.

The club dissolved this month after 91 years of service in the city; during its last meeting on March 4, the Kiwanis Club distributed $74,000 to a dozen community organizations.

The Quincy Public Schools special education department received $10,000, Terrific Kids Programs at Lincoln-Hancock and Snug Harbor received $5,000 each, and the Quincy Teen Mothers Program also received $5,000.

"We are very, very, very appreciative of everything you've done," Judy Todd, the school system's director of special education, said. "You've done so much for our kids."

A new advisory on open enrollment was issued on Monday.

At the elementary level, open enrollment is likely to be limited in all grades to siblings of already enrolled students at Beechwood Knoll, Clifford Marshall, and Merrymount. Open enrollment in some grades may be limited to siblings of currently enrolled students at Bernazzani, Lincoln-Hancock, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, and Wollaston. No limitations are currently foreseen at either Atherton Hough or Parker.

Notification of elementary school open enrollment will begin in late June.

It appears likely that open enrollment for all grades at Central Middle School will be limited to siblings of current students only. Open enrollment may be limited at Atlantic and Broad Meadows; no limitations are seen at Point Webster or Sterling.

Middle school open enrollment notification will begin in late June.

Open enrollment requests are likely to be granted at both high schools; students will be notified beginning in May.

Quincy Band Boosters President Lori Hagborg announced during the March 18 meeting the group would donate a number of percussion instruments to the Sterling Middle School band.

The instruments include a large bass drum with a stand and set of mallets, concert bells, sleigh bells, wood blocks, triangles, maracas, tambourine, bongos, chimes, crash symbols, and cowbells.

"We wish the students of Sterling Middle School band many years of musical enjoyment as these instruments enhance the music these kids create," Hagborg said.

The School Committee approved an out-of-state travel request for sixth graders at Sterling who will be going to Canobie Lake Park in New Hampshire on June 17.

An overnight travel request was also approved for SkillsUSA students to attend a Massachusetts Leadership Conference in Marlborough from April 30 to May 2.

The appointment of Elizabeth Jordan as Wollaston Elementary School's new nurse was approved by voice vote.

The School Committee's next regular meeting is scheduled for April 8 at 7 p.m. inside the Coddington Building, 34 Coddington St.

Norfolk County Correctional Center Receives $250,000 Grant

The Norfolk County Correctional Center is one of 22 correctional agencies across the country selected to receive a grant for implementation of a law passed by Congress to make jails and prisons safer.

Congress passed the Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA) in 2003, but it took federal officials 10 years to draft regulations that will effectively carry out the law's objective, which is to wipe out sexual assaults among inmates by improving reporting and investigative procedures.

"This grant reflects the extensive work we have done to be on the leading edge of implementation of the law, and we're honored to be recognized by the United States Department of Justice," said Norfok County Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

The grant of $250,000 is to be used for continuing training of staff and education of inmates. An outside vendor will be hired to act as a third-party adviser to consult with inmates reporting an assault.

The Department of Justice will be sending auditors to all correctional facilities throughout the country to ensure compliance. The auditors are expected to visit the Norfolk County Correctional Center in late spring or summer.

"It is always our aim to run an absolutely safe and secure facility," Bellotti said. "PREA is a powerful tool toward accomplishing that goal."

Bed Bugs Extermination Begins At O'Brien Towers

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Quincy Housing Authority, which a month ago had specially trained dogs sniffing out bed bugs at O'Brien Towers in Germantown, began chemically exterminating a newly discovered infestation of the pests on Friday, said James Lydon, executive director of the authority.

Lydon enlisted the help of A1 Exterminators of Lynn to provide regular services and maintenance.

The company initially brought in three Beagles to detect bed bugs through the walls and floors of the 274-unit elderly and disabled housing property.

A report issued shortly thereafter stated that bed bugs had been found in 33 of the building's units.

Following an initial extermination, A1 Exterminators consultants visually inspected units and three weeks ago came to the conclusion that not all of the bed bugs had been detected by the dogs and that the infestation had continued and spread to other units.

In total, 44 units were found to have bed bugs.

Units surrounding those infested with bedbugs will undergo chemical treatment as a precautionary measure.

A1 "suggested bringing in the dogs," said Lydon, because of their acute sense of smell which can detect infestations easily missed by the human eye.

The housing authority had considered going out to bid for the project contract as a cost-cutting measure because "project costs are going through the roof," he said, but due to the urgent nature of the problem the authority has decided to stay with A1.

"We decided to move quickly with the existing contract," said Lydon.

The original $100,000 cost of detecting and eliminating the bed bugs has gone up two, and possibly even threefold, he added.

The authority has opted out of heat treatment options to be used in conjunction with chemical treatments due to cost.

The cost of bed bug management is being covered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

According to Lydon, the prohibitive cost of heat treatment was less related to the process itself but with preparing the units for treatment.

Sprinkler heads must be covered and packed with dry ice and the building's fire alarm system must be completely turned off in preparation for heat treatment, he said. A member of the Quincy Fire Department must also be at the property for as long as the sprinkler system is turned off.

Tenants have been directed to clear clutter from their units so that all infestations can be easily detected and eliminated.

This preliminary cleaning and decluttering step is especially important in the case of hoarders whose belongings may prevent bed bug hot spots from being adequately treated.

Residents will also be instructed to wash and dry all comforters, sheets, pillowcases, and other fabric items in their homes at a high heat as this can kill bed bugs.

They can also be eliminated by being vacuumed up.

Lydon said residents will be asked to tightly wrap and seal personal belongings prior to chemical extermination.

Bed bugs are notoriously difficult to exterminate. The bloodsucking parasites are easily carried from one home to another on a person's clothing, shoes, or personal items and can leave red welts behind after they feed on a human host.

They don't spread disease however their bites are itchy and unsightly.

Bed bugs commonly infest sofas and mattresses.

Judy Morris, elderly and disabled service coordinator for the authority, enacted the help of a company that specializes in assisting the elderly and disabled with preparing their apartments and belongings for bed bug screenings and eradication.

"I know I have a lot of residents who are physically incapable of doing that work," said Lydon.

At a meeting regarding bed bug prevention several months ago, Morris suggested residents not enter homes with a known infestation and to contact the authority immediately if they suspect they have bed bugs.

Lydon said that in the past year occasional complaints of bed bugs have come up at other QHA properties but the most serious and persistent infestation is at O'Brien Towers.

According to the authority's maintenance foreman Billy O'Neal, the effectiveness of the chemical treatments depends largely on how units and tenant's personal belongings are prepared prior to extermination.

Without the appropriate preparation the treatments are largely ineffective, he said.

In fact, the authority expects that some units will remain infested and as a last resort will have to use heat treatment methods in conjunction with chemical treatment to completely eradicate the problem.

Last week 30 units had undergone treatment.

The bed bug sniffing dogs will be brought in again after this round of exterminations, said Lydon.

Housing Authority Unveils No Smoking Plan

if they currently smoke and sought their opinions on the policy, she said.

Following that, said Stockwell, resident forums and community meetings in each housing authority building will be held for tenants to provide feedback.

"The ultimate goal of a smoke-free policy is to promote a healthier living environment and reduce exposure to secondhand smoke," she said. "It's not about quitting but sometimes it presents the opportunity for residents who want or who have considered quitting."

"The important thing to remember is it's a no smoking policy; not a no smoker policy. We don't want smokers to feel pressured to quit. We don't want them to feel threatened or judged in any way," she said, adding that she's seen people become more motivated to cut down or completely kick their smoking habit following such smoking bans.

A trained tobacco cessation specialist will be on hand to conduct support groups where coping mechanisms and methods on how to deal with the symptoms of withdrawal will be taught.

The cessation programs will last six weeks and all costs except for those associated with medication will be covered by the grant money.

Kathleen McCabe, director of policy and practice at Health Resources in Action (HRiA), works with housing authorities throughout the state.

HRiA is a state agency specializing in advancing public health initiatives.

Committee member Thomas Lynn inquired as to the legality surrounding an authority-wide smoking ban.

She said legal challenges have occasionally presented themselves following the implementation of smoking bans at other housing authorities.

"There have been evictions in Massachusetts solely on no smoking issues in subsidized housing but not in public housing so far," she said. "These [smoking bans] are relatively new at this point so only within the last year or two are we seeing a lot of the enforcement happening."

"It's totally legal. Landlords can make their property smoke-free," she said. "There's no constitutional right to smoke in general."

Legal action is taking place in instances where landlords are being held responsible for not accommodating tenants that complain about secondhand smoke traveling into their units through their neighbors' walls, said McCabe.

She provided a theoretical example of a tenant living next door to a smoker who begins experiencing adverse effects on their health as a result of secondhand smoke leaking into their unit.

If a landlord were unable to accommodate their tenant by moving them into a unit away from smokers or was unable to provide a smoke-free environment they may be challenged legally.

"This will lower our legal exposure," said Lynn.

The banning of electronic cigarettes was discussed since their adverse effects on health are not fully understood, said Stockwell, however she could not make an official recommendation to the authority whether or not they should include language in their lease agreements banning the use of electronic cigarettes.

She said nebulous language could possibly be incorporated into the lease banning the use of vaporized tobacco products and other combustibles such as paraphernalia used for smoking marijuana.

On the flip side, she said, some landlords have been permitting the use of electronic cigarettes because they feel that if tenants are provided with an alternative they'll be less likely to smoke actual cigarettes in their units.

She stated that landlords can't discriminate based on smoking status by denying them housing.

The smoking ban, if enacted, will be enforced like all rules outlined in a tenant's lease. Tenant's will be given a warning for each of their infractions which will be kept on their record. After several infractions, eviction will be considered, said Lydon.

Enforcement of the ban will rely heavily on tenants reporting to their building managers that other tenants are smoking in their units. Any inspections by housing authority employees that provide evidence of smoking such as heavily yellowed walls could also be reported to building managers, suggested committee member Michael Flaherty.

"There's no need to create new enforcement mechanisms," said McCabe.

Lydon said he felt confident that the indoor smoking ban would be well received by those attending community meetings.

"I overall favor the policy," he said, adding that no time frame for enforcing the ban has been determined.

City Receives $287,000 For Street Work

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy has received an extra $287,000 from the state to be used for road repairs related to this winter's severe weather.

The state on March 19 released $30 million in funds to Massachusetts communities for patching potholes, pavement cracking, surface defects, paving projects; repair or replacement of damaged signs, guardrails, storm drains, and line striping.

The funds were distributed using the same formula that determines Chapter 90 allocations for road repairs. Quincy will receive $287,457 as a result.

The state released the funds days after the City Council gave the Department of Public Works $200,000 from free cash for pothole repair. Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the city is likely to use the entire $487,000 as it continues to repair roads in the wake of this winter's record-breaking snowfall and below average temperatures.

"Anything we get from the state is on top of money that has been appropriated. We will work to determine how best to use the money. There is certainly no shortage of repairs needed after this winter," Walker said. "We will almost assuredly use all of it."

More than nine feet of snow fell in Quincy this past winter, with most of coming over a four-week stretch from late January and into February. The most snowfall in recorded history fell this year at Boston's Logan Airport – 110.3 inches – besting the previous record of 107.6 inches set during the 1995-1996 season.

"Since day one, we promised to partner with our cities and towns to provide them with the support needed to keep local infrastructure in reliable shape," Gov. Charlie Baker said in a statement. "After an unprecedented winter of heavy snowfall and frigid temperatures, this additional support will allow municipalities to patch up potholes and address local repairs as needed."

"This winter's record-setting snowfall has left our cities and towns with a major maintenance deficit that needs to be addressed immediately," Lt. Gov. Karyn Polio added. "This program provides municipalities with additional resources to accelerate those repairs and make our roadways safer for everyone."

New Elementary Report Cards

the city's elementary schools is designing the new report cards. At least one teacher from each grade level at each school has been involved in the process.

"The design of the teacher teams was very effective," Robin Moreira, principal at Atherton Hough, said. "It's inevitable when you get a group of teachers together, especially citywide, they talk about their instruction, they share best practices, what's working, what resources they're using for what, and they dig deeper into the standards and talk vertically. I consistently hear great feedback after each meeting from my staff involved. The work is hard but very valuable and productive.

"It also is helpful to have those representatives from each grade in each school share with their colleagues back at home, and the staff in general, of the work they're doing – issues they're facing, questions they may have, and the progress on the timeline. It's helped keep everyone involved in this important transition."

The teacher teams had three main tasks, according to Carol Austin, a fifth grade English language arts focus teacher at Snug Harbor. The teams had to identify which standards are important, how to express them succinctly on the report card to make them readable for parents and students, and how proficient should be defined. The new report cards, she added, can also serve as a tool for teachers to base lesson plans around.

"Now that the report card will be aligned to our standards, our teachers can use that as a tool to plan units and then lessons off this beautiful instrument," Austin said.

As part of the process, new grading rubrics are being created. This will ensure students are graded alike throughout the school system.

"These are going to be vital documents for teachers," Casey Deaguero, a fourth grade math focus teacher at Bernazzani, explained.

"They will be very detailed and specific and they will provide teachers with a clear definition as to what the expectations are for students to receive a proficient grade. These rubrics will be used across the district so the grades that are given are fair and uniform."

The teachers will continue revising the new report cards over the next several months. Parents of students will be able to learn more about them during a parent academy planned for April 2 and another parent academy session on May 18. The team will provide another update with the School Committee on May 20.

Two or three teachers from each elementary school will attend a training session for the new grading system on June 9; design team members will also present an update that same day to school principals.

Voluntary training sessions for all staff will take place this summer with more training in September. The School Committee will receive another update on the process on Oct. 15.

New report cards will first be issued in December at the end of the first semester; as part of the process the team decided on reorganizing the semesters so each would be approximately 60 days long. The new report cards will be issued in advance of parent-teacher conferences, which are scheduled for January.

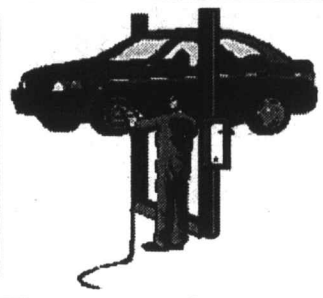
SPRING CAR CARE



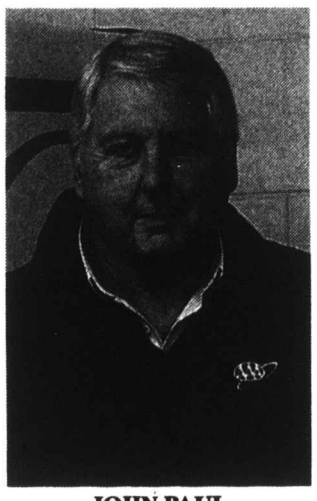
Preventive Maintenance Helps Avoid Costly Repairs

A car can't last forever, but if you take good care of it, you can make it go the distance into the decades and maintain its value.

AAA Car Doctor John Paul stresses the importance of preventive maintenance. Repairs are expensive, but many can be avoided if you follow this advice.

1. Read your owner's manual. The handy book, which should be kept in your glove compartment, contains recommendations of which services should be performed and when, such as oil and filter changes and transmission fluid flushes. Instead of stashing it away until you really need it, read it thoroughly, so you can get an idea of what your car needs in advance.

This book should be your guide to all the maintenance with your car. If your repair shop has other recommendations refer to the vehicle owner's manual. In too many cases some repair shops will add unnecessary service such as fluid changes or flushes which are not required by the vehicle manufacturer. Now of course if fluids are contaminated they need to be changed, but not just at the whim of the repair shop.



JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

2. Keep a logbook. Store a notebook with your owner's manual. This will help you keep track of all maintenance tasks performed. When your car gets an oil change, mark the date and mileage. Write down every time you add or change fluids. Keep track of your gas mileage and record repairs. "It's a good way to see if you have a problem," Paul said. "Your log will reveal any unusual car behavior." Keeping a log book will help verify maintenance was performed if there are any warranty issues.

3. Be aware of your battery. A battery lasts about five years, but after three, you should have it tested annually. With AAA's mobile battery service, you can schedule an appointment to have a truck come to you to test your battery. Is your car frequently sitting in the driveway for a month or longer? "Consider using a Battery Tender, as this will help maintain the battery and maximize its life," Paul added.

4. Check your tire pressure and tire tread. When the tires are cool, check pressure with a tire gauge. Under-inflation can reduce tire life and give you poor gas mileage. Look at the sticker on the driver's side door to find out the proper pressure. Equally important to tire pressure is the tread depth, which helps your vehicle maintain traction in rain or snow.

Take a quarter and insert it headfirst between the grooves of the tread. If the tread doesn't reach George Washington's head, it is worn out and potentially unsafe. As we see more rear wheel drive cars coming to market, snow tires may be mandatory if you need to be out in wintery weather. Rotating the tires helps extend tire life and is a good excuse to check the brake condition, which are easily visible when the wheels are removed.

6. Check your lights. At least once a month, check the lights to make sure they are in working order. Turn on your headlights and step outside to inspect their brightness. To test brake lights, get a friend to stand behind the vehicle as you sit in the driver's seat and put your foot on the brake. "If one of your headlights or brake lights are burnt out at night, drivers might mistake you for a motorcycle," Paul said.

7. Replace wipers. Blades should be replaced every six months to a year. Though they are easy to check and change, we tend to only think about them when it's raining; by the time they need to be replaced, they are not able to do their job anymore. Be on the lookout for streaking, squeaking or chattering, as that means your wipers are wiped out. Consider dedicated winter wiper blades to prevent ice build up during poor weather.

8. Stay on top of recalls. In most cases, manufacturers will notify you if any recalls involve your vehicle. But if you have moved around, check www.safercar.gov to be aware of issues. Recalls don't cost you anything, so get repairs done as soon as possible. Many drivers ignore recalls. These repairs should be performed since in many cases they may involve safety or emissions related issues. Failure to have this work performed could not just be dangerous but could also be costing you more for gas because your car is not running as efficiently as possible.

9. Clean the interior. Thoroughly clean and vacuum the inside of your car monthly. "The more often you do it, the easier it gets," Paul said. This will help remove dirt from upholstery and carpeting before it becomes embedded. If it's necessary to scrub the upholstery, make sure you buy specific upholstery cleaner, and avoid using too much water as it can lead to mold and mildew. Use a shop vacuum to soak up excess water. Don't forget to clean under the seats where food and other debris can hide. With cooler weather coming, some critters are looking for a home. Leaving food in a car is like sending mice and other rodents an invitation.

10. Wash the exterior frequently. Try to wash your car once a week. Remove bird droppings immediately, as the acid can eat the paint. Use only car wash soap and a clean sponge or mitt. "Never use dish detergent because it will strip the wax right off your car," Paul said. Touch up any scratches with matching "touch-up" paint.

Speaking of wax, it can help restore and maintain the paint. Follow the instructions on the package, applying only a thin layer onto an applicator. Squirting it on directly can discolor the paint. And be sure to fully remove it. Waxing and polishing your car four times per year can help keep it in showroom condition. Remember: wax on, wax off.

Gasoline Prices Down 9 Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down nine cents from last week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA's March 23rd survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.32 per gallon, down nine cents from last week. Prices locally are seven cents higher than a month ago. The current price is a 10 cents less than the national average for self serve unleaded of $2.42. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $1.20 higher at $3.52.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 46 cents, from a low of $2.13 to a high of $2.59. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every trip, every time.

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Secretary Of The Interior

Question: I'd like to redecorate my bedroom in a romantic, feminine, country style. I want a pink and yellow scheme with white doors and woodwork. I like the look of multiple fabrics but how do I choose fabrics to go together? Mrs. J

Answer: Choose fabrics of the same color. Start with an inspiration fabric that has both the pink and yellow in it (maybe with some white, too).

For example, it could be a plaid or floral that you use for your bedspread. Plaids, stripes, gingham, and geometrics can act like neutrals so don't be afraid to mix them together with florals and other patterns of the same color(s).

Also vary the scale of your prints: large, medium, and small. And try to use at least one fabric in three places in your room so it looks more "planned" and less "random"; maybe, it's a bed skirt, window valance, and pillow or seat cushion on a side chair.

If you are still hesitant, go with a solid pink or yellow or a neutral white for the bedspread and have fun with all the others fabrics you introduce in a secondary role in the room. White lace curtains would be a nice addition for a feminine touch and repeat the pink and yellow colors in paint and accessories.

I'm very crafty and looking for an idea for a new Easter decoration. Any suggestions? MaryLou

BARBARA GRACEFFA

Purchase a flat wooden circular wreath at the craft store. Wrap a green plastic garland that looks like Easter grass around it (you can find these at the Dollar Stores). Purchase 3-4 packages of marshmallow peeps in the shape of bunnies, and glue them side by side around the entire wreath. Add a bow with curly ribbons in pastel colors or to match your décor. You can hang this on the door, wall, or use as a centerpiece on your dining room or coffee table with a floral arrangement, candles, or a decorative bowl of colored eggs inside. (PS: of course, the candy will no longer be edible!)

Do you have a decorating problem needing a professional solution? Send your questions to Secretary of the Interior at barbara@sec-interior.com.

Take Stock For Spring

With the long freeze and snowy conditions that the eastern part of the country has dealt with this winter, it may be hard to believe that spring is on its way. But in southerly parts, signs of spring are already appearing. Regardless of whether you're still shoveling snow, or watching buds blossom, it's time to start preparing for the busy spring season.

Here are a few things to add to your to-do list over the next few weeks:

• Take stock: Check your garage or storage shed to make sure you have all the tools and supplies needed to prep the lawn and garden. Things like grass seed for treating brown or thin spots, fertilizer, and lawn tools like thatchers and rakes.

• Prepare your lawnmower and power tools: Make sure the mower is assembled, that blades are sharp and that you have fresh fuel on hand. Check that power tools like edgers, blowers, string trimmers and hedge trimmers are in good shape.

• Turn your compost pile: Or, if you don't have one, start one. It won't be ready for early spring but could be usable in the summer to help along your vegetable garden.

• Get outdoor furniture ready: Whether your patio furniture is stored or sturdy enough to sit outside all winter, check it for damage and clean off dirt, mineral scaling or other crud.

• Check window and door screens: Replacing a torn or ratty screen is one of the easiest and most affordable DIY jobs.

• Inspect your lawn for damage: Freezing weather, icy patches and salt-burnt edging are among the problems homeowners often find after the snow melts. You can begin patching up damaged areas even before the last hard frost.

• Make a budget: List the supplies and tools you need, plus repairs. Also budget how much time you can dedicate to home and garden work this year.

TIP: Help salt-damaged grass and plants recover by watering them thoroughly once the weather is consistently above freezing, then re-seeding and treating with appropriate fertilizer.

Send your home tips and questions to ask@thisisahammer.com.

O'Donnell Emphasizes Homestead Importance

Stating that for many people their house is the most important financial asset that they have, Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell emphasizes the importance of homeowners having a Homestead recorded against their property. A Homestead recording provides for limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000.

"Protecting one's primary residence is a key objective of all homeowners," said O'Donnell. Additionally, homeowners age 62 and above, by state statute, can file an elderly homestead. I urge all Norfolk County homeowners to make sure they are protected."

For all individuals who have an interest in the home, for instance both spouses, they have to sign a homestead form, if they want to avail themselves of the full $500,000 protection. A valid homestead can not be terminated when refinancing a mortgage, a clarification made by the state legislature. Furthermore, homesteads can provide protections for homes kept in trusts. These were some of the changes under the 2011 Homestead Law passed by the Massachusetts Legislature, O'Donnell noted.

O'Donnell noted there are certain debts that are exempted from protection under the Homestead Act. These are federal, state and local taxes and liens, mortgages contracted for purchase of home, most other mortgages, debts, encumbrances existing prior to the

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Thursday, March 12, 2015, at approximately 11:00 p.m., Officer Andrew Keenan was dispatched to Packard's Lane for a report of a minor motor vehicle accident with no injuries.

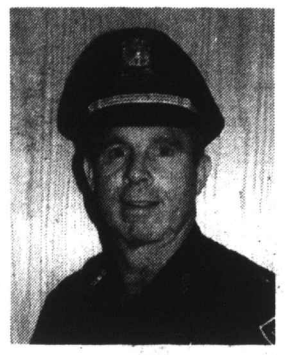
Upon arrival, the Officer met with a male who said that his female neighbor just struck his father's car while it was parked in the driveway. He stated he attempted to exchange information but the female driver refused and went inside her house. He said he tried again to resolve the issue by knocking on her door, but she didn't respond. After waiting for about 15- 20 minutes in hopes of resolving the issue themselves, he called the Police.

Officer Keenan interviewed the owner of the vehicle struck, who said that he was sitting in his house when he heard a collision outside of his house. He went outside and found his female neighbor sitting in her car, which was up against his. The owner said he asked her what happened and that all he wanted was her information for insurance purposes, but she refused and then began yelling at him. Dressed in a hospital gown, she kept saying, "You know who I am - I didn't do anything," and then went inside her house.

After examining both vehicles and noting the damage, Officer Keenan rang the doorbell to interview the female driver. After a short time, she came to the door and immediately began yelling very loudly and repeatedly saying, "I can do whatever I want - I'm in my own house." The Officer detected a moderate odor of an alcoholic beverage and bloodshot eyes, so he asked her how much she had been drinking. She responded, "None of your f@#$%^& business." When the Officer asked her for her license and registration for the accident report, she angrily said, "You know who I am. You don't need any of my info."

Officer Keenan informed her that they had never met and still needed her papers. She retorted, "Yeah but they do," referring to her neighbors. When Officer Keenan advised the driver that her neighbor just wanted was her insurance information so they could file a report, the driver became increasingly agitated and began yelling.

After repeated attempts to calm the driver down, the Officer called dispatch and requested another car to assist. The driver, now outside her home, began yelling at her neighbors who owned the car, "I'm going to get someone to merk(?) you - you guys will be dead. Trust me." Officer Keenan again warned the driver to lower her voice and she responded by closing in on the Officer and putting her finger close to his face. She screamed at him, "White cops be f@#$%^& with me." She then released a volley of insults at the Officer.



LT. DAN MINTON

At this point, Officers Bossart and Paccioretti arrived on scene. The driver again put her finger in the Officer's face and the Officer moved her hand away. The driver then began to flail her arms around. Due to her aggressive actions and failure to comply with requests to calm down, Officers Bossart and Keenan each took hold of one arm and instructed her to calm down, which resulted in the driver yelling, "This s@#$ is like Ferguson. I'm glad all you white cops are getting shot in the head." As the driver began to walk towards her porch, she said, "I'd love to shoot all you white cops in the f@#$%^& head." She said she was going back inside and do whatever she wanted. She stated she was going to call her attorney, then picked up her telephone and began to talk to somebody. She stated, "Yeah these white f@#$%^& cops are in my house. I'm being harassed by three white f@#$%^& cops."

Due to her allegations, Officer Keenan radioed for a supervisor. Sergeant J.P. Kelly arrived on scene and he attempted to speak with the driver. She walked down the steps towards the Sergeant and slammed her shoulder into him, knocking him backward. She then said, "Get the f@#$ out of my way." She then proceeded to walk to her vehicle. Sergeant Kelly asked the driver if she would be willing to perform Standard Field Sobriety Tests but she loudly refused. The Sergeant then saw three children at the door of her house, so he approached them to ensure they were safe. The driver then began to open her hospital gown, exposing her bra and underwear while yelling, "You guys can't touch me now - you ain't got a female Officer."

At this point, due to her erratic behavior, Officers Bossart and Paccioretti attempted to take the driver into custody, but she resisted their attempts to gain control of her. She stiffened her body and arms in an attempt to prevent Officer Bossart and Paccioretti from gaining control of her. She began spinning around in circles trying to trip up the Officers, but was soon guided to the ground. As the Officers attempted to place her in the cruiser, she kept trying to kick them.

Once inside the cruiser, she turned and kicked Officer Keenan in the chest with her right foot. Once she was transported to the station, the Officers spoke with the original caller and his father, the owner of the car, who asked if the Officers were ok. The neighbors stated that they were "shocked" by her behavior and that they have a "friendly relationship" with the driver. They said she is usually very quiet and this behavior made them worried. During the booking process, the driver was offered a breath test which resulted in a reading of .12, the legal limit being .08. Soon after, the driver vomited in the cell.

Fallon Ambulance was on scene evaluating another prisoner, so she was offered medical aid but declined. Due to the fact that the driver's three children were present during the entire incident, a Child abuse report was filed. The children were left in the care of their grandmother. The driver, a 33 year old Quincy resident, was charged with, "Operating Under the Influence of Liquor, Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (Shod foot), Assault and Battery on a Police Officer (Two counts), Threats to Commit a Crime (Two counts), Disorderly Person and Knowingly Resisting Arrest." Nice Work (and patience)!

A Night Of Basketball's Past, Present, Future

George Burke, 'Budsy' Pettinelli Receive Lifetime Achievement Awards At 'Fitzy-Nolan Games'

By BILL GRIFFIN

The past, present and future merged into a fine night of basketball and story-telling at the 13th annual Fitzy-Nolan Games at Quincy High School Friday night.

The games were held in honor of the memories of legendary North Quincy coach Robert "Knobby" Nolan and former Quincy High star Paul Fitzpatrick. Fitzpatrick went on to play and coach at Boston State. Nolan had a 153-63 record in 12 years at North. In 1977, Fitzpatrick coached Boston State to the NCAA Division 3 National Tourney.

The Boston Athletic Basketball Club sponsored the night. It was the second year the event has been held in Quincy. Former North graduate and BABC founder Leo Papile brought the games to Quincy. Papile's basketball career has touched the CBA, Division 1 college, the NBA and the USA National Team in the world championships.

There was the past. The BABC honored Quincy's Guido "Budsy" Pettinelli and George "Trigger" Burke with lifetime achievement awards for spending countless hours and donating thousands of dollars to give kids in Quincy a chance to play basketball.

There was the present. North's Solomon Umoren and Quincy's James Lam and Drew Myers played for the South Select Senior team against the BABC Juniors in the featured game of the doubleheader. All three played well and showed they could compete with elite competition.

North Quincy High School graduate Grace Geary, who is Nolan's grand-daughter, watched the games. She watched and thought of her grandfather. Geary was selected Little East Conference Rookie of the Year and led UMass Boston to its first-ever league championship game in the school's history.

There was the future. There were thoughts of Myers playing hoop at Bridgewater and Lam playing quarterback at Stonehill. There were the great things Geary will surely do at UMass Boston. And there was the BABC, the BABC which has produced 248 Division 1 and 19 NBA players, once again showcasing terrific basketball and young men who we will watch one day on television.

Pettinelli was a Quincy Police Officer for 37 years. Two or three nights a week, he would open the gym on the third floor of the police station, and he would play basketball with kids from the city. He thought the connection was important, and he loved every moment of it.

"I thought if the kids got to know the police, it would help keep them away from trouble. I think it worked out that way," said Pettinelli who played for Quincy High in the early 1940s. "The award tonight means a lot to me. I'm grateful because I received it for doing something I loved. If you love what you did, you almost feel like you should give the award back."

Pettinelli looked around the beautiful, bright, shiny gym at the new high school and thought back to the games on third floor of the old police station.

"It was not a bad gym for its time," he said. "The ceiling was a little low, so you had to watch how high you shot the ball. On one side of the court, a wall was the out-of-bounds line. But we had great times there. This place? This place is beautiful."

Some weeks, Pettinelli would play basketball two nights. Some weeks, he would play four. Whatever the kids needed. On Saturday mornings during the winter, he had a key to the

QHS's 'Once Upon A Mattress' Friday-Sunday

The Quincy High School Drama Club will present "Once Upon a Mattress", a musical tale adapted from the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, The Princess and the Pea.

Performances will be held Friday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, March 28 at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 29th at 2 p.m. at the Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St., Quincy.

Tickets can be purchased in advance by calling Deb Dyer at 617-593-1056 and at the school store from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tickets can also be purchased at the door. They are $12 for general admission and $5 for students under 18.

The original production of "Once Upon A Mattress" opened on May 11, 1959 on Broadway for a total of 244 performances. It had also received several Tony nominations and was adapted to television in 1964, 1972 and 2005.

It is the story of life in a fictional medieval kingdom ruled by the devious Queen Aggravain and the mute King Sextimus the Silent. They are looking for a princess for their son, Prince Dauntless and have ruled that no one else in the kingdom may marry until he does.

The Queen makes it difficult for any would-be princesses to pass her tests. When Princess Winnifred arrives by swimming the moat, she is put to the test of being sensitive enough to not be able to sleep on 20 downy mattresses because there is a pea beneath the pile. Many more twists and turns ensue as "Once Upon a Mattress" is a delight for audiences of all ages.

The Quincy High School Drama Club and children's ensemble have been rehearsing since January and look forward to performing this comedy/musical.

The cast includes: Erin McMillen, Maura MacDonald, Grace Austen, Rachael Zisk, Amanda Burke, Lydia Culp, Kate Stevenson, Kelsey Dyer, Emily Crosta, Christina Haley, Leanne Gough, Courtney Smith, Emily Barker, Nora DeBonis, Julia Doyle, Cailyn Halley, Shelby Maze, Terry McMillen, Sammy Pendleton, Kelly Donahue, Chrissy Broderick, Brianna Cristiani, Kelsey Dunn, Julia Ford, Angela Grasso, Julia Larkin, Alexis Marshall, Rachel Knight, Kendall Kelleher, Shaheen Soto, Brooke McCarthy, Allie MacPherson, Joe Scott, Raymond McCarthy, Austen Kimmell, Jack Donnell, Rob Smith, Billy Maier, Joe Cristiani, Noah Culp, Curtis Ajavon, Jake Louzan, Jake Morse, Nick Warner, Aidan Dennis, Bryan Hanly, Lezly Acevedo, Tess Louzan, Isabelle Assaf, Grace Healy, Grace Cunniff, Adam Maier, Joey Dyer, Bobby Stevenson, Cady Kelly, Paige Maze, Sarah Gorham, Lucy Lynch, Jennifer Small, Megan Lyons, Kate Lyons, Jeff Burke, Shane Cunniff, Maeve Lehan, Lilly Hanly, Abby Hanly, Olivia Herman, Aisling Mannion and Isabelle Hanley.

Director Margaret Spencer performed with Fontbonne Children's Theatre from the age of 10-17. After performing with the ESP Playhouse at M.I.T.'s Kresge Theatre, she pursued a bachelor's degree in Drama and Speech at Northeastern University and studied voice at The New England Conservatory of Music. She co-founded the improvisational comedy troupe, The Three Penny Company and appeared on several episodes of Channel 5's "Jabberwocky."

Many people along with Ms. Spencer make these quality shows possible: Michael Murray, Musical Director; Thomas Doucette, Fine Arts Educator at Quincy High, Technical Director and Scenic Designer; Paul Cheney and his carpentry class; Renee Smith for Costumes along with many behind the scenes and the support of Principal Larry Taglieri.

Quincy Bantam B's State Hockey Champions

By BILL GRIFFIN

Anything is possible.

Quincy's Bantam B hockey team proved those words true by scoring dramatic, one-goal wins over Natick and Waltham to win the state championship in a tournament played recently at the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena.

It was the first State Bantam B title for Quincy since 1983.

The thrilling wins were just part of the story. Quincy finished the regular season at 18-10-4, good for third in its league. Canton edged Quincy in the District finals. Quincy made the state tourney because the host team is guaranteed a berth.

They weren't even supposed to be here. Nobody gave them a chance. And they won the whole thing. Not a bad story at all.

"I have to be honest. I didn't think we had a chance to win it all," said coach Steve MacPherson. "We stressed the pride of playing the tournament in our own rink. We wanted to play hard, competitive hockey and that's what the kids did. When you do that, you have a chance. We had a few things go our way, and the kids really played great. They worked hard and they deserved it."

All seemed lost in the semifinal game against Natick. Quincy trailed, 2-1 with 23 seconds left in regulation. MacPherson called timeout and set up a play.

"We had a faceoff in their zone and we pulled the goalie," said MacPherson. "We wanted to get the draw back to the point, create traffic in front of the net and maybe score off a rebound."

Jack O'Brien controlled the draw and took possession near the faceoff circle. He fired a hard drive through a screen for the goal which tied the score at 2-2 and sent the game into overtime.

The first overtime was scoreless. With 4:00 left in the second OT, Austin Devane made a nice pass from behind the net to James Keenan. Keenan drilled a shot home from the high slot and Quincy had a memorable 3-2 victory and a spot in the final against Waltham.

"What made it more impressive was the Natick goalie had given up one goal in nine periods of tournament play before our game," said MacPherson.

Dan Kelly scored early in the final to put Quincy up, 1-0. There it stood until the final minutes thanks to the excellent goaltending of Matt Connolly and Daniel Murphy. Matt O'Brien scored an empty-netter for Quincy with 1:06 left for a 2-0 lead.

Waltham scored in the final seconds, but it meant little. Quincy had its championship.

"We had good balance all year. We rotated three lines and gave them equal time. I think that helped in the tournament. We played good defense and we had timely scoring," said MacPherson.

Connolly and Murphy split the duties in goal. They could not have split them more evenly. They didn't just alternate games. They each played in every game. Connolly played half. Murphy played half.

"This is youth hockey. You want to give each kid an equal shot. I just felt it was the right thing to do," said MacPherson.

Kelly, Jack O'Brien, and Tom MacPherson skated on the first line. Bobby Dunn, Matt O'Brien and Nick Murray made up the second line. Devane, Keenan and Caiden Valleli were on the third line. It was Devane and Keenan who combined for the winning goal in double OT against Natick which shows well the balance of the bantam team.

"We really didn't have one big scorer or one big line. If you asked me for our leading scorer, I'm not sure I could tell you. We got something from each line," said MacPherson.

Stephen Flynn and Kyle Gates played first defense. Colin MacDonald and Jack Mariano were a second defensive pair. Will Scola and Gavin DeGust were another effective pairing on defense.

"We were at our best when we played good defensive hockey," said MacPherson. "We put pressure on the puck and we got our offense from the turnovers we created.

"My assistants Tony Scola and Brian Gates did a great job. Bob Roche of Quincy Youth Hockey, who ran the tournament, did a lot for us as well. I couldn't be happier for the kids. They came together at just the right time and won something that will always make them proud."

The Bantams had to win five games in the tournament to earn the state title. Quincy edged Everett/Revere, 5-4, stopped Andover, 3-0, and defeated Worcester, 5-3.

STUDENT ATHLETES OF THE MONTH

Nya Domkam
Basketball - Quincy H.S.

"Nya is the total package when it comes to being a student-athlete at Quincy High School. He has been a pleasure to coach."

-David Parry

Nya has been a student at Quincy HS for 3 years. He has been a member of the Football, Basketball, and Track teams for all 3 years. He is a key member of each team; playing forward on the basketball team, as a tight end/defensive end in football, and as a thrower/runner on the Track team. He is a member of the National Honor Society and Foreign Language Honor Society. He intends on majoring in engineering at either Stanford or Georgia Tech next fall.

GPA: 3.92

Courtney Campo
Soccer - North Quincy H.S.

"Courtney was the most dedicated, highly skilled and highly motivated player I've coached in the 20 years I have run this program. And I am most proud that she was able to combine her excellent athletic career with a great academic career as well."

-Paul Bregoli

Courtney was a captain on the North Quincy Girls' Soccer Team this past season, and was selected to the Patriot League All Star, Patriot Ledger All Scholastic, and Eastern Mass Coaches' All Star teams. She will be continuing her soccer career in college next season and is leaning towards accepting an offer from Stonehill College.

EXERCISING PROPER RESTRAINT

While chiropractic treatment can effectively address so-called "whiplash" injuries resulting from rear-end car crashes, prevention of such injuries is certainly preferable. In order to work properly, head restraints should be positioned at a height that is commensurate with the height of a seated passenger's head, and no more than two inches back. That way, head restraints can prevent the violent, whip-like, back-and-forth movements of the head that have the potential to inflict serious injury to the neck and shoulders of automobile occupants. To prevent these potentially debilitating injuries from occurring, both drivers and passengers should make sure that the head restraints on their seats are properly positioned immediately after they are seated in a vehicle.

Are your headrests in the proper position? Our experience and expertise in safe and gentle chiropractic care will help you enjoy life to the fullest. Call Family Practice of Chiropractic at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and let us help you and your family. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Football tackles and other sports-related collisions can cause whiplash injuries.

old Point Junior High. He would open the door and the gym so kids could play. During the week, he went around to the schools and played in faculty basketball and volleyball games. He built trust and moved kids into sports.

"Kids would do anything to play. They'd play in the rain and shovel off the courts in the winter," said Petinelli. "Those were the days with great games on Elm Street with Fitzy, Jim Rendle, Paul Beston and many others. On summer nights, there would games under the lights at the YMCA, and there would be a hundred people watching. I loved being part of it."

"He was the father of Quincy High basketball. He dedicated his life to it," said Burke.

Burke played with Pettinelli's brother, Bob, at Quincy High in the early 1950s. He is a member of the UMass Hall of Fame. He had a brief tryout with the Boston Celtics in 1956. There were a few fellows named Cousy, Russell, Sharman, Heinsohn, and Ramsey in training camp. When Burke talks about his tryout, he stresses then word "brief."

"I took a look at the landscape. I walked in to see Red (Auerbach), and told him I was going to law school," said Burke. "What is amazing is that I've stayed friends with those guys all these years. They would come out and practice at the Quincy YMCA."

It is hard to think of sports in Quincy without thinking of George Burke. They would be greatly diminished without him. He donated the money to put lights at Merrynount Park so kids could play basketball at nights. He has sponsored 10 Quincy youth basketball teams. He established six scholarships of $1000 per year, three for North and three for Quincy High, for deserving students who are going to attend UMass. 156 Quincy students have benefited from the scholarships.

He donated $100,000 dollars to build the fitness center at the gym at the new Quincy High School. It has a weight room and a cardio-center. It is not just for athletes. It is for any student who would like to use it.

"Thousands and thousands of kids have used that center," said Frank Santoro, a former principal at Quincy High.

These contributions have been well-noted, but Pettinelli said there are countless other acts of generosity that have helped kids and sports that Burke did quietly, that people know nothing about.

"He did so many things," said Pettinelli. "We were building a workout room at the old high school. We were a few dollars short. I mentioned it to George. George said he would take care of it. He did and nobody knew who gave the money."

The award meant a great deal to Burke. He knew Papile when Leo was a young man doing damage on the basketball courts of the city. He also had a connection with Nolan and Fitzy. He was their lawyer.

"It means a lot because I have so much admiration for Leo. He has devoted his life to basketball," said Burke. "Fitzy and Knobby were both my clients. They were alike in many ways. They both loved basketball, and they were both fierce competitors. One thing that few people knew about Knobby was that every kid who played for him in 12 years went to college."

The BABC Juniors defeated the South Select team, 95-82 in a well-played, competitive game. Mansfield's Ryan Boulter had 31 for the South team mainly on deep, deep threes. He is 6'6" and he is a player.

Lam had two points, three rebounds, two assists, two steals, played good defense against BABC's top forward Bruce Brown, and managed to avoid getting himself killed defending an attempted dunk in the second half.

Umoren did a good job against the BABC press and had three assists and two rebounds. Myers had three assists, passed the ball nicely and got open looks for Boulter, Michael Boen (Mansfield) and Garrison Duvivier (Brockton).

"It's great just to play in a game like this," said Myers who will likely play at Bridgewater State next year. "These are kids who will play Division 1 and Division 2 ball in college. It helps me because it it shows me where I have to get better. The players tonight were older, bigger, faster. It helped just to play against them."

Myers was a clutch, deadeye shooter in his time at Quincy. Against the BABC he didn't look for his shot. He was good against the press. He handled the ball well and got it to the hot shooter.

"So many of my teammates were shooting well that I just wanted to get them the ball. We didn't have a point guard, so I looked to find the open man," he said.

Like everyone else in the gym, he talked about the play involving Lam in the second half. Pat Fisher and Ryan Layman broke out on a two-on-one for the BABC. Lam was back defending the hoop. Fisher bounced the ball off the backboard trying to set up Layman for a circus dunk. Layman jumped out of the gym, missed the dunk, but landed directly on Lam. Lam, a veteran of many hits on the football field for three years, got up smiling.

"I couldn't look," said Myers. "I just put my hands over my eyes and said: Don't do this to James. But James just got up with a smile on his face."

Anyone who saw Grace Geary at North knew she was a special player. As a freshman, she made the second-team all conference team at UMass Boston. She averaged over 14 points, nearly four assists and three steals, and drained 51 threes. She had a game with 28 points and seven assists against UMass-Dartmouth. She was at her best in the big games, averaging nearly 16 points in the playoffs. She scored 20 in the championship game, an overtime loss to Eastern Connecticut.

"I think the biggest adjustment was the weight-training off the court and the faster pace on the court," said Geary. "I was the youngest player, so I had to become involved and work with new people. I think the transition I made from Falmouth to North my senior year helped me know what to expect."

She started the season at the shooting guard, but as the year went on, Geary played more and more at the point. That is her position. She can certainly shoot well enough to play the No. 2 guard, but she can do so many things with the basketball. Her best spot is running the team at the point.

"As the season went on, everything started to come together and become more fluid. In the playoffs, I played a lot at the point," said Geary.

As she watched the BABC Friday night, she remembered her grandfather and his talk of basketball when she was a child.

"He would have loved this. He loved anything involving student-athletes," said Geary.

"Seeing the two lifetime achievement awards would have meant a lot to him because he loved anything involved with giving back to the community," said Sheila Nolan, Grace's mother and Nolan's daughter.

There was a moment after the game when the past, present and future came together. Drew Myers spoke of what the night meant.

"It's an honor just to be selected to play in this game," said Myers. "The competition is great, but the history of the game and the men it remembers are also important. I'm aware of that. It was also a great to see the lifetime achievement awards."

Quincy Players Help Archies Win State Hoop Title

By BILL GRIFFIN

Once again there was a strong Quincy connection to a state championship basketball team at Archbishop Williams.

Senior Molly Plunkett and junior Katryna Veasey played important roles for the Bishops who clinched their second Division 3 State crown in three years with a 69-46 victory over Western Mass. Champion Hoosac Valley last week.

The two have been part of three remarkable seasons. They have played in 17 tournament games, and they have won 16 of them. The only loss was by two points to St. Mary's of Lynn last year in the EMass finals. The Bishops were without star center Jaylen Williams (torn ACL), who will play Division 1 ball at Penn State next year, for the game against St. Mary's

They are two points and one knee injury away from three straight state championships. This year the Bishops left no doubt, winning all six tournament games by double-digit margins. It all ended with a fine moment at the DCU Center in Worcester when Veasey leaped joyfully into the arms of teammate Victoria Dean seconds after her team had won back its championship.

"It was a once in a lifetime thing. It's hard to describe. To win one state title is unbelievable. To win two is hard to put into words," said Veasey.

Just as Plunkett and Veasey gained priceless experience on the 2013 title team, freshman Shannon Kelley and eight-grader Monica Spain earned valuable tournament seasoning this year which will serve them well in future.

"Both Shannon and Monica had a chance to play at the end of tournament games, and that will be a big help to them next year," said coach Matt Mahoney.

For most young basketball players, stepping onto the Garden floor is the stuff of dreams. Veasey has done it three times in three years for the EMass finals. For three straight years, she has stepped onto hallowed basketball ground, looked up at all those banners, watched the seats fill up with family and friends, and played her game. She understands well that she has been blessed.

"I know I have had a special opportunity to play in the Garden for three years. I'm grateful," she said. "I remember the first time I walked onto the floor. I couldn't believe how bright it was. As we warmed up, I watched all the seats fill up with fans. I couldn't believe the number of people, and a lot of them were from our school."

As a freshman she gained playing time at the end of games when the Bishops were comfortably ahead. She improved greatly as a sophomore and saw meaningful minutes in big games. As a junior, she was an important contributor – the sixth man for the Bishops, the first player off the bench who turned around games with her defense, rebounding and shooting. She had gained experience under the bright lights and it helped.

"I found as I gained more experience, I was able to tune out the crowd, the atmosphere in the tourney and just play my game," said Veasey.

"By the time this year came around, she was all business out there," said Mahoney.

Plunkett is a talented all-around player who is effective at either guard or forward. She will likely play at Curry College next year. She is a college-level player. She hits the outside shot, she is a tenacious defender and a gifted passer. On most high school teams in the state, she starts and plays 30 minutes. At Archbishop Williams, she was behind Alana Gilmer, who will play Division 1 at Virginia Tech next year.

Plunkett did not start, but she did provide quality depth off the bench for the Bishops, and Mahoney appreciated what her contributions meant to his team.

"Molly is an excellent player. Her passing is very good. She just happened to be behind Alana, who is probably the second best player in the state," he said.

Kelley played on the JVs for most of the season before moving to varsity for the tournament. She was one of the top two players on the JV squad and saw time in four tournament games.

"Shannon did very well on the JVs. I like her hustle and effort. The tournament experience she gained will help her," said Mahoney.

Spain played with the varsity all season as an eighth-grader. She played in 23 of the Bishops' 28 games. She is a small forward with excellent athleticism and good promise for the future.

"She is a work in progress, but she has lot of talent. She's still learning to play the game, but Monica has a bright future," said Mahoney.

The sixth man on a basketball team is an important, but difficult role. The player must come in cold off the bench against opponents who are warmed and into the flow of the game. She must contribute immediately. Some do with it offense or energy. Some do it with defense or rebounding. Veasey could do any of the above. She did not have to start. She could just play.

"I just tried to make something happen, make some kind of play that would get us fired up," said Veasey who is also an excellent volleyball and softball player for the Bishops..

"She gave us what a team wants from a sixth man. Katryna could change the tempo either offensively or defensively," said Mahoney. "She works hard. If she's not the hardest worker on the team, she is in the top two. Plus, she is a great kid to coach."

She started twice during the season, and she will have little trouble remembering one of them. She started during the season against Rockland, and she started the state final against Hoosac. Veasey responded to the opportunity with 11 points, eight rebounds, and three blocks. In the state finals. For a championship team. It will be a memory she will always have.

"I didn't find out until about 15 minutes before the game that I was going to start, so I didn't have time to be nervous. I just remember what an honor it was to hear my name announced," said Veasey who also scored 11 against Apponequet in the tourney.

There is a certain pattern to the players from Quincy on the two state title teams. Each club had four players from Quincy. In 2013, Sara Ryan and Kayla Free were the veterans. Plunkett and Veasey were learning the game. This year it was Plunkett and Veasey who had the experience. Kelley and Spain enjoyed their first moments in the tourney.

Two state championship teams. Two strong Quincy connections.

Quincy Americans Complete Successful Season

The Quincy Americans boys hockey team recently completed a very successful season playing in the President's Hockey League at the Quincy Youth Arena. The following young men played for Quincy: Tim Walsh, Andrew McDonnell, Mike Tervakoski, Greg Selbert, Kevin Hurley, Justin McGaffigan, Mike O'Brien, Gus Murphy, Tim Keohane, Kieron O'Connor, Sean Flynn, Jimmy Farrell, Mike Balducci, Brendan Waples, Brendan Kabilian, Chris Gorman, Anthony Farrell, and James O'leary. These young men displayed great sportsmanship, teamwork and humility all season.

The Quincy Youth Hockey President's League was founded by James Dunn of Quincy in 2011. Dunn's vision was to establish a home for hockey playing young men and women from Quincy to develop their hockey skills and continue their hockey career's against teams from Boston and the South Shore. From its inaugural season of 4 teams, the league has grown into a 12 team league this year and a 14 team league for next season. The players range in age from 14-18 years of age, and the majority of these players are in high school. The season consists of a 23 game regular season which starts in September and concludes in March with a double elimination playoff tournament. All games are played at the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena on Sunday mornings.

The following programs have teams entered in the League: Quincy, Braintree, The Costal Stars, The South Shore Eagles, Norwood, Parkway, Hanover, Dorchester, and Hyde Park.

Tryouts for the 2015 Quincy Americans President League Team will be held at the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena on April 1st and 2nd at 7 pm. To be considered for next season's team you must attend the tryouts. Contact Bob Roach or Matt Gibbons with any questions regarding the tryouts or the team at 617-479-8371.

Passover Seder April 2 At United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church Holding Passover Seder April 2

The Quincy United Methodist Church will hold a Passover Seder Supper on Thursday, April 2. The reading of the Hagadah will begin at 6:30 p.m. This year marks a decade of the event.

"Holding a Seder is a way to learn about and to honor Christianity's Jewish roots," said the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "Quincy Community United Methodist Church encourages the participation of everyone and so the Hagadah – the reading – used is very 'hands on.' Everyone who wishes to do so has the opportunity to read and lead the group."

The meal is pot luck, so everyone is asked to bring a salad, main course, or dessert to share. To ensure the table is set properly, reservations are required. They may be made by calling the church office at 617-773-3319. The deadline is March 29.

The church is located at 40 Beale St., opposite the Wollaston T stop. The building is handicapped accessible through its front entrance at the door nearest the flagpole.

First Baptist Church Of Wollaston

The First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave., announces its schedule of Palm Sunday, Holy Week, and Easter services.

For Palm Sunday, March 29, a service will take place at 10:30 a.m.

There will be Maundy Thursday Worship and Communion at 7 p.m. on April 2.

The public is welcome to celebrate Easter on Sunday, April 5, at 10:30 a.m. The service is titled "Jesus Christ is Risen! He is Risen For You!"

An Easter Egg Hunt for children is scheduled following the service.

Nursery is available on Sundays.

Community United Methodist Church Easter Vigil Service

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St. in Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, April 4, at 7:30 p.m.

"With the exception of the Episcopalians, very few Protestants have had the opportunity to experience the Easter Vigil," the church's pastor, the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden said. "I think this is really unfortunate. The vigil is one of the most ancient and certainly one of the most dramatic celebrations of the church year. It's my very favorite worship service."

Dating from the earlier years of the Christian Church, the vigil literally leads the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and, most importantly, symbols that refer to scripture. Because many people today are unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided.

"I hope people will take the time to read the explanations," Jarek-Glidden said. "The vigil is a rich, wonderful service on its own, but when a person understands the meaning behind the ritual it becomes even richer."

People planning to attend the vigil should expect the unexpected, because the Easter Vigil is a service unlike any other. Everyone planning to attend the Easter Vigil is asked to please bring a flashlight and to wear comfortable walking shoes, for example.

"I realize that a flashlight sounds like an odd thing to bring to a worship service, but believe me a flashlight is pretty essential – It's simply a modern version of the traditional candles." Jarek-Glidden explained. "Quincy Community United Methodist Church has chosen to use flashlights for safety reasons. There will be some available in case anyone forgets to bring one.

"Comfortable shoes are also important because some walking is involved – a short staircase. People then have the option of continuing with the traditional vigil, which includes more walking, or the non-traditional in which people remain seated in one place. Both groups then join together for the major portion of the service."

The Easter Vigil is very much a participatory worship experience and the more a person puts in to the vigil, the more that person will get out of it.

"I think a friend of mine put it best when he said 'I used to think I "got" Easter here,' and he pointed to his forehead," Jarek-Glidden said. "'But now,' he continued, 'I get Easter here,' and pointed to his heart. That's what the Easter Vigil is all about and everyone is cordially invited to share in this wonderful experience."

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is conveniently located diagonally from the Wollaston T station, and is fully handicapped accessible. A handicapped entrance is located in the front, the door closest to the flagpole. Each week a coffee hour follows worship. For more information please call the church office at 617-773-3319.

DOZENS OF EASTER BUNNY helpers including Quincy residents Karen Ukraine, Anita Riley, Pat Lescinskas, Susan Patterson and Liz Powers; assembled hundreds of Easter baskets that will be distributed to local kids through Interfaith Social Services' Food Pantry.

OVER 2,000 donated plastic eggs were stuffed with candy and loaded into Easter Baskets destined for local children whose families are having a tough time making ends meet.

Easter Bunny Helpers Bring Joy To Local Kids In Need

Volunteers Will Distribute Easter Baskets To Disadvantaged South Shore Children

Easter is a few weeks away, on Sunday April 5th, but Interfaith Social Services' Easter Bunny helpers are already hard at work.

The families that visit Interfaith's food pantry this month will get a surprise for each of the young children in their household, an Easter Basket full of goodies and small toys.

Interfaith's food pantry is one of the largest emergency food programs in Greater Boston. In addition to their counseling center, homelessness prevention program, thrift shop, and other programs; they operate various seasonal initiatives to brighten the lives of their clients. Interfaith's volunteers distribute gently used costumes at Halloween time, Christmas gifts each December, backpacks full of school supplies in August as well as turkeys and trimmings for a holiday meal every Thanksgiving.

Since January volunteers have been gathering thousands of pieces of candy and hundreds of small toys for the Easter Baskets. "Those snow storms in February really had us worried," said Interfaith's executive director Rick Doane. "So many people couldn't get out to drop off donations at our office and trucks couldn't even deliver Easter candy to the stores." Luckily, the response from the community was incredible. Financial donations and a massive amount of candy were donated.

A team of over 30 volunteers assembled the hundreds of baskets that will be distributed to food pantry clients. Interfaith's community partners stepped up to help as well. East Coast Printing in Hingham gave their customers gift certificates for donating candy. Volunteers from State Street Corporation assembled baskets and coordinated donations, and the 7 Eleven convenience store chain not only donated candy for all of the baskets but they supplied a pizza lunch for all of volunteers that assembled the baskets.

With hundreds of individuals volunteering alongside civic, religious and corporate groups Interfaith Social Services has become one of the South Shore's most popular centers for volunteerism and community engagement. "Donors, community partners and volunteers make this program happen - they are all incredible. But one of the best parts of assembling the Easter Baskets is seeing how involved all of the kids are," said Doane whose own children were helping to assemble baskets. "To see nine year-olds and three year-olds doing something charitable for other kids is incredibly heartwarming." Anyone interested in volunteering at Interfaith Social Services is encouraged to contact volunteer coordinator Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28 or via email pdaniels@interfaith-socialservices.org.

Anna Dravis, 96

A funeral service for Anna Dravis, 96, of Quincy was held Monday in St. Catherine Greek Orthodox Church, Braintree.

Ms. Dravis died March 17 at Kindred Transitional Care, Needham.

Beloved and esteemed cousin of Thomas and Alexis Lelon of Medway, their daughter Elise Lelon of NY, their son and daughter-in-law Charles and Barbara Lelon of Wellesley Hills, and their daughters Christina, Alexis and Chloe. Dear friend of Luan White of Brookline.

Ms. Dravis was born in Boston's South End on Oct. 29, 1918, to immigrant parents from Louka, Peloponnese, Greece. She was the youngest of the Dravis' seven children. After completing Perkins Elementary School, Ms. Dravis and her family moved to Quincy where she attended and graduated from Quincy High School. She pursued a career in office administration, which led to an appointment with the Army Corps of Engineers in Concord, reporting to a colonel, the commander of the New England District. She served with dedication and distinction in this position until her retirement.

Competent, dignified and self-reliant, Ms. Dravis sought perfection throughout her life. A genuine American patriot, she excelled in her administrative assignments. She was a great cook and baker. Her knitting and crocheting yielded remarkable garments and pillows. Ms. Dravis engaged in philanthropy through her lifelong membership in the Daughters of Penelope, the affiliate women's organization of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association. In her role as elder cousin and friend, she was truthful, trustworthy and loyal with a coating of humorous story telling.

Above all else, Ms. Dravis was a deeply committed Greek Orthodox Christian. Her prayerful and spiritual life, which was quietly concealed, was fostered by her involvement in the ecclesiastical communities of Boston's St. John the Baptist and Annunciation Cathedral and St. Catherine Church in Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Louise M. Tropea, 89

Mrs. Tropea died March 13.

Born in Quincy where she was raised and educated, she lived here most of her life and in Hingham for several years, spending many winters in Florida. Before she retired 20 years ago, Ms. Tropea worked as a bookkeeper and office manager for Sealcoating Inc. in Hingham for many years.

The daughter of the late Salvatore and Jennie (Caporale) Tropea, she was the loving sister of Elaine McGlaufin and Marion Marani, both of Quincy, and dear aunt of Theresa Kominsky and her husband Carl, Jack Marani and his wife Linda, and Joseph Marani and his wife Mary.

Funeral arrangements were made by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. John the Baptist Parish, 21 Gay St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Leona Levine, 91

Funeral services for Leona (Klein) Levine, 91, of Quincy were held Tuesday at Stanetsky Memorial Chapel, Canton.

Mrs. Levine died March 20.

Beloved wife of the late Milton Levine with whom she celebrated 65 years of wedded bliss together. Devoted mother of Brenda Sue Levine of Pepperell. Loving sister of Albert Klein of Canton. Cherished grandmother of Joy Tower, Debra Colangelo, Beth St. Germain and Linda Ventura. She was a loving "Nana" to 11 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Levine and her late husband spent winters in West Palm Beach, Fla., and made many lifelong friends there. Those who knew her were inspired by her positive spirit, generosity and warmth. Mrs. Levine thought her greatest legacy was her daughter Brenda, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She will be dearly missed by all that knew her.

She resided at River Bay Club Assisted Living for the last seven years where she made many dear friends and was active in the community. The family wishes to extend their gratitude to the entire staff at River Bay Club for their compassionate care and attentiveness.

Walter J. McCann

A Mass of Christian Burial for Walter J. McCann, 65, of Weymouth, formerly of South Boston and Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) Sacred Heart Church, Weymouth.

Mr. McCann died March 20 after a brief illness surrounded by his loving family.

He was retired from MIT after working there for many years as a plumber. Mr. McCann enjoyed playing cards, watching his beloved Patriots and spending time with his family.

Devoted son of the late Leo and Mary (Leach) McCann. Beloved husband of Linda (Bradford) McCann. Loving father of Patrick McCann and his loving companion Samantha Palmer of Quincy, Alyson Kutz and her husband Jeff of North Andover, Ryan and Courtney McCann of Weymouth. Loving Step-Dad of James Bradford and his wife Meghan of Wilmington, John Bradford and his loving companion Melissa Campbell of Abington, Laura Bradford Brasile and her husband Scott of Weymouth and Ryan Bradford of Weymouth. Loving brother of Leo McCann and his wife Pamela of Plainville, Patricia Burke and her husband Robert of Pembroke and the late Kevin McCann. Cherished grandfather of 11 grandchildren. Also survived by many nieces and nephews and devoted friend Taylor Ahearn.

Funeral arrangements were made by Dolan Funeral Home, East Milton.

Interment at St. Joseph Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Memorial donations may be made to the South Shore VNA, 30 Reservoir Park Drive, Rockland, MA 02370-1055.

William G. Ayres, 79

Funeral services for William G. Ayres, 79, will be privately held at Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

Mr. Ayres died March 18.

He was born and raised in Medford and had lived in Quincy for many years. Mr. Ayres was a quality controller for the Polaroid Company. He was an avid reader, enjoyed traveling to Cape Breton Island in Canada to visit his extended family and his many hobbies.

Beloved husband of Elizabeth (MacDonald). Beloved brother George Ayres of NH, Mary Zessoules of Belmont, and the late Shirley Hoernle of RI. He leaves behind several nieces and nephews and his cat Moey.

Arrangements by Clancy-Lucid Funeral Home, Weymouth.

Your Final Four From Social Security

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Since 1939, March has meant one thing in the world of sports: March Madness. In this tournament, 68 college basketball teams compete through the month until only the final four teams remain. Coaches gather their teams to drive home the gravity of the moment, reminding them that they've worked hard and that how they respond to the pressure directly determines the outcome.

When it comes to retirement, you can secure your own winning outcome by teaming up with Social Security and taking advantage of services offered online. Start by opening a my Social Security account at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

What can you do with a my Social Security account? Allow us to introduce you to my Social Security's own final four.

Use your account to view your Social Security Statement and verify your earnings history each year. Your future benefits are based on your recorded earnings.

Stay focused on your financial future by getting estimates of your retirement, disability, and survivor benefits, if you are still working.

Keep up the full-court press by managing your benefits, if you already receive them.

Get immediate proof of your current Social Security benefits or a replacement SSA-1099 or SSA-1042S for tax purposes.

While everyone focuses on college basketball, create your own March Madness with Social Security. You can open your online my Social Security account during one of the commercial breaks.

Don't wait until crunch time. Your moment is now. Take advantage of your own personal my Social Security account to stay on top of your annual earnings history and future benefit estimates. Staying ahead of the game is key to having a winning future in retirement. Social Security is a dependable team player, assisting you to your retirement championship, and my Social Security is the Most Valuable Player on the court. Check out your final four at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

Quincy Toastmasters Open House Monday

Quincy Toastmasters invites residents to its open house on Monday, March 30 at the Fore River Club House, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy, from 7:15 to 9 p.m.

"Quincy Toastmasters provides a supportive and positive environment where members have the opportunity to develop their communication and leadership skills," says Bill Dunn, club president.

This Toastmasters meeting will include prepared speeches, table topics (impromptu speeches) and evaluations.

Club Member Loretta Connolly, who is also the club treasurer, will be the table topics master. "Table topics are one of my favorite parts of the meeting," says Connolly. "This is where guests and members are randomly selected to speak for one to two minutes. It helps you think and speak clearly on your feet."

For more information, contact Seth Magaw at Seth.J.Magaw@ricoh-usa.com.

Quincy Toastmasters, part of Toastmasters District 31, meets each Monday 7:15 p.m. at the Fore River Club House in Quincy. For more information about this event and the club, visit http://675.toastmastersclubs.org).

O'Donnell Emphasizes Homestead Importance

filing of the Declaration of Homestead, probate court executions for spousal and child support, and nursing home costs (considered federal tax lien as nursing home costs are liens imposed by Office of Medicaid).

Homestead recordings, for homeowners in the 28 communities representing Norfolk County, can be filed at the Registry of Deeds for a state imposed fee of $36. Homestead forms and further information regarding homesteads are available free online at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"It is important to make clear that a Homestead protects consumers against the forced sale of their primary owned residence to satisfy unsecured debt. While the debt is still owed, homeowners will have the comfort of knowing that with a Homestead filed, their primary residence cannot be forcibly sold to satisfy most debts," O'Donnell said.

To learn more about these and other Registry of Deeds events and initiatives, like us at facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds or follow us on twitter.com @ NorfolkDeeds.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be upset about having to deal with problems that are no fault of your own. But you can turn the annoyance into an asset by showing how quickly and how well you can resolve them.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's fondness for tidiness pays off when you untangle a situation that seems hopelessly snarled. You might later be surprised to learn who will be expressing his or her gratitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you can tackle your assignment the way you prefer, it might be a good idea to at least ask for suggestions. Who knows? One or two might even turn out to be helpful.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Make all the changes in your plans or proposals that you feel are necessary before -- repeat, before -- you submit them to your colleagues. You'll come off looking more decisive that way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might feel a mite intimidated in a new environment, be it a job, a classroom or meeting the future in-laws. But enter with a big smile, and everyone will see you as a real take-charge Cat.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This could be a romantic time for you if you can set aside your cynicism and let yourself believe that someone really cares. If you're already in a relationship, expect your partner to be extra-loving.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to shed any doubts about your abilities. You've proved yourself in the past, so why not accept that you'll do just as well, or better, in dealing with the new challenge ahead?

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your suspicions might be on the mark, but unless you can prove what you assume, you need to exercise that Scorpion discretion and let events unfold without your assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful not to go over the top this week. Avoid overeating (especially of the wrong foods), or drinking too much, or working too hard. You can do it all, but in moderation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A family matter is given to you to resolve because you have the gift for bringing quarrelsome kinfolk together. But while you're playing Dr. Phil, don't neglect your career obligations.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone of importance shares your goals but disagrees with your plan to achieve them. Never mind. Defending your methods with logic and facts earns you admiration and respect.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Consider getting away, perhaps for the weekend, despite all the demands made on your time and energies. You'll return refreshed and ready to tackle it all with your usual finesse.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a sense of honesty that makes people believe and trust in you.

Storm Costs Snowball To Estimated $12-13M

total storm cost could be at least $11 million more than budgeted.

Koch said the city will receive some reimbursement from the blizzard that struck in late January but that figure has yet to be determined as of last week.

"We're waiting to hear what our federal and state reimbursement will be. We'll then subtract that. We don't know what the true deficit will be just yet but under the municipal finance law you can deficit spend and in the fall we'll make a decision on how to deal with it."

Koch said the state has indicated they would allow cities and towns to "spread" the deficit over two years. An amendment that Sen. John Keenan of Quincy has been involved with would increase the number of years municipalities could pay down snow removal debt to five years.

So, if Quincy's final snow tab is $10 million after reimbursements, the amendment would allow the city to budget $2 million a year for five years to erase this winter's snow debt. But if only two years is allowed, then the budget hit would be $5 million for two consecutive years.

The cost for snow removal isn't the only staggering number from this winter. Consider nearly nine and a half feet of show fell in Quincy in roughly a two-month period from late January to mid-March.

According to local weather watcher Leo Keenan of Squantum, nearly 113 inches of snow fell in Quincy during the winter of 2014-15. The city also declared five snow emergencies in January and February.

'SPRING BREAKERS' – Ice breaks form a geometrical design facing the Boston skyline along East Squantum Street in Quincy - a hopeful reminder that consistent spring-like weather will soon arrive. Quincy Sun Photo/Lisa Aimola

Keenan said there were 32 different snowfall events over the winter and approximately 36 days of measurable snowfall. By his count, about 112.9 inches of snow fell in Squantum.

"This particular winter was a winter for the record books," Keenan said.

Squantum's total snowfall is higher than the official record set in Boston. According to the new record, 110.3 inches of snow fell at Boston's Logan Airport making the winter of 2014-2015 the snowiest ever. That new record is about three inches more than the previous top mark – 1995-96 when 107.6 inches of snow fell.

Keenan has kept track of the weather for the past 50 years as he's moved around. He previously worked as a lobsterman and had to make note of the weather and served in the U.S. Coast Guard, where his duty assignments were all weather related. Keenan said nothing has he has seen compares to this winter.

"(The winter) of 1955-56 was a lot of snow and '95-96 was a memorable year, but as far as my lifetime goes, this is the winter," he explained.

Overall, the mayor said Quincy weathered the winter well and suggested it could have been a lot worse.

"After the Blizzard of '78, everything shut down for about 10 days. After each of these storms this winter, streets were passable within a day. I'm proud of what we did and our response but I'm not saying everything was perfect.

"I've heard from outsiders in neighboring towns who came to Quincy and saw the difference in the snow removal. Our streets were wider. Those folks who were coming into Quincy seemed to appreciate the job that was done.

"We have 240 miles of roads and we got a lot of snow. I know some communities were not as aggressive in their snow removal operations. We made the decision to go in and remove snow instead of waiting for it to melt. We spent a lot of money," Koch said.

"There were other costs like removing snow from roofs. We're going to be dealing with the aftermath of the storms like the guardrails that were ruined, street signs that were knocked over, hydrants that were damaged."

The mayor noted about 50 of the city's 3,000 hydrants were banged up during snow plowing and removal operations.

Some street lines will also require repainting due to the repeated plowing and salting over the past eight weeks.

The mayor also said damage to municipal buildings including schools was minor.

"There were some leaks in some buildings so we'll have to do some touching up and repainting but structurally there were no major issues," Koch added.

The city received some positive financial news last week when the governor announced Quincy would receive $287,000 to help repair potholes and other storm associated repairs. Some of the money will be used to hire outside contractors to help with those pothole repairs.

"That's going to help," Koch said. "We know we're getting around $1 million in reimbursement from the first blizzard. But there have been subsequent requests for more money but we don't know where we're going to land. Until everything shakes out, we just don't know."

Koch said the city could take money from Quincy's stabilization fund to pay down some of the storm debt. Or next fall when the city's free cash is certified, he could opt to earmark some of that money for the storm tab.

"I have several options. I've generally cleared the books using free cash over the years dealing with snow deficits," he said. Koch has also added money to the snow budget while in office and says the next city budget will call for $2 million in snow/ice removal.

"We're looking for a five-year average and budget that money. Money that is not spent on snow removal would revert back to free cash which can be allocated for stabilization or other expenses," he said.

The massive snow debt – as well as rising health insurance costs – will likely impact the next fiscal budget, the mayor said.

"I expect to tell the department heads that their budgets will be level funded until further notice. I'm not suggesting we're going to have layoffs, but it's doing to be tight," he said.

Koch said he'll begin meeting with his team in the coming weeks to formulize the next fiscal budget that begins July 1. The budget is expected to be submitted to the City Council in May.

City Receives $5.3M For Pump Station

'Major Step' In Alleviating W. Quincy Flooding Issues

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Federal Emergency Management Agency has awarded Quincy a $5.3 million grant to construct a new stormwater pumping station on Furnace Avenue in West Quincy.

Mayor Thomas Koch and Cong. Stephen F. Lynch announced the grant Tuesday at City Hall, joined by Joseph D. Shea, senior vice president for engineering firm Woodard & Curran. The $5.3 million from FEMA will pay 75 percent of the cost for the new pumping station, with Quincy providing the remaining 25 percent. The project will take two years to complete.

The area of West Quincy near Furnace Brook is prone to flooding during rainstorms, such as severe flooding that took place in the spring in 2010. Koch said the pump station is a major step towards alleviating those flood problems.

"Some may recall the spring floods of 2010 when we were taking people out of their homes in boats on Alrick Road, on Cross Street, Miller Street, Spence Avenue and a number of other streets in our city," the mayor said. "This is a major step forward in alleviating those decades old challenges with our infrastructure and flooding."

"At a very basic level, I think residents deserve to feel safe in their homes during major storms," Lynch added. "The installation of

Center Project Starts This Week

By SCOTT JACKSON

Work in the Quincy Center lot where two new buildings featuring 169 residential units and 12,000 square feet of ground floor retail is set to begin this week.

Quincy Mutual and Gate Residential are planning to construct the two six-story buildings in the 1400 block of Hancock Street, adjacent to the Granite Trust Building and in the same location where Street-Works broke ground on its Merchants Row plan in the summer of 2013 before halting work that fall.

The Planning Board unanimously approved the new project – known as West of Chestnut – on March 11. The developers then secured permits for the initial site and foundation work in March.

"We have our site permit in hand, our foundation permit in hand, so we're progressing," Gate Residential Principal Kyle Warwick said Monday.

Coughlin Not Seeking Re-Election In Ward 3

'Time To Turn The Page,' Says 7-Term Councillor

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin will not not seek an eighth term this fall.

In a letter to residents of Ward 3, Coughlin said "For me, it is time to turn the page and begin a new chapter. What that holds, only God knows but I remain open to the possibilities."

Coughlin, age 60, was first elected to the Ward 3 seat in 2001 and was re-elected six times. He will finish out his seventh two-year term that concludes in January.

KEVIN COUGHLIN

Coughlin, who has served with the Massachusetts Trial Court for 36 years and nearly 14 as a ward councillor, said, "Public service has defined two thirds of my life and what has always motivated me is the chance to solve problems and produce results for those who have entrusted me to serve them. For this opportunity, I will be forever grateful."

Quoting President Thomas Jefferson, Coughlin continued: "'It will remain to those now coming on the stage of public affairs to perfect what was well begun by those going off it.' I hope there will be several caring and competent citizens who will seek to serve. To all who

Veterans Clinic Opens At Manet Health Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

Dozens of veterans, federal, state, and local officials, and community members came together Monday afternoon for a ribbon cutting ceremony celebrating the opening of a new veterans clinic inside Manet Community Health Center's flagship location in North Quincy.

The Quincy Community Based Outpatient Clinic, located on the first floor Manet's office at 110 West Squantum Street, will serve 1,400 veterans from Quincy and nearby communities. The clinic had been located inside former Quincy Medical Center, but that closed in December when the hospital was converted to a stand-alone emergency department.

The veterans clinic, which began seeing patients last week, will remain at Manet's North Quincy location for at least two years as the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs works to find a permanent home for it.

Gov. Charlie Baker, Mayor Thomas Koch, Cong. Stephen Lynch, Manet CEO John J. Holiver all spoke at Monday's event, along with Vincent Ng, director of the VA Boston Healthcare System, and Francisco Urena, the state's secretary of vet-

Baseball, Softball Start April 13 - Weather Permitting

By BILL GRIFFIN

There are more and more patches of green grass. The picturesque black and gray snow is melting into deep puddles. The ground is slowly turning warm.

Spring and baseball and softball will surely come, but it will take time. The only sports at the city's two high schools to begin on schedule were lacrosse and volleyball. The target date for the fields to be ready is April 13, but that is subject to change.

"The Quincy Park Department has given us a date of April 13 for the fields to be ready, but that obviously depends on the weather," said Quincy High Athletic Director Pat Lane.

After the snow melts, the fields need time to dry. Spring weather in New England is notoriously unpredictable. Ideally, teams would like a little outdoor practice before beginning games. The April 13 date could be moved back by as much as a week.

"I would say April 13 would be the earliest date games could be played. April 20 might be more realistic," said North Quincy High Athletic Director Michael Joyce.

SNOW STILL COVERED Adams Field earlier this week - including another half inch that fell Saturday when this photo was taken. Officials are hoping the high school baseball and softball teams will be able to start their seasons April 13 if the fields are ready.

The MIAA approved an extension of the cutoff date for regular-season games from May 25 to May 31. If the games do begin on April 13, two weeks of games would be postponed. It is possible that the first week of a team's games would become the final week on its schedule in the May 25-May 31 window which the MIAA has allowed for games to be played.

"It is something that we will discuss with our opponents, but it would seem to make sense. That way, every team would have the same schedule," said Lane.

The games from the second week would be made up in late April or in May. Even if games do begin on April 13, a team would be scheduled to play 20 games in 40 or 45 days. That does not allow for further postponements which are almost certain to happen.

This is a large number of games crammed into a short time period. That raises pitching and health concerns for baseball which will need to addressed.

"If you end up with four games in a week, that would be put a strain on pitching which could lead to injuries. That is the last thing we want," said Joyce.

"The health and safety of our athletes is always our top priority. We want to avoid any situation which might lead to injuries," said Lane.

One possibility is to drop the non-league games on the schedule. This would leave North and Quincy with a 16-game schedule in the Patriot League. The MIAA requires a team to play 10 games to qualify for tournament consideration. A 16-game schedule would reduce the strain on young arms and also satisfy the MIAA's minimum requirement.

"Obviously, we'd like to play the non-league games, but the Patriot League is our top priority. It is something we will look at," said Lane.

"We'd like to play 20 games, but we want to avoid any situations which would lead to players getting hurt," said North baseball coach Matt Edgerly. "I don't know too many high school teams who have four starting pitchers. A team is lucky to have three. If a team has four games in a week, that could lead to problems. Staying healthy is what matters most."

Pitching multiple games in a week is not as big an issue in softball. A softball pitcher puts far less strain on her arm. There are teams who use the same pitcher all season. Four games in a week is not ideal, but it is a situation Quincy softball coach Greg Sommers has dealt with in past seasons.

"We played four games in a week in the past. It's not something you want to do,

Police Partner With Social Networking Site

Virtual Neighborhood Watch For Residents

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Police Department is partnering with a social networking site, which officials say will serve as a virtual neighborhood watch for residents.

Police Chief Paul Keenan on March 25 announced a partnership with Nextdoor, a private social network that allows neighborhood residents to communicate with each other. Police departments in several other Greater Boston communities – including Braintree, Billerica, and Chelsea – have already launched partnerships with Nextdoor; Quincy is now the largest local municipality to partner with the San Francisco-based company.

Quincy residents had already begun signing up for the website – accessible at nextdoor.com and through iPhone and Android apps – before the March 25 announcement; more than 70 percent of the neighborhoods in the city have Nextdoor sites up and running while the others are in the pilot stage awaiting more people to sign up.

With the new partnership, Quincy police officers and residents will be able to interact with each other. The service is free for both residents and the city and police officers will not have access to personal information posted on the website.

"Nextdoor is a social media website, an Internet based website, that allows residents of Quincy to communicate with each other as well as with the Quincy Police Department. With today's launch, we believe this partnership will open doors and open portals to the Quincy Police Department with our citizens and open lines of communications," Keenan explained.

"People will be able to communicate directly with the Quincy Police Department with cellphones, laptops as well as computers and provide us with information on suspicious activity, lost dogs or any kind of community event or community issue that is going on and we in effect will be able to communicate back to them with anything that's going on in their areas of concern.

"We believe that it has basically become a virtual neighborhood watch. We believe that with the input of the citizens of Quincy we'll be able provide better service to them and keep a safer environment for them to work and to live in."

Keenan said the department's community police officers would be trained to use Nextdoor; detectives will likely be instructed in it as well. Residents, he added, should call 911 for crimes in progress or other emergencies but can use Nextdoor to report suspicious activity or other concerns.

Joseph Porcelli, Nextdoor's senior city strategist, noted residents have to verify their address before signing up. This makes Quincy's residents on the site feel more comfortable while using it.

"Nextdoor is not totally new to Quincy. Over the last two years, residents have started private Nextdoor websites in over 70 percent of Quincy's neighborhoods including Nextdoor Squantum, Nextdoor Merrymount, and Nextdoor Houghs Neck. They use it to talk to each other about things that are important to their lives every day here in the community," Porcelli said.

"Residents appreciate Nextdoor because before any resident can join they have to verify their address before gaining access to their neighborhood's private social network. With this sense of security, neighbors feel comfortable about talking about everyday things such as finding a babysitter or handyman or to more personal things like returning a lost dog or more critical things like communicating about crime in the neighborhoods.

"At the same time, the Quincy Police Department was looking for innovative ways to keep the city safe. Starting today, with the click of a mouse they can communicate with residents in one, many, or all neighborhoods in Quincy. With this launch, the Quincy Police Department is leveraging the power of technology and the powers of neighbors to keep the NEXTDOOR allows residents to notify each other of issues in the neighborhood. Here, for example, a resident's newsfeed includes posts about a lost dog, a traffic accident, and a car window being smashed. Nextdoor can be accessed online and through iPhone (seen above) and Android apps.

SECURITY MEASURES

Whether it is due to a hard knock or gradual loosening, solitaire gemstones have the potential to come loose from their settings and become lost. To guard against this possibility, it is important to have your ring(s) checked by the jeweler at least twice a year. That way, rings that are worn regularly can be professionally examined to make sure that the central stone is being held securely in place by the metal prongs. Gemstones in classic four- and six-prong settings can often come loose as the prongs shift. Stones that are bezel-set may seem to be more secure, but they can also come loose over time. Having insurance is good, but never having to use it is better.

erans services. The governor thanked all those who worked to find a home for the clinic just months after Quincy Medical Center closed.

"To be able to come up with a solution that keeps the services here in Quincy with the help of the mayor, the congressman and so many others, is a real tribute to the collaborative nature all of us share and at the same time a desire to make sure this facility wasn't lost to the city of Quincy and the South Shore," Baker said.

"I'm thrilled to be here to celebrate this. I want to thank John and Vincent and the congressman and the mayor and everyone else for the heavy lifting they did. And I want to thank Manet for being willing to incorporate this on a temporary basis into their operation as we go through the process of figuring out what the long-term solution will be."

Koch said all officials, whether they are Democrats or Republicans, come together to help the nation's veterans.

"We wouldn't be here today – we wouldn't be where we are as a nation – without our veterans. This city has long stood, I think, head and shoulders with any other community and perhaps above many other communities per capita with the amount of veterans – people who have volunteered to join our armed services to serve this nation. This city has continued to embrace the veterans in all we do," the mayor said.

"This isn't a Democratic issue. It's not a Republican issue. It's not a liberal issue. It's not a conservative issue. Everyone comes together for the veterans. That's why it was so easy, in my view, to pull this together here at Manet."

The new facility, Lynch noted, is more accessible for veterans because they can walk right in off the street. It's also located within walking distance of the North Quincy MBTA station.

"Access is a big issue for our World War II veterans, our Korean veterans, some of our Vietnam veterans and veterans of all our wars," Lynch said.

"We have 1,400 veterans across the South Shore who will be able to access health care because of the new facility here at Manet Community Health Center. They'll be able to take advantage of the new outpatient clinic, which offers additional space and public transit accessibility. Both of those are indispensible to readily addressing the veterans' health care needs."

Holiver thanked local veterans for their patience as the clinic transitioned from Quincy Medical Center to the Manet facility. Accessing the VA facilities in Brockton or Boston, he added, can be difficult for the veterans the clinic will serve.

"You've been absolutely wonderful," Holiver said to the veterans in attendance. "We did this quickly because we had to. We had no other choice. We knew that going to Brockton and going up to Jamaica Plain is onerous and difficult so we got together to make this happen. We're very, very thankful we're standing here today just two-and-one-half months after talking about it."

Ng described having to move out of Quincy Medical Center as a crisis, which presented an opportunity to move to new space at Manet.

"In Chinese there is always mention [that] the word crisis is composed of two characters. One is danger; the other one is opportunity," Ng said. "When we got word we had to leave Quincy Medical Center in a short period of time, it certainly was a crisis for us. But we also saw it as an opportunity and I think we fully took advantage of that opportunity by getting here as part of the Manet system and having a wing here at least on a temporary basis for two years."

Urena added that Quincy should be known as the City of Veterans for all it does.

"I really want to thank the leadership of the mayor, the governor, the congressman and our partners at Manet for being able to stand up for our veterans and let them know they care about them," Urena said. "Letting them know that the City of Presidents is also the City of Veterans."

The clinic inside Quincy Medical Center opened in 2000 after Hank Bradley, Quincy's veterans services director at the time, spent five years trying to bring it to the city.

Bradley was in attendance Monday for the dedication and said it was 'dis-

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1922 postcard view of Faxon Road in Norfolk Downs looking south from Edwin Street towards Billings Road. At the time this section of Quincy along with Wollaston were the fastest growing neighborhoods in the city. To accommodate the influx of school children, the Parker School was built in 1916 and North Junior High in 1927. Many of the families came here for jobs in the dozens of industrial companies that were locating throughout the North Quincy area in the early 1900s. The larger factories included the Tubular Rivet & Stud Company, the Boston Gear Works, Mathewson Machine Works and Pneumatic Scale Corporation. All these companies are now long gone from Quincy. Although it doesn't look too busy in this picture, Faxon Road was an important early thoroughfare connecting East Squantum Street in Atlantic with Billings Road in Norfolk Downs. The postcard was one of a series published by A.R. Mackay whose store was in Norfolk Downs. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quinn Predicts No Increase In The Tax Rate

The City Council Finance Committee has been wrestling with the city budget for the past 90 days. Finance Committee Chairman John Quinn predicted additional cuts of about $1.5 million and no increase in the tax rate.

The budget covers 18 months instead of the usual 12 because all Massachusetts cities and towns are converting from a calendar year to a fiscal year, starting July 1st to June 30th.

The current tax rate is $152.40 per thousand.

PETITION DRIVE UNDERWAY AGAINST SOUTH QUINCY M.B.T.A. STATION

A petition drive with a goal of 20,000 names is underway in opposition to the proposed South Quincy M.B.T.A. station and parking facility.

The petitions being circulated by the South Quincy Civic Association will be presented at a public hearing on the proposed station, to be held April 26 at Sterling Junior High School.

The station would have a 1750 car parking garage and a new expressway ramp system connecting the station with routes 3 and 128. Cost of the project is set at 15.8 million.

Coalition Asks Governor For Flood Insurance Relief

(Editor's note: A copy of the following letter drafted by the 'Quincy Making Waves Coalition' was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

Dear Governor Baker,

On behalf of the residents of Quincy, and all residents across the Commonwealth affected by drastic increases in flood insurance premiums due to the Biggert Waters Act of 2012, the Quincy Making Waves Coalition is writing to ask you to hear our plea in regards to the interpretation of HR. 3783.

The Quincy Making Waves Coalition was formed in February of 2014 to assist homeowners totally confused by the uncertainties of FEMA's rate changes and flood maps. Areas of Quincy that have never flooded, even during the Blizzard of '78, the highest recorded water tables in Boston Harbor history are now in a flood plain. We view this addition as a means of balancing FEMA's books; these issues have awakened true activists. FEMA's prohibitively expensive flood insurance, due to increase and compound upon itself yearly, is nothing more than a new tax forced upon homeowners, and one that is not sustainable.

The National Association of Realtors sounded the alarm early on regarding the impact to their industry, and their industry is our homes; this is going to create a widespread foreclosure crisis stealing the American Dream right out from under us. When HR. 3783 began to make its way through the House and Senate last year, we watched the bills movement intently. House Speaker Robert DeLeo and former Attorney General Martha Coakley crafted HR. 3783 as a relief bill in direct response to homeowners, like us, clamoring over the reality of losing their home.

The bill sat dormant for a time becoming part of the emotional roller coaster we have been on this past year, and when the bill passed it was met with resounding applause from our membership; a small light at the end of FEMA's long tunnel. Until late December we were under the impression that the law was enacted as intended, for ALL homeowners. We are stunned to learn that David Cotney, Commissioner of the Division of Banks, chose to interpret HR. 3783 to include only new mortgages after November 20, 2014, the date Chapter 177 became law.

We ask you, Governor, why would our legislators waste our taxpayer money to enact a bill that helps no one? Mortgages after November 20, 2014 will far exceed the $250,000 cap on the National Flood Insurance Program. It's clear that this bill was meant for all homeowners, allowing them to choose their own risk. Do we choose to lose our homes now or wait for the hundred-year storm that may never come?

Governor, we respectfully ask that you use your authority over the Division of Banks to see that Chapter 177 is interpreted and implemented as intended, for all homeowners.

Thank you for your consideration,

The Quincy Making Waves Coalition

Surprised By High Snow Removal Costs

Twelve to 13 million dollar costs for snow removal, salt, etc. by the city? Oh, my gosh. From a little over $1 million snow removal budget to 12 -13 times over the budget, what happened?

I understand that this past winter might have been "the winter of all winters," but geez. If it were $2-3 million over budget, I could understand and accept. But over $11 million?! We, the residents and businesses, and taxpayers, of Quincy should not pay for the whole shibang, no matter how much the state of Mass. reimburses, and no matter what kind of payment plan schedule is made.

A $12-13 million deficit / bill is a $12-13 million deficit / bill. No way around it.

And guess who's stuck with this gigantic bill? I'll give you one guess.

Andrew Kraunelis Winner In Globe Art Competition

Andrew Kraunelis of Quincy, a sophomore at Boston College High School, won an award in the 65th Boston Globe Scholastic Art & Writing Awards competition.

Open to students from grades 7–12, The Scholastic Art Awards are the nation's longest-running, largest, most prestigious recognition program for creative teenagers in the visual and literary arts. Work is judged on originality, technical skill, and emergence of a personal voice or vision. All work is judged blindly, without knowledge of the student's gender, age or school.

For Art, the categories are: Architecture, Ceramics and Glass, Comic Art, Design, Digital Art, Drawing, Fashion, Film and Animation, Jewelry, Mixed Media, Painting, Photography, Printmaking, Sculpture, Art Portfolio.

There are three types of awards: Gold Key (highest award), Silver Key and Honorable Mention.

Andrew won an Honorable Mention in Sculpture, submitted by his art teacher, Kay Myers.

His prize work were two of the more than 13,000 art works submitted in 28 different categories by more than 8,000 students. BC High students won 12 awards this year. The talented students received 1 Gold Key, 1 Silver Key and 10 Honorable Mentions.

Established in 1923, the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards are the longest-running, most prestigious recognition program for creative teens in the U.S.

Timothy Cedrone Selected For Overseas Study Program

Quincy native Timothy Cedrone has been selected for a one-of-a-kind study abroad program to Greece through the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

The program, called the Tragos Quest to Greece, is a 10-day journey with fellow undergraduate members of Sigma Phi Epsilon, accompanied by alumni mentors and university faculty. The Tragos Quest to Greece focuses on the ideals of Sound Mind and Sound Body, two of SigEp's ideals, and is designed to epitomize SigEp's commitment to breaking negative stereotypes about Greek-letter organizations.

It is the only national fraternity program of its kind.

Cedrone was selected as one of 20 undergraduate members of the fraternity from a pool of over 15,000.

Cedrone, a sophomore at the University of New Hampshire, is dual-majoring in Sociology and International Affairs. He hopes to one day work for the World Health Organization or another branch of the United Nations.

"Being selected as one of only 20 SigEps from across the country for Tragos is without a doubt the greatest accomplishment of my life thus far," Cedrone said. "I'm excited to go to Greece and to take advantage of everything this program has to offer. Greek philosophy has always been the foundation for Sigma Phi Epsilon's core values, and I'm honored to have the opportunity to explore them on a deeper level."

Each participant prepares for the trip by reading three books about ancient Greek philosophy and culture. The learning continues overseas with daily discussions based on scholarly readings and personal experiences. The discussions are designed to challenge each scholar along his journey of introspection and transformation. During the Quest, scholars discuss the Socratic method of teaching in the Agora where Socrates taught, hold athletic competitions in the original Olympic stadium and study the fraternity's ritual in Delphi after learning about the Mysteries of Eleusis.

"The program provides an opportunity for self-discovery," said SigEp CEO Brain Warren. "It challenges participants to see the world through a different lens and return to their respective campuses ready to leave a lasting and positive legacy."

The trip is funded by a grant from the SigEp Educational Foundation, which raises money for SigEp's various local and national leadership programs. This experience is made possible in part through the generosity of SigEp Alumnus William G. Tragos and his wife Lilli. Tragos is a co-founder of the TBWA worldwide advertising agency and a former Grand Chapter President of the fraternity.

Film Screening In Honor Of Holocaust Memorial Day

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, along with The Thomas Crane Quincy Public Library and the Quincy Jewish Committee, invite all to a free viewing of "Rafting to Bombay" on Thursday, April 16, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Library Community Room, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Seating is limited to 125 people, and there is parking in the library lot.

The film is being shown in honor of Yom Hashoah/ Holocaust Memorial Day because of its present-day connection to the Holocaust. While filming his father revisiting his childhood city of Mumbai, India, Erez Laufer finds himself caught in the worst terrorist attack in the history of the city. As the drama unfolds, the Laufer family recounts how they found refuge there in the 1940s after fleeing the Nazis. Past and present collide as the family history is echoed in a contemporary war, and a little-known story emerges of the Jewish refugees who found a safe haven in Mumbai during World War II.

Cong. Beth Shalom is co-sponsoring the film with the Crane Library and the Quincy Jewish Committee.

For more information, contact the Library at 617-376-1300 or Cong. Beth Shalom at 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

Adult Pinewood Derby April 11 At HNCC

The Friends of Troop 6 will hold their fifth annual Adult Pinewood Derby Saturday, April 11, at Houghs Neck Congregational Church from 7 to 11 p.m.

Proceeds will benefit the Friends of Troop 6 to help the troop with camperships, special trips and equipment needs. The event features finger food, a cash bar, raffles and music as well as pinewood derby races with cash prizes.

Tickets are $20 for food, music, and fun; $5 to enter the race; and $5 for a new car kit. Tickets may be purchased any Monday night between 7 and 9 p.m. at the church, located at 300 Manet Avenue. They can also be purchased by contacting Rob at 617-479-7412.

The Friends of Troop 6 anticipate 50 or more cars competing in this year's event.

All cars must pass inspection by the official inspection committee before being allowed to compete; cars that do not pass inspection will be disqualified. The weigh in begins at 7:30 p.m. and the race at 8 p.m. Replacement cars will be available for $5.

No car shall weigh more than five ounces; the official race scale is considered final. The car's length cannot exceed seven inches and the width no more than 2 ¾ inches. The car must have 1 ¾ inches of clearance between the wheels, ⅜ clearance under the body, and the wheelbase can be no less than four inches. The front of the car must have a ½ inch wide surface in the center.

The wood provided in the car kit must be used and the block can be shaped any way that is desired. The wheels supplied in the kit must also be used, and cannot be cut, drilled, beveled, or rounded. The seam may be removed from the wheels. The axles in the kit must be used as well and may be polished or lubricated.

Wheel bearings, washers, and bushings are prohibited. The car must not ride on any type of springs. The car must be freewheeling, with no starting devices. No loose material of any kind, such as lead shot, may be used.

The number on your ticket needs to be on the car as well.

Quincy Girl Scouts Donate Cookies To Military Members

A snowstorm didn't stop more than 600 Girl Scouts – including some from Quincy – and their families from gathering at Hanscom Air Force Base March 21 to donate nearly 30,000 packages of Girl Scout cookies.

Girls attending this much-anticipated event had the opportunity to make cards to be sent with the cookies to military members here and overseas, speak with active-duty military personnel, have their photo taken, meet some of the children who live on the base, enjoy hot chocolate donated by Dunkin' Donuts, and sing Girl Scout songs.

The cookie donation at Hanscom Air Force Base is made possible through Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts' Cookies for a Cause program. As part of the annual cookie program, which concluded March 10, Girl Scouts sold cookies that were put aside for donation to military organizations, food pantries, and other local charities. Girl Scouts of Eastern MA works with CarePacks in South Weymouth, New England Center for Homeless Veterans in Boston, Helping our Troops in Stoneham, and Operation Troop Support in Danvers, to ship the cookies and cards to military members.

Pork Chops Cacciatore

By MARIE

When we think of cacciatore, we usually think of chicken cacciatore, but I found a great recipe for pork chops, which was equally as good, with the chops so tender in this entree.

I used the bone in, but if you prefer, boneless chops will also work. It can be served alone, or with pasta, rice or just wonderful crusty bread.

PORK CHOP CACCIATORE

2 tablespoons olive oil
4 pork chops
2 green Bell peppers (sliced)
1 red Bell pepper (sliced)
1 small onion (sliced)
1 clove garlic
1/2 pound mushrooms (sliced)
1-16 ounce can tomatoes
Oregano
Basil (as much as you want for both)
Salt and pepper

In the hot oil, cook the chops until browned on both sides. Remove from pan. In the same pan, sauté lightly the onion, garlic, peppers and mushrooms. Add the tomatoes, the seasonings and bring mixture to a boil. Add the chops, cover and simmer for about an hour until chops are tender.

Serve the chops with the mixture over the top. Enjoy!

Turkey Spinach Meatballs

By SUZIE

Here is a really delicious meatball recipe with the addition of spinach and some unconventional spices.

If you don't know me by now, I am always trying to incorporate vegetables in recipes, especially since Americans on the average eat far less of them than they should. The mustard gives them a zing and the fennel really makes these stand out. These will soon become your families favorite!

Baking instead of frying saves all the hassle and tastes just as delicious. Enjoy!!!

Turkey Spinach Meatballs

Olive oil (for baking sheet)
1 large organic egg, beaten to blend
¼ small onion, finely chopped
2 clove garlic finely chopped
1½ pound fresh ground turkey
1 10-oz. package frozen chopped spinach, thawed, squeezed in paper towels to remove excess moisture (very important)
½ cup finely grated Pecorino Romano cheese (or Parmesan)
½ cup breadcrumbs
2 tablespoons chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley
1 teaspoon fennel seeds
1 teaspoon of Dijon mustard (trust me)
1 ½ teaspoons sea salt
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon tomato paste

Simply mix all ingredients together and roll into balls. You can make them any size you wish. Bake on greased cookie sheet at 350 until browned and sizzling.

Serve them with your favorite marinara sauce.

Apple, Strawberry Spice Cake

By MARIE

Today's recipe for spice cake is usually made with raisins, but recently I tried it with apples and strawberries which came out equally as good – just more moist.

It can either be served heated in the microwave, or plain.

This recipe has no milk or eggs, and one of which has been in my column before, just with the apples and strawberries instead of the raisins.

APPLE, STRAWBERRY SPICE CAKE

1/2 cup diced apples
1/2 cup strawberries (diced)
2 cups water
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 stick unsalted butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 3/4 cup flour
Preheat oven to 350 degrees

In a pan, place the water, the apples and the strawberries and cook until it boils for a couple of minutes. Remove from heat and add the butter. Let cool for a few minutes and then add all of the remaining ingredients.

Place in a slightly greased baking pan, or muffin pan, and bake for 30 minutes until toothpick comes out clean.

Corinne Mitchell, May Mayyasi Appointed Library Trustees

Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch has appointed local residents Corinne Mitchell and May Mayyasi to the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Previously serving trustees Janet DiTullio, Mary Reed, William Griffin and Tina Cahill were also appointed to the Board. Trustees are appointed annually by the mayor for a term of one year.

Mitchell and her late husband, Bill, were born and raised in Quincy. They have two adult children, both of whom call Quincy their hometown.

"My love of reading was nurtured at the Thomas Crane Library in North Quincy," said Ms. Mitchell. "I am delighted to serve on the board and make a contribution to the wonderful community resource that has given so much to me and my family."She was an English teacher in the Quincy Public Schools from 1971 until her retirement in 2006.

CORINNE MITCHELL

MAY MAYYASI

Mayyasi and her husband, Al, moved to Quincy eight years ago to help their daughter care for her baby while she completed her Ph.D. at Boston University.

"The library was our first stop and guide", and has become a frequent destination with their grandchildren, Ms. Mayyasi said. "The beautiful city of Quincy and its rich history and culture made it easy for us to decide to settle here. My appointment to the Board of Trustees will give me the chance to share the intellectual wealth this library has to offer and the opportunity to give back to the community we love."

She has master's degrees in Fine Arts and Social Science and many years of professional and volunteer experience in community development and support.

The Board of Trustees usually meets monthly at the Main Library and meeting minutes are posted on the library's website at thomascranelibrary.org. To send a message to the Board, email trustees@thomascranelibrary.org.

For more information, visit thomascranelibrary.org or call 617-376-1316.

Annual Prayer Breakfast At Tirrell Room May 7

Tickets are on sale for Quincy's Annual Prayer Breakfast to be held on Thursday May 7 at the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry Street, West Quincy. Coinciding with the National Day of Prayer, Quincy's Prayer Breakfast is sponsored by Mayor Thomas P. Koch.

The breakfast brings together representatives from many houses of worship, government officials, as well as local business, community and religious leaders. The event is organized by a steering committee of religious leaders and community members.

"The steering committee continues to welcome a diverse group of faith leaders who contribute vital energy and faithful preparation," said committee chair Reverend Eric Hillegas of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church in Quincy. "The Mayor's Prayer Breakfast grows out of a strongly shared commitment to seek the welfare of the city by supporting the essential work of Quincy's social service agencies."

The breakfast menu includes eggs, French toast, bacon, sausage, home fries, fresh fruit, a vegetarian dish, an assortment of juices and more.

Proceeds from the event will benefit The Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, Salvation Army and Interfaith Social Services.

The program and breakfast run from 7 to 8:30 a.m. Tickets are $35 for an individual ticket and $250 for a table of 10.

Fire, Pipe Burst At QHA Properties

Fire Department, Housing Maintenance Supervisor Credited With Quick Reponse

By SCOTT JACKSON

James Marathas' first week on the job was an eventful one, with a fire at one housing authority property and burst water pipe at another.

"We had a busy week," he told The Sun.

Marathas began his new job as the facilities director for the Quincy Housing Authority on March 23. In that role, he oversees maintenance and modernization for the housing agency, which manages 1,600 federal- and state-funded units spread across 10 buildings and developments throughout the city.

Hours after Marathas began his new job, a fire broke out in the basement of a Quincy Housing Authority owned house at 60 Quarterdeck Road in Germantown. Fire Chief Joseph Barron said the residents inside the house called 911 around 8:15 p.m. that night after the smoke detectors went off.

The single-alarm fire was confined to the basement; the last firefighters left the scene just after 9:30 p.m. Barron estimated the damage from the fire at $5,000.

Barron said the most likely cause of the fire was a multi-outlet power strip.

According to Marathas, the residents living in the unit had a non-conforming power strip that being used for a fish tank in the basement, which sparked the fire. During future inspections of Quincy Housing Authority units, housing authority staff will be looking for lease enforcement issues, such as the power strip that caused the fire.

"We will look for those things during inspections," Marathas said.

Marathas credited the Fire Department for its quick response to the fire. He also noted new smoke detectors were installed throughout Quincy Housing Authority properties over the course of last year.

"Thank God for the Fire Department's quick response. And thank God the Quincy Housing Authority installed new smoke detectors in the units. Those smoke detectors gave the tenants an early notice," Marathas said. "The damage was limited because of them."

Marathas also credited QHA maintenance supervisor Billy O'Neil and maintenance staff Howard Chadbourne and Mike Micciche for their work in the aftermath of the fire.

A second incident occurred during the early morning hours of March 27. A four-inch water pipe leading into Sawyer Towers at 95 Martensen Street burst around 2 a.m. Water came flooding into the basement of the 10-story, 150-unit building.

"The entire basement flooded. The elevator pit

City Receives $5.3 Million For WQ Pumping Station

this new pumping station will vastly improve stormwater runoff in the area to help alleviate those flooding concerns. After this winter we know this is going to be a recurring cycle, but fortunately with this we'll be able to address those concerns."

The city began undertaking flood control measures in West Quincy and throughout all of Quincy using money in a $25 million capital improvement plan approved by the City Council at the request of the mayor in 2011.

"As we embarked on that plan, it became very clear the Furnace Ave, Miller and Cross neighborhood really needed a multi-step, multi-phase solution," Shea said. "Effectively, when the brook becomes overtaxed this neighborhood is one of two neighborhoods that becomes the bowl that fills. So throughout the past few years we've been working on solutions trying to keep the brook within the brook."

Koch said the 2011 capital improvement bond was put in place to position Quincy to leverage additional money from the federal or state governments.

"What I have learned since being mayor is that you have to be prepared. We have to put up monies to do design, to do engineering, in order to chase down these opportunities, whether it's federal or state grants," Koch said.

"The East Howard Street intersection was rebuilt because the city had the design plans ready when MassDOT was ready to move. The North Quincy intersection is now underway because the city did the takings and did the design and had it teed up for MassDOT."

The new pump station will be sighted on the parcel of land the city purchased for $485,000 in April 2012 using funds from the capital improvement bond.

"It really proved to be a lynchpin to accessing drainage on the highway, accessing the brook serving Miller and Furnace Ave," Shea said of the purchase of that parcel. "People have seen construction on Furnace Ave – the installation of various gates, the installation of various catch basins – all with the goal of preparing the parcel and the neighborhood to both keep the brook within the brook and use this station to pump brook overflows when they occur."

Most of the new pump station will sit below ground, Shea explained, with the above ground portion designed to fit in with the surrounding neighborhood. The floodwater collected by the pumping station will be moved further downstream to an unpopulated area. Shea said this would benefit both the Furnace Avenue neighborhood and the neighborhood surrounding Alrick Road.

Design of the new pumping station pumping station will begin this spring and the construction should be completed by April 2017.

"The next year – from April of this year to April 2016 – will be when the design and permitting occurs. We're scheduling field activities to begin the week of May 25 – some surveying, some ecological studies, and some geotechnical work. Then permitting will occur so abutters to the project will be receiving notices about permits," Shea said.

"FEMA has asked us to get the construction package prepared and bid for award in April 2016. We expect a one-year construction cycle, so we're looking at a two-year cycle for this project to be completed."

Quincy's share of the cost is approximately $1.7 million. Shea said the first $300,000, which will pay for design and permitting work, was already funded in the 2011 capital improvement plan. The city will then see if any additional funds remain in the budget to cover the other $1.4 million in costs.

The City Council will be required to approve a bond for the total cost of the project, including the $5.3 million FEMA will kick in. The federal agency would then reimburse the city. This is similar to how Massachusetts School Building Authority reimbursements work, Koch noted.

Board Suspends Bar For 5 Days

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Copeland Street bar will be required to close for five days this month after a bartender allegedly assaulted a patron while intoxicated.

The Board of License Commissioners voted 5-0 Tuesday in favor of the five-day suspension of the all alcohol license for Callahan's Tap, located at 296 Copeland Street. The bar will be required to close entirely April 15-19 as a result.

The bar's owner, Anthony Donnelly, has five days to appeal the suspension to state regulators once he receives formal notice of the suspension later this week.

The suspension stems from events that occurred just after midnight on March 8. Det. Lt. Peter Turowski, the department's liquor officer, told the board officers responded to calls of a fight outside the bar that night.

The victim told officers he was drinking with friends inside Callahan's Tap when he got into an argument with the bartender. The bartender then grabbed the victim by his shirt, dragged him outside, and threw him to the ground at which point a group of males began kicking the victim. Four witnesses interviewed by police that night corroborated the story, according to Turowski.

Turowski said officers had to knock on the door for several minutes before the bartender let them in, The officer who filed the report, Turowski said, noted the bartender appeared to have been drinking all night. The bartender was arrested and charged with assault and battery with a deadly weapon, to wit a shod foot.

Turowski further noted that while officers were inside Callahan's, a female patron left the women's bathroom at approximately 1:30 a.m. She had been inside the bathroom for about 45 minutes at that point.

Donnelly was not present that night, though he arrived on scene after police informed of the incident. He told the board Tuesday that he couldn't disagree with the police report, since he wasn't there.

Donnelly also said the bartender who was working that night is no longer working there. He later told the board the night of the incident was the bartender's first day on the job; the bartender previously worked at an establishment in Dorchester.

Police Chief Paul Keenan made the motion for the five-day suspension. He called the violations stemming from the incident 'egregious.'

"They're pretty egregious," Keenan said. "You've got a person who is assaulted at your bar, badly beaten. The bartender was involved in the beating. The bartender then attempted to cover it up; he didn't allow officers in for quite some period of time. There was a patron still left in the bar some 45 minutes after officers responded and the bar had closed."

Callahan's Tap received a written warning from the board in 2012 for serving a minor during a sting operation, according to City Clerk Joseph Shea.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
JAWBONE PRESERVATION

After a tooth extraction, the portion of the jawbone ("alveolar process") that once held the tooth in place begins to shrink (resorb). As a result, an overlying denture will increasingly find itself on an unstable foundation. This leads the denture to become looser and looser until it eventually has to be refitted/refabricated. For this reason, many patients turn to dental implants to replace lost teeth. This prosthetic device so closely approximates the look and function of a natural tooth root that it minimizes bone resorption. Once the titanium anchor is placed in the bone to function much like a natural tooth root, it becomes integrated with the bone, thereby minimizing bone loss. This provides a solid anchor for replacement teeth.

Since dental implants integrate into the structure of your bone, no one will ever know that you have a replacement tooth. Dental implants are so natural-looking and feeling; you may forget you ever lost a tooth. We are a highly qualified and experienced team of professionals who want you to look and feel your best. Call us at 617 479-6220 and we'll gladly answer any questions you may have. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Come smile with us! We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If there is insufficient bone to hold a dental implant, bone grafting may be an option.

Coughlin Not Seeking Re-Election In Ward 3

have partnered with me, supported me or challenged me to be better, to those I have had the honor to represent and to the colleagues I have had the good fortunate to serve with, thank you for the gift of public service."

Coughlin's decision to retire from his council seat could set off a scramble in Ward 3. One resident - Sandy Verhault - announced her plans to seek the open seat earlier this week. (Announcement on Page 13.)

Coughlin is one of the three longest-serving councillors presently on the council. Also elected in 2001 were Doug Gutro (Ward 5) and Joseph Finn (at large). Gutro, now a councillor at-large, is running for mayor this fall. Finn told The Sun last week he will seek re-election at-large this fall.

During his tenure on the City Council, Coughlin has served as Council President and chairman of several key committees including Ordinance, Finance and Oversight. He also chaired the education, park and recreation and senior citizen committees.

As a councillor, Coughlin authored the city's first Wireless Communications Ordinance, a Neighborhood Property Preservation (Anti-Blight) Ordinance, a home-rule petition to create the first of its kind Senior Citizen Safety Zones, as well as legislative initiatives to address neighborhood parking concerns, to combat graffiti, to enhance recycling, protect and expand the city's urban forest, and bring focus and attention to other matters of environmental concern.

He authored several home rule petitions adopted by the council approved by the legislature and signed by Gov. Weld and Gov. Patrick, including one that provided property tax relief to Iraq and Afghanistan War veterans. During his tenure as council president, Coughlin oversaw the recodification of the city zoning ordinance.

He has also served on additional subcommittees some of which he helped create, including the Fire Study Committee where he was an advocate of public safety; the Zoning Committee created to evaluate and make recommendations regarding potential zoning changes in light of neighborhood development concerns; the Community Preservation Committee, where as vice chairman, he has overseen the expenditure of millions of dollars in funds for open space acquisition, affordable housing and historic preservation; the Environment and Health/Climate Action Committee wherein in joined with environmental leaders in the community seeking to initiate local action to address climate change and most recently the Mayor's Bicycle Commission.

Coughlin has long been active in the community. He is a past president of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association, member of the Quincy Lions Club, the Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus, the Sacred Heart Parish Council and the Board of Directors of the Boston University Alumni Association.

Coughlin's public service has been recognized by a host of organizations. He received the Impact Quincy Community Hero Award in 1997, the Boston Parent's Paper Public Friend Family Advocate of the Year Award in 1998 and was inducted into the Collegium of Distinguished Alumni at Boston University in 2000.

He was honored for his commitment to public safety by the Quincy Firefighters and inducted as an Honorary Firefighter in February, 2007 and received the WORK, Inc. Public Service award in May, 2007 for his support of this program which serves the physically and mentally challenged.

Other honors include the U.S. Department of Defense Patriot Award and the U.S. Department's Seven Seals Award (signifying the seven branches of military service).

A chief probation officer with the Massachusetts Trial Court, he and his wife Domenica have three children: Maria, a Quincy public school teacher married to Sgt. 1st Class Jimmy Lok, USARNG; James, an attorney and contract engineer at EMC Corporation; and Matthew, a civil engineer at Hatch, Mott, McDonald. The Coughlins recently became grandparents to a baby girl, Cristina.

Catholic Women's Club Meeting

The North Quincy Catholic Women's Club will meet Thursday, April 9 at 7 p.m. in the Quincy Catholic Academy cafeteria.

There will be a business meeting by Audrey Flores followed by a fun evening, at "The Kentucky Derby." It will be hosted by Elinor Foley and Anne Donovan. All are welcome.

'A Beginning, A Middle And An End'

Coughlin's Open Letter To The Residents Of Ward 3

By KEVIN COUGHLIN
Ward 3 Councillor

Most of us, who are old enough to remember, recall precisely where we were the morning that evil came knocking on our collective door in New York City, Washington D.C and a Pennsylvania field in Shanksville; September 11, 2001. On that day and in the days that filled the decade plus three and a half years since that day of darkness, so much has changed in an America that has experienced a great recession, endless war and deep political division. But what has remained constant, especially in our small corner of the world in Quincy, is our belief in our founding democratic principles and a conviction that our nation was created out of a simple ideal of freedom, equality and an ability to determine our own destiny through self-governance.

That morning of 9/11 was primary day here in Quincy and other cities and towns in the Commonwealth. As I stood on Taylor Street near the entrance to the Wollaston School yard greeting residents who had come to vote, I heard the horrific news of that morning on a nearby car radio as the details unfolded. As the hours passed, it was unclear if the Massachusetts Secretary of State would suspend the election voting but in what seemed to be almost an act of patriotic determination, the decision was made that the heinous and cowardly acts of terrorism would not interrupt that most sacred act of our enduring democracy, exercising the right to vote. I have never forgotten the juxtaposition of those attacks that day upon all that we hold dear, and our resolve to preserve and defend our way of life.

In our nation's infancy Thomas Jefferson wrote "Every man is under the natural duty of contributing to the necessities of the society ... a nation that rests on the will of the people must also depend on individuals to support its institutions ... Persons qualified for public office should feel some obligation to make that contribution." For 36 years on the state level and more especially here in Quincy in the nearly 14 years since that day of infamy, I have been honored to hold a position of public trust. It has always been my commitment to honor that trust by honestly and arduously advocating for the best interests of those I have represented. My mantra has always been to preserve and protect the integrity of each and every neighborhood. Every ordinance I wrote, every vote I cast, every fight I took on from the very first in my initial term, keeping the Wollaston Fire Station open, was based on that premise. I have humbly acknowledged that the cause is always so much bigger than the advocate; that the needs and interests of every person are equally important and that the well-being of the residents is the sole end of good government. With humanity comes failings and I only hope that the positive outcomes have outweighed these and that somewhere along the way I've left things a little better than I found them. As Nelson Mandella once observed, "What counts in life is not the mere fact that we have lived. It is what differ-city safe and strong."

One Quincy resident who uses Nextdoor already is Helen Shiner. Shiner, the manager of Jack Conway Realtor's Quincy office, is the lead responsible for Nextdoor in the Beechwood neighborhood of Quincy.

More than 80 residents in the Beechwood neighborhood had signed up for Nextdoor before the partnership was announced. Those residents, Shiner said, use the site to discuss neighborhood topics. Nextdoor was especially handy as residents coped with this winter's severe snowfall.

"I grew up in Quincy in a time when everyone knew their neighbors; you knew who lived two streets over or two houses up. That's changed over the years. Nextdoor gives us that opportunity to create a sense of neighborhood and community again in the areas where people are sometimes too busy to get to know each other," Shiner said.

"In Beechwood we've had some great successes. We share a lot of information – missing dogs, lost dogs, coyote sightings. It was especially helpful during the recent blizzards. We had neighbors that were asking for help with shoveling or problems with ice dams. It's really helped to create a sense of community and people are starting to get to know each other a little bit better and it's an opportunity for them to do it with their varying schedules."

flooded," Marathas said.

The Quincy Fire Department was notified of the break and firefighters were able to cut off water service to prevent further flooding, Marathas said.

After the water was shut off, O'Neil, Chadbourne and Steve Montgomery spent the next several hours repairing the pipe and then removing water from the basement. Water and elevator service were restored before residents woke up, according to Marathas.

"They worked through the night so tenants would have water when they woke up. They pumped the entire building out," Marathas said. "The damage could have been horrific."

Center Project Starts This Week

Initial site work was set to start yesterday (Wednesday).

"Site work is commencing this week, on April 1," Warwick said. "Machines will be out there this week."

The initial site work includes removal of soil from the lot and preparations for new steel and concrete foundations.

"There are some environmental soils we're removing, including snow," Warwick said. "We'll be shoring up the perimeter with sheet metal and excavating for the foundation."

The first phase of construction also includes utility work and the demolition of the building at 1446 Hancock Street. During the same time frame, the developers will finalize plans for a building permit.

The site work will continue for several months. The wooden frames for the six-story buildings will then be installed this summer, according to Warwick.

The project remains on pace for completion next year.

Warwick said the building facing Hancock Street, which includes 64 units, will be completed by next April. The larger, L-shaped building with 105 units on the corner of Cottage Avenue and Chestnut Street would be completed within three months of the first building.

The ground levels of each building will be outfitted for retail use with the residential units above.

Those units will range in size from studio to two bedrooms, and rents will be comparable with others in Quincy Center and less than similar luxury apartments in Downtown Boston or Cambridge.

The studio units will each be approximately 520 square feet. One-bedroom units will range in size from 680 to 750 square feet; one-bedroom units that include a den will top out at 790 square feet. Two-bedroom units will average 1,000 square feet. The largest units in the building, with two bedrooms and a den, will have 1,100 square feet of space.

Each apartment will have hardwood floors with carpeting in the bedrooms. The kitchens will have quartz countertops, stainless steel appliances, and European cabinets.

In addition to the two buildings, West of Chestnut will include a new public road known as Chestnut Way running across the site. Tenants will have access to two facilities next to Chestnut Way, a fitness center and club area, the latter of which includes a media center, game room, a chef's kitchen and networking space.

A private courtyard with a dog washing station, play lawn, fire pit, and outdoor kitchen will also be available to those who live on site.

VA Clinic Opens At Manet Center

turbing' that Quincy could have lost the clinic when the hospital closed. The new clinic in North Quincy, he added, is more convenient and accessible for the veterans who will use it.

"This is beautiful. It worked out very well. The access and everything else – you open the door and you're right in the clinic. You don't have to take the elevator or anything else. No matter what your handicap is you can come in through here without a problem," Bradley said after the ribbon cutting.

"If you're taking a train, the train is right up the street. The buses come right by here. So it's ideal in that respect. But there is plenty of parking and they have a set up where you park down at the Stop & Shop and they have a shuttle that will bring you up here."

George Nicholson, the city's current veterans services director, noted initial plans had the new clinic in the same building as a methadone clinic on Hancock Street; he said he couldn't be happier it was moved to the Manet facility instead.

"To know we were going to have our older veterans going through a methadone clinic to get VA care was just incomprehensible to me. Compare that potential with this reality: It's night and day. It's a dream come true. That's the only way to describe it," Nicholson said.

"They've got a great modern, comfortable facility. The staff is well known and their efficiency and their proficiency have always spoken for itself. I couldn't be happier."

Merrymount Association Meets April 7

The Merrymount Association annual meeting will be held Tuesday, April 7 at 6:30 p.m. at the lower hall at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, 227 Sea St.

The meeting will recap the 2014 season, look ahead to 2015, and provide an opportunity for local and state officials to discuss issues of concern.

CPR Certification Course

Health Ed of New England will hold a CPR certification course for healthcare providers, from 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, April 7, at Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

The cost is $45 per person. This course requires pre-registration by Monday, April 6. For more information, call 781-582-1440 or 800-434-6000, or visit www.healthednewengland.com.

Teen Mothers Fundraiser May 8

Quincy Teen Mothers Program will host its 24th annual fundraiser and "Welcome Spring Game Night" Friday, May 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. at The Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry Street, Quincy.

Special honorees will be June Joyce and friends.

The evening will feature questionary game, prizes, and raffles as well as a light dinner.

Tickets are $25 per person, $30 at the door. A table of eight can be purchased and reserved in advance for $200. RSVP by April 27 to Noreen O'Connell, 617-984-8704 or Kathy McCluskey, 617-471-7695.

CPA Projects Include Renovated Fields, Cricket Patch

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's Community Preservation Committee will review more than a dozen applications over the next few months as it awards funds for recreation, open space, and historic preservation projects.

The committee has $1.9 million in funds to award this year, according to Lisa Aimola, the city's director of community preservation. City departments and community groups have submitted applications for 14 projects worth more than $2.5 million. The Community Preservation Committee will vet the projects before sending them to the City Council for approval in June.

The Quincy Park Department applied for five recreation projects that would cost a combined $595,000.

The majority of that – $360,000 – would be for installation of lights at Bishop Playground in Montclair, the Fenno Street Courts within Merrymount Park, Russell Park in Faxon Field, and Welcome Young Playground on Sagamore Street in North Quincy.

The department also sought $60,000 to renovate the field on Cleverly Court in Quincy Point and $75,000 to renovate Therrien Soccer Field on Quarry Street. Both projects would involve the installation of new irrigation systems and sod, according to Park Department Executive Director Chris Cassani.

Another application by the department seeks $50,000 for constructing a new cricket pitch at General Palmer Field in Germantown. Boston and Wrentham are the only two communities in the state with fields dedicated to cricket, a ball-and-bat game that originated in England and spread throughout the British Empire; the sport is popular in the West Indies, South Asia and Australia among other places.

"Cricket is pretty popular in Quincy," Cassani explained. "There is a huge amount of activity at Joy Hanlon Field and Mound Street Beach."

The Park Department plans to move cricket away from those fields in Quincy Point to Germantown because long term plans for Mound Street Beach would not have enough space for the pitch there. General Palmer Field, Cassani noted, is not used by any youth sports leagues.

Most of the money in the $50,000 request would be for fencing around the pitch; a new area for bowling would need to be constructed as well.

Additionally, the Park Department sought $50,000 for the construction of a new loop track located at Faxon Park. The Quincy Parks Conservancy has also pledged $20,000 for the same project. The combined $70,000, Cassani said, is enough to construct a three-fourths of a mile loop track in the park.

There are three applicants for open space projects. The city is seeking funds to purchase two acres of open land being sold by the Rice Eventide Nursing Home on Adams Street. Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the land could cost between $1 and $1.6 million to acquire. The city wants to purchase the land to prevent commercial development on site.

Private groups submitted the other two open space requests. The Friends of Butler's Pond are seeking $55,000 for an engineering study and landscaping and the Wollaston Garden Club applied for $7,709 to remove Japanese knotweed on Newport Avenue.

There are six proposals for historic reservation projects the Community Preservation Committee will consider.

The city is seeking $400,000 for restoration of the Quincy Point and Wollaston fire stations. The Department of Public works applied for $25,000 to preserve Water, Sewer, and Drain Department records and $10,000 for the preservation of the city atlas.

The Planning Department, in partnership with the Cemetery Department, applied for $310,000 for the second phase of restoration and conservation at the Hancock Cemetery.

Two private groups are seeking funds as well. The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum applied for $15,000 for an archeological field study of the Lyons Turning Mill and a group aiming to preserve the Souther Tide Mill is asking for $100,000 for structural improvements to the mill on Southern Artery.

Quincy's voters adopted the state's Community Preservation Act by referendum in 2008. The CPA fund is financed through a one percent surcharge on property taxes. The first $100,000 in assessed value for each residential property is exempt from the surcharge, as are residential properties owned by some seniors and those who qualify for low-income housing.

The state also matches a portion of CPA funds in each community that has adopted the act.

Voters in the 2013 municipal election approved the adoption of amendments made to the CPA. Under that amendment, additional city revenue sources – such as hotel/motel tax receipts – can be included in the CPA fund and made eligible for matching money from the state.

Sandy Verhault Seeks Ward 3 Seat

Sandy Verhault of 183 Highland Ave. announces she is running for Ward 3 city councillor.

The seat will be open this fall because incumbent councillor Kevin Coughlin has decided he will not seek re-election to an eighth term.

Verhault, a lifelong Quincy resident, has been very active in Quincy for many years. She is a member of the Lions Club of Quincy, helped found and organize the North Quincy High School hockey and baseball Halls of Fame; and served as a Board member for the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

She also served as a representative from Ward 3 on the Park and Recreation Board for seven years; board member and president of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women; president of the Board for Quincy Youth Baseball and president of the Board for Quincy Youth Hockey.

SANDY VERHAULT

Other contributions to the community include serving as commissioner of Quincy Youth Girls Softball; vice president of Quincy's Citywide Parents Organization; vice president of Atlantic Middle School PTO; and president of Montclair Elementary School PTO.

If elected Ward 3 councillor, Verhault said she would work diligently to protect the needs of the citizens of Quincy while balancing the need for more tax revenue with numerous building projects, including the downtown redevelopment.

Verhault will kick-off her campaign at a fundraiser at the Presidents Golf Course on Friday, April 17th from 7 to 9 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door. Donations begin at $25 per person.

For advance tickets, contact Sandy Verhault at verhaultsandy@gmail.com.

Coughlin's Open Letter To Ward 3

ence we have made to the lives of others that will determine the significance of the life we lead."

And so they say that for everything there is a beginning, a middle and an end. For me, for now, it is time to turn the page and begin a new chapter. What that holds, only God knows but I remain open to the possibilities. Public service has defined nearly two thirds of my life and what has always motivated me is the chance to solve problems and produce results for those who have entrusted me to serve them. For this opportunity I will be forever grateful, but I have decided that it is time to pass this baton and not seek re-election. As Jefferson concluded, "It will remain to those now coming on the stage of public affairs to perfect what has well begun by those going off it." I hope that there will be several caring and competent citizens who will seek to serve. To all who have partnered with me, supported me or challenged me to be better, to those I have had the honor to represent and to the colleagues I have had the good fortune to serve with, thank you for the gift of public service.

Sincerely,
Kevin F. Coughlin
Ward Three Councillor

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. Top Provider Of Online Homebuyer Education

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. (NWSOMA) was honored as an "outstanding community partner" by MassHousing recently at the agency's 2015 Partnership Awards.

The MassHousing Outstanding Community Partner Award recognized NeighborWorks Southern Mass. for being the number one provider of online homebuyer education in the state of Massachusetts. Since 2011, the non-profit organization has educated nearly 2,000 potential first-time homebuyers.

The award also honored the organization's in-person education, down payment assistance and foreclosure prevention counseling programs, as well as its construction of new homes for people in need.

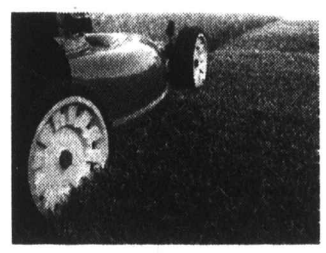
Sharpening Mower Blades



How do I sharpen the blades on my lawnmower? -- Cara, via email

Dull mower blades are pretty rough on your lawn, tearing grass rather than cutting it, which can turn the tips brown, weaken the grass and promote the growth of fungus.

Sharpening mower blades is something not everyone does routinely, but you should commit to sharpening them at the beginning and end of the mowing season.

Do you need to sharpen them mid-season? Professional landscapers sharpen or change their mower blades every 12-15 hours of mowing time (yes, that's every day or two), so it would depend on the size of your yard and length of the growing season.

Here's how to change a blade:

1. Lay down a plastic sheet or dropcloth to prevent oil drips and grass cuttings from staining the work area.

2. Disconnect the spark plug from the starter wire, remove the spark plug itself, and make sure the fuel cap is tightly closed.

3. Turn the mower on its side. Using a socket wrench, unscrew the center nut that secures the blade to the mower deck and any other connecting bolts or nuts. If the blade keeps turning as you try to loosen the nut, wedge a piece of wood between a blade and the deck. Remove the blade and brush off any dried grass clippings.

4. To sharpen the blade, check the angle of the existing edge. You'll want to sharpen in the same direction as that angle. Run a metal file down the blade at about a 45 degree angle. Or, use a drill with a blade-sharpener attachment.

5. Once sharpened, check the blade's balance by hanging it from a nail (or buy a blade balancer at the hardware store). If one end of the blade tilts down much farther than the other, file away more metal on that side until the blade stays horizontal.

6. Reattach the blade to the mower, making sure the blades angle downward. Tighten as much as possible, bracing the blade with the block of wood.

7. Attach the spark plug and wire, and turn the mower upright.

HOME TIP: Worried that you'll forget which way to reattach a lawnmower blade? Snap a picture of the underside with your smartphone before starting the task.

Send your home tips and questions to ask@thisisahammer.com.

City Marking Community Development Week April 6-10

Planning Department To Highlight Inclusion, Community Programs, Solar Initiative

The City of Quincy will join communities across the country April 6 - 10 in celebrating National Community Development Week. This year marks 40 years of investment of the Community Development Block Grant in Quincy. Since 1975, the city has received over $85,000,000 from the CDBG program.

The annual weeklong celebration provides the opportunity for communities to showcase block-grant-funded projects and programs, and to educate residents, businesses, and government officials about the block grant programs provided by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which are administered by Quincy PCD. These block grants provide the city with resources to address a wide range of unique community development needs.

This year's calendar includes women's, senior and youth programming at Germantown Neighborhood Center/South Shore YMCA; Houghs Neck Community Center; North Quincy Community Center; and the Quincy Council on Aging (Kennedy Center). Additionally, a public forum will be held for "Solarize Quincy" at Clifford Marshall School.

Three special events have been planned which the public can register for in advance on EventBrite. These events include a capacity-building workshop focused on inclusion; a student performance and ribbon cutting at the new Germantown Neighborhood Center/South Shore YMCA Music Clubhouse; and a "Youth Giving Celebration" and ice cream social at the Houghs Neck Community Center.

• "Opportunity Quincy Focus on Inclusion: Enhancing Programs & Services for Persons of All Abilities" will be held on Wednesday, April 8th from 9:30 – 11:30 a.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library at 40 Washington St. in Quincy. This capacity building event for service providers will be based on a presentation of the white paper from UMass Boston's Institute for Community Inclusion" entitled 'Indicators of Inclusive Service and Volunteer Organizations.' Following the presentation, a local panel will discuss local initiatives of best practices on inclusion. The panel includes Joe Buizon, Employment Services Specialist, Mass Commission for the Blind; Eric Clark, Assistant Head of School at the Woodward School for Girls; and Lisa Drennan, Association Director of Inclusion for the YMCA. For more information and to register, go to: http://oppquincyinclusion.eventbrite.com.

• "Germantown Legends: Music Studio Ribbon Cutting" will be held on Thursday, April 9th from 3 to 5:30 p.m. at the Germantown Neighborhood Center/South Shore YMCA at 366 Palmer St. The event will kick off with a student performances followed by a greetings from the City and invited dignitaries, a ceremonial ribbon cutting, additional performances by the students. As this is the official highlight event for the week, the annual Community Development Week Awards Presentation will also take place at this event. Youth will be preforming Motown music, inspired by the Jackson 5, The Temptations, and The Marvelettes. For more information and to register, go to: http://GermantownLegends.eventbrite.com.

• The "Youth Giving Celebration & Ice Cream Social" will be held on Friday, 10th from 3:30 – 5:30 p.m at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St. Youth of all ages and their families are invited to celebrate fundraising and volunteering. A special station will be set up for youth to report on their savings who created a "giving bank" during the Martin Luther King Day of Service held at the center this past January. Quincy Credit Union, Father Bill's & Main Spring, and Boston Chinatown Neighborhood Center will join to empower youth with knowledge about their organizations and will be giving away prizes. For more information and to register, go to: http://hnccyouthcelebration.eventbrite.com.

Additionally, several events will be hosted at community centers throughout the city during the week.

• On Monday, April 6, senior line dancing will be offered at the Kennedy Center (440 East Squantum St) at 10 a.m, and a senior luncheon and activities will be held at the Houghs Neck Community Center at 11:30 a.m.

• On Tuesday, April 7, senior ballroom dance will be offered at the Kennedy Center at 10 a.m. A womans group will meet at the Germantown Neighborhood Center from 5-7:30 p.m, and the Solarize Quincy program will offer a "Meet the Installer" forum at 7 p.m. at the Clifford Marshall School, 200 Moody Street Ext.

• On Wednesday, April 8, a senior luncheon and activities will be held at the North Quincy Community Center.

• On Thursday, April 9, the popular "Cooking Cuties" program for children aged 3-5 years old (with an adult), will be offered at the Houghs Neck Community Center at 9 a.m, and a multicultural senior luncheon will be held at the North Quincy Community Center at 11:30 a.m.

• On Friday, April 10, the Quincy Council on Aging will be hosting "Free Movie Friday" with a film at 12:30 p.m. at the Kennedy Center.

All of the Community Development Week events are free and open to the public. Local service providers are encouraged to attend. For more information about CD Week, contact Sean Glennon, Community Development Director, at 617-376-1167 or sglennon@quincyma.gov.

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Secretary Of The Interior

I've just moved into a 1920's bungalow and my living room has a nine-foot wide fireplace with an unusual elliptical opening and an extra-large stained mantel with decorative brackets. The natural bricks are a rusty brown color. I really like the fireplace but my sister says I should update it with new stone, etc. Your thoughts? Jimmy

BARBARA GRACEFFA

As a decorator, I listen carefully to a homeowner's comments and concerns before I give advice and you are telling me you really like it. Family members, friends, (and decorators!), can give you suggestions for home décor ideas, so listen with an open mind – especially if these suggestions might seem out of the box or out of your comfort zone. But, in the end, what do you want?

If you want to honor the style of the home and the bricks, hearth, and mantel are in good condition, I suggest you keep it as is. Craftsmanship and details like those in your fireplace are seldom found in today's homes. Brighten up the wall area with paint (or period wallpaper) and add colorful accessories to the mantel and the floor area. If your style is more contemporary or eclectic, either paint the bricks to match the wall color or invest in a remodeling project and pick out some stacked stone or new tiles to cover the bricks.

What type of window treatment should I use for the window over my bathtub? Tom

Answer: Window treatments in the bathroom should provide not only privacy but be able to withstand the humidity and spray of the shower. However, there are lots of options for that ubiquitous window over the tub: vinyl mini blinds, roll-up shades, very full lace curtains or light-weight fabric roman shades that will dry out quickly, louvered shutters, self-adhesive vinyl sheets that you cut and adhere to the glass, or even frosted spray paint for the glass (ventilate well at installation time, if you choose this option).

Do you have a decorating problem needing a professional solution? Send your questions to Secretary of the Interior at barbara@sec-interior.com.

Barbara Graceffa is president and CEO of Secretary of the Interior, an interior decorating company in Quincy. To learn more about Barbara's services or to see her portfolio, visit www.sec-interior.com.

A Job Well Done

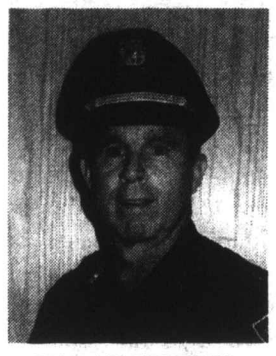
By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, March 15, 2015, at approximately 3:20 p.m., Officer James Cassidy conducted a traffic stop of a vehicle on Burgin Parkway after witnessing the driver travel from the far right lane, across the middle lane and into the far left lane without signaling. This caused two motor vehicles to come to an abrupt stop to avoid an accident.

The Officer requested license and registration from the male driver, who then provided the Officer with a license from Puerto Rico and a Massachusetts ID Card issued by the Registry of Motor Vehicles. Officer Cassidy attempted to check on the validity of the driver's license but CJIS/WEB computer could not come up with a status. According to the RMV, the status of the Massachusetts ID was revoked due to license fraud. The driver stated that he has been in the United States for over a year and has established residency with public housing in Quincy. Officer Cassidy advised the driver that he was unable to determine the status of his license from Puerto Rico and since he admitted that he is living in Massachusetts, he was required to obtain a Massachusetts driver's license. The driver stated that he understood and would obtain a Massachusetts Driver's License. The driver was issued a verbal warning for marked lanes and released.

On Thursday, March 19, 2015, Officer Cassidy pursued this matter by forwarding the driver's information to the Massachusetts State Police Commonwealth Fusion Center, requesting aliases checks on the driver using Facial Recognition Software.

On March 20th, the Officer received confirmation that the driver had two aliases that were flagged in the system by Trooper Johnson of the State Police Compliance Unit. The first match returned the same image with a different name and date of birth. The second match returned the same image with yet another name and different date of birth. The first match showed a revoked license in 2011 and the second match a revoked license in 2014. Officer Cassidy followed up with the original license check from Puerto Rico, which showed that his license was "not on file".



LT. DAN MINTON

Based on the above information, the Officer had reason to believe that the driver was in possession of a false registry document in addition to a false Puerto Rican license. After receiving the above information, it was apparent that the true identity of the operator was unknown.

Later that evening, at approximately 10:35 p.m., Officer Cassidy spotted the driver traveling north on Burgin Parkway and pulled him over. The driver told the Officer that he hadn't obtained a Massachusetts License yet and produced the same alleged license from Puerto Rico and the same revoked Massachusetts ID Card. Officer Cassidy informed the driver that he was under arrest for "Operating a Motor Vehicle without a License and Possession of a False RMV Document (2 counts)." The driver, a 40 year old possible Quincy resident, was transported to the station for booking.

During the booking process, the driver's fingerprints were taken and submitted to the FBI, who returned a message that the individual has no prior arrests. An NCIC check with the above name revealed that a person with the same name was considered an "involuntary missing person" from Puerto Rico. Attempts to contact Puerto Rico State Police were unsuccessful. Nice Work!

Quincy Police Adult Self Defense Program: will be offered Monday and Tuesday, April 27 and 28th, a 2 night course, from 6:00 p.m. to approximately 8:30 p.m. at the Eastern Nazarene College gym on Wendell Avenue. This free program is open to females aged 18 and up, 16 if with a parent/guardian. Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program. There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with. The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker." Bring a friend! It's more fun!

To sign up or get more information, contact Lieutenant Dan Minton at 617 745 5719.

Sacred Heart 7th Grade Repeat Basketball Champs

Just like the 2003-2004 New England Patriots, the 7th Grade Sacred Heart travel basketball team has repeated as champions of the South Shore.

They capped off a thrilling season by beating a talented Scituate team in the finals, 49-35. This team finished with a record of 20-1. The team is coached by Kyle Costa, a future member of North Quincy High's Basketball Hall of Fame and a 1,000-point scorer.

"What a great group of talented young men" Costa said. "Back-to-back champions in a 13-town league is no easy task. Once you win, everybody wants to beat you and knock you off the mountain. But with the talent, work ethic, and determination on this team, we were able to handle the other team's best efforts against us."

The team is very deep and has a perfect blend of speed, quickness, and mental toughness. Coach Costa emphasizes defense and team basketball, and has been coaching this team since the 4th grade.

"I wish all these kids could stay together as they venture off and play high school basketball. It could be a state championship team with how much chemistry these kids have built together. Everyone is in sync with each other on the court and knows where the other one is going to be.

"The jury's out on where they're going to high school, but I am not done trying to persuade them to stick together in Quincy yet. One thing is for sure, these kids will be ready for the next level and the sky's the limit from a talent perspective."

Most of the team plays basketball year-round and will be working hard all off season to three-peat next year. In addition to being champions of the South Shore league, the 7th grade team recently won the North Quincy March Madness Tournament. They beat every team they played, with competition from the greater Boston area and the State of New York.

Players on the travel team are Brendan Donovan, Franco Calabro, Davey Ryan, Franck Yhombi. Eoin Gormley, Declan O'Sullivan, Brendan Kilcommons, Landon Pierron, Johnny Cristiani, Jordan Feng and Mikey Levine.

The team is coached by Kyle Costa, Frank Calabro and John Cristiani.

QUINCY CATHOLIC ACADEMY recently won the girls 3/4 grade league championship for the North Quincy Sacred Heart basketball league. After trailing 12-0 to the Bernazzani Bears in the finals, the QCA Wolves fought back for a 31-26 victory. Shown here (front) Emma Dahl. A SPRING FUNDRAISER Party to benefit the Quincy-based U.S. hydroplane team will be held April 18 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Nickerson Post in Squantum.

Summer-Themed Party April 18 To Benefit Quincy's U.S A-Team

The U.S. A-Team will hold its Spring Fundraiser Party on April 18th from 6-10 p.m. at Nickerson Post in Squantum.

There will be music, food, and dancing along with a race boat display and videos of the team's past racing in Europe. Hawaiian shirts and summer dress are highly encouraged.

The U.S. A-Team, which is based in Quincy but involves members from across the country, will this year represent the United States at The World Hydroplane Championship in Nottingham England on Aug. 30th.

Proceeds raised will go toward shipping the team's equipment to the race venue this summer. Suggested donation is $20 and you can pay at the door.

The team will once again be the only United States representation at this international event. They have enjoyed past success racing in Europe bringing home 2 Bronze Medals in 4 years. The team has proudly flown the stars and stripes at World Championship events in Sweden, Germany, Estonia, and Italy.

"We have had overwhelming support from the local community over the past few seasons and we are looking forward to another great turnout at the party" said Team Administrator Rachel Warnock from Quincy. "It's been a tough winter and everyone has been cooped up. Hopefully people will come out to support the team and have a good time."

Mike Finn Scores Four But NQ Falls Short, 7-6

By BILL GRIFFIN

North Quincy deserved better.

The Red Raiders held Cardinal Spellman scoreless in three of four periods in regulation. Mike Finn lit up the offensive end with four goals and an assist. Cornelius Koch led a defense which was steady in its own end and also rushed the ball for good offensive opportunities. Joey England and Kevin Finn were solid in goal.

The problems were in the second period and in the overtime. Spellman scored six goals in just over eight minutes in the second period and Ralph Grillone clicked on a shot to the top corner with just over three minutes left in overtime to lead the Cardinals to a 7-6 victory over North in the lacrosse season opener for both teams at Veterans Stadium Friday afternoon.

"I was proud of their effort. I thought we played well for long stretches of the match," said first-year coach Jim Finn. "I thought our defense cleared out well in front of our goal, and we created a lot of chances. Spellman just made the play in overtime."

A good part of the story for North this year is the Brothers Finn. Jim, a former Quincy High and Lasell College standout, is the coach. Mike is a terrific forward who will play lacrosse at St. Joseph's in Maine next year. Kevin is a promising keeper. One coach, two important players, three brothers. The lacrosse season should include several interesting family discussions.

Mike Finn was excellent in the opener. He created enough chances to score eight goals. He clanged one off the post, sent several just high or wide, and was frustrated by the goal-keeping of Spellman's Matt Galligan who made 20 saves, including a beauty on a hard grounder from Finn just before the winner in OT.

Finn also drew the Spellman defense and delivered a fistful of passes to his teammates which just missed connecting for goals.

"Mike has a good touch around the net, and he's able to draw the defense which opens up passing opportunities," said Jim Finn.

Koch, Ryan Moreschi, and Fred Barsamian were strong on defense. They kept traffic clear in front of North's two keepers and cleared the ball effectively from the scoring zone. Koch, in particular, was able to turn defense into offense with a series of rushes through the middle of the field.

"I think what I liked best was the way we communicated on defense and cleared the ball out of the defensive zone. We did a good job helping each other on defense," said Finn.

England played keeper in the first half. Kevin Finn played the second half. England was at his best under heavy Spellman pressure in the second period when he kept North within range

Phelan's 8 Goals Power Quincy Past Hull, 13-12

By TREVOR WENNERS

Senior captain and attack Kerry Phelan scored eight goals including the game winning goal with 17 seconds left for the Quincy High School girls lacrosse team in a 13-12 victory over visiting Hull on Monday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

"I think my team played well very," said Phelan. "We played as a unit, we all worked together. Everyone contributed goals and great defensive steals and a lot of different people stepped up taking the draw which was great."

The Presidents (1-1) went up 1-0 2:20 into the game after a goal by junior midfielder Gabriela Jerahian. Phelan tallied the next four Quincy goals.

"Kerry is one of my senior captains, she is a veteran player," said Presidents head coach Alisa Arakelian. "She is a great leader. I rely on her a lot to sort of quarterback the offense. She did a spectacular job tonight and she was very smart about her shot placement."

A goal by senior captain and attack Noreen Palbutong with 7:08 left in the first half put the Presidents' up 6-1. Quincy took a 6-5 lead into halftime.

"I want my team to do the best that we can," said Phelan who tallied four goals in each half. "We lost a lot of players last year but I don't want it to stop us at all. We're going to step up to the plate and do the best that we can and win some games."

The Pirates tied the game at 6-6, 24 seconds into the second half but Jerahian and sophomore midfielder Riley McLaughlin each registered a goal to put the Presidents up 8-6.

"Jerahian is doing great on our transition (game)," said Phelan. "(Sophomore midfielder) Maeve (Hernon and) Riley, they're all doing great on defense, bringing the ball up (and) getting it up to (our) offense, they're stepping up to the plate big time and helping the whole team."

With the game sitting at 8-8, senior captain and attack Nicole Lee scored with 14:08 remaining to put the Presidents up 9-8. Phelan tallied the last four goals for the Presidents including her SENIOR GAVIN O'HARE keeps possession for Quincy as he looks for a scoring opportunity against Hull. The Presidents defeated the Pirates 8-6 Monday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium for its first win of the season.

Ross (4 Goals) Leads Presidents Over Pirates

By TREVOR WENNERS

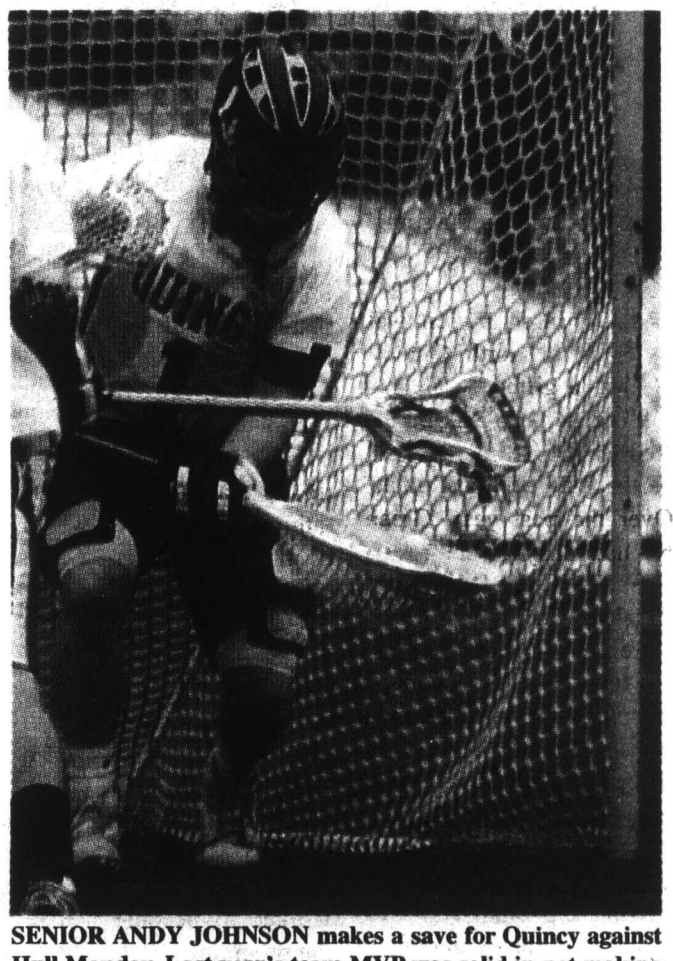
Senior Steve Ross scored three of his four goals in the first half for the Quincy High School boys lacrosse team in an 8-6 victory over visiting Hull on Monday afternoon at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

"He's our best dodging threat, he is our best shooter so we rely on him a lot," said Presidents head coach Martin Bowes.

Quincy (1-1) took a 3-0 lead into the second quarter behind three first quarter goals from Ross. Senior Gavin O'Hare picked up an assist on the first goal.

"I thought it was a really good team effort," said Ross. "We put a lot of work in (during) practice as a team these last two weeks to prepare for this game and I think it really paid off today."

Anthony Marcella scored 1:38 into the second quarter to put the Pirates on the scoreboard. Ian MacDonald scored with 4:37 remaining in the half to bring the Pirates to within one, 3-2.



SENIOR ANDY JOHNSON makes a save for Quincy against Hull Monday. Last year's team MVP was solid in net making some 30 saves in the Presidents' 8-6 win over the Pirates.

The Presidents took the 3-2 lead into halftime.

"This is absolutely huge," said Ross of the importance of getting their first win early in the season. "We lost to this team like three years in a row so this is our first win against them and it just feels really good. It's a big momentum builder."

With 4:43 left in the third quarter, Ross extended the Presidents lead to 4-2. Senior Ryan Harty scored a man-up goal with 53 seconds left in third assisted by junior Jake Hallisey to give the Presidents a 5-2 advantage.

"I think we wanted to attack offensively (quickly), get more of a cushion," said Ross. "And then try to slow it down, give the defense a rest and slow the pace of the game down in general and keep the lead we had."

O'Hare scored 1:43 into the fourth quarter to extend the Quincy lead to 6-2.

MacDonald scored for the Pirates with 6:16 remaining to trim the Quincy lead to 6-3. Hallisey scored 54 seconds later for the Presidents.

NORTH QUINCY'S Anthony Green (back row, second from left) and his Tilton Academy basketball team went 31-5 this past season and posted a first-ever undefeated record in the New England Prep School Council League. Anthony Green 'Growing' Into Div. 1 Hoop Player

By BILL GRIFFIN

Anthony Green has managed to keep himself somewhat busy over the past year.

Last March, Green was a senior at North Quincy. He was a gifted, promising 6'9" center who had led the Red Raiders to two straight berths in the sectional finals. Over the past year, Green has had many adventures.

• He attended Tilton Academy in New Hampshire. He enjoyed the rush of big-time Division 1 college recruiting. Everyone wanted to talk to him. Schools as distant as Utah State were interested. DePaul, Purdue, Fairfield, UNH and several others spoke with him. This was the big time. This was heady stuff for a young man who hadn't started for North until midway through junior year.

Before he made his decision, he enjoyed the dance. He enjoyed the attention. He enjoyed listening to schools, who made the NCAA tourney every year, asking him to play basketball for their teams. Who wouldn't enjoy it?

"I would go into the gym in the morning at my school, and there would be 15 coaches who wanted to talk to me. It was great," said Green, who will attend Northeastern in the fall.

• He played on a Tilton team that advanced to the second round of the nationals. Tilton went 31-5, posted a first-ever undefeated record in the New England Prep School Council League, won its league championship tourney, and took first place in an international event in London. He played against teams from Connecticut and Rhode Island and New Jersey and Kansas and England and France. He traveled a long road from the gym on Hunt Street.

"Tilton was a great experience," said Green. "The competition made me a better player. I could work on my game or do weight training all year. I feel so much better prepared for the next level that I would have if I had gone directly from high school to college ball."

• He played three games in the National Prep Invitational Tournament which evaluates players and teams for their ability to compete on the national level. In three games, Green averaged 16 points and 10 rebounds.

"Anthony did well with us," said assistant coach Britney Papile. "First of all, he is top-flight young man. He was always on time, did whatever we asked and worked to become part of the program.

"It's a big adjustment from high school. We have long road trips. He's playing with and against players who will go to top Division 1 schools. As he developed, he really improved."

• He had a chance to experience a good bit of the excitement which surrounds Northeastern basketball. The Huskies made the NCAAs for the first time in 24 years this season. It is a fine time on Huntington Avenue. From the moment Green committed to the Huskies, coach Bill Coen and his staff made Green feel a part of his program. They saw him play twice. Green went to a pair of Northeastern games. He had a chance to experience a packed college gym and the roar of the crowd. He loved it.

"The coaches from Northeastern have been nothing but great to me," said Green. "That's what I like most about my selection. Seeing them play twice was great. It made me feel like I was part of something."

• He is bigger and better. He has grown, worked the weights and is 6'10" and 265 pounds. He is a man ready to play a man's game. He is a better one-on-one defender, his shooting range has increased and he is a more aggressive rebounder. He had no choice. He had to get better. The competition was bigger, faster, tougher. He learned from it.

"In our last five or six games, Anthony really picked it up," said Papile. "He was dunking the ball, his drop-step was right-on, and he getting open and asking for passes into the post. He's a good shooter. The big thing for him is to make sure he has enough arc under the ball."

Green could always block shots. In his senior year at North, he learned to block the shot and also control the tap to keep possession for his team. Now he not only can protect the rim, he can handle himself in an individual battle against a player of the same size. He has grown up as a basketball player.

"The big transition is the pace of the game. It just goes so much faster than in high school. You have less time to set up," said Green. "Plus everyone is bigger. Everyone, even the guards, is 6'2" or over. The play under the basket is much more physical. It makes you better."

• He has traveled and seen different people in different places. This is a good thing for a young man. His trip to London was a memorable one.

"At first it was just basketball," he said. "We landed, went to sleep and played a game four hours later. The first four days was just basketball. Then we had a day to walk around London and enjoy the city. It was great.

"I think it was a shock for people when they saw a group of tall Americans but it's possible," said Sommers. "I'm fortunate this year. I have Saxon (Bresnahan) for an ace, and I have a couple of underclassmen I'd feel comfortable using if the games started to pile up."

There are challenges, but also opportunities to practicing indoors. The main issue is sharing gym time with the other spring sports. The teams do have cages and mounds for hitting and pitching. They can work on infield drills and play long toss. However, there are limitations.

"We share the gym with the volleyball team, so it does limit your outfield work," smiled Sommers.

It is important to use each minute of practice wisely.

"We have a two-hour block for the varsity and sub-varsity," said Edgerly. "My biggest challenge is to use practice time creatively. I want to give all the players a chance to get ready, but at the same time get my starting infield enough repetitions for the beginning of the season.

"One good thing about practicing indoors is it helps form closer bonds and connections both between player and coach and between teammates. We're in this together."

However, there is no substitute for outdoor work. The baseball and softball teams are sharing Veterans Stadium with the lacrosse teams. North's first outdoor practice was canceled by snow (sound familiar?), but Edgerly should be able to get his team out several times before the first game.

"The big thing is fly balls," said Edgerly. "The most common mistake you see in early games is an outfielder having trouble reading and getting a jump on a fly ball. That's because of not enough practice time outdoors."

Sommers was scheduled to get his first outdoor time last weekend at the stadium. It will be a huge help.

"There's enough room, so that we'll probably be able to set up a softball field, " said Sommers. "In the gym, we have to use a softer ball than a regulation softball. It comes off the bat differently and has a quicker bounce. Outside we can use a regulation ball.

"We can do hitting and pitching drills inside, but there's no substitute for stepping into the batter's box and facing live pitching."

"There's a natural feel for the game that you just can't duplicate indoors. I can't wait to get outside," said Edgerly.

Mike Finn Scores Four But NQ Falls Short, 7-6

with several fine saves. Finn showed good poise for his varsity debut, especially in the fourth period when he was quick and sure preserving the 6-6 tie until overtime.

"It was good to see that we have two good goalies," said Jim Finn. "Joey saw a lot more rubber than Kevin, and he did a great job keeping us close. Kevin looked good in his first varsity start."

North was at its best in the first period. Finn scored on a wrap-around play from behind the net and set up sophomore Ryan Adduci with a pinpoint centering pass for a 2-0 North lead. The Red Raiders completely controlled the territorial battle and the score easily could have been 6-0 after the first.

Finn, Adduci, Corey Hernandez, Tom Koch, Chris Gorman, Austin Lee, Jacob Peterson and Evan Aimola kept steady pressure on the Spellman end, but Galligan made seven saves in the period and kept the Red Raiders from putting away the match with an early blitz.

"We ran into the hot goaltender. We had a big edge in the first period, but their keeper played well," said Jim Finn.

Grillone had four goals and Jim Lysko added two in Spellman's uprising in the second. The Cardinals went up, 6-2, but North battled back. Finn finished a pretty passing play with Peterson and Gorman at the halftime buzzer to draw North within 6-3 at intermission.

Rob Hines, who played well at midfield, won the opening faceoff of the second half. Gorman took possession, flew through an opening and finished with a hard drive to bring North within, 6-4. With 5:35 left in the third, Finn circled from behind the net. He swung out 10 yards, cut to the middle and found the corner from the slot to make it, 6-5.

"I thought we did a good job on faceoffs and Gorman beat his man for good chances. That's something we are going to need," said Jim Finn.

Tom Koch set up Finn at the side of the cage in the opening minute of the fourth to draw North even at 6-6. Each side had blue-chip chances to win it, but Galligan and Kevin Finn turned aside all threats until the overtime. Galligan had six saves in the fourth and Finn had four. Along with his stops, Finn made short, crisp, accurate passes to move the ball out of trouble.

It stayed at 6-6 until Grillone finished it with his fifth goal of the match in the overtime.

"The thing that made me happy was the way we battled back. We could have been down after they made that rush in the second period, but we came back and I thought we had the edge in play," said Jim Finn.

North hosts Hull at 6 p.m. Friday.

VOICE FOR HEALTH
by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

IS IT YOUR BACK OR YOUR HIP?

People often cannot differentiate between hip and back pain because the symptoms of one often mimic those of the other. For instance, "sciatica," which often results from a herniated disc compressing a portion of a spinal nerve, can cause pain that runs from the back through the hips and down one (or both) legs. Pain resulting from hip arthritis is usually experienced in the buttocks, groin, and sometimes in the front of the thigh. While a person in pain may not have the experience to tell exactly where the pain is coming from, a detailed description of the symptoms can usually help a chiropractor determine whether the pain has its source at the hip or the spine.

For some people, the pain from sciatica can be severe and debilitating. For others, the sciatica pain might be infrequent and irritating, but has the potential to get worse. Through the use of conservative, non-surgical, drug-free care, Family Practice of Chiropractic provides chiropractic treatment from acute symptomatic relief to wellness care. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. You have nothing to lose - and vibrant health to gain. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Inflamed tendons are the most common cause of acute hip pain.

Reseach From AAA Foundation For Traffic Safety Finds:

Distraction Factor In Nearly 60% Of Teen Car Crashes

The most comprehensive research ever conducted into crash videos of teen drivers has found significant evidence that distracted driving is likely much more serious a problem than previously known, according to the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

The unprecedented video analysis finds that distraction was a factor in nearly 6 out of 10 moderate-to-severe teen crashes, which is four times as many as official estimates based on police reports.

Researchers analyzed the six seconds leading up to a crash in nearly 1,700 videos of teen drivers taken from in-vehicle event recorders. The results showed that distraction was a factor in 58 percent of all crashes studied, including 89 percent of road-departure crashes and 76 percent of rear-end crashes. NHTSA previously has estimated that distraction is a factor in only 14 percent of all teen driver crashes.

"Access to crash videos has allowed us to better understand the moments leading up to a vehicle impact in a way that was previously impossible," said Lloyd P. Albert, Senior Vice President of Public and Government Affairs for AAA Northeast. "The in-depth analysis provides indisputable evidence that teen drivers are distracted in a much greater percentage of crashes than we previously realized."

The most common forms of distraction leading up to a crash by a teen driver included:

- Interacting with one or more passengers: 15 percent of crashes
- Cell phone use: 12 percent of crashes
- Looking at something in the vehicle: 10 percent of crashes

Ask John Paul: AAA's Car Doctor

Question: I have a 2007 Pontiac G6 with 60,000 miles. Recently when I shut the engine off and got out of the car I noticed the radio kept playing. When I tried to restart the engine it would not start, it didn't make a sound of any kind.

The car was towed to the dealer who said the alternator and the battery needed to be replaced at a cost of $650. For a month the car ran perfectly; then it happened again and again the car was towed to the dealer.

After a few hours of trying to figure out what was wrong, the mechanic said the problem was caused by the after-market remote car starter. This remote car starter was installed by the dealer at the time of original purchase in 2007. He removed the remote starter and charged me $350 for labor.

The car has been fine ever since but I am concerned that it will happen again and that at $1,000 I was overcharged for the work. I would appreciate your opinion of what happened.

Answer: I suspect at eight years old the battery had failed (legitimate repair). The alternator if it was tested with a faulty battery could have had a false reading and may not have been charging properly (perhaps a misdiagnosis). Although it is certainly possible the alternator was faulty as well. Some remote car stating systems like all electronics can fail with age and could have been damaged due to low voltage from the faulty battery.

Regarding cost: it takes about 1.5 hours to replace both the battery and the alternator. The dealer cost (as compared to aftermarket) for an original alternator is $260. The cost of the battery varies, as an example a AAA battery similar to the one in your car delivered and installed is $116 (member price).

The cost to diagnose and remove the remote starter system sounds high, since you could have had a new system installed for a similar price.

Question: I am interested in purchasing a 2015 Subaru Forester or Outback. I have read on the internet that the Subaru engines have an oil consumption problem and it burns or leaks excessive oil. It also requires Subaru synthetic oil and Subaru coolant.

There is a class action suit against Subaru on this issue. Is this a real concern and has Subaru fixed this problem on 2015 models?

Answer: Some Subaru owners have reported oil consumption issues. The repair is replacement of the pistons and piston rings.

I have also heard that in some cases the engine block also gets replaced. Since there is a repair I would suspect that any new Subaru would have the updated parts and there wouldn't be a problem.

Regarding the use of a special brand specific coolant and synthetic oil this is becoming much more common with all vehicle manufactures and wouldn't deter me from buying any car.

Question: Please settle a little debate my wife and I have. We have a 2014 Subaru Impreza that has a little blue light that comes on when you start the car. She says that we must let the car idle till the light goes out or we'll decrease the life of the engine. I say that idling and not driving results in a lot of wasted gas and more pollution and it is not necessary.

Answer: The light you are referring to is common in a couple of different cars. This blue light reminds the driver "take it easy" until the engine warms up. It is not necessary to sit and idle, only to avoid hard driving. This is a habit we should all practice until our cars warm up. This easy driving when the car is cold will help promote longer engine and transmission life.

Question: I'm interested in a new Honda Accord hybrid EX-L and was told this car is only available in New York and California and not in Massachusetts. I was also told that if I purchased it in New York (I live in western Massachusetts) I still wouldn't be able to register it here. Is this true?

Answer: The ice may be the salesperson is a bit confused. The "plug-in" hybrid Accord is only available in New York and California. Chris Naughton the Northeast Regional Manager for Honda Public Relations explains that the Accord EX-L hybrid is available for sale in all 50 states. However, the Plug -In Hybrid Accord is only available for sale in NY and CA. Both models share the same two motor hybrid powertrain under the hood, the biggest difference between the two is the size/capacity of the battery.

The 'regular' hybrid can go about 1 mile in all electric mode, whereas the Plug In version of the Accord Hybrid can go approximately 10-15 miles on electric only.

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Community United Methodist Church Easter Vigil Service

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St. in Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, April 4, at 7:30 p.m.

"With the exception of the Episcopalians, very few Protestants have had the opportunity to experience the Easter Vigil," the church's pastor, the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden said. "I think this is really unfortunate. The vigil is one of the most ancient and certainly one of the most dramatic celebrations of the church year. It's my very favorite worship service."

Dating from the earlier years of the Christian Church, the vigil literally leads the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and, most importantly, symbols that refer to scripture. Because many people today are unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided.

"I hope people will take the time to read the explanations," Jarek-Glidden said. "The vigil is a rich, wonderful service on its own, but when a person understands the meaning behind the ritual it becomes even richer."

People planning to attend the vigil should expect the unexpected, because the Easter Vigil is a service unlike any other. Everyone planning to attend the Easter Vigil is asked to please bring a flashlight and to wear comfortable walking shoes, for example.

"I realize that a flashlight sounds like an odd thing to bring to a worship service, but believe me a flashlight is pretty essential – It's simply a modern version of the traditional candles." Jarek-Glidden explained. "Quincy Community United Methodist Church has chosen to use flashlights for safety reasons. There will be some available in case anyone forgets to bring one.

"Comfortable shoes are also important because some walking is involved – a short staircase. People then have the option of continuing with the traditional vigil, which includes more walking, or the non-traditional in which people remain seated in one place. Both groups then join together for the major portion of the service."

The Easter Vigil is very much a participatory worship experience and the more a person puts in to the vigil, the more that person will get out of it.

"I think a friend of mine put it best when he said 'I used to think I "got" Easter here,' and he pointed to his forehead," Jarek-Glidden said. "'But now,' he continued, 'I get Easter here,' and pointed to his heart. That's what the Easter Vigil is all about and everyone is cordially invited to share in this wonderful experience."

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is conveniently located diagonally from the Wollaston T station, and is fully handicapped accessible. A handicapped entrance is located in the front, the door closest to the flagpole. Each week a coffee hour follows worship. For more information please call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Michael Jovanovic, 94

A funeral Mass for Michael Jovanovic, 94, of Quincy, was celebrated at St. Sava Serbian Orthodox Church in Cambridge.

Mr. Jovanovic died Feb. 15.

He was born Aug. 29, 1920, in Bacina, Yugoslavia. His upbringing and experiences in Yugoslavia had a huge influence on his life and character. During WWII, his mother Zivka provided shelter, sometimes for months, to both German and American soldiers. His mother had also adopted a boy who needed a proper home. Mr. Jovanovic was proud of his mother's kindness and good nature and endeavored to emulate her.

During the war, he and his brother Zarko were placed in separate displaced persons camps and lost touch. By pure luck Mr. Jovanovic was eventually sent to a camp in Italy where he again found his brother. In the end he was placed with the Boehringer family in Germany. He always stressed that he was treated very well by them. After the war while living in England he was contacted to testify for the Boehringer family during the Nuremberg trials and served as a witness for them. He was happy that his testimony saved the family from the war crime charges.

Mr. Jovanovic came to New York from London in 1949 as a student. He subsequently became a U.S. citizen, which he was very proud of. He greatly valued education. He had received a full scholarship and used it to support his younger brother Zarko, who became a dentist working in both Quincy and Hanson. Mr. Jovanovic went on to acquire four bachelor's degrees in religion and foreign languages. He was qualified to teach five foreign languages: English, French, German, Russia, and Serbian. With time, he became a professor at Harvard University.

His goal in life was to help people without asking for anything in return. His motto was to treat others as he himself would like to be treated. He did not merely belong to a church; it was his lifelong calling and he was committed to helping others like Christ would.

Mr. Jovanovic believed everyone deserved a chance to be educated, and finances should not be a deterrent. He advocated on behalf of numerous Serbian and American friends to help them obtain full college scholarships. He would go to the college with the prospective student and speak directly to the college president. Mr. Jovanovic was instrumental in helping many gain college degrees through these scholarships. Both he and his brother Zarko provided housing and sponsored Serbs who came to America, even if he did not know them prior to their arrival.

Mr. Jovanovic also translated and typed legal documents for Serbian-speaking immigrants, attended parent-teacher conferences, and provided simultaneous translations for non-English-speaking hospital patients, all of it free of charge.

Mr. Jovanovic loved politics and had met a few presidents, among them JFK, who had even written a thank you letter to him after his successful presidential campaign. He wrote many letters to editors of newspapers and magazines and was happy to see them published, not out of pride but because he felt that his viewpoints and opinions would be beneficial to others. As a man of peace, he wrote and spoke publically against all wars everywhere he could. He enjoyed public speaking and for years attended the JFK Library lecture series, where he often would give impromptu speeches. He also enjoyed giving speeches at the local Serbian Orthodox Church, where he was loved and respected. In the late 1970s Mr. Jovanovic ran for mayor of the city of Quincy.

He raised show chickens and was proud of being the one to produce the Ex-Chequer Leghorn in this country. Along with the Rhodes family of Mendon, he even developed a new breed, the Blue Langshan. He was happy to have met Colonel Sanders at a chicken show in Ohio.

Mr. Jovanovic enjoyed life, loved meeting people, and was very happy to have been such a positive influence to everyone who had the pleasure of knowing him.

Predeceased by his father Cedomir Jovanovic, mother Zivka Jovanovic, sister Nada, and brothers Ljubislav and Zarko Jovanovic. He is survived by his ex-wife and friend Liseta Melo, his longtime friend Holly (Hampe) Hall of Pembroke and her family, many dear Serbian friends in the Greater Boston area, as well as fellow chicken breeders from all over the country.

Arrangements were made by the Keefe Funeral Homes.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Michael A. King, 62

A funeral Mass for Michael A. "Sky" King, 62, retired Quincy Police Department of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. King died suddenly March 28.

He retired in 2009 from the Quincy Police Department after 25 years of service. He was a member of the Quincy Elks, Furnace Brook Golf Course, Presidents Golf Club and the Knights of Columbus. He enjoyed playing golf and loved to bowl, these brought out his fierce competitive side. Mike enjoyed World War II memorabilia, history and was always ready for the challenge of a crossword puzzle.

Mr. King will be remembered for his strong work ethic, his intelligence and his witty sense of humor. He will be sadly missed.

Donna A. Sullivan, 61

A Mass of Christian Burial for Donna A. (Cubetus) Sullivan, 61, of Quincy and formerly Everett was celebrated Monday in Immaculate Conception Church, Everett.

Mrs. Sullivan died March 26 after a courageous battle with ALS at home surrounded by her loving family.

Born and raised in Everett, she was the daughter of the late James J. and Virginia W. (Trickett) Cubetus. Mrs. Sullivan attended Everett Public Schools and graduated from Everett High School in 1972. She attended Boston University for one year and received a paralegal certificate.

Mrs. Sullivan worked as a teacher's aide for the Quincy Public Schools, helping re-K and special needs students. She worked as a teacher's aide up until 2012, at which time her illness no longer allowed her to work. She was a kind and loving friend to anyone who crossed her path. A heartfelt thanks to family and friends who supported her and her family.

Devoted wife of Thomas F. Sullivan; together they shared 30 years of marriage. Beloved mother of Sarah A. Sullivan, Patrick T. Sullivan, Melanie E. Sullivan and her wife Kristen, all of Quincy, and Melissa A. Sullivan of CA. Cherished sister of Annette Capomaccio of Randolph, James J. Cubetus II and his wife Peg of Sandwich. Dedicated aunt of Marc, Maria, Jonathan, Matthew, Benjamin and great-aunt to Joshua and Bella. Also lovingly survived by one granddaughter, Ryersen.

Funeral arrangements were made by Carafa Family Funeral Home, Chelsea.

Private interment.

Memorial donations may be made to Compassionate Care ALS, Attention: Ronald Hoffman, P.O. Box 1052, West Falmouth, MA 02574.

Donna J. Denning, 70

Funeral services for Donna J. (Foster) Denning, 70, of Quincy and formerly South Boston were privately held.

Mrs. Denning died peacefully at home on March 24.

She was born in Boston, raised and educated in South Boston schools and had lived in Quincy for 25 years. She was a retired supervisor for the Boston Housing Authority with 29 years of service and had been retired several years.

Mrs. Denning loved her cats and was devoted to her family and especially to her three cherished grandchildren.

Linda Hajjar, 87

A funeral Mass for Linda Hajjar, 87, of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Joseph Church, Quincy.

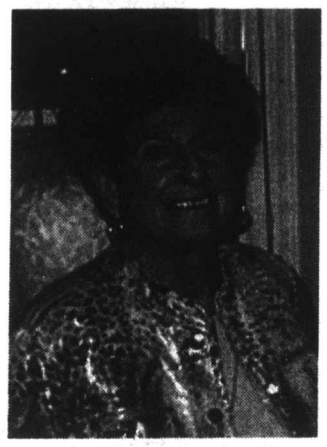
Mrs. Hajjar died peacefully Sunday while surrounded by her loving family.

Born on July 15, 1927 in Quincy, she was the wife of the late Toufic Hajjar. She is lovingly remembered by her five children: Louise and her husband David Densmore, of Braintree; Michael and his wife Asma of Quincy; Susan of Hingham; Steven and his wife Jean of Cohasset; and Marianne of Quincy.

She will be deeply missed by her six grandchildren, Michelle Densmore, Jessica Densmore, Michael Hajjar, Danielle Forlasto, Elias Dagher, Nicole Hajjar and great-grandson, Jackson Forlasto. She is predeceased by her sister Mabel of Quincy and is survived by her sister Julia of Quincy and her brother Sidney and his wife Evalynne of Milton.

In 1945, Mrs. Hajjar graduated from Quincy High School. Three years later, while in Lebanon, she met Toufic Hajjar and in 1948, they married. They then traveled back to the United States to start life as newlyweds.

In the 1950s, Linda and Toufic opened Hajjar's Big and Tall Clothing Store. Linda enjoyed working alongside her husband Toufic as well as her five children for many years. After Linda's retirement, she gave her time and love to her children and grandchildren. Linda loved music and dancing with a passion. Her favorites were Frank Sinatra and Andrea Bocelli.



LINDA HAJJAR

Linda was also an avid baseball fan. Her unwavering love for the Red Sox has been passed on to her children and grandchildren. She will be remembered for her warm, joyful nature and enduring kindness and compassion.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Pyne Keohane Funeral Home, Hingham.

Memorial donations may be made to Foundation Fighting Blindness, PO Box 17279, Baltimore, MD 21297-0495 or Deaf Blind Contact Center, 215 Brighton Avenue, Allston, MA 02134.

Louise L. Myers, 92

Memorial services for Louise L. (Jones) Myers, 92 of Quincy will take place at a date and time to be announced.

Mrs. Myers died peacefully March 28 at the Marina Bay Nursing & Rehabilitation Center in Quincy, in the presence of her loving son and daughter-in-law.

She was born on a farm near New Franklin, Missouri, raised and educated in New Franklin and graduated from Boonville High School, Class of 1940. Mrs. Myers received an associate's degree from Kansas City Business College in Kansas City, Missouri. She lived in Quincy for 12 years, previously living in Norwood, N.J., for more than 30 years and earlier living in Kansas.

Mrs. Myers was employed as a customer service representative for Sears in New Jersey for 20 years. She previously worked as a church secretary at the Rosedale Methodist Church in Kansas City, Kansas. Earlier, she was also a secretary for various military officers on multiple military bases in the South as she travelled with her husband who served in the United States Army during World War II.

She was an active member at Rosedale Methodist Church and enjoyed participating in fellowships. Mrs.

LOUISE L. MYERS

Myers was well known for her talents as a gifted quilt maker.

Beloved wife of the late Daniel A. Myers, Jr., United States Army, Master Sergeant. Devoted mother of Daniel A. Myers III and his wife Jessica Davis-Myers of Quincy, Paula Ann Winchester of MO and Rebecca L. Myers of GA. Loving grandmother of Jennifer Carnevale, Andrew D. Myers, Adam L. Watkins, Christopher H. Myers and Nicholas P. Winchester-Rabeler. Loving great-grandmother of Annie, Jack and Johnny. Dear sister of Charlene Shipp of Kansas. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Arrangements under the direction of the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Avenue, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Lois Nally

A funeral Mass for Lois (Woodsome) Nally was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Bridget Church, Abington.

Mrs. Nally died March 26 after a long battle with cancer and diabetes.

She was born in Boston, raised and educated in North Quincy and lived in Boston and Abington respectively.

Mrs. Nally was the loving wife of her late, beloved husband, John, and is survived by his two sons, Kevin and his wife Kris of Scituate, Jim and his wife Beth of Kingston, four grandchildren, and many nieces and nephews.

She was forever a sports fan knowing all the stats on players from the 1950s forward. She was a member of the BoSox Club and she and her husband, John, regularly attended spring training in Florida. They wintered in Naples, Fla., and enjoyed a lovely vacation home in New Hampshire. Mrs. Nally also was a member of Meals on Wheels and never missed an opportunity to care for stray animals, a number of which she adopted over the years.

She was a one-to-one counselor with Dana Farber, lending a compassionate ear and advising newly diagnosed cancer patients. She coordinated driving schedules as a volunteer with the Road to Recovery program of the American Cancer Assoc.

Mrs. Nally thoroughly enjoyed putting together details for her NQHS high school reunions, especially the 50th. She always considered herself blessed to have so many caring friends who became part of her family.

Funeral arrangements were made by Quealy & Son Funeral Home, Abington.

Private interment.

Memorial donations may be made to the Winslow Farm Animal Sanctuary, 37 Eddy St., Norton, MA 02766; Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, Inc., P.O. Box 787 Hull, MA 02045; or the charity of your choice.

Distraction Factor In Nearly 60% Of Teen Car Crashes

• Looking at something outside the vehicle: 9 percent of crashes

• Singing/moving to music: 8 percent of crashes

• Grooming: 6 percent of crashes

• Reaching for an object: 6 percent of crashes

"It is troubling that passengers and cell phones were the most common forms of distraction given that these factors can increase crash risks for teen drivers," Albert said. "The situation is made worse by the fact that young drivers have spent less time behind the wheel and cannot draw upon their previous experience to manage unsafe conditions."

Researchers found that drivers manipulating their cell phone (includes calling, texting or other uses), had their eyes off the road for an average of 4.1 out of the final six seconds leading up to a crash. The researchers also measured reaction times in rear-end crashes and found that teen drivers using a cell phone failed to react more than half of the time before the impact, meaning they crashed without braking or steering.

"This study shows how important it is for states to review their graduated driver licensing and distracted driving laws to ensure they provide as much protection as possible for teens," Albert said. "AAA recommends that state laws prohibit cell phone use by teen drivers and restrict passengers to one non-family member for the first six months of driving."

Graduated driver licensing (GDL) laws allow new drivers to gain practical experience in a relatively safe environment by restricting their exposure to risky situations. Thirty-three states have laws that prevent cell phone use for teens.

Parents play a critical role in preventing distracted driving. AAA recommends that parents teach teens about the dangers of cell phone use and restrict passengers during the learning-to-drive process. Before parents begin practice driving with teens, they should create a parent-teen driving agreement that includes strict ground rules related to distraction. For more information, visit TeenDriving.AAA.com.

Teens have the highest crash rate of any group in the United States. About 963,000 drivers age 16-19 were involved in police-reported crashes in 2013, which is the most recent year of available data. These crashes resulted in 383,000 injuries and 2,865 deaths.

The full research report and b-roll video of teen driver crashes is available on the Foundation's website. The Foundation partnered with researchers at the University of Iowa to conduct this study.

AAA Northeast is a not-for-profit auto club with 60 offices in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Hampshire and New Jersey, providing more than 5.1 million local AAA members with travel, insurance, finance, and auto-related services.

Prayer to The Blessed Virgin
(Never Known To Fail)

O, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful Vine, Splendor of Heaven. Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my Mother. O Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this my necessity (Make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3 times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (3 times). Thank you for your mercy to me and mine. Amen. The prayer must be said for three consecutive days and after that the request will be granted. The prayer must be published. P.J. 4/2

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A problem in getting a workplace project up and moving might upset the Lamb, who likes things done on time. But be patient. The delay could turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your instincts are usually on the mark, so if you feel uneasy about being asked for advice on a certain matter, it's probably a good idea that you opt not to comply with the request.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might have two minds about a proposed change (which often happens with the Twins), but once all the facts are in, you'll be able to make a definitive decision. Good luck.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Crab's frugal aspect dominates, so while you might be reluctant to pay for technical repairs, the time you save in getting things back on track could be well worth the expense.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While you Leos and Leonas continue to concentrate on doing well in your work-related ventures this week, consider reserving the weekend for sharing good times with family and friends.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good week to take stock of the important personal, professional or familial relationships in your life and see where you might need to do some intense shoring up.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your sense of justice makes you the likely person to help deal with a work- or family-related grievance. But you need to have any doubts about anyone's true agenda resolved first.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The Scorpio passion for getting things done right and on time might rankle some folks. Never mind them. Others will be impressed, and they're the ones you want in your corner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Finances could be a mite tight this week. And, while things will ease up soon enough, you savvy Sagittarians will want to keep a prudent eye on your expenses at this time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although a technical malfunction could cause a temporary delay in getting things up and running, you could use the time to recheck your operation and make changes where necessary.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might find it difficult to resist making a snap judgment about a colleague's behavior. But stick with your usual way of assessing situations and wait for the facts to come out.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Asking for help with a family situation might be the wisest course to take right now. Just be sure you turn to someone you can trust to do and say the right thing for the right reasons.

BORN THIS WEEK: People see in you a born leader whom they can follow and put their trust in.

Cyptoquip
ANSWER:

Would a famous Dr. Seuss character who is found to be a total fraud be named Sham-I-Am?

Phelan Powers Quincy

heroic one with 17 ticks left on the clock.

"At first when they tied it up I was very scared but when I got the ball on my stick I just knew that I was going to go for it and get that goal to win the game," said Phelan. "I saw the defense stepping out on me and I just saw an opportunity, I went right (near) the crease and I took the goal, it was great."

This version of the Presidents is led by four senior captains in Phelan, Palbutong, Lee and defender Emily Hatfield.

"I had them all last year, and so it's great to have them for a second year," said Arakelian. "They know what to expect from me, they know how I coach, what I'm looking for on the team. They're already doing it but I expect solid leadership from them, and just to lead by example, they're already doing just a spectacular job. They have good drive and good leadership, they're really impressing me this year in terms of settling in (and) being smart. Emily is at the helm of our defense and my other three captains sort of run our offense so it's really great for them to help those younger players."

Sophomore goalie Emi Guarente recorded the win in goal for the Presidents.

"Emi's a sophomore goalie who stepped in for us, she has never played before actually believe it or not," said Arakelian. "She's had some great saves. She is a soccer goalie and it has transferred really well for her. I just expect her to slowly learn the game; she is doing amazing as it is."

The Presidents roster consists of five seniors (Hatfield, Phelan, Palbutong, Lee and attack Haley Elwood). They have seven juniors (Jerahian, defender McKenna Kiley, defender Jayda Chase, defender Sarah Clancy, attack Kylie Whalen, attack Lucy Zhang and midfielder Anxhela Hoti). The sophomore class consists of Hernon, midfielder Lauren Gardiner, McLaughlin, defender Linda Do, defender Yusra Ahmed, goalie Julia Silverman and Guarente. Midfielder Emily Butruccio is the only freshman on the roster.

"It is so exciting to have this team behind me during my senior year," said Phelan. "I wouldn't want to be playing this season with any other team. I think it's great, all my fellow seniors are contributing so much to the team and I think it's going to be a great season."

The Presidents never trailed in the game and even though the Pirates tied the game at 6-6, 8-8 and 12-12, the Presidents found a way to get their first win of the season.

"It felt awesome to get the win under our belt," said Phelan. "It really just brought up our team spirit a lot and we're just pumped to go into the season."

Ross Leads Presidents

Senior Sean Brennick scored eight seconds after Hallisey to increase the Quincy lead to 8-3.

The Pirates did not go quietly as MacDonald would complete his hat trick with 4:10 left to pull Hull to within four, 8-4.

Marcella scored his second goal of the game with :58 seconds left and Shane Weber scored with 44 seconds left to bring the Pirates to within two, 8-6.

"It feels great to get our first win," said Bowes. "We had a tough outing on Saturday to start off the season and (Hull) is a team that we had a tough one-goal loss against last year and we were looking forward to (playing) them even preseason so this one feels good."

Senior goalie Andy Johnson was strong in net for the Presidents.

"I think they had over 30 shots and six goals, he was voted our team MVP last year," said Bowes of Johnson. "So that speaks volumes to his character and him as a player but he is an All-Star for us."

The Presidents roster this season consists of 10 seniors (Brennick, O'Hare, Aidan Pugsley, Ross, Ryan Higgins, Johnson, Andrew Cook, Brian O'Callaghan, Harty and Chris Doyle). Bowes talked a little about goals moving forward.

"We made it to the playoffs last year and we lost in the first round but our goal is to go further," he said. "We haven't set a team goal yet, I think we're kind of holding off (and) seeing how this first portion of the season pans out but for me as a competitor, as a coach, I want to win every game but obviously with a tough schedule that's not going to be possible but I think that with the guys that we have and some of the players we have, there is no reason we can't make some noise in the playoffs so that's what we're trying to do."

Anthony Green 'Growing' Into Div. 1 Hoop Player

walking down the street. But they were great. They were friendly. They came up and talked to us. They almost treated us like we were NBA stars. We had a good time there."

• Now he prepares for Northeastern and Division 1 college basketball. He will work out and play hoop at Tilton. He'll take some free time late in the spring and will be in the gym in Northeastern in the summer. He will keep playing against good players in good games in good events, and he will keep getting better.

He has no choice. He will be battling for playing time on a team which faced Notre Dame in the NCAAs and took the Irish down to the final two seconds before losing by four. The Huskies won the Colonial Athletic Association championship. They lose one player from this year's team. An intracity battle with BU and a meeting with nationally-ranked Michigan State show early on the schedule. He will play against the best. The competition at Tilton made Green better. The competition at Northeastern will do the same.

"I feel confident," said Green. "I've learned a lot this year. I think I've grown a lot as a player. I know Northeastern plays a great schedule, but I feel I'm ready to get started.

• This was one most interesting year in Anthony Green's life. He went from playing in the South Sectionals against Newton North to playing in the nationals of the prep school championships to heading for a team which made a strong showing the NCAA tournament. What will the next year bring? Where will he be a year from now? It is an interesting thought.

"Northeastern is a great fit for him," said Papile. "They'll get him working with a nutritionist and a strength coach. He's a family guy who takes a lot of pride in playing close to home. Mark my words. In a year or two, he'll be a star there."

Chen Leads NQ Over Quincy In Boys Volleyball

By BILL GRIFFIN

There was much to like for North Quincy in its volleyball opener against Quincy.

There was the experienced net play of Calvin Ma and Kevin Huang. There was the fine varsity debut of Eric Huang at setter. There was the hitting of Anxhelo Taho and the all-court play of libero Shiggy Zheng.

But mostly, there was Jackie Chen. One player seldom controls a volleyball match, but Chen came close against the Presidents.

The senior captain had kills from the back line and soft finishes at the net. He ended points with a leaping rocket of a serve, and kept points alive by diving and bouncing off the court. He set up winners with soft, accurate passes and put them away with booming slams.

Chen had 18 kills, eight digs, and five assists to lead the Red Raiders to a straight set victory, 25-10, 25-16, and 25-15 over Quincy in the season opener for both teams at the North Quincy gym Monday afternoon.

"I thought we played very well for the opener and Jackie was great," said North coach Jason Cai. "His improvement from junior year is tremendous. I thought he served accurately which is hard because he jumps so high and puts a lot of velocity on it. He played well over the the entire court for us."

There was a revealing statistic after the first period. Chen had five touch finishes from the net which is excellent. He also had six kills in the same period from the back line which is remarkable. He kills points softly or powerfully. Take your pick.

"I think Jackie has taken on more of a leadership role as a senior," said Cai. "It's hard to speak up when you are an underclassman. I think Jackie is more comfortable talking on the court, and you saw that today. You have to communicate to play well and Jackie had us in the right position."

North, who makes the tournament more frequently than May follows April, is a tough opener for anyone. Quincy had its bright spots against a talented opposition. Jackson Le and Henry Yip played well at the net. Xhuiljo Zyba and Vin Cristiani showed power and potential as hitters. Jerod Lin was quick and effective well at libero, and freshman Chris Pham passed the ball well along the front line.

"North is always a tough team to open against because they are so strong, but I thought we played pretty well," said coach Jackie Niosi. "Jackson was a aggressive at net and Henry is a good setter. He gave Jackson room to get off his shots. Vin and Xhuljo swung well, and they both have power. I'd like to see them mix in some soft stuff, and they will as they gain more experience.

"Chris played very well for a freshman in his first varsity match. He passed the ball well and set up good chances for us at net."

North broke open the first game with a 12-2 run which produced a 17-4 lead. Chen accounted for six points in the run, Taho (seven kills, two blocks) served eight straight winning points, and Huang (21 assists, two aces) set up the hitters with passes at the right height and speed. At setter, Huang is succeeding Oresti Bega who set the school record for assists. For one match, Huang looked solid.

"He played well, but I think he benefited from playing with veteran hitters," said Casi. "He had couple of sets that were off a little, but his setters saved them. Eric played well for a sophomore stepping into a new position."

Quincy played its best volleyball in the second and was within 19-14 late in the game. Cristiani swung away freely for five winners, Yip and Le hit and saved points at the net, and Lin returned serve well from his libero spot. However, Chen stopped Quincy's rally with a winner. Ma (one kills seven digs) and Kevin Huang (two blocks, two kills) took tough points at the net. Eric and Kevin Huang combined for a winning block to clinch the game.

"Kevin, Calvin and Jackie are all seniors and I think the Quincy match game meant a lot to them. It showed in the way they played," said Cai.

"I liked our play in the second game. Vin had some good swings at the net," said Niosi.

In the final game, Eric Huang, freshman Timmy Chui, and Chen helped North build an a 8-2 lead. Strong serving from Zyba and Lin kept the Presidents withing range. Zheng, who had seven kills and was rock steady at libero, served eight straight winning points to open up a 21-8 lead which lifted the Red Raiders to the win.

"Shiggy is very strong at libero," said Cai. "He plays volleyball all year. It's his game. He doesn't play another sport. He dedicates himself to volleyball, and it shows in his play. Timmy Chui has the ability to become an excellent volleyball player."

Quincy and North will have a rematch at 5:30 at Quincy on May 1.

"Quincy will be much improved by the time we meet again," said Cai. "It will be a tougher match."

"One area we need to improve on is our serving," said Niosi. "We need to get more serves in and force more mistakes."

North Quincy is at Brookline Thursday at 5:30 p.m. and visits powerhouse Barnstable Monday at 5:30 p.m. Quincy hosts Weymouth Thursday at 4 p.m.

Lifeguard Training Course Swim Test April 17

The City of Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool during April School Vacation, announces Recreation Director Barry J. Welch.

The course is open to participants who are at least 15 years of age and capable of passing a pre-requisite water skills test. The pre-requisite swim test will be given to all candidates on Friday, April 17 at 7 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Class will be held on Monday, April 20 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Community Room of the Koch Park and Recreation Complex. The remaining classes will be held Tuesday, April 21st through Friday, April 24th from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool. Registration for the course is limited and can be done online at QuincyRec.com, by phone at (617) 376-1394, or in person at the Quincy Recreation office, One Merrymount Parkway, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The cost of the program is $140, which includes all books, supplies, and Red Cross fees.

Upon successful completion of the course, an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Certificate, CPR for the Professional Rescuer and First Aid Skills will be issued.

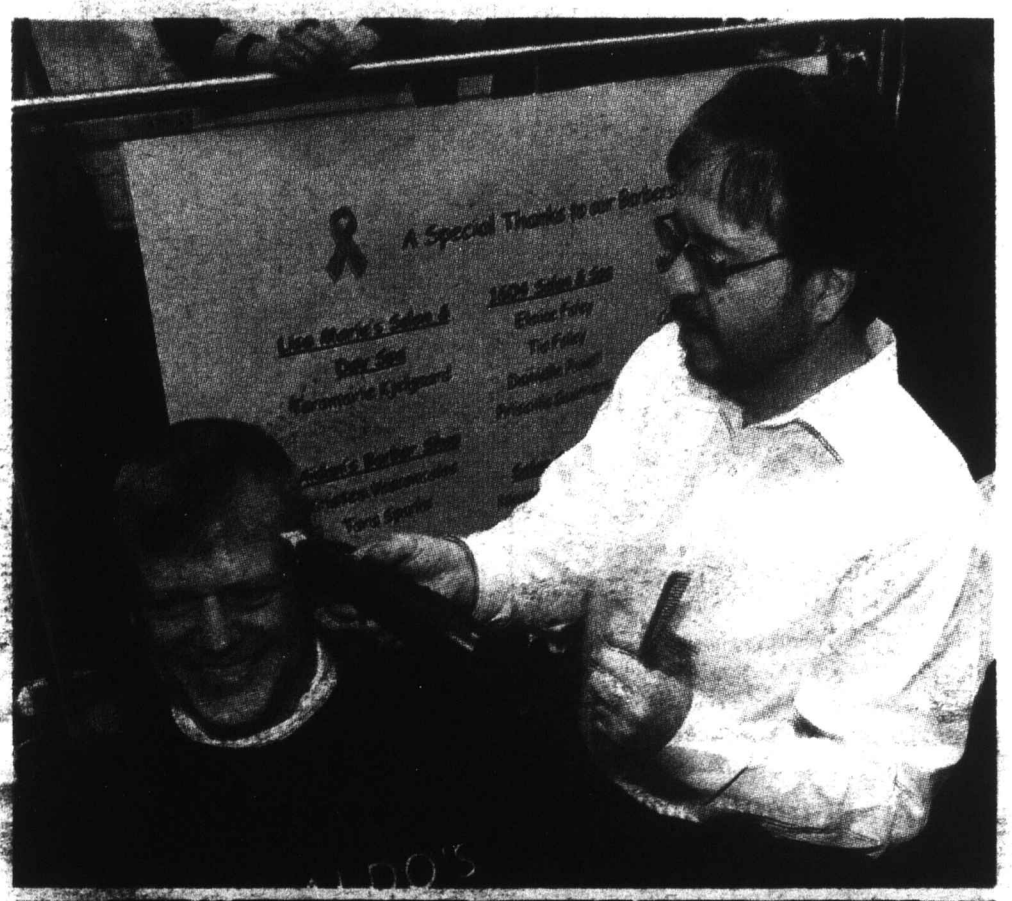
A 'Locks Cause'



BUZZ BENEFIT – Gov. Charlie Baker (top) and Mayor Thomas Koch (above) had their heads shaved for a great cause at a hair-cutting benefit Tuesday at Granite Telecommunications in North Quincy. The governor and mayor joined more than 550 Granite employees in having their heads shaved raising several million dollars for the Dana Farber Cancer Institute's Jimmy Fund. Philip Boncaldo, owner of Boncaldo's Gentlemen's Barbershop on Beale Street in Quincy, and Debra Oneil, a stylist at Boncaldo's, had the honor of buzzing "their honors." Koch's haircut translated into a $5,000 donation to the Jimmy Fund and $10,000 for local charities. Baker, age 58, and Koch, who is 52, said the last time their hair was this short was when they were ages 12 and 10 respectively. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

$97 Million In Quincy Center Projects Unveiled

15-Story Apartment Building, Luxury Condos, 116-Room Hotel 'Major Steps In Revitalization'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Proposals to build a new 15-story, 122-unit luxury apartment building, two new buildings with 48 condominiums between them, and a six-story, 116-room hotel in Quincy Center were unveiled Tuesday.

The developers of the three projects – Peter O'Connell, Sean Galvin of Galvcon Development, and Alex Matov of LBC Boston – joined Mayor Thomas Koch at City Hall to introduce the new plans to revitalize Quincy's downtown.

"This is a great day for the city of Quincy," the mayor said at the announcement, held inside his office with dozens of city officials and business leaders in attendance.

"For those of you that have doubted the progress of the downtown, you're in for a bit of a surprise. We've never doubted the commitment on the city of Quincy with our downtown. We've never lacked the confidence in this coming to be."

In addition to the three

$4.5 Million Needed For City Hall Project

By SCOTT JACKSON

Repairs needed to shore up the structure of Old City Hall caused the ongoing renovation project to exceed its budget by $4.5 million.

Three measures to bridge the $4.5 million gap were introduced at Monday night's City Council meeting. The requests were referred to the council's finance committee, which will meet next on April 27 at 6:30 p.m.

Under the measures proposed Monday, the additional money for the project would come from three sources: $1.75 million in unexpended funds from completed capital projects, including $1.1 million left over from the construction of Central Middle School; $2.16 million in state certified free cash; and $600,000 from the $1.5 million bond approved in September 2013 to pay for landscaping costs at the former Quincy High School site.

Councillor Michael McFarland, the chairman of the finance committee, said outside auditor Jim Powers, architect James Edwards, and a bond counsel will be present during the April 27 meeting to discuss the finances for the project.

"Those are three people we need to hear from," McFarland said.

The council approved

Self Defense Program For Women April 27, 28

Quincy Police will hold an Adult Self Defense Program Monday and Tuesday, April 27 and April 28, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Eastern Nazarene College gym on Wendell Ave., Quincy.

The free two-night program is open to females ages 18 and up (and 16 and 17 year olds with a parent and/or guardian).

Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program. There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with.

The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker."

To sign up or get more information, contact Lt. Dan Minton at 617-745-5719.

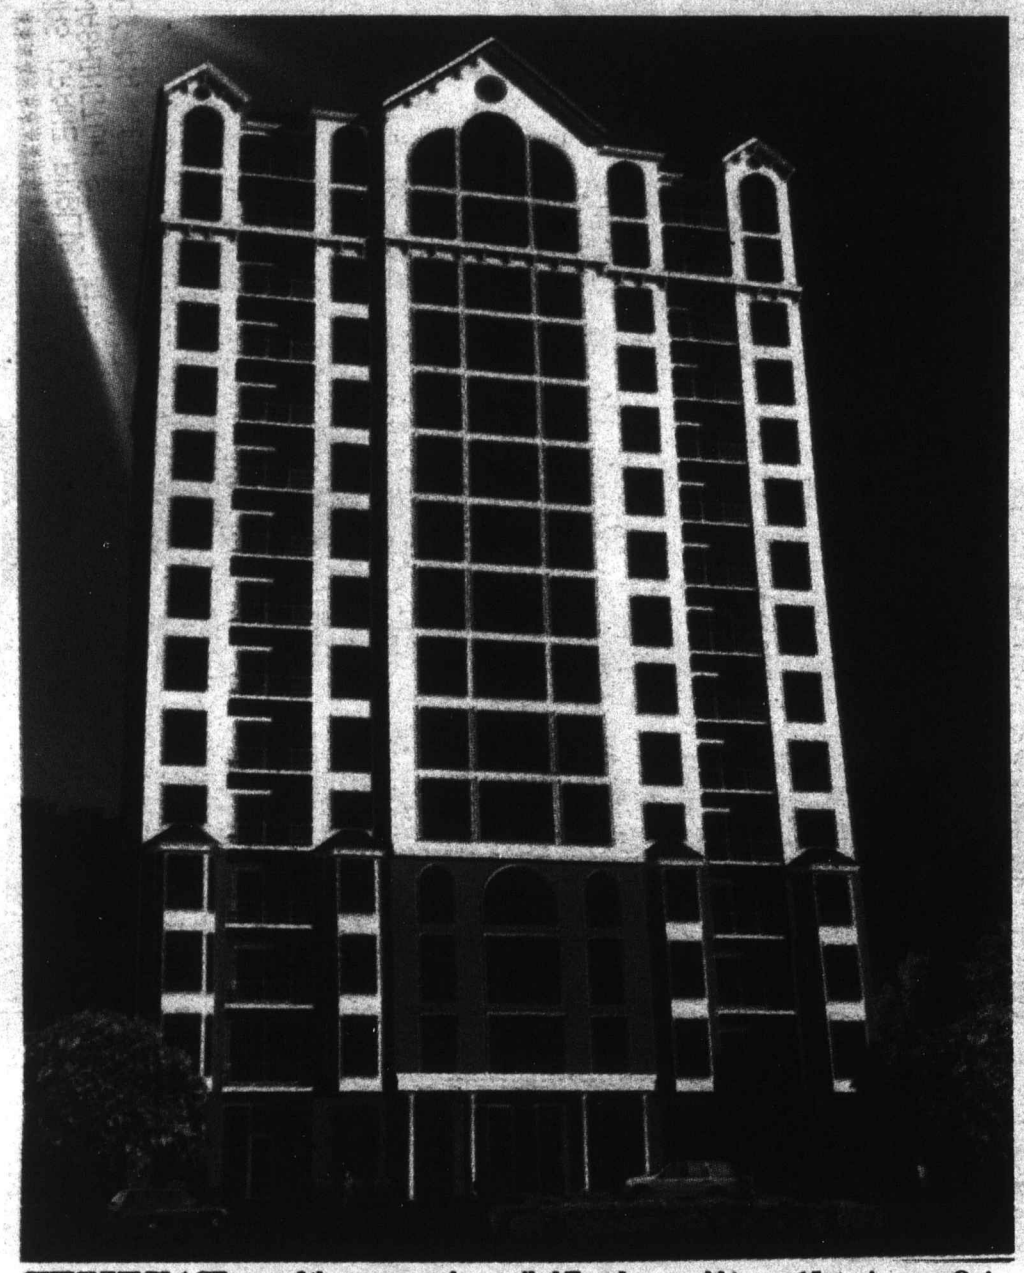
A Look At The Three Major Downtown Projects



CHESNUT PLACE, one of three proposals unveiled Tuesday, would tower 15 stories over Quincy Center. Located in what is now the Hancock Lot, the proposed building would house 122 luxury apartments and commercial space on the ground floor. Peter O'Connell, who has developed Marina Bay, State Street South and Granite Links, is behind the new proposal.

CLIVEDEN PLACE, proposed by Quincy-based Galvcon Development, would feature 48 luxury condos spread between two buildings and 8,000 square feet of commercial space. The buildings would be located on the corner of Hancock Street, Ross Way, and Cliveden Street where Woolworth's was located for many years.

LBC BOSTON plans to construct a 166-room hotel at 1500 Hancock Street, the block beginning at the corner with Cottage Avenue. The hotel's amenities include a swimming pool, breakfast buffet, and conference room. The ground floor would house 10,000 square feet of office and retail space, including a restaurant.

$97M In New Downtown Projects Unveiled

projects unveiled Tuesday, the city plans to build a parking garage with room for 500 to 700 vehicles on the Hancock Lot. It will be paid for by new revenues generated by the developments, according to the mayor.

The new projects worth a combined $97 million represent a major step for the city as it continues to redevelop Quincy Center. They were unveiled just one week after work began on West of Chestnut – a 169-apartment project backed by Quincy Mutual and Gate Residential located in the 1400 block of Hancock Street.

This week's announcement came a little more than a year after Koch terminated the city's agreement with previous master developer Street-Works in March 2014. The mayor said the new proposals would not have happened if Quincy did not undertake infrastructure improvements included in that plan, such as the relocation of Town Brook and Adams Green roadwork, as well as the construction of the Hannon Parkway.

"We wouldn't be here today if we hadn't been doing those infrastructure improvements that led to today. Without the Walter Hannon Parkway on the southern end of this development district, we wouldn't be here today. Without moving the Town Brook that was talked about for decades, we wouldn't be here today. Without the project you see going on out front (Adams Green) with all the traffic reconfiguration, all that infrastructure improvement, we wouldn't be here today," Koch said.

"The projects, the vision, the program we had with our previous developer leveraged tens of millions of dollars in federal and state dollars that put us in a position today where we can begin to execute the vision of our downtown."

O'Connell – who has overseen the development of numerous sites in Quincy, including State Street South, Marina Bay, and Granite Links – is behind the proposal to construct the 15-story luxury apartment building. His development would be sited on a portion of what is now the Hancock Lot.

Known as Chestnut Place, the $45 million apartment building would feature a mix of studio and one- and two-bedroom apartments. The first floor would be used for retail and commercial space with the floors above holding apartments. Each apartment will have luxury finishes and appliances. Most apartments in the building will have nine-foot high ceilings; those on the top two floors would have ceilings 12 feet high.

"This is really where it's happening right now. As the mayor mentioned, all the infrastructure, all the support that's gone into it to get us all to the table was all necessary. We're really looking to getting this done with the city's help and cooperation," O'Connell said.

"It's a great time to get these things done. The window of opportunity is here and we certainly are looking forward to possibly getting in the ground at the end of this year. We'd really push it and try to get a 12-month construction schedule."

O'Connell said he believes his proposal, the oth-

BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN
GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

DIAMOND OR NOT?

Can you tell the difference between a real diamond and a diamond substitute such as cubic zirconia? Perhaps the most well-known distinguishing characteristic is diamond's ability to cut glass. While some of the higher quality faux stones may produce a slight scratch when drawn across a sheet of glass, most will not. If further evidence of diamond's authenticity is needed, simply exhale deeply on the stone. Because diamond is not capable of holding heat, any condensation from your breath will quickly dissipate while cubic zirconia will remain fogged over. In addition, diamond weighs as much as 50 percent less than what a similarly sized cubic zirconia would weigh. If all else fails, a jeweler can readily tell the difference.

One of the most accurate tests gemologists use is still one of the most effective - place the stone on a newspaper. Because a real diamond reflects a lot of light, it's impossible to read letters through it. You will be able to make out letters through many cubic zirconia. If you're looking for a lovely selection of earrings, gemstones, wedding bands, engagement rings, pendants, and watches, you will find it at our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. 'Be Kind Like Keith'

KEITH BOUDREAU

Be kind like Keith.

That's the message family and friends of Keith Boudreau hope will endure following the tragic death of the beloved 42-year-old on Good Friday, April 3. Keith - a Quincy resident and devoted son, brother and father – succumbed after suffering fatal injuries following what police said was an unprovoked attack in a Quincy Center bar March 23.

"My son died in my arms this morning but I know that he's in Heaven," Keith's mother, Kathy Boudreau, said in an interview before a memorial vigil for her son outside the Crane Public Library near dusk April 3. The vigil was attended by some 200 family, friends and other supporters who gathered to remember the kind and considerate Keith who would do anything for anybody.

Keith's tragic death was not the focus at the vigil.

It was a coming together to celebrate his life.

"My son had a smile that would light up a room – he was the light of my life, his sisters' life and everybody he came into contact with. He was just a genuinely good person," Kathy said. "He would walk up to people he didn't know and just make them feel happy. He would do anything for anybody."

Kathy said her son left an indelible impression on everyone he met.

"When you met Keith, you'd walk away saying, 'wow, what a nice kid.' I've met people who would say 'Keith always talks about you and his dad. He is the way he is because of the way he was raised.'

"And I'd say, 'no, no, no . . .' And they would say 'No, he tells everyone he meets that he owes his mother and father a lot thanks for the way he was raised. We gave him a lot of strength and a lot of love. He never lost that. He just loves people."

Keith grew up in Dorchester and attended St. Brendan's School. He graduated from Don Bosco High School in 1991. During his high school years, he lived in the Quincy area.

He loved basketball and cheered for all the Boston sports teams. He also enjoyed all types of music and was a big nature lover, climbing Mount Washington in New Hampshire.

Camping trips were also big for the Boudreaus – experiences that are still fondly remembered today.

"I remember the times we would go camping with the Collins's family when they were young kids. It was all about taking as many kids as we could and loading them into the car and letting them have a ball," Kathy said. "Today, those kids are in their 40s and they still talk about those trips."

Keith also had a terrific sense of humor.

"He'd call up his grandmother and pretend to be a salesman. He'd keep it up until he thought she was going to hang up on him and then he'd say 'Nana, it's Keith," Kathy recalled. "They both would laugh about it."

"He just loved life and he never hurt a soul," his mom added.

But Keith also had a serious side.

When he was in high school, he and his late father, Bill, sold newspapers in the early morning – including school days.

"The would go out at 4 a.m. in the morning selling newspapers and when Keith got home to get ready to go to high school, he had no shirt on," his mother remembered. "He would peel his clothes off and give them to the homeless. That's how he was his whole life. We all come into this world bare-naked and we grow into who we become, and you have to give the love back.

"He didn't care if you had two cents or $200,000. That was just the way he was."

Keith's sister, Tanya Nelson, recalled her brother as a loving, generous person.

"Keith had the biggest heart. He was an optimist and he was genuine. And I think everyone here speaks to that," she said, fighting back tears as a dark gray sky turned towards nightfall. "It means the world to us that everyone is here."

The memorial was a testament to the love and fondness people shared for Keith. Organized just the day before, organizers used local and social media to spread the word about the vigil.

Those who turned out embraced family members and offered their condolences on the loss of Keith. Some held signs bearing Keith's face and happy smile. Other signs expressed messages of sympathy including "Rest In Peace Keith." A host of red and green balloons were also released into the sky.

The crowd then slowly moved towards the library's Richardson Building. On the front steps were Kathy, Tanya and a close family friend, Tom Saccardo. With them was Mayor Thomas Koch who was asked by the family to lead the gathering in prayer.

"Tonight we come to pray with Kathy and Tanya and Keith's family and for the soul of Keith. We should continue to pray for Keith. We also pray for all those around this issue, who witnessed this terrible, terrible act of violence and tragedy.

"We should also continue to pray for peace," the mayor continued. "Peace within us, peace around us and peace in the entire world. We continue to see all across the world violence in many shapes and forms of all ages, all types and all religions."

The outpouring of emotion and love was comforting for the Boudreau family.

"I know Keith is now in Heaven with God," his mom said. "He was such a good person that before he passed, he was just halfway there. I know so many people were lifting him and taking him home and I take great comfort in that.

"Tonight was very important to me even if Keith hadn't passed. My daughter and I struggled with that. We didn't want to leave his side. We wanted to go to the vigil tonight to recognize all the love that he had."

April 3 would have also marked the 67th birthday of Keith's dad. Bill Boudreau died Dec. 15, 2004 follow-

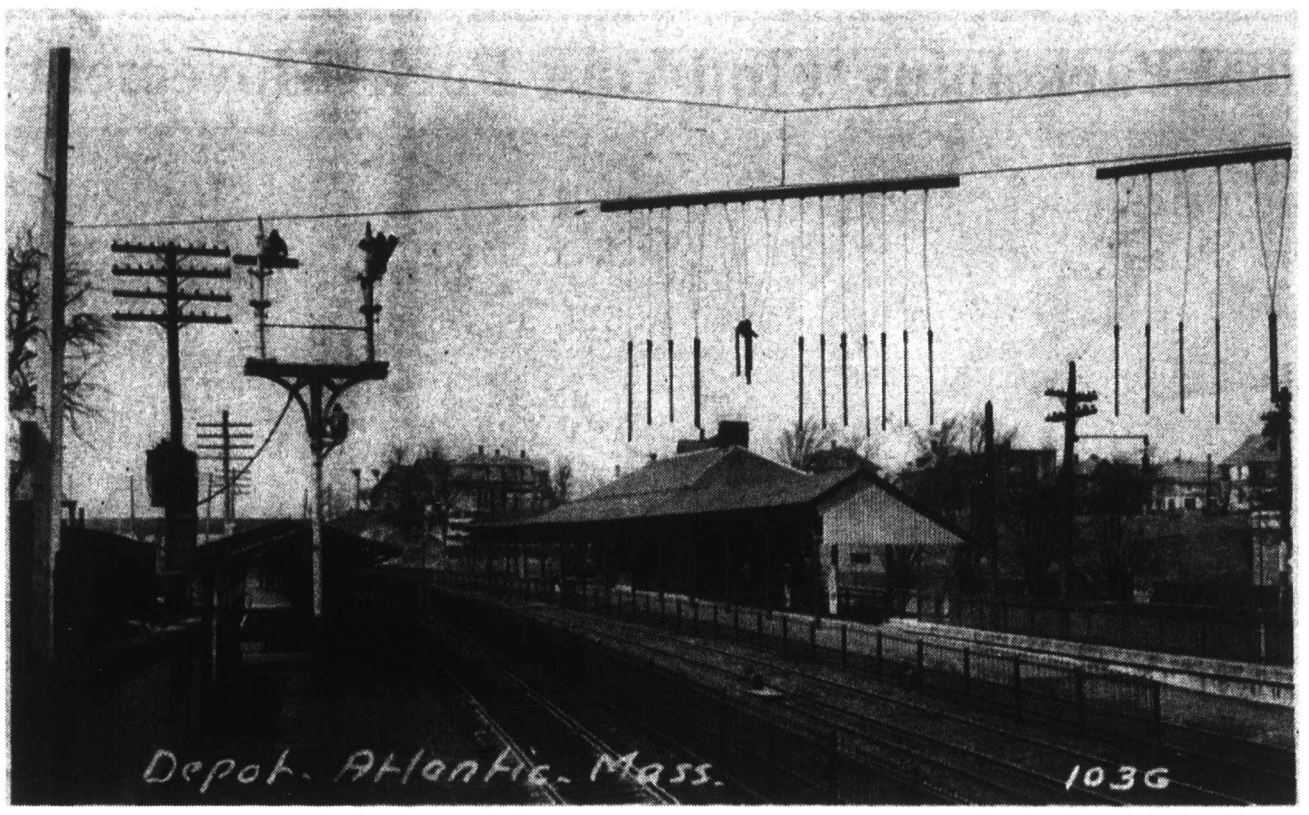
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS IS A 1925 real photo postcard view of the old Atlantic railroad depot looking north on the Old Colony Line in North Quincy. The railroad was built in 1845 and the first depot on this site was actually in Dorchester. This part of Dorchester, south of the Neponset River, was known as the Farms and wasn't annexed to Quincy until 1855. The Atlantic section got its name from Atlantic Street which was the first road to run from Hancock Street to the ocean. Houses on both Billings and Atlantic Streets can be seen in the background. Notice the four-track mainline, the fences kept pedestrians away from the center express tracks. The hanging wires alerted trainmen on top of the trains of the upcoming truss bridge on Hancock Street. Today, the site of this old depot lies in the southbound lane of the Commander Shea Boulevard that runs parallel to the tracks along here. The postcard was published by Quincy photographer Henry Frink. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

77 Tons Of Paper Recycled In One Week

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence P. Chretien, chairman of the Recycling Committee, reported that recent developments in the city's curbside paper recycling program indicate that further progress is being made.

First, 77 tons of paper was recycled the week of March 26 through March 30. Chretien said the total is the most paper recycled during a "B" week, since the program began last May.

Secondly, a paper drop-off center has been established for residents behind the David S. McIntosh Public Works building at 55 Sea St.

Thirdly, recycling with city owned buildings has begun. Office and computer paper is being collected at the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

CHENEY PROPOSES BUILDING OFFICE OPEN ONE NIGHT

Councillor at-Large Michael Cheney has asked Mayor James Sheets to consider opening the Building Inspector's office one night a week during the spring and summer months in order to make the department more accessible to residents.

Cheney has proposed the department be opened Thursdays from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. for residents, to allow them to seek advice regarding property improvements and to obtain building permits.

Urges Residents To Consider Solar Energy Program

Reading your recent articles about Solarize Quincy makes me think about my own investment in solar. Based on my family's experience, I would urge any residents considering solar to check out Solarize Quincy and see if the program meets your needs.

Nowadays I smile every day the sun shines and reflect on the reasons I've gone solar. Starting about two years ago, our home has been a solar electric power station, with 19 rooftop panels cranking out six kilowatts. (In support of Solarize Quincy I'll be hosting a "solar open house" on April 18 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at 49 Hodgkinson St.)

Even though I have a hassle-free solar lease agreement, which doesn't bring quite the same rewards as owning the panels outright would, I'm still saving hundreds every year on the cost of electricity.

What's more, my maintenance-free panels are adding resale and/or inherited value to the house.

Most importantly for me, for the next 20 years all the electricity I get from the sun comes without CO2, which substantially lowers my family's contribution to climate change.

How important is it for me to be on the right side of this issue? Let me tell you a story:

Growing up after World War II, I asked my parents, "What did you do during the war?" Being 4-F, my dad volunteered to be an air raid warden, and my mom wired motors for PT boats. They did their share in achieving our victory.

Someday, a child may ask you, "What did you do during the warming?" I have my answer ready. What will be yours?

She's Supporting Anne Mahoney For Mayor

Quincy is at a crossroads. In just the past few years, we've seen our downtown demolished, our flood insurance premiums skyrocket, our hospital close and the city's drug problem reach epidemic proportions. And through all of this, our mayor and city council have just seemed to go along, not wanting to take a stand or make the tough decisions needed to protect Quincy residents.

That's why I'm voting for Anne Mahoney for mayor.

Anne is the only candidate running who has a record of standing up and speaking out for the people. Who successfully led the charge for free, full-day kindergarten? Anne Mahoney. Who fought to restore the mayor's cuts to the Quincy Public School budget? Anne Mahoney. And who was the only elected official to warn that Tom Koch's downtown redevelopment plan was more pipe dream than practical plan? Anne Mahoney.

On Day One of her campaign, Anne released a detailed, positive plan to create a better Quincy. But Quincy won't get better without new leadership. After the "go along to get along" culture of the past several years, we need a decisive new mayor. We need a mayor who is capable of making the sound decisions and the tough calls that will improve the quality of life for all Quincy residents. We need Mayor Anne Mahoney!

Remembering Michael Jovanovic

When I read the obituaries last week, I noticed the passing of Michael Jovanovic at age 94.

His obituary was quite lengthy as he had done many things in his long life. I remember meeting him back in 1995 twenty years ago when he and I were among the candidates for the Quincy School Committee back then.

He was quite an interesting character. I remembered all of his college degrees, his fluency in several languages and his having been a professor at Harvard University. He was probably smarter than the whole rest of that school committee candidates combined. I saw him as an intellectual but he was one of the nicest men I ever met in my life. He really believed in himself and what he could offer others. He wasn't running to build up his name or resume, he ran to help school age parents at that time.

He led a life worth living and for that I will remember him. He didn't just exist, he lived. I almost forgot until I got to the end of his obituary about his love of chickens. Another part of his life that made him a character too.

I will also remember Michael. I can't see anyone ever calling him Mike as the only political opponent I beat on the ballot 20 years ago. We both lost that year but I did get 2,132 votes finishing fifth out of sixth place. For that I thank Michael too. May he rest in peace.

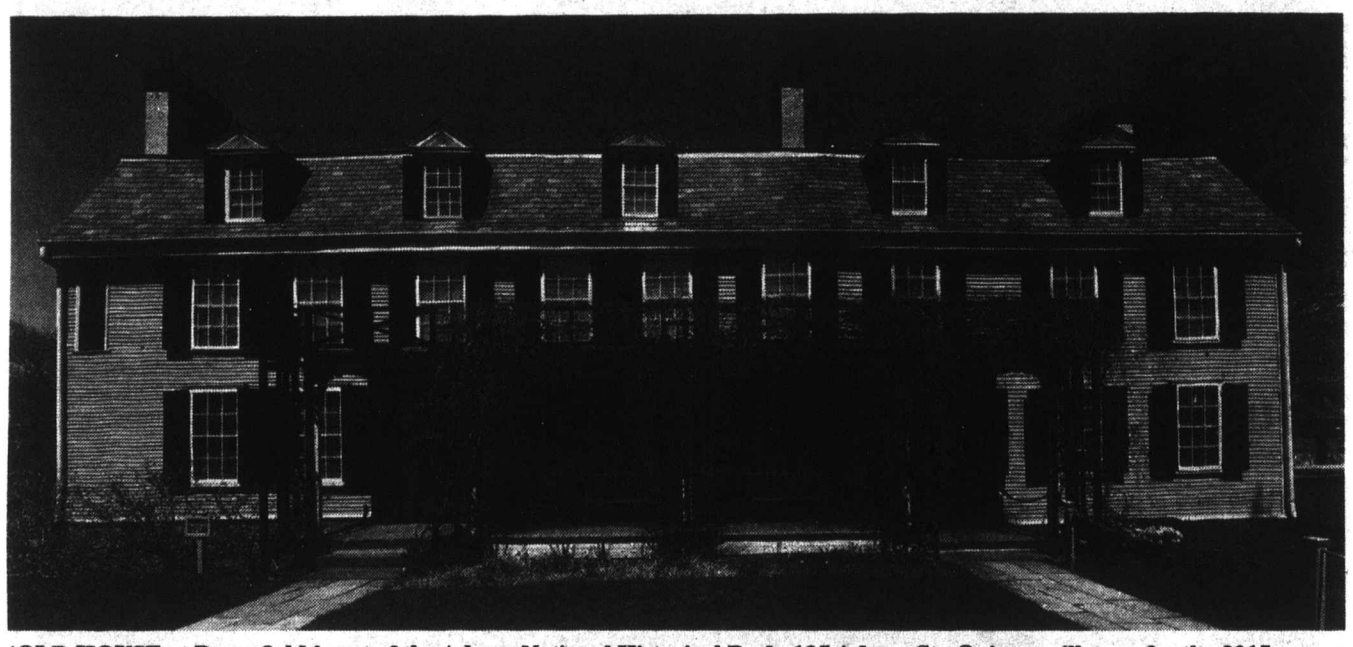
Adams National Historical Park Joins 'Find Your Park' Movement

Historic Site Opens April 19



'OLD HOUSE at Peace field,' part of the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy, will open for the 2015 season Sunday, April 19. The "Old House" was home to four generations of the distinguished Adams family.

Adams National Historical Park joins parks, programs and partners across the country to encourage the public to find their park and share their stories online at FindYourPark.com.

Launched by the National Park Service and the National Park Foundation, Find Your Park is a public awareness and education campaign celebrating the milestone centennial anniversary of the National Park Service in 2016 and setting the stage for its second century of service.

Find Your Park invites the public to see that a national park can be more than a place -- it can be a feeling, a state of mind, or a sense of American pride. Beyond vast landscapes, the campaign highlights historical, urban, and cultural parks, as well as the National Park Service programs that protect, preserve and share nature, culture, and history in communities nationwide.

"Find Your Park" is also the theme for this year's National Park Week, April 18 – 26. On Sunday, April 19th, the Adams National Historical Park will open for the 2015 season. Walk in the footsteps of Patriots, Presidents, Diplomats, Writers, and Historians touring the John Adams and John Quincy Adams Birthplaces and the "Old House at Peace field;" home to four generations of the distinguished Adams family.

Children ages 6-8 years and 9 and up can pick up a Junior Ranger booklet at the Visitor Center and, upon completion, earn a Junior Ranger badge.

The historic homes will be open for tours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week, including holidays, from April 19 through Nov. 10.

Tickets for tours of the homes may be purchased at the Visitor Center, located in the Galleria at 1250 Hancock Street in Quincy Center where free validated parking is available on the 4th and 5th floors in the Galleria Parking Garage.

The park's trolley bus leaves the Visitor Center for the historic homes throughout the day; the first trolley leaves at 9:15 a.m. and the last trolley leaves the Visitor Center at 3:15 p.m. Tickets are sold on a first-come, first served basis and tour size is limited for the protection of the historic resources and the comfort and safety of visitors to the homes.

Large bags and backpacks are not permitted in the homes and storage for bags and backpacks is not available.

Tickets are $5 each for adults aged 16 and over. Children aged 15 and under are admitted free. National Park Service passes are also accepted and may be purchased at the Visitor Center. Admission to Adams National Historical Park, and all 407 national parks, will be free on Sunday, April 19 during National Park Week. Visit www.NationalParkWeek.org to learn more about joining parks, programs, and partners in celebrating National Park Week across the country.

Ella Fitzgerald, the "Queen of Jazz," known for her scatting style, had a vocal range spanning three octaves. Other great jazz icons include Dizzy Gillespie, Benny Goodman, Louis Armstrong, Herbie Hancock, and Wynton Marsalis.

These jazz greats not only have music in common, but they either received, receive, or will be eligible to receive Social Security retirement benefits. Wynton Marsalis, at age 53, is approaching retirement. Herbie Hancock, at age 74, is already old enough to receive full Social Security retirement benefits. A lot of planning and preparation made these artists successful. If you want to be successful in your retirement years, financial planning is important for hitting all the high notes.

You don't have to scat like Ella, or blow your horn like Wynton, Dizzy, and Louis, to plan for retirement. If you're making retirement plans, you'll want to visit Social Security's website to use our retirement planner at www.socialsecurity.gov/retire. You'll find detailed information about your Social Security retirement and what you may want to consider as you prepare for your future.

Our Retirement Estimator at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator will give you an instant, personalized estimate of your future benefits. You can plug in different retirement ages and scenarios to help you make a decision. If you're ready to apply for retirement benefits, just go online at www.socialsecurity.gov/applyonline.

Creating a secure my Social Security account at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount is another way to fine tune your retirement. Your account will allow you to verify your posted earnings and get retirement estimates for ages 62, 67, and 70. Opening a my Social Security account is safe, easy, and only takes a few minutes.

Louis Armstrong's "What a Wonderful World" may come to mind as you visit our website at www.socialsecurity.gov to jazz up your retirement planning!

'Irish Hearts For Orphans' Benefit Dance April 19

NPH USA, formerly Friends of the Orphans, will hold its sixth annual "Irish Hearts for Orphans" event Sunday, April 19 from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Boston Marriott Quincy.

The event began after the tragic earthquake in Haiti in January of 2010. Since then, it has evolved to support NPH homes in Haiti as well as Bolivia, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, and Peru.

The evening will feature live musical entertainment provided by Irish bands Comhaltas Ceoltoiri Eireann, Erin's Melody and Noel Henry's Irish Show Band.

Danielle Vollmar of WCVB 5 will serve as the emcee for the event which will also include a performance by Irish step dancers from the Haley School of Irish Dance, a special guest speaker from NPH, local vendors, Caribbean cruise raffle, and plenty of silent auction and raffle prizes.

This year at the event , retired Chief Robert Faherty (Cops for Kids with Cancer), Sr. Marguerite Kelly (Irish Pastoral Center) and the late Dan McAuliffe (Saint Elizabeth Parish, Milton) will be honored for their dedication to improving the lives of children in need.

NPH USA is dedicated to transforming the lives of orphaned, abandoned and disadvantaged children by creating families for life, enabling children to transcend poverty and grow into caring, productive members of their communities. Every day, NPH USA supports more than 3,300 children permanently residing in their homes. An additional 1,800 students who live outside the homes receive scholarships, meals and health care. Since its founding in 1954, NPH has assisted over 18,000 children and serve over 100,000 annually through their outreach programs.

"The love there is extraordinary; I have never before received so many hugs from so many kids at the same time," said regional board member Winnie Henry after a trip to see NPH programs in Honduras and Haiti. "It was a tremendous gift to visit the homes and meet the incredible volunteers and beautiful children there."

For further information or to make a donation, visit www.irishheartsfororphans.com, or contact NPH USA at (617) 206-4943 or 265 Willard St., 3rd Floor, Quincy, MA 02169.

Spring Into A Stress-Free Retirement

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

April has arrived, and spring is here! As we say "goodbye" to winter weather hardships and "hello" to gardens budding with vibrant color, we welcome the season by celebrating Stress Awareness Month.

Social Security Online Services ★ Convenient ★ Secure ★
www.socialsecurity.gov

Did you know that stress, also called the "silent killer," could cause heart disease and high blood pressure? Recognizing the sources of stress is the best way to understand how you can start eliminating factors in your life that put unnecessary strain on your body and mind.

Social Security wants to make your retirement planning as stress-free as possible, which is why we have a number of online tools available for you. You can create your own secure, personal my Social Security account from the comfort of your living room and avoid unpleasant traffic and a possible long wait in one of our field offices. Once you have a my Social Security account, you can view your Social Security Statement, verify your earnings record, and find out what to expect in monthly benefits if you retire at ages 62, 67, or 70. Once you begin receiving Social Security benefits, you can use my Social Security to check your benefit information, change your address and phone number, change your electronic payment method, and obtain an instant benefit verification letter and replacement SSA-1099/1042S.

You can easily sign up for my Social Security at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

If you're thinking about retiring at an age not shown on your Statement, reduce the stress of the unknown by using our Retirement Estimator. The Retirement Estimator allows you to calculate your potential future Social Security benefits by changing variables such as retirement dates and future earnings. You may discover that you'd rather wait another year or two before you retire to earn a higher benefit. Or, you might see that this is the season for you to kiss that work stress goodbye and retire right now. To get instant, personalized estimates of your future benefits, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator.

When you decide it's time to start receiving your retirement benefits, the application process is far less stressful now that you're prepared. You can securely apply online without picking up the phone or leaving your house. Simply go to www.socialsecurity.gov/applyonline, and, in as little as 15 minutes, you can breeze through our online retirement application.

Our website and online tools are always available. You can enjoy Social Security's stress-free retirement planning tools any time of the year, giving you more time to enjoy these warmer months. Doesn't that put a spring in your step?

Chicken Pot Pie Turnovers

By MARIE

Chicken pot pie is one of those so called "comfort foods" which is a family favorite – mine too!

Recently, I decided to try making them as a turnover and was very pleased at how they came out, plus how much easier to serve as an individual piece. And if there are any leftovers, they can be heated in the toaster oven.

I used boneless chicken thighs, but chicken breast can also be used.

CHICKEN POT PIE TURNOVERS

2-3 boneless chicken thighs (cooked and cut)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 egg for the egg wash
1 frozen package of mix vegetables containing carrots, peas and corn
1 cup cooked broccoli (optional)
1-2 pie crusts (store bought or made from scratch)

Preheat oven to 375 degrees

Cook the chicken whichever way you prefer. It can be boiled, baked or sautéed. I sautéed it with a little oil.

In the meantime, melt the butter and add the flour making a roux. Add the milk and cook until thickened. Set aside.

Cut up the chicken, and add to the sauce. Cook the frozen vegetables according to directions, and add to the sauce. The sauce will be thick, because it will go nicely for a turnover.

Place the pie crusts on a board or top and cut the size you want for a turnover. Place the mixture in the center and secure the edges with a fork.

With a brush, egg wash all of the turnovers, with a couple of slits with a knife. Place on a cookie sheet with parchment paper and bake until golden.

Herb Salted Fingerling Potatoes

By SUZIE

Using fresh herbs really makes a difference in your cooking. When you purchase them, just roll them in paper towels and put them in a baggie until ready to use, to extend the life longer than if you just tossed them in the refrigerator.

Here is a recipe using fresh rosemary and thyme, but you can also use fresh parsley, or any other fresh herb that you tend to buy. Using them at the end of the recipe ensures a nice fresh flavor so make sure you add them like the recipe says, in the last 5 minutes of cooking. Enjoy!

HERB SALTED FINGERLING POTATOES

2 large sage leaves chopped
1 teaspoon chopped fresh rosemary, and 1 teaspoon thyme leaves chopped
2 teaspoons sea salt
About 4 lbs of fingerling potatoes
3 tablespoons olive oil and 1 tablespoon unsalted butter (melted)

Preheat the oven to 425°. Combine salt with chopped herbs in a small bowl.

In a large bowl, toss the potatoes with the oil and butter and season with pepper. Spread the potatoes in a single layer on 2 large rimmed baking sheets and roast for 25 minutes.

Season the potatoes generously with the herb salt, toss well and continue baking for 5 minutes, or until the potatoes are tender and golden.

Sweet & Sour Chicken Stir Fry

By MARIE

I was beginning to make a chicken stir fry and had bought some peaches that looked pretty good. However, when I began to taste them, they weren't juicy or very sweet.

But I decided to use them with the stir fry and they turned out sweet and caramelized when I finished this recipe. You certainly don't have to use the peaches, as the stir fry alone is okay.

SWEET & SOUR STIR FRY

2 boneless chicken thighs
5-6 small red and yellow peppers (these come in a bag in the market)
1 small onion
1/3 cup white wine
2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 large peach (diced) (optional)

In the hot oil, sauté the onion, peppers, the chicken and the peaches. Add the wine and the apple cider vinegar and cook until chicken is done and tender. This will take from 15 to 20 minutes stirring until well blended.

P. S. If you can't find the small peppers, you can certainly use any other peppers.

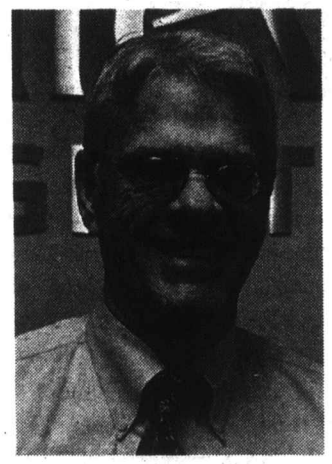
Symptoms And Treatments

Caring For You And Your Family's Allergies

By DR. JACK CORNWELL



DR. JACK CORNWELL

Now that spring has finally arrived, the days are starting to get longer, the temperatures are edging up and we are all spending more time outside. But not all signs of spring are welcome ones – the change in seasons also means allergy suffering for many. Whether you're allergic to plant pollen, ragweed or any of the other million microscopic substances that can turn you into a sneezing, stuffy mess, it's important to understand how allergies affect you when spring has sprung.

The first step in allergy care is determining what you are actually experiencing. Is it in fact allergies, or is it a cold? If you are having an allergy attack, is it related to the environment or food? These are important questions because the treatment for each of these scenarios is different. Here are some tips and tricks for differentiating between a cold, seasonal and food related allergies, and some advice that I share with my CareWell Urgent Care patients about allergy season.

What are allergies?

When people with allergies are exposed to irritants, the symptoms can appear very similar to those of the common cold. However, a cold is a virus that you pick up from the external world. Allergies are a different story. Your immune system is supposed to keep harmful substances out of your body and destroy them if they happen to make it in. However, your immune system is not foolproof and, from time to time, it will identify an otherwise normal substance like pollen and instantaneously attack it. This is why allergy attacks can come on so abruptly - as soon as an allergen hits you, your immune system automatically overreacts.

Symptoms

Different allergies often have similar symptoms. Parents should watch their children's habits closely to see what is triggering the reaction. Because the immune system will keep attacking harmless substances like pollen and pet dander as long as they're present, you can't just wait for your allergies to get better like a cold. You might not even be able to wait your allergies out, as the symptoms can last indefinitely if you live in an area loaded with allergen-producing sources, such as large tracts of flowering gardens or pets that shed in mass quantities.

Many people find relief from allergies through over-the-counter medications, but if you're not sure what you're even allergic to in the first place, CareWell's urgent care centers can help you identify the cause of your discomfort. You may even be sensitive to multiple substances, so it's important to get tested by an allergist so you can avoid these in the future.

Children and allergies

Allergies in young children are commonly identified by a rash, like hives, eczema, or another type of allergic reaction that affects the skin. Older children tend to have symptoms that affect their respiratory systems. Parents should be aware of the warning signs, which include wheezing, coughing and shortness of breath. Allergies can also cause intestinal symptoms in children, especially in the form of cramps or diarrhea.

The most common allergies in young children are food allergies, particularly milk, eggs and soy. The most common environmental allergies are dust mites, pollen and mold. It is also important to remember that many allergies are hereditary. Chances are, if both parents are allergic to something, their child will be as well.

Some kids do outgrow their allergies. Food allergies are the most commonly outgrown. In fact, most children outgrow many allergies to milk, eggs or soy that they might have experienced as a toddler. Children are less likely to outgrow seasonal allergies like pollen. Remember, just as a child might outgrow an allergy, a person can also develop new ones as they age.

Treatment through avoidance

The number one way to minimize allergy symptoms is by avoiding the allergen. If you are allergic to pollen, for example, try to minimize exposure to the outdoors and refrain from leaving the windows open. Hand washing is also an important step. If you do happen to go outside in the spring, make sure to wash your hands as pollen may have gotten stuck to you.

Seasonal allergies may not be debilitating, but they can affect your concentration at work, interfere with sleep at home and cause you to become irritable toward others. Don't let allergies ruin your spring this year and visit a CareWell urgent care center today to prepare yourself for seasonal allergies.

Dr. Jack Cornwell is the Medical Director for Quincy-based CareWell Urgent Care.

No Bail For Defendant In Murder Case

DA: Quincy Man Died Of Blunt Force Trauma To Head After 'Brutal Attack' In Bar

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Germantown man charged with murder after allegedly attacking a man at a Quincy Center bar last month was held without bail following his arraignment Monday.

Paul J. Fahey of Lind Street was arraigned just after 11 a.m. Monday on the murder charge at Quincy District Court. Fahey, 42, pleaded not guilty to the charge. Mark Coven, the court's presiding justice, ordered Fahey held without bail. The defendant is due back in court April 30 for a status hearing.

Prosecutors allege Fahey attacked Keith W. Boudreau on March 23 inside the Home Ice Sports Bar at 35 Washington Street. At Monday's arraignment, Assistant District Attorney Craig Kowalski said Fahey punched Boudreau in the head then stomped on him while on the ground before dragging him through the bar's kitchen into a back alley. Kowalski described it as a "brutal attack" and said the victim did nothing to provoke it.

The alleged assault occurred just after 8 p.m. on March 23, according to a criminal complaint filed Saturday. The complaint includes summaries of interviews with three witnesses who were inside the bar that night; all three told Quincy police detectives they saw Fahey punch Boudreau in the face and then stomp on his head while he was on the ground. They then told detectives Fahey and one of the witnesses dragged Boudreau through the kitchen and into the alley while the victim was unconscious, which was also recorded on surveillance video.

While outside, two of the witnesses told investigators Fahey dumped water on Boudreau to wake him up, according to the complaint. Fahey then went back into the bar while the witnesses stayed with Boudreau until he was taken away by ambulance.

Kowalski said Monday that Fahey was seen outside the bar bragging about the incident on surveillance video shot in front of the bar. The complaint stated Fahey was reenacting what occurred inside the bar and can be seen throwing a punch while talking to two male parties. They then got into a dark Lincoln and left the area.

One of the witnesses told detectives he didn't come forward at first because he was "scared for [his] life," according to the complaint. He told investigators Fahey was a dangerous person and a member of The Outlaws motorcycle gang.

Boudreau – a father of two sons, ages 15 and 8 – was first taken to Quincy Medical Center before being transferred to Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston when doctors discovered a brain bleed after he lost consciousness a second time, according to the complaint. He was taken off life support last week and died April 3.

An autopsy performed Saturday determined Boudreau died from blunt force trauma to the head, Kowalski said.

Fahey was arrested March 26 on two assault charges while Boudreau was still alive.

Following the arrest, he pleaded not guilty to one count each of assault and battery resulting in serious bodily injury and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. Fahey was held without bail pending a dangerousness hearing April 2. Before that hearing could be held, Fahey stipulated to the state's motion that he be held without bail as a dangerous person, according to prosecutors.

Fahey's black 1999 Lincoln Continental was searched subsequent to his arrest. Inside the vehicle, the complaint said investigators found a black "bully squad" baseball hat witnesses reported Fahey was wearing while at the bar on March 23. Swabs were taken inside the vehicle and sent to a lab for further analysis.

Quincy College Seeks To Award 4-Year Degrees

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy College is seeking permission from Beacon Hill to begin awarding four-year degrees to the school's graduates.

The college's board of governors voted unanimously on March 26 to request permission from the state to award baccalaureate degrees to graduates, according to a letter written by college president Peter Tsaffaras. The state legislature must approve a home rule petition before the college can take steps to award those degrees.

The home rule petition was introduced at Monday's City Council meeting and referred to the ordinance committee for further discussion. The committee will meet at 6 p.m. on April 27, prior to the next regular council meeting.

Tsaffaras will present the college's plan to confer the four-year degrees at the ordinance meeting, according to Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, the committee's chairman.

Quincy College currently awards associate degrees to its graduates in 32 different majors. Fifteen certificate programs are also available. More than 4,600 students are enrolled in courses at the school, according to the college's website, including 2,682 full-time students.

Quincy College first opened in 1958 and has a main campus in Quincy Center. A second campus in Plymouth opened in 1991. Online courses are also available.

Quincy College is municipally-owned though it is funded and operates independent of the city. It is the only municipally-owned college or university in Massachusetts.

$4.5 Million Needed For City Hall Project

an $18 million bond to pay for renovations of both Old City Hall and the Coddington Building in June 2012. The work at Old City Hall was expected to cost $8.2 million at that time.

Edwards, the president of architectural firm Holmes & Edwards, outlined the problems in the 171-year-old building's structure in a letter delivered to city councillors Monday night. The four corners of the building, he explained, were coming apart.

"The granite foundation was found to be in very poor condition. The full extent of the deterioration became known when the exterior of the building was unearthed for the purpose of waterproofing the foundation. When the interior plaster was removed it was discovered that the four corners of this 1844 monument to the Quincy granite industry had to be reinforced as they were literally coming apart at each intersection," Edwards wrote.

"These and other similar indicators of a building in need of serious attention were brought to evidence only after construction was underway and the structural systems exposed and analyzed. This is not an out of the ordinary situation where preservation efforts of this scope occur on such an old building.

"Our structural engineering consultants were surprised at the level of deterioration, but were relieved that remedies could be designed before more serious damage occurred."

Edwards also noted the building's structure was in danger of failing had the project not gone forward when it did.

"The fact that this preservation effort commenced in the last year or so has, in this firm's estimation, literally saved this wonderfully historic and important Quincy edifice from either structural failure or from a potential debilitating fire caused by old and badly deteriorated electrical wiring systems," Edwards wrote.

A September 2014 fire – caused by someone using a torch in an attempt to open a plastic tool shed inside the building – did set back completion of the project until this June or July. Nauset Construction, the contractor for the project, has agreed to pay for damages caused by the fire through the company's insurance policy.

Three Major Projects Unveiled For Quincy Center Revitalization

ers introduced Tuesday, and West of Chestnut will jumpstart development in the downtown.

"We've seen the redevelopment of Quincy Center falter and now it's being picked up by all the individual local players, who are happy to be involved," O'Connell stated.

"The Galvins have done a great job. Quincy Mutual is a great, great corporate asset to the city. We've done a number of things around the center. We have a new player in Alex and his team. So I'm very optimistic this is really the first charge. The rest should roll along nice and easy."

O'Connell added that he is happy to be working on a project in the city his company calls home.

"If this was Braintree, we wouldn't be doing it," he said. "There is only one reason: Quincy is our home. There is no denying that."

O'Connell said he is optimistic about finding the financing for his project.

"We have a long history of financing," O'Connell said. "We'll be going back to our old sources. The enemy is obviously a robust economy. We're hoping things to stay calm for four to six months and we're able to lock in our long-term rates. We're hopeful to push this along as fast as we can."

Galvcon Development, another Quincy-based company, is proposing to build the 48-unit condo development. Known as Cliveden Place, the two-building project would sit at the corner of Hancock Street, Cliveden Street, and the Ross Way in a site previously occupied by Woolworth's. The buildings located there currently need to be razed before construction can begin.

The building on Hancock Street will house The Shoppes at Cliveden, featuring 8,000 square feet of retail space on the ground level fronted by a 120-foot exterior colonnade. A marble lobby will lead to the 24 condos on the four floors up above. A 22-vehicle parking lot will sit in the rear of the building.

The second building on Ross Way will include two levels of parking with room for 36 vehicles. A two-story glass atrium will serve as a lobby to the 24 condos on the top four floors.

The condos will have two and three bedrooms. Each unit will have 10-foot high ceilings, eight-foot tall windows and open floor plans featuring hardwood floors, stainless steel appliances, in-unit laundry, European cabinets with contemporary stone countertops and a master en suite with a soaking bath.

"We're doing this as a condominium project. We believe the opportunity and the desire are definitely going to be there for Quincy people in particular who want to own a piece of the downtown. This will be their first opportunity to do that," Galvin said.

"We just think this is the time. We absolutely believe the work that has been done ahead of the time – the infrastructure is there, the new roadway gives us great access – the walk to the T makes this an opportune location for people who want to live in the city of Quincy and want to live in the new downtown.

"The excitement West of Chestnut brings, Chestnut Place brings, the new hotel brings, we really feel this is going to be a very attractive place for people to make an investment and make a home."

The project is expected to cost $27 million and Galvin said financing is in place. The first phase of the project – demolition of the existing buildings – could begin this fall. A sales center will be open next spring.

Allston-based LBC Boston is proposing the hotel envisioned for the 1500 block of Hancock Street. The project would include 10,000 square feet of office and retail space on the ground floor, as well as a lobby for the hotel. The 116 hotel rooms – 33 suites and 83 studios – would be located on the five floors above. The hotel will include an indoor swimming pool, conference room, and breakfast buffet. Part of the ground level retail space will be used for a restaurant/bar.

The hotel project is estimated to cost $25 million, which Matov said has already been secured. LBC Boston is working with a consulting firm to determine which brand the hotel will operate under.

The land at the 1500 block is just one of several parcels LBC Boston – founded by Matov and Andrian Shapiro – has acquired in recent years; the firm has purchased more than $23 million worth of property in Quincy Center.

"One thing that's important for us to make sure we're heading in the right direction and recognizing the potential is to see the vision and making sure there is strong leadership in front of that vision," Matov said. "I think those are two very

$600,000 Approved For Dorchester Street Repaving

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday night unanimously approved allocating $600,000 to repave Squantum's Dorchester Street.

The $600,000 will provide for the repaving of Dorchester Street between East Squantum Street and Shoreham Road. The money was appropriated from the city's water stabilization fund; the road repaving will take place after the water main under the street is replaced.

"Everybody that drives Dorchester knows the road is falling apart," Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said. "We're going to be able to fix a water main and avail ourselves to an opportunity to resurface the road. I think this is a welcome resurfacing of Dorchester. I'm very happy this is happening."

Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the repaving project will commence this spring.

High Tea At Kennedy Center

The Quincy Council on Aging will host its annual High Tea on Friday, May 8th at noon.

A light lunch will be served and entertainment will be provided by the Uptown Girls.

Tickets are required for this event and are available at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy. Suggested donation is $5. Space is limited.

For more information, call (617) 376-1506.

Meat Raffle Friday At Knights Of Columbus

The Knights of Columbus monthly Meat Raffle will be held Friday evening, April 9th at the Council Hall located at 5 Hollis Ave. in North Quincy.

The raffle is part of the council's scholarship fund drive for local students going off to first year of higher education. This month's raffle is sponsored by School Committee Member Noel DiBona with the Culinary Arts Program at Quincy High School cooking the dinner.

The KofC is partnering with the Culinary Arts program to endow a scholarship to a student who is continuing on their education in the field.

Dinner is served at 6:30 p.m. and the raffle starts at 7 p.m.

important components we have here in the city."

The new hotel may be sited on a portion of the Hancock Lot, Koch said, which would allow the building to be pushed further in off the street to allow for wider sidewalks and more trees.

"What we've asked the developer to consider is if they would push the building back toward the lot more and we perhaps could accommodate some of that land so we could have that café type seating in the front with wide sidewalks and more room for amenities and trees," the mayor explained.

If a portion of the Hancock Lot is used for the new hotel, the City Council would need to approve the disposition of that land. The council also needs to approve the disposition of land to O'Connell for his 15-story building.

The mayor said formal proposals could be before the council in a matter of weeks. He hopes the council approves those agreements prior to recessing for the summer at the end of June.

"I'm respectful of the process and I'm respectful of that body. The City Council worked very hard with the administration over the previous number of votes, whether it was zoning, whether it was the Urban Redevelopment District, whether it was the plan with the former developer. They want success as much as we want success," Koch said when asked if had a message for the council.

"My guess is they're anxious and willing to see this through in a swift way. The reality is people have been talking about redevelopment of the downtown for 50 years, so I don't think anybody has any interest in slowing this down."

Galvcon Development's project is sited entirely on private land and does not entail the disposition of public land.

All three projects require Planning Board approval before construction can begin.

OBITUARIES

Funeral Mass Saturday For Keith Boudreau

Healthy Ideas For Healthy Kids

Advice From Stop & Shop Nutritionist

By JULIE HERSEY

Now is a great time to encourage our future generation of little shoppers to make better choices at the grocery store.

Good nutrition can start with what goes into your weekly shopping cart. Use these tips next time you shop and involve your little ones in the process.

Make swaps to Healthy Ideas. Stop & Shop takes the guesswork out of shopping by identifying healthy products right on the shelf. Look for our Healthy Ideas symbol next to the price of an item on thousands of products throughout the store. If your kids are with you in the store, make it a game to swap products for those with Healthy Ideas and add more to your cart each time you shop.

Load up on the rainbow. Since we want half of our plate to be fruits and veggies, fill half of your cart with produce. All forms of produce can fit into weekly meals and snacks - fresh, frozen, canned and dried. With hundreds of varieties, rotate your choices and let kids pick a new one to try each visit. Kid-tested suggestions are jicama, radish, star fruit and sugar snap peas. Try dipping these into hummus, guacamole or our Kids Love Tex-Mex Dip recipe.

Fuel up for breakfast. Breakfast serves as a chance to wake up their little bodies and get their digestion moving for the day. Studies show children who eat breakfast perform better in and out of the classroom. Build a breakfast that includes at least three food groups such as yogurt with chopped nuts and fruit or a broccoli cheese omelet with whole grain toast.

Offer better beverage options. Tiny tummies can fill up quickly on sugary calories, which may ruin their appetite for healthy foods. Serve one cup of milk or water at every meal. At the store let kids pick out their own reusable water bottle for school and grab individual packed milk boxes for hectic mornings or lunch boxes.

Fill a nutrient gap with snacks. Snacks can make up to a third of kids' daily calories so we want filling and energizing choices. Include foods that may have been missing at their meal time. Most of the time a great place to start is with veggies, whole grains and dairy option.

Sit down for meals and get kids involved. While family dinners are the focus of research, eating breakfast or lunch together can also foster communication and healthy eating habits. If you're tired of hearing "what's for dinner?" go to our recipe center on www.stopandshop.com and let kids pick a new recipe so you can teach them to shop and then prepare it together. Another way to take the stress off meal time chaos is teaching them basic kitchen skills or how to properly set a table.

Be a healthy role model. Eating right and exercising yourself shows your child that health is important for them and their family. Enjoy your veggies, snack on fruits and drink your milk because your kids just might be watching.

It is never too late to start making small simple changes towards a healthier lifestyle habits for you and your family. Healthy lifestyle habits that are developed in childhood can really last a lifetime!

Real Estate Sales Volume 'Robust' In First Quarter

More Real Estate News Page 16

Citing both strong growth in total dollar volume of real estate sales and continuing improvement in the mortgage market after reviewing first quarter 2015 real estate statistics, Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell expressed "guarded optimism" that the Norfolk County real estate market will continue to show improvement.

"During the first quarter of 2015, the total number of deeds recorded fell a minimal one percent compared to the same time period last year," O'Donnell said. "However, the total dollar volume of residential and commercial real estate sales increased by a robust 24 percent during the quarter and the average sale price of property increased an impressive 22 percent in Norfolk County to $793,805 over the same period of time.

"The figures clearly indicate a continuing issue with the low amount of real estate inventory, given the numbers of potential buyers, but on the other hand it also shows an improving economy in Norfolk County, making it a desirable destination location to both live and work. These numbers are striking," O'Donnell continued, "when taking into account the horrific record-breaking winter weather experienced in the months of January and February. After all, it is very difficult to sell real estate when the property for sale is buried in three feet of snow."

Another significant and promising piece of 1st quarter data was the notable 46 percent increase in the number of mortgages recorded, resulting in a total of 6,679 mortgages transactions as compared to 4,566 during the same time period in 2014.

"The mortgage figures are further evidence of an improving real estate market, but additionally illustrates an increasing rise in consumer confidence. The mortgage refinance market is critical to the economy as augmented credit means a corresponding increase in goods and services being purchased by consumers and businesses," O'Donnell said.

However, the register noted one area of continuing concern: a discouraging 24 percent increase in the number of foreclosure deeds recorded.

"That figure is a sober reminder that the economic expansion in eastern Massachusetts has not benefited all our fellow citizens," O'Donnell said. "The Registry continues to partner with Quincy Community Action Programs at (617) 479-8181 x-376 and Neighbor Works Southern Mass at 508-598-0950 to help anyone who has received a Notice of Foreclosure from a lender. Both agencies can provide guidance and assistance to homeowners."

O'Donnell said more people are looking to protect their property as Homestead recordings increased a modest one percent during the first quarter of 2015 with a total of 2,032 Homesteads were recorded versus 2,015 during the same time last year. A Homestead recording provides for limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000.

"I continue to believe in the Norfolk County real estate market," O'Donnell said. "I am hopeful that the improving spring weather will result in increasing real estate inventory, which will provide prospective homeowners with a number of housing options. The one crucial factor to watch closely though is what action the Federal Reserve will take on interest rates and its effect on both the real estate and financial industries."

BID-Milton Offering Health Grants

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton (BID-Milton) is offering mini-grants in amounts ranging from $500 up to $1,500 to local service agencies, non-profit organizations, Boards of Health, coalitions and community groups to address specific community health needs outlined in the hospital's 2014 Community Health Needs Assessment.

Grant applications are available through the hospital, and applicants should submit proposals which use proven or promising practices to improve primary care, disease prevention and/or health promotion for vulnerable populations with a focus on at least one of the following issue priorities:

- Provide access to affordable, community-based medical or preventive services, particularly for seniors;
- Offer educational programs and/or screenings to address chronic disease prevention and education that impacts vulnerable populations;
- Increase awareness of substance abuse as a growing health problem with a focus on education and prevention;
- Enhance community knowledge of mental health as a primary health issue and promote available mental health resources and supports;
- Develop programming that addresses health education around obesity and nutrition;
- Improve access to care by promoting existing public transportation options.

Applications must be for programs in BID-Milton's market area of Milton, Randolph, Quincy, Dorchester, Hyde Park, Canton, Braintree or Weymouth, and are due Friday, May 1.

Grant applications may be downloaded from the hospital's website at www.bidmilton.org. For more information call Robert McCrystal, director of communications, at 617-313-1590.

May Start Seen For Teel Field Project

By SCOTT JACKSON

Demolition of nine houses adjacent to Teel Field in North Quincy will begin as soon as May, though renovations of the field itself will have to wait until next spring.

As part of a $12 million to renovate the field and provide additional parking spaces for North Quincy High School, the city purchased seven homes near Teel Field – six on Hunt Street and one on Newbury Avenue – in the fall of 2014. The city paid $3.7 million for the seven homes, including both the cost of the land and relocation fees paid to the homeowners.

Agreements are now in place to purchase the final two homes, City Solicitor Jim Timmins said on April 3. The city has reached an agreement to purchase the home at 42 Hunt St. and was set to close on the property Tuesday. An agreement has also been reached to purchase the house at 30 Hunt St.

Timmins declined to disclose the price the city will pay the homeowners for the properties until the closing is finalized.

The city's Conservation Commission approved the project on April 1; there is a 21-day appeal period before work can begin. Chris Cassani, the executive director of the Quincy Park Department, said demolition of the houses should begin in May, after the 21-day waiting period ends.

"There is a 21-day waiting period when appeals can be filed," Cassani said. "In May, the demolition of the houses will occur, followed by the preload."

The preload involves compressing the field under tons of dirt. The step is necessary to drive water out of the ground to prepare it for construction. Preloading was done at Faxon Field, for example, before the city installed a new track there.

The preload needs to stay on the field for up to six months, according to Cassani.

"The preload program needs to take place so the earth will settle. It will take four to six months for that to occur," he explained. "That will extend into early winter, so the lion's share of construction will be in the spring of 2016."

As part of the project new grandstands with seating for up to 600 will be installed at the field and the grass playing surface will be replaced with more durable, synthetic turf. A new sound system, lighting, restrooms and concessions will also be added.

Once the renovations are completed, the field could accommodate North Quincy High's soccer and lacrosse games; the school's junior varsity football team may play there as well. Youth leagues would also have a chance to use Teel Field, alleviating the burden on other fields in the city.

As part of the project, the city will create a new, 139-vehicle parking lot on Hunt Street to serve both the field and North Quincy High School.

Long Island Bridge Demolition Continues

By SCOTT JACKSON

Demolition of the Long Island Bridge is continuing, with workers using explosives to dismantle the bridge section-by-section

The city of Boston closed the bridge in October over longstanding concerns about its structural integrity. In January, the city awarded Chicago-based Walsh Construction Company a $20.6 million contract to tear down the 64-year-old structure.

Explosives have been used to knock down two 750-foot long sections in recent weeks. The first demolition was on March 23, when the section closest to Long Island came crashing down. A second demolition occurred on April 1, razing the section next to the one that came down previously.

The 250-foot portion of the bridge under which boats travelled was removed in February without the use of explosives.

The remaining sections of the bridge will be taken down by the end of April. Quincy officials are notified 24 hours in advance of when explosives are going to be used.

After each section of the bridge is demolished, crews have been removing the steel and other materials and bringing them to by barge to a facility in Everett.

The Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit has helped established a perimeter in advance to prevent boats from getting too close to the bridge. The department's boat, the Vigilant, also uses sonar to scan the seabed after each demolition.

Rep. Bruce Ayers was aboard a Quincy police boat during the March 23 demolition.

"This for me was a long-time coming," Ayers said. "Residents of Squantum and residents of Quincy have a lot of memories associated with the bridge."

As part of Walsh Construction's contract with Boston, the firm must also install new utility lines to Long Island along the seabed by June 15. The bridge previously carried those utilities to both Long Island and nearby Spectacle Island.

The city of Boston plans to rebuild the bridge. The city and the Massachusetts Department of Transportation of sharing the $9 million cost for designing a new span; the design process is estimated to continue for up to a year.

Boston officials estimate construction of a new bridge would cost more than $80 million and could be completed in 24 to 36 months, if expedited because of emergency circumstances.

The 3,450-foot Long Island Bridge connected Long Island to Moon Island. The latter is within Quincy's city limits but it fully owned by Boston. The only vehicular access to Long Island is through Squantum.

New Parkingway Restaurant Approved

By SCOTT JACKSON

A restaurant specializing in hot pots and all you can eat sushi will open this summer in Quincy Center.

The Board of License Commissioners on March 31 awarded an all alcohol license for Gold Box, Inc. d/b/a/ Hot Pot & Sushi Bar. The new restaurant will be located at 227 Parkingway in the site of a former Outback Steakhouse and could open as soon as June.

The restaurant's manager, Sinyu Lau, previously operated the Hong Kong Café on Boylston Street in the Fenway neighborhood of Boston but was forced to close it when the hotel it had been located in was sold. Hong Kong Café then reopened on Beacon Street in Brookline; the family decided to close that one and open the new restaurant in Quincy.

"We wanted to focus here, in Quincy," said Lau, a Braintree resident whose family lives in Quincy.

The 259-seat restaurant will serve endless sushi to patrons; customers will order the food from their table and have it brought to them from the kitchen, according to attorney Robert Harnais, unlike a traditional buffet where the customers go up and get food that's already been prepared.

The restaurant will also offer hot pot service. Customers will be able to cook meat and vegetables at their table using a pot of hot water. An electric heating element is used that will only heat the water bowl.

The restaurant will be able to open from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. The food will be eat-in only, with no take-out service.

The bartenders working in the restaurant will be TIPS (Training for Intervention Procedures) certified, according to Lau.

The interior of the Hot Pot & Sushi Bar will retain the same layout as the Outback Steakhouse. The main of entrance to the restaurant to the restaurant, however, will be moved from the Parkingway to the side of the building facing an adjacent parking structure.

"They just want to get it off the main street and have the entrance on the side," Harnais said.

The commissioners approved the all alcohol license in a unanimous vote.

"It will be nice to see the space occupied and vibrant again," Fire Chief Joseph Barron said.

A proposal to open a hookah lounge at 5 Cottage Avenue was withdrawn prior to the March 31 meeting. Andrian Shapiro had proposed opening the new lounge, which would have been known as Genie Hookah Lounge.

The state banned smoking in the workplace in 2004, though it allowed exceptions for establishments selling cigars or offering hookah, which uses water pipes to smoke flavored tobacco.

Under the same state law, communities have a right to prohibit cigar bars and hookah lounges. Quincy did so in 2004, according to Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

A hearing on the status of the all alcohol license for Zona Sol, 1506 Hancock Street, was continued to April 21 to allow the licensee's attorney to attend.

The Quincy Center restaurant closed earlier this year.

Two special use permits were awarded for fundraising events.

The first is for the 16th annual Best Buddies Challenge on May 30. Cyclists will travel through Quincy as part of a 100-mile ride from the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library in Boston to Hyannis.

The ride begins at 7 a.m. that day; riders will be in Quincy from approximately 7:15 to 8 a.m. The course takes them from Quincy Shore Drive onto Sea Street to Southern Artery to Quincy Avenue and then into Braintree.

The second permit was given for Interfaith Social Services 41st annual South Shore Walk, which will be held on April 25. The walk and 5K race begins at 10:30 a.m. that day at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum Street, and will loop its way through Squantum back to the Kennedy Center.

SERVING AS JUDGES at the second annual Quincy Quick Pitch Contest held at the Quincy Center for Innovation (QCI) were (from left) Alec Stern, Vice President of Strategic Innovation and Executive in Residence for the Small Business Innovation Program at Constant Contact (Nasdaq: CTCT); John M. Maguire, President and Chief Executive Officer of Friendly's Ice Cream, LLC; and Rory Cuddyer, Startup Manager for the City of Boston.

Four Start-Up Companies 'Quincy Quick Pitch' Winners

Four startup companies were selected as winners of the second annual Quincy Quick Pitch Contest held at the Quincy Center for Innovation (QCI).

Winners were selected from a group of eight finalists who presented their pitches to a panel of business leaders and roughly 100 guests. The contest drew more than 30 applicants – a significant increase from the 2014 competition – from which the pitch finalists were selected for the event at QCI.

Of the eight finalists, four entrepreneurs were awarded cash and prizes. The 2015 winners are:

• Damage iD - Grand Prize Winner (Community Track)

• BeautyLynk - 2nd Place Winner (Community Track)

• Mimir Insights - 1st Place Winner (Student Track from Tufts University)

• SuperHealos - "Fan Favorite" (Student Track from Babson College)

The Quincy Quick Pitch Competition was an opportunity for entrepreneurs to "pitch" their product or idea to a panel with the chance to win cash and in-kind prizes which may be used to help further their business idea.

The judges for the final Quincy Quick Pitch Competition included: John Maguire, CEO, Friendly's Ice Cream LLC; Alec Stern, Founding Member, Constant Contact, Inc.; Rory Cuddyer, Startup Manager, City of Boston; Doug Banks, Executive Editor of the Boston Business Journal and Mass High Tech; angel investor, Tim Barton; and angel investor, Drew Gaffney.

The Quick Pitch Competition was sponsored by Friendly's Ice Cream LLC, TD Bank, The Quincy Chamber of Commerce, BlumShapiro, Boston Financial Data Services, Citizens Bank, Eastern Nazarene College, Granite Telecommunications, and South Shore Innovation.

The Quincy Center for Innovation is a 20,000 sq. ft. innovation facility located in Quincy. The non-profit organization focuses on supporting entrepreneurs as they pursue a new venture. They do so by providing a professional environment, office space, programing, technical support, and access to working capital. For more information, visit www.quincyinno.com.

Labor Council Endorses McCarthy In At-Large Race

The Norfolk County Central Labor Council has endorsed Quincy School Committeman Dave McCarthy in his campaign for city councillor at-large in this fall's municipal election.

The delegates of the Norfolk County Central Labor Council AFL-CIO (NCCLC) voted unanimously to support McCarthy in his bid for one of the council's three at-large seats.

" My hope is to be able to work and be available for all projects in regards to labor and strive to support all parties at the table," McCarthy said after receiving the endorsement. " I am humbled to get their endorsement and look forward to working with labor in the future."

Coastal Adaptation Plan Seeks Public Input April 22

A public forum on the creation of a Coastal Adaptation Plan for the City of Quincy will take place Wednesday, April 22 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, 333 Palmer St., Quincy.

Refreshments will be provided. The event is free and open to the public.

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC), in partnership with the City of Quincy, with assistance from the Boston University Urban Affairs Program, is creating the Coastal Adaptation Plan

The forum will offer residents and businesses a chance to learn about climate change and its impacts on the natural environment, Quincy's developed areas and its infrastructure, its coastal areas, local health, and the local economy. Special focus will be paid to the impacts on particularly vulnerable populations, including lower-income- and non-English-speaking residents, as well as physically or mentally challenged groups that live within floodplain areas.

"We are excited to work with Quincy on this important climate resiliency planning effort, as it serves as a pilot for MAPC to do this type of planning for an urban municipality facing multiple potential impacts," said Julie Conroy, AICP, Senior Environmental Planner at MAPC. "These strategies can then be replicated in coastal communities across Eastern Massachusetts."

The Quincy Coastal Adaptation Plan is being funded through the District Local Technical Assistance Program (DLTA), as well as Boston University and City of Quincy leveraged resources.

For more information on the project, contact MAPC Senior Environmental Planner Julie Conroy at 617-933-0749 and jconroy@mapc.org, or Quincy Principal Planner Robert Stevens at 617-376-1411and rstevens@quincyma.gov.

To register for the forum, visit http://conta.cc/1xGaw3C.

Those who need special accommodations, e.g., assistive listening device, translation, and/or interpretation, should notify MAPC two weeks prior to the meeting by contacting Julie Conroy or Jennifer Erickson, Equity Specialist at MAPC, at jerickson@mapc.org or 617-933-0759.

Registry Of Deeds Files Land Documents Legislation

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell announces the filing of House Bill 1493, a cost saving measure which, if enacted, would remove the requirement that Registries must store original registered land documents at their facilities.

"The current practice of scanning these documents on-line along with being microfilmed would be continued but the requirement to keep original document on-site would be removed. That document would go back to the homeowner or their designee," O'Donnell said.

"Due to current state law, several Registries of Deeds offices in the Commonwealth are facing a storage crisis when it comes to fulfilling their obligation to retain hard copies of documents relating to registered land. Elimination of this requirement would result in future tax dollars being saved since Registries of Deeds will not feel compelled to find greater office space to house an ever expanding number of registered land documents," O'Donnell said.

"The security and accessibility of registered land documents would be retained by utilizing scanned image and microfilm technology, processes that are already in place at Registries of Deeds across the Commonwealth. A copy of each document is housed off-site in a secure storage facility and available to be retrieved in the event a catastrophic event takes place at the Registry," he added.

With these steps taken, the documents would be available for viewing on-line by consumers. If an individual wants a printed copy it will cost them $1 per page. Most deeds are 2 pages. For those who utilize registry services often, they can continue to purchase an on-line printing account.

O'Donnell noted that House Bill 1493 would not affect the process of recording registered land documents. The legislation has been endorsed by the Massachusetts Register of Deeds and the Assistant Register of Deeds Association. There is no visible opposition to this legislation.

"I want to express my appreciation to the Norfolk County legislative delegation, and in particular lead sponsor Rep. Paul McMurtry (D-Dedham), for their support of this important legislation," O'Donnell said. "The legislation is an excellent example of county and state government officials working together to identify best practices and reduce the burden on taxpayers."

Fuel Assistance Deadline May 15

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) is urging low-income residents and families to get help paying their winter heating bills by applying for fuel assistance.

The deadline to apply is May 15.

"Even though winter is officially over, many area families are still paying the bills, and some face shut off of their utilities," said Lauren Rexford, QCAP's Energy Program Director. "QCAP can help families close the gap."

QCAP administers fuel assistance to income-eligible households for the towns of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, and Milton. For those who qualify, QCAP can help pay winter heating bills dated between Nov. 1 through April 30, and help households to obtain further discounts on their utility bills.

All heating types are accepted, including electric, oil, gas, etc. Households that have heat included as part of their rent may also be eligible.

In addition, QCAP can assist households to apply for other services and resources, such as food and housing assistance, early education and care, and adult education. QCAP also provides financial advice, credit repair and counseling, and job search and placement.

QCAP's Energy Program is funded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, U.S. Department of Energy, Massachusetts Department of Housing & Community Development, United Way of Massachusetts Bay & Merrimack Valley, National Grid, Braintree Electric Light Department, NSTAR, and private donors.

For more information on how to apply, visit www.qcap.org or contact QCAP's Fuel Assistance Program at 617-479-8181 x301 or email fuelassistance@qcap.org.

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Secretary Of The Interior

I would like to replace my white vinyl roller shades and heavy draperies with Roman shades. What choices are available? Charlene

BARBARA GRACEFFA

Roman shades come in many styles including flat, relaxed (with a soft gentle curve at the bottom), classic (with folds), reverse (with ribbed seams showing), and soft (with overlapping folds). Fabrics typically include solids, vertical stripes, plaids, florals, and geometrics. Choices in linings provide privacy, blackout features, noise control, and insulation. For control mechanisms, you can select cordless, loop control, top down/bottom up (all of which cost extra) or a standard pull cord. To personalize your shades, you can add ribbon or edge banding options. Go window shopping (sorry for the pun!) at a shade store to see all the possibilities and, unless you buy ready-mades for a standard sized window, do spend the extra fee for professional measuring.

I'd like to get a striped rug but I'm afraid it will make me dizzy. Any advice? Jeri

Stripes are very popular now, yet they are classic too which is important when investing in a large piece of furniture or area rug. If the stripes are large and the same size, coupled with a strong contrast – like a navy and white, there will be a dizzying effect. However, there are lots of stripe options. Choose a pattern that has more than two colors and/or with different stripe widths. For example, if the pattern includes a 4-inch wide light blue, and 2-inch stripes in a white, medium blue, white combination, then the 4-in light blue repeats, this pattern and color combo are softer on the eyes. Also, there are attractive striped patterns that are not straight lines which also have a softer look. One final hint, home stores allow you to take a rug home to audition it for a few days, so find one you like and try it out..

REMEMBERING KEITH – Kathy Boudreau, the mother of Keith Boudreau (left) hugs Keith's sister, Tanya Nelson, at a memorial vigil for Keith on Good Friday, April 3 at the Thomas Crane Public Library. The vigil was attended by more than 200 family, friends and other mourners who came together to remember the Quincy man who had died earlier that day from injuries suffered in an attack at a Quincy bar March 23. ing a surgical procedure.

"They loved each other and were like identical twins," Kathy said. "They are together again."

Tom Saccardo, a family friend, had known Keith since he was a young boy in Dorchester's Adams Village neighborhood.

Saccardo was converting a two-family into a three-family one day when Keith showed up at the house. Soon the young boy had a piece of sandpaper in his hand and went to work sanding a wall.

Later in life, Saccardo, a member of the Sheetmetal Workers Local 17, Dorchester, helped Keith join the trades. He said Keith took a lot of pride in being a union worker.

"He loved the union and the sheetmetal workers. He was a hard worker. Everybody loved him.

"We had a lot of history together. He was a great kid as you can see by the turnout tonight. There are a lot of union guys here – even those who worked with him for only a short time they couldn't wait to get here to show their support for the family.

"The good die young unfortunately. I'm gonna miss him. He was a sweet heart."

Ron Collins, another family friend, called Keith a kind and considerate young man. He said Keith and his own son bonded over basketball. "He always had a kind word for everybody and always gave a helping hand. He was a hero to my son."

Keith Boudreau loved life. He will be laid to rest later this week.

Those who loved Keith will never forget him.

And they hope they remember the message of his memorial vigil:

"Pray for a more peaceful, compassionate and civil society where such senseless acts of horrific violence will never occur again."

"Be kind like Keith," Ron says. "People have to be kind."

FIFTH GRADERS from the Squantum Elementary School have been learning about solar energy while making art for the website of Solarize Quincy, a program sponsored by the city and state that provides discounted solar panels to Quincy residents and business owners. These drawings were created by students Conor W. (top left), Maria G. (top right) and Sophie M. (above).

Solarize Quincy Inspires Student Art

To Submit Artwork, Visit www.solarizequincy.weebly.com

In recent weeks, fifth graders from Squantum Elementary School have been learning about solar energy while making art for the website of Solarize Quincy, a city- and state-sponsored program that provides discounted solar panels to Quincy residents and small business owners. A few of the artworks will also grace the city website, according to assistant city planner Kara Chisolm.

"Learning about solar energy and creating art for Solarize Quincy was the kick-off to this spring's focus on the environment," said the school's assistant principal, Rachel Bloom. "The project was a good way to blend the importance of natural energy with science and art. The project was less like 'school' and more like committed friends spreading the word about how solar energy can be used in houses and buildings."

In preparation for creating the art, the students got lessons in how solar works from science teacher William Regan. "Our school had solar panels installed above our classroom last summer, and the students were newly interested in how these work," said Bloom.

After posting the artworks on the Solarize website, Rebecca McWilliams, the Quincy Solar Coach said, "Aside from their attractiveness, they show that the students know the panels are either black or blue, and that they can be either ground-mounted or roof-mounted."

McWilliams said that until May 1 Solarize Quincy will continue accepting visual art submissions from K-12 students living or attending school in Quincy. To see more of the artwork or for information on how to submit, visit www.solarizequincy.weebly.com and click on the "Gallery" tab.

McWilliams added that Solarize will hold an informational meeting for Quincy residents and business owners Tuesday, April 14th at the Lincoln Hancock Elementary School at 7 p.m.

Diabetes Fair April 18

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton will hold its sixth annual spring Diabetes Fair Saturday, April 18, from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

The event will include information from a panel of exhibitors, blood pressure checks and free foot screenings provided by Podiatrist Joel Chariton, DPM. Guests will learn about diabetes from hospital endocrinologists William Cobb, MD, and Service Chief of Endocrinology Manfred Ernesti, MD. The impact of diabetes on vascular health will be discussed by Vascular Surgeon Gregory Kechejian, MD. Dietitian Mercy Devadoss, MS, RD, CDE, will discuss strategies for diabetics to become more educated on their food choices and preparation.

The event is offered free of charge, and is open to the public. Complimentary, diabetic friendly lunch provided. Guests must pre-register by calling 617-313-1557.

SENIOR JACKSON LE's kill gives Quincy a point against Greater New Bedford Vocational-Technical High School Monday.

Bears Best Presidents In Boys Volleyball

By TREVOR WENNERS

Setters Henry Yip and Chris Situ combined for 28 assists while senior Yverson Boutin tallied seven kills for the Quincy High School boys volleyball team in a 3-0 loss to visiting Greater New Bedford Regional Vocational-Technical High School.

"I thought the first two games we actually played them pretty tough, fairly competitive, I mean (Greater New Bedford is) a really good team," said Presidents head coach Jacqui Niosi. "So, I was actually pretty happy with it considering most of our (blockers) are our younger players and more inexperienced players. The third game I didn't think we played too well, we kind of like mentally just kind of lost it but the first two games were good."

The Presidents (0-4) raced out to an early 5-1 lead in the first set after back-to-back service points from senior Jackson Le. With the game sitting at 5-2 in favor of Quincy, Isaac Santiago reeled off seven straight service points to give the Bears (3-0) a 9-5 advantage.

"We were focused behind the serving line, I thought that was the best part of our game today," said Bears head coach Richard Gomes. "They were locked in and they were hitting every zone that we were calling out for them which played a big part in the win."

Quincy would pull to within 9-7 but the Bears extended their lead to 12-7 and won the first set 25-14.

Quincy raced out to leads of 2-0, 3-1 and 4-2 in the second set but the Bears came back to claim a 6-5 lead. Quincy tied the set up

NQ Young But Rebuilding

By BILL GRIFFIN

Last year was a season of survival for North Quincy's softball team.

Turnout was low. There were games when there were barely enough to players to fill out a lineup card. However, the players played hard. They enjoyed each other, improved greatly, and helped save the softball program at North Quincy.

This year, the Red Raiders will not look merely to survive. They will look to take the first step in a positive direction. Numbers should not be an issue. Coach Jim Connor welcomes a talented freshman class of 11 players. North lost just one starter and two seniors. The Red Raiders have a talented core of experienced players right where a coach wants them: up the middle at catcher, second base, shortstop and center field.

"We feel positive about this year. It should be a season when we take a step forward," said Connor. "The freshman class is very good. They aren't just good athletes. They're softball-first athletes. We're young, we're rebuilding, but I see a lot of potential for softball at North."

One of the best carry-overs from last year is team chemistry. The players genuinely cared about each other and stayed together through a difficult year. It is the perfect atmosphere to introduce a large group of new players.

"They enjoy playing with each other and I think that's one of our biggest strengths," said Connor. "The returning players get along great with the freshmen, and that's something we can build on."

North can also build on its strength up the middle. Junior catcher Sarah Franklin is an all-star caliber player. She is a solid hitter in the middle of the lineup and does a fine job defensively behind the plate. She is excellent at handling pitches in the dirt. Freshman Jesse Caldwell will back up Franklin.

"Sarah is one of the best catchers in the (Patriot) league," said Connor.

Senior Madison Hally is a three-year starter at shortstop. She was a team captain as a junior. Hally is a terrific athlete. She is a steady fielder and gets on base consistently from the 1-2 spots in the lineup.

"Madison does everything well. She's just a well-rounded player and she is one of the leaders on the team. She helped keep the attitude positive last year," said Connor.

Rachel Dunphy is a returning starter at second base. Her defense improved greatly over the course of the last season. Junior Nancy Aimola is back in centerfield. She has good speed and can track a fly ball.

"It's a good core up the middle. They will do a good job helping the freshmen get accustomed to varsity softball," said Connor.

Franklin will be especially important behind the plate because the Red Raiders will go with three freshmen pitchers. Mia Sapienza will be the No.1 pitcher. Kristen Thornton and Johannah Thornton will also see action for North.

"They are freshmen and they'll learn on the varsity level. But they have talent and they will improve," said Connor.

Dana Grasselli, who pitched for North last year after starter Natasha Sautter suffered a knee injury, will play first. Jesse Caldwell is the third baseman. Sammie Caldwell gives North depth in the infield. Lindsay Delaney returns in left field for the Red Raiders.

"Dana stepped in for us last when we had nobody else. Lindsay has a strong arm in left field. They both have experience," said Connor.

North will not play a JV or freshman schedule. Connor will assemble a sub-varsity team for a few games, but he will keep the incoming freshmen on the varsity to avoid the numbers problem North faced last year.

Like the baseball team, the softball schedule will change this spring. North will play two games against its Fisher Division opponents of the Patriot League. North will not play any teams from the Keenan Division with the exception of Quincy. North will face Quincy April 27. The Red Raiders will play an extended non-league schedule which should make them competitive in more games.

"It's obviously not something you want to do, but it's the right decision at this time," said Connor. "We want to build up the softball program. Playing more competitive games will help us. The more success we have, the more players we will be able to attract. For this year, the schedule is right for us."

It will also increase the chances of a victory. There's is no better reward for great effort than the joy and satisfaction of winning a game.

"All athletes want to achieve something. They want to see the benefits of their hard work. Hopefully, we'll see that this year with some wins," said Connor.

Quincy Balanced, Optimistic

SOFTBALL

By BILL GRIFFIN

A softball team has genuine reasons for optimism when:

• They return six starters from a team which went 15-7 and advanced to the second round of the sectional tournament.

• They return a senior fireballer with two years experience pitching against tournament teams and the best of the Patriot League.

• They return a catcher who is brilliant defensively, enjoys a special bond with her pitcher and hits well enough to bat cleanup.

• They return two starting infielders who are solid defensively and dangerous at the plate.

• They return two swift outfielders who can do what is essential in high school softball: Track down fly balls and turn them into outs.

Quincy has all the ingredients for a fine season when the snow melts and the ground turns dry. It is that balance which impresses coach Greg Sommers. Senior righty Saxon Bresnahan should be one of the best pitchers on the South Shore. Angelina Avitabile is an all-star caliber catcher. They have the speed and talent to make all the plays in the field.

"I'm optimistic. We not only have seniors who have experience, but we have sophomores and juniors who have played quite a bit as well," said Bresnahan. "I think our strengths should be pitching, catching and defense. Saxon and Angelina have worked together for three years. And we have some players who really track down a ball."

If there is a question, it is hitting. In the cold of April, hitting is a question for everyone. Few teams hit well for the first month. They simply haven't hit outdoors enough. Quincy doesn't have to break any offensive records. The Presidents only have to hit well enough for Bresnahan. That may mean two, three, four runs per game.

"Hitting would be the one question mark I would have. The Patriot League has some excellent pitchers, and we need to give Saxon enough offense," said Sommers.

Bresnahan will not need a lot. The senior righty throws hard, and when she keeps her fastball down, she is unhittable. She mixes in her off-speed stuff well. Her mound presence and control have improved markedly over the past two years. She pitched a no-hitter last season. Get your tickets early for her showdowns with Silver Lake's no-hit machine Maddy Barone.

Danielle Parry and Sam McMahon are solid pitchers Sommers can use to rest Bresnahan if the games and innings pile with a crammed schedule

"Saxon throws hard, but it is her ability to use her changeup, curveball and screwball that has made her an excellent pitcher," said Sommers.

Avitabile and Bresnahan are best friends. They have a special relationship. Call it close, call it unconscious. After Bresnahan's no-hitter last year, the two sat chatting in the parking lot. They were blissfully unaware of the no-hitter. The closeness enables them to work better as pitcher and catcher.

Avitabile is also exceptional at catching and blocking the ball in the dirt. She calls a good game. She hits for average and power. She missed part of the season last year with a back injury, but is fully healed and ready for the opener.

"She's just a special girl. She is a smart catcher who is great on pitches in the dirt. She works well with Saxon and her infielders," said Sommers. "She and Saxon are best friends. They're always together on and off the field."

Junior Nicole Jorgensen is a three-year starter at first base. At 6'4", she is an inviting target for infield throws. She is also skilled at scooping throws in the dirt. She cut back on her swing a little and became an effective hitter over the second half of last season. Jorgensen had the winning single in the extra-inning win over Plymouth North in the first round of the sectionals.

"Nicole realized she didn't have to hit home runs. When she just tries to make contact, she is a good hitter," said Sommers.

Senior Angela McDonald is back at third, and she shows the defense and hustle that Sommers loves.

"There was a popup last year," he recalled. "She went so hard into the fence for it that she almost broke the fence. It just fell out of

VOICE FOR HEALTH

Chiropractor

ROUGH DIAMONDS

Because baseball often involves prolonged periods of rest punctuated by short bursts of strenuous muscular activity, players may be prone to injury. As hitters uncoil their bodies, significant rotational forces are applied to the neck, hips, and knees, while the elbows and shoulders may be subjected to extended ranges of motion. Pitching involves a host of other strenuous motions that invite injury and soreness. As a result, baseball players are vulnerable to herniated discs, shoulder tendinitis, torn rotator cuffs, "runner's knee," torn hip muscles, muscle spasms, and inflamed tendons. To avoid pain and circumvent injury that might necessitate surgery, the chiropractor can assess players' body alignment and make lasting biomechanical changes that prepare their bodies for competition.

Being educated on some of the most common baseball injuries and their symptoms will enable an injured player to tell when the pain should be attended to by an experienced chiropractor, like our team at Family Practice of Chiropractic. Stop the pain - call 617.472.4220 today to schedule an appointment. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Chiropractic is a scientifically sound and time-proven natural way to health. It's so effective; it's hard to believe. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. The goal of chiropractic treatment is to resolve a joint, muscle, or soft tissue issue before it reaches an unmanageable state.

Hallisey Scores 3 But Quincy Bows To Canton, 11-6

BOYS LACROSSE

By TREVOR WENNERS

Junior Jake Hallisey scored a hat trick and senior Sean Brennick tallied two goals for the Quincy High School boys lacrosse team in an 11-6 loss against host Canton on Saturday morning.

"I think the positives were on the offensive end," said Presidents head coach Martin Bowes. "(Hallisey and Brennick) were two of our starting attackmen. I think they both (played) good but it doesn't matter if we can't get the ball up the field and give it to them. Our problem was clearing the ball; we were not good clearing the ball today, a lot of turnovers in the clearing game, a couple breakdowns on defense. I don't know what the possession numbers were, I would say they probably possessed the ball 75 percent of the game and you just can't win like that."

Canton (1-1) scored 2:17 into the game when Joe Mulkay found the back of the net. Sophomore Thomas Pugsley scored for Quincy (1-2) to even the game at 1-1 with 2:32 remaining in the opening quarter.

Ben O'Neill responded with his first of six goals to give the Bulldogs a 2-1 lead with 2:02 remaining in the first.

Tommy Galvin scored 1:10 into the second quarter to extend Canton's lead to 3-1.

Quincy then responded by scoring three goals in 46 seconds.

"It was literally as simple as having the ball and finishing our opportunities," said Bowes. "We didn't finish some of the opportunities that we had and I think as a team we need to be better at responding to when the other team goes on a run. They went on a couple runs and we just deflated. (We made that run in the second period), we have that momentum, we feel so good about it and then they score one goal and all of a sudden it feels like we're at the bottom of the world. We need to be able to respond to them making plays and make some plays of our own and that's what we need to get better at."

Hallisey scored 2:53 into the second, Brennick scored 3:18 into the period and then Brennick added another goal 3:39 into the second to make the score 4-3 in favor of Quincy.

"It's early in the season so they're going to get better," said Bendell about the Quincy team as a whole. "(Brian O'Callaghan) was a stud. They got some other very good players; I think (Sean Brennick used) a short stick (and) scored some goals for them. They have some good players, so I think that if they stay together and keep working they could have a good season. We're going to see them again (May 16) at their place, it is going to be a tough game, I know it."

Senior Gavin O'Hare assisted on the goal that put the Presidents up 4-3. O'Callaghan assisted on the goal to trim the Canton lead to 3-2 and then also the one that tied the game up at 3-3.

"He's our best offensive threat for a long stick," said Bowes of O'Callaghan. "He's probably our best all-around athlete, he's all over the field, that doesn't surprise me (that he tallied multiple assists), I think we kind of expect that from him but it starts on the defensive end and we didn't do what we needed to do today."

Paul Swart tied the game at 4-4 for Canton with 6:37 remaining in the first half and then O'Neill scored two more goals for Canton down the stretch of the opening half to give Canton a 6-4 leading going into intermission. O'Neill (scored three goals each half) tallied a goal 11 seconds into the second half to extend Canton's lead to 7-4.

O'Neill found the back of the net again 1:13 into the third and Shayne Walsh scored 2:37 into the third to give Canton a 9-4 advantage.

Hallisey scored on a pass from senior Steve Ross with 7:36 left in the third to trim the deficit to 9-5.

Swart scored with 5:32 left in the third and then Hallisey responded six seconds later assisted by O'Callaghan and the score sat at 10-6 in favor of Canton. O'Neill would score one more goal in the third and neither team scored in the fourth quarter.

"This one hurts," said Bowes. "I think this is a team that we could have (beaten) but we (did not have) our best performance."

Bowes talked about what his team is going to highlight in practice as they host Duxbury today at 6 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The Presidents travel to Sharon High School on Saturday for a 10 a.m. start.

"Fundamentals, picking up ground balls, making smart passes," said Bowes. about what his team needs to work on. "Being smart with the ball, it is really as simple as that for us right now."

Red Raiders Aiming To Take Big Step Forward

BASEBALL

By BILL GRIFFIN

Pencil this in as a year when North Quincy's baseball team takes a huge step forward.

With the exception of standout outfielder Andrew Currie, the Red Raiders return everyone from last year's club. North only won two games last year, but the Red Raiders gained experience pitching varsity innings and taking 50-60 at bats against the top pitchers of the Patriot League.

The improvement by the end of last season was impressive. It will only get better. There is also the sense that second-year coach Matt Edgerly is planting the seeds of something that could be good for a long time for the Red Raiders.

"I think we'll be more competitive. We played a lot of young kids last year and they learned from the experience. We'll be better," said Edgerly.

Anytime a coach mentions pitching as the strong point of his club, it is a good thing. Bryan Turner, Matt Monahan and Josh Helfrich should all be capable of throwing seven quality innings each start.

Turner missed last season with a knee injury, but pitched and played the outfield as a sophomore. He throws hard and moves the ball around well. Monahan were especially strong over the second half of last year. Helfrich got his baptism throwing against the Middleboros., Hinghams, and Scituates of the league and learned from it. Helfrich had a great summer throwing for the legion team.

All three throw hard, but all three know how to pitch.

"They all have three pitches. They throw the fastball, curveball and changeup. We have another pitcher Dom DiPalmo who has looked good. We'll probably use Dom in relief," said Edgerly.

North's defense should be decent, but the issue is hitting. The Red Raiders hit .221 as a team last year, and they will clearly need to do better. Again, keep in mind that last year this was a young team hitting in league that had two defending state champions (Hingham, Middleboro) in it.

"We need to improve our hitting. You have to hit at least .250 as a team to win in varsity baseball," said Edgerly. "These kids got 50-60 varsity at bats, so they gained the experience. Hopefully, it will pay off this year."

Cam White and Nick Kelly will share the catching duties. White caught a lot last year and played well over the summer. Sean Egan and Joe Dwyer are battling for the starting job at first.

Sophomore Kevin McDonald showed he could field the position at second and hit varsity pitching as a freshman. Junior Timmy Glynn has shown a lot of promise and should see considerable action as well.

Junior shortstop Matt McDonald will team with Kevin for the Brothers McDonald combination around second base. McDonald ended the year batting .254, but had his average flirted with .350 at one point last year.

"He was a little streaky, but he can hit the ball. Matt should take a big step forward this year," said Edgerly.

Helfrich will play third. When he pitches, freshman Dara Griffin will step in at third base.

"We're excited about Dara. He has a lot of potential," said Edgerly.

The outfield should be good with Monahan, Turner, Eagles, and Shawn Kelly. Kelly and Turner are fast, can track, and chase down a fly ball.

"Kelly has looked very good in center," said Edgerly.

Tom Whooley, Joe Hutchins, Robert Fitzgerald, Joey Cochrane, and Eric Cohane-Jones supply depth for North.

North will be play a slightly different schedule this year. The Red Raiders will play the teams in the Fisher Division of the Patriot League twice as they always have. However, they will not play the Keenan Division with powerhouses like Hingham and Duxbury. They will play Quincy once in a scheduled game and, likely, once in a tournament. They will play an extended non-league schedule which should allow them to be more competitive in every game.

"I think it's a good idea. One thing you want varsity players to learn is how to finish and win games and that can only happen if the games are competitive," said Edgerly. "I also think a player is more likely to be in the game mentally and improve his skills if it is a close game. I think it should work out well for us."

Presidents Eye Tourney Run

By BILL GRIFFIN

There will be different faces in different places, but coach Pat Bryan hopes the final result will be the same for Quincy's baseball team this spring.

Last year, the Presidents went 12-8 and made the tournament for the first time since 2011. The Presidents were hit by significant losses to graduation, but Bryan likes his team, especially his pitching, and feels the Presidents can make a strong run at a second straight trip to the tournament.

"We graduated our whole outfield, but we have new kids who played well for the JVs. I think they'll do a good job for us," he said. "I like our pitching, and I think we have the ability to make the tournament and, maybe, make a little noise if we get there."

The most important loss was ace Kenny Sorensen who threw about 100 different pitches from 100 different angles en route to going 5-1 with a 1.00 ERA. Bryan also lost the middle of the his lineup in Matt Davis (.441 hitter) and Robbie Munroe who accomplished the rare feat of reaching the fence at Adams Field and might have been one of the best pure hitters in the league.

Johnny Marsinelli (an excellent contact hitter), starting second baseman Mike Pugsley and starting catcher Liam Fitzmaurice also graduated.

Bobby Salvucci, Tyler Beach and Greg Paulo return as senior leaders in important positions who will help fill the graduation losses.

"Tyler, Bobby, and Greg are the leaders we will count on," said Bryan. "They know what it takes to get to the tournament in a tough league like this. We're looking for good years from all of them."

Quincy should hit and as the Presidents get outside more, the defense will improve. The key is the pitching. Paulo leads the staff. The righty is a three-year starter with a fine fastball, curve and change.

Paulo learned to mix his pitches effectively last season. He threw well over the summer. He was brilliant in the 2-0 loss to Taunton in the tournament. He is a senior and he knows how to pitch. He will lead the way,.

"Greg should be one of the best pitchers in the league. He has three good pitches and he knows how to use them," said Bryan.

Junior lefty Cody Desmond throws hard and could make a big impact as the No.2 starter behind Paulo. Senior Sam Keane is an experienced reliever and righty Nolan Flynn returns off an injury and will start behind Paulo and Desmond. Sophomore Owen Lynch should help as well.

"We're looking for Nolan to come back and eat up some innings for us, and Keane will pitch well out of the bullpen," said Bryan. "You need pitching depth because we could end up playing four games in a week with the late start."

Joe Ferracane, who played well for the legion team over the summer, will do the catching. He is excellent defensively. Curtis Frazier backs up behind the plate.

The left side of the infield will be strong. Salvucci (third) and Beach (short) are both three-year starters. Salvucci is steady defensively and provides a good bat in the middle of the lineup. Beach, who will play at Westfield State next year, is one of the best defensive shortstops in the league. He is also an exceptional leadoff man who knows the strike zone and how to work his way on base.

"Bobby is solid," said Bryan. "Tyler has made himself into a very good defensive shortstop. He makes very few errors and he has a strong arm as well."

Sophomore Chris Mann will likely start at second. Paulo and Mark Munroe will split the time at first. David Cooper, who saw action at third last year and also had a good summer with the Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth team, gives the Presidents depth in the infield.

Desmond is a terrific athlete and will play center when he is not pitching. Alex Linskey, Brendan Collins and Peter Saccoach were all good outfielders on the JVs and Bryan expects them to play well on varsity as well.

"I told the kids outside of short and third, there are jobs to be won. We have open spots. Whoever hits and makes the plays will be in the lineup," said Bryan.

Bryan feels the momentum from last year's tourney run can carry over to this spring, especially with the leadership of Salvucci, Paulo, and Beach. Quincy came close to doing something special in the tournament last year. If it weren't for a pair of acrobatic catches by Taunton's centerfielder, Quincy probably advances. If the Presidents did advance, they had Sorensen ready for New Bedford. After that? Who knows?

"Anything can happen once you get in," said Bryan. "I think when a team has success like we did last year, the kids expect to win. They expect to go to the tournament. It's a tough league. You could go 10-10 or 14-6 with the only difference being the breaks of the game. The tournament is a reasonable goal for us. We have the ability to do it."

Quincy is scheduled to open its home season against Pembroke Tuesday at 4 p.m.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday, April 1, 2015, at approximately 11:50 p.m., Officer Colleen Paccioretti was dispatched to a Copeland Street address for a report of a male sitting in the driver's seat of a running vehicle drinking a bottle of Smirnoff vodka. The caller stated that the vehicle was a white Mercedes.

Upon arrival, the Officer spotted the running vehicle, with a male sitting in the driver's seat talking on his cell phone. The Officer looked into the vehicle and saw an open bottle of Smirnoff in the cup holder next to the driver's seat. There was also an empty bottle of Smirnoff in the back seat and a silver flask on the front passenger seat.

When asked for his license, the driver stated that he did not have one because he had outstanding fines and his license was revoked. He said that he wasn't driving and it was his cousin who drove him to the store to make a purchase. When asked where his cousin was, the driver said his cousin walked home to get money because he didn't have any. The driver spoke with slurred speech and had the odor of alcohol on his breath.

At this time, Officer David Zupkofska arrived on scene and he again asked the driver for his name and date of birth. The date of birth was different than the one he gave to Officer Paccioretti earlier. Dispatch informed the Officers that the driver had three default warrants. When asked why he was drinking in his vehicle, the driver denied this. Officer Paccioretti pointed to the open container of Smirnoff in the cup holder.

LT. DAN MINTON

At this point, the driver started telling the Officer about how his son was hit in the eye with a stick and was in bad condition. He again denied that he was driving, stating now that it was his brother who drove. Officer Zupkofska asked whether it was the cousin or the brother who drove and the driver then just mumbled a response.

At this time, Officer Paccioretti informed the driver, a 56 year old Quincy resident, that he was under arrest for the three default warrants, along with additional charges of "Operating Under the Influence of Alcohol and Driving on a Revoked License." He was also cited for "Open container of alcohol violation." The driver became agitated and refused to take a field sobriety test but did state that he would take a Breathalyzer test. He suddenly changed his mind and refused to be tested at all.

An inventory search was conducted. In the driver's wallet was $2281.00, contradicting what he said about not having any money. A search of his vehicle uncovered four open bottles of Smirnoff alcohol, with two of the bottles empty. There were also two empty flasks. A sex toy was found in the trunk. The driver was overly concerned about the sex toy and he was informed him that the it was not part of the investigation so it would remain in the vehicle and only the alcohol would be taken into the Police station as evidence.

As the driver was being transported back to the station, he stated that he now wanted to take the breathalyzer. During the booking process, Sergeant Sean Biggins informed the driver of the charges and was again offered a BAC test. He consented to taking the test, which resulted in a reading of .06, above the legal limit. Nice Work!

Rev. Rebecca Froom To Be Installed As First Settled Female Minister In 375 Years At 'Church Of The Presidents'

Ceremony Sunday At United First Parish Church

By PAT ARTIS

On April 12th, members, friends, and the greater local community of The United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) in historic downtown Quincy will gather at 3:30 p.m. to celebrate the Installation of the church's first settled female minister, Reverend Rebecca Heather Froom.

At 3 p.m. clergy, seminarians, and religious educators are invited to gather and process into the sanctuary; a reception will follow the service in the Parish Hall. A Unitarian Universalist (UU) installation service recognizes that a minister is settled in a particular congregation, and highlights and reaffirms the bond between the minister and that congregation. This service becomes a call to the greater community to bear witness and to celebrate.

PURPOSE OF THE INSTALLATION SERVICE

"The Installation Service is an affirmation and celebration of the two year long search process whereby the congregation unanimously called me as their minister. It is a time for the congregation and me to make promises to one another to commit ourselves to the shared ministry of United First Parish Church, and to have our wider community witness and affirm these vows."

Reverend Rebecca Froom

Over its 375 years, the congregation of historic First Parish has played an important part in the building of this city, the state, and indeed the nation. Like their ancestors before them, both Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams were life long members of the Church. Their tombs stand in a crypt within the church, beside those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine. The Patriot John Hancock was baptized in this church by his father, the Reverend John Hancock, who served as minister from 1726 – 1744.

First gathered in 1636 as a branch of the Church in Boston, First Parish was established as an independent Church in 1639. Known then simply as "Ye Church of Braintry," its establishment made it possible for the Town of Braintree to incorporate in 1640. ("Old Braintree became the City of Quincy and the towns of Holbrook, Randolph and Braintree).

First Parish's history is deeply rooted in the history of Quincy. The church was originally founded by Puritan Congregationalists and has been Unitarian since 1850. Its first members were the male voting members of the Braintree community during colonial times, and its first ministers hired by the town. Its meeting houses were the center of both government and religion in Quincy.

The current church edifice, built of granite donated by John Adams, was designed by Alexander Parris and completed in 1828. It is the congregation's fourth home and replaced the wooden Hancock Meeting House on the same site. In 1958, members of First Parish Unitarian merged with members of the Wollaston Unitarian Society of Beale Street, Wollaston, and United First Parish Unitarian was formed.

For 375 years the congregation has served the Quincy community as a leader in liberal religion. Inspired by a noble heritage, the congregation seeks "to hold fast Freedom, Friendship, and Faith" for service to humanity and the building of a more just and compassionate world.

Since its Puritan founding in 1639, 35 ministers have served this historic Unitarian Universalist church. Keeping with the current trend of the denomination, more women than men are now studying for the ministry in Unitarian Universalist theological schools.

ON SERVING A HISTORIC CHURCH

"As a historic congregation we are stewards of American heritage. Our congregation's story is intertwined with the stories of the founding of the Town of Braintree in the 17th century, the founding of the United States of American in the 18th century, and the founding of the City of Quincy in the 19th century. We have the privilege and responsibility to tell the stories of our foremothers and forefathers, and also to think about how their lives and their ideals call us to embody our highest ideals in the present."

"Unitarian Universalism describes itself as a Living Tradition. History can act as a mirror for the present. It's challenging to understand our present moment with clarity and perspective; to see the ways is which we as a people are embodying our ideals of justice, equity, and compassion as well as the ways in which we are constrained by systems of inequality and oppression. We can look back through history and see with greater clarity what our founding fathers did – and did not do – to advance the cause of freedom. The lessons of history can motivate us to respond to the needs and possibilities of our historical moment in the present."

Reverend Rebecca Froom

Reverend Froom was ordained on May 13, 2012 at Arlington Street Unitarian Universalist Church in Boston, She was called to serve United First Parish Church on July 15, 2014, after a two-year search by a Ministerial Search committee, composed of church members; and by a unanimous vote of the members of the congregation on May 18, 2014.

In their report to the church community the Ministerial Search committee stated that Reverend Froom was selected because "of her integrity, intelligence, intentionality, thoughtfulness and humor. Rebecca's beliefs, values, and goals are strongly aligned with the congregation at United First Parish Church. Rebecca walks the walk, lives her values, and is devoted to social justice. She is truly called to ministry. We see Rebecca as someone who will embrace our challenges, grow our strengths, and will love us."

MY HOPES AND GOALS FOR UNITED FIRST PARISH CHURCH AND UNITARIAN UNIVERSALISM

"Our theological diversity as UUs is our greatest strength and also our greatest challenge. In my ministry I hope to nourish people in their spiritual growth, encouraging them to develop meaningful and life giving spiritual practices and challenging them to faithfully act on their beliefs and values.

"Our congregation, and faith tradition, is known for our social justice work. We've been involved in campaigns for marriage equality, campaigns to advocate for fair housing, immigrant rights, and calls to reform our criminal justice systems, among others. I believe that every social justice action can also be a form of spiritual practice and an opportunity for religious reflection. My ministry is about walking with people as they work to build a world of justice, compassion and peace. My ministry is also about walking with people as they deepen their understanding of why they are doing this work, and helping them develop life giving spiritual practices that will sustain them in justice seeking, justice making work for the long haul." Reverend Rebecca Froom

Reverend Froom's roots are inter-denominational: her mother has been a life-long Unitarian Universalist (UU) and her father serves as a Presbyterian minister. She grew up in Philadelphia and has been a Unitarian Universalist formally since her teens.

Rebecca has been involved in positions of UU leadership for over 15 years. Rev. Rebecca served as the Assistant Minister at First Universalist Society in Franklin, MA; prior to that she was an Intern Minister at Arlington Street Church of Boston, and Director of Religous Education at the UU Church of Tucson, AZ. Rebecca received her BA in Anthropology and Religion from Vassar College, and is a graduate of Harvard Divinity School. Reverend Froom lives with her husband Alec Aman, and 12 housemates, in the Lucy Stone Cooperative, an intentional community in Boston grounded in UU principles and commitment to spirituality, sustainability and social change.

ON UNITARIAN UNIVERSALISM

"Unitarian Universalism is a tradition that is intentionally pluralistic. We welcome people from all faith backgrounds that hold a diverse set of theological beliefs and spiritual practices. We believe that we are bound together not by a common creed but by a common commitment to support one another as we articulate and embody our deepest beliefs and values."

"I believe that each and every person is worthy of love and is able of love. As a Unitarian Universalist minister

REV. REBECCA FROOM

I'm called to walk with the people at United First Parish Church as they tap into that spirit of life and loving kindness that is found within, between, and beyond us all. I have the honor of encouraging people be present to that spirit so that that spirit can guide us to a life of justice, compassion, and peace."

Reverend Rebecca Froom

Reverend Froom has served as minister of the church for this entire 375th year, bringing a renewed commitment to spiritual practice and social justice. She, along with the elected leaders of the UFPC Board have chosen as their special 375th Anniversary project, the formation of an Archives Committee and staff to examine, catalog, study and share the contents of the church's extensive historical records and archival materials.

ON SERVING IN QUINCY AND AN URBAN CITY

"I've lived and worked in cities for most of my life – big cities like Philadelphia and Boston and small to medium cities like Poughkeepsie, NY and Tucson, AZ. Every city has its own character. The congregation and I are asking ourselves, what are the deepest needs and greatest strengths of the City of Quincy? How can we use our building at the heart of Quincy Center and the gifts of our congregation to meet the needs and build on the strengths of our wider community? In recent decades United First Parish Church has been a leader in the campaign for marriage equality, we've hosted the Quincy Crisis Center lunch program, we've been part of the Greater Boston Interfaith Coalition and their work for fair housing, and for the last ten years we've hosted the Prison Book Program. The Installation Service marks the beginning of the next chapter in our congregation's ministry. United First Parish Church is looking forward to the work we can do together in the coming decade.

Reverend Rebecca Froom

The congregation is choosing to give half of the offering collected at the installation to a local non-profit, and voted to have Prison Books Program as one of the recipients of the offering. The other half of the offering will go to the Living Tradition Fund which supports Unitarian Universalist ministers in times of financial hardship.

The Installation Service is open to the public, though RSVPs are encouraged. The service will have a number of speakers from the congregation, our wider Unitarian Universalist Community, and the community of Quincy. There will also be a lot of wonderful music.

RSVPs can be given to the church office at office@ufpc.org or (617) 773-1290.

Film Screening In Honor Of Holocaust Memorial Day

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, along with The Thomas Crane Quincy Public Library and the Quincy Jewish Committee, invite all to a free viewing of "Rafting to Bombay" on Thursday, April 16, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Library Community Room, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Seating is limited to 125 people, and there is parking in the library lot.

The film is being shown in honor of Yom Hashoah/ Holocaust Memorial Day because of its present-day connection to the Holocaust. While filming his father revisiting his childhood city of Mumbai, India, Erez Laufer finds himself caught in the worst terrorist attack in the history of the city. As the drama unfolds, the Laufer family recounts how they found refuge there in the 1940s after fleeing the Nazis. Past and present collide as the family history is echoed in a contemporary war, and a little-known story emerges of the Jewish refugees who found a safe haven in Mumbai during World War II.

Cong. Beth Shalom is co-sponsoring the film with the Crane Library and the Quincy Jewish Committee.

For more information, contact the Library at 617-376-1300 or Cong. Beth Shalom at 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

Civil War Commemoration Service Sunday

This year marks the 150th anniversary of the end of the Civil War and to honor this historic milestone, Quincy Community United Methodist Church will hold a commemorative service on Sunday, April 12, at 10:30 a.m.

The service will feature hymns once sung by Civil War soldiers as well as songs of hope and freedom, which originated in slavery. A coffee hour will follow.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is located diagonally from the Wollaston T station, and is fully handicapped accessible. For more information call 617-773-3319.

RELIGION

Bethany Congregational

On Sunday, April 12, Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will have a Worship Service and Sunday School at 10 a.m. The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach the sermon entitled "Resurrection Faith." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Worship Services and its activities: a Youth Group, a Men's Group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Bible Study Class.

The church office is open 8:30 a.m. to noon, then 1 - 4 p.m. Please visit our website at bethanychurch.tk for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, if you're unable to attend worship service, the Bethany Church Service is broadcast on QATV at 6:00 p.m. Thursdays and 10:00 a.m. Sundays on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

St. Agatha Parish Hosts Peace Vigil April 19

In light of recent world events and recalling the tragic marathon bombing in 2013, St. Agatha Parish will hold a pre-marathon peace vigil on Sunday, April 19, the eve of the Boston Marathon, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at St. Agatha Church, Adams Street, Milton.

The program will consist of music, poetry and appropriate scriptural readings.

St. Agatha Church's pastor, Father Peter Casey, will also bless any attendees who plan to run the marathon.

St. Agatha Church is located at 432 Adams St., Milton, near the Quincy line.

The event is open to the public.

Mapping Houghs Neck Program Topic April 21

Houghs Neck residents Patti Williams and Peter Sault will present an illustrated talk on the history of Houghs Neck from 1614 to 1910 using maps as the focal point.

The talk will be presented at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St. on Tuesday, April 21 at 7 p.m. The program, sponsored by the Houghs Neck Garden Club, is free and all are invited

Learn about the original land grant holders, including Atherton Hough; see how the Neck evolved into a series of farms and learn about the real estate development as the need for subsistence farms had passed permitting people to live on smaller lots and closer together. See maps from a variety of sources including the Quincy Historical Society, Thomas Crane Public Library and the Norfolk Registry for Deeds.

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Sunday morning service at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. starts at 10 a.m.

Pastor Felix Carrion will lead the service and preach the sermon "Christ-Expression."

Shirley Pearson will be Liturgist, calling to worship and reading the scripture lesson. Robert Rheault and Jeff Craig will serve for the Diaconate. Steve Reed, Minister of Music will direct the Choir.

The Nursery and Sunday School start after a Children's message from Pastor Felix.

A fellowship coffee hour follows the service hosted by Nancy and Molly Jacobs. Everyone is welcome.

A Food Basket to benefit ISS is in the vestibule every Sunday for collection of non-perishable food items.

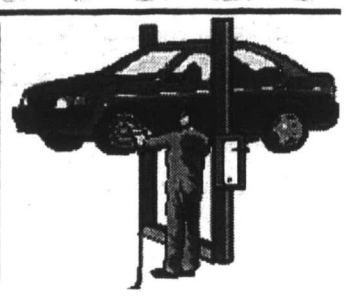
SPRING CAR CARE



Car Care Impacts Resale Value

By JOHN PAUL
AAA'S Car Doctor

More than brand, model or features, the overall condition of your vehicle matters most to used-car shoppers. Keep your vehicle in top condition to preserve its value.

• Drive safely and avoid a collision. Any collision history – even if the damage is repaired – decreases your resale value.

• Fix dents, scratches and dings immediately before they become more serious. Paintless dent repair is a cost-effective option in many situations.

• Follow the proper maintenance schedule and keep all of the receipts. Complete any necessary recalls; they are free, and not having them performed could compromise the safety and operation of the vehicle.

• Never smoke in your vehicle, and avoid eating in it to prevent unpleasant smells and stains. Have the vehicle detailed regularly to preserve the interior and finish.

• Most important, keep the mileage low. High mileage will hurt trade-in values and low mileage cars will sell for a premium.

Five steps to maximize resale value

Resale value is fluid; as consumer demand changes, so do used-car prices. While you can't predict market fluctuations, there are steps you can take to make the most of your resale opportunity.

1. Do your homework. Research the selling price of used vehicles in your market. Study various makes, models and even trim levels to understand which vehicles command the highest resale value.

2. Shop with a strategy. Select a brand, model and trim level with good residual power. Pick a conservative color – black, white and gray are the safest choices. Choose options carefully, since luxury features and unique paint packages may not hold their value. Buy a vehicle that will appeal to the widest range of buyers.

3. Maintain your edge. More than brand or features, the overall condition of your vehicle matters most to used-car shoppers. Drive safely and avoid a collision, which decreases your resale value. Follow the proper maintenance schedule and keep all of the receipts. And most important, keep the mileage low.

4. When it's time to sell, leverage online sites to help you assess the value of your vehicle. Then get to work and put your vehicle in top condition: recondition "hazy" headlights, remove stickers and decals, clean out the console and glove box and have your car professionally detailed.

5. Finally, determine the disposal method that will get the best value. Vehicles in excellent condition are best for private-party sale; cars in rough condition may be candidates for donation.

6. Get your car in peak selling condition.

7. Appearance matters, especially when it's time to sell your vehicle.

8. Spending a few hours cleaning and waxing a car can make a difference in trade-in value. Thoroughly clean and detail the car, removing stains and odors. Peel off stickers and decals, and clean out the console and glove box. "Hazy" headlights can be improved with an inexpensive reconditioning kit from a local auto parts store.

9. Next, make a list of pluses. Is your car still under the original warranty or an extended warranty that is transferable? Have you recently completed a major maintenance, such as a 60,000-mile service? Are the tires or brakes new? These benefits emphasize the condition of the vehicle.

10. If the list of minuses includes a collision, run a history report: a minor fender bender may look like major damage on some reports. Organize repair documentation to eliminate any confusion.

Sell, trade or donate: Which route is best for your car?

Before you choose that new car, think about how to get the most money from your current vehicle. If your vehicle is a top seller and in excellent condition, you may get the highest price through a private-party sale. A vehicle in less-than-perfect condition may be easier to sell directly to a dealer or use as a trade-in. The best bet for a clunker? There is always to option of donating the car to a charity. My opinion has always been to donate to a charity that matches your own beliefs. This could be National Public Radio, The Salvation Army or many others. Don't forget vocational schools, your car could be a donation for you and a learning tool for students. To find

I have a 2004 Cadillac Deville and I am unable to keep air in the tires. They are new tires, brakes and valve stems. This was all done to eliminate the problem. I have had the sensors checked by the tire manufacturer twice and even tried nitrogen - no help. I can't check tires myself and tire dealer said to bring the car in and they would check the tires for me. It is impossible to go for more than two or three days without adding air. The check tire light is on most of the time and when checked they are usually low. One of the dealers took the tires off the rims, sanded the rims - did not help. I am at a loss as to how to solve this problem.

This is fairly common as cars are getting older. The air is most likely leaking out either around the rim or through the rim. Some of these wheels get corroded around the edge where the tire bead seals to the rim. Other wheels actually become porous and leak but sometimes can be repaired by sanding the wheel and using silicone sealant. A permanent repair may be replacing the wheels with a new set.

I have noticed that Toyota has gone back to the 1950's, when oil filters, were just the paper part that would fit in a canister that was bolted on the engine. My question is since the paper part costs much less to make, than the spin-on filter why do they cost so much?

This may be a case of mark-up on the price of the filter. A check on AllData (the database that I use) shows the filter at $5.89. Using the same part number in a search on Amazon has a package of three Toyota filters for $15.95. The website RockAuto has after-market filters that will fit your car with prices that range from $1.95 to $11.00. My cars use the spin-on style filter and I general pay about $5.00-$6.00 each. Perhaps where you are buying filter are inflating the price?

Is there any special procedure to change the sparkplugs on a 2004 Grand Marquis? I have heard horror stories about serious problems when you try to change the spark plugs.

Car Care Impacts Resale Value

Five auto features that fail the resale test

You'll drive your new car for many years to come, so selecting features that you'll enjoy is your main concern. Not all options, however, improve the resale value of your vehicle. According to AAA Auto Buying provider TrueCar, the list of options that will not have a positive impact on resale value includes:

- Appearance packages like pinstripes, special paint or unique graphics
- Chrome wheels
- Satellite radio
- Vehicle telematics devices such as factory-installed navigation systems
- Auto-dimming mirrors.

Low mileage top priority for used-car buyers

Think a high-end sound system or chrome wheels will increase the resale value of your vehicle? According to AAA Northeast's Car Doctor John Paul, mileage, accident history and overall vehicle condition matter far more to used-car shoppers than options and add-ons.

"High mileage will hurt trade-in values and low-mileage cars will sell for a premium," according to Paul. Keep mileage in check – consolidate errands and consider a rental car for long trips.

Buy with resale value in mind

If you keep your vehicle for less than five years, resale value should be an important consideration. To get maximum value when you sell or trade, start with a resale-worthy purchase. Research used-car prices in your area to determine the best-selling vehicle. Focus on features that positively impact resale value, like air conditioning, automatic transmission, leather seats, a moonroof and rear-entertainment systems. Buy the vehicle that everyone will want to own as a used car!

Why do vehicles depreciate in value?

Depreciation is the single most expensive cost of owning a vehicle. Your vehicle depreciates the minute you drive it off the lot, and steadily decreases in value each year. We know that vehicles are, typically, not going to increase in value, but how much depreciation can you expect?

- Once you buy a vehicle, it is no longer new and now must compete as a used car. Even in showroom condition, it is only worth the market value for that used model. This depreciation is typically thousands of dollars, plus the taxes and fees paid at purchase.
- As a quick rule of thumb, a car will lose between 15 percent and 20 percent of its value each year.
- After three years of a car's life, depending on the vehicle, it may have depreciated 50 percent.

If you plan to keep your vehicle for a long time, depreciation is less concerning; however, if you are counting on your car's residual value to offset the cost of a new vehicle, there are ways to mitigate the loss from depreciation.

- Start with a balanced buy – if you are "upside down" on your vehicle loan, you may owe more than the car is worth.
- Good car care – including attention to any manufacturer recalls – can keep your vehicle in top shape to maximize your resale value.
- Customizing with add-ons and unusual paint schemes can bring down resale value.
- Most important is a record for safety; even a minor collision can deflate resale value.

Ask John Paul: AAA's Car Doctor

You are not wrong to worry. Many owners and good technicians get surprised when the spark plug breaks without warning in the cylinder head. Here is what I would try: Leaving the spark plugs in the engine for extended periods are more likely to result in problems. The engine needs to be cool when attempting removal of the plugs. If you can start with a cold engine that was allowed to sit overnight all the better. Loosen the plug no more than 1/4 turn and then spark with carburetor (carbon) cleaner. This will dissolve the carbon and hopefully allow the plug to come out. Tighten and loosen the plug several times, if the plug feels like it is binding stop. If the plug does break Ford has an approved repair method using an insert that doesn't require cylinder head replacement.

I heard you on the radio and you mentioned that you drove a Porsche 911 with all wheel drive but was worried about driving it. I never heard why, what was the problem?

A. The Porsche 911, in this case the Targa roof all-wheel drive, is a phenomenal car to drive, even during this past winter as long as it has appropriate tires. The problem is that even the snow tires were very low profile and I was concerned about potholes and wheel and tire damage. I did put in a request that once the roads get better I would like a chance for a more thorough road test.

Some Thoughts About Car Buying

By JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

If you are a buyer who only keeps a car a few years, do some research and look at models that traditionally hold their value. History has shown that some SUVs, pickup trucks, hybrids and some sports cars will hold their value better than some other models.

If you are someone who keeps their car forever, then the type of car you chose and options you purchase have less of an impact in the resale or trade in value. Having a 20-year-old car with heated seats may be nice to have but does little to improve the resale value or trade of the car.

When you are buying a car you should think of color choice. Color choice is very subjective and can impact how quickly a used car will sell. Black, sliver, grey and white are popular colors because they can be somewhat neutral while still making a statement. Black and white colors on certain models denote luxury. While a pearl yellow car may make a dramatic or playful statement, it may not be a color that appeals to all buyers. This color choice may reduce the pool of potential purchasers when the car is eventually offered for sale as a used car.

Even technology can be an issue, considering it changes so rapidly. GPS and iPod/MP3 players are being replaced by smart phones; today more people are streaming music with sites like Pandora and Spotify than ever before. These services are rendering some older technology useless for some buyers of certain cars. Ten years ago every car had a cassette player, five years ago all had CD players, some cars today only have Bluetooth to connect a smart phone to the audio system. Systems such as back-up cameras, hands-free Bluetooth and remote car start systems can enhance resale value. Replacing stock wheels and tires with 22 inch wheels and ultra-high-performance tires, can be an expensive add-on option that may not appeal to every buyer and could in fact reduce the value in some cars. A mini-van or SUV with aftermarket wheels may not suit every buyer's taste; in the same way those same wheels would on a sports car.

Even adding a high-powered aftermarket sound system can have a negative impact on value. Since these systems tend to be a personal choice and might not appeal to all future buyers.

REPAIRS

Technically a car that has been in a crash and repaired to pre-crash condition should not lose any value, but realistically that is not always the case. If your car has been in a crash, my advice would be to keep a list of repairs to document the quality and quantity of the repair work. If you have a concern about a history report run it before you consider trading your car in. Minor bumper damage on some reports may look like major damage, having the documentation about the repairs can help eliminate any confusion and help with the car's value.

There was a time when a car with 100,000 miles was considered worn out, today that is not the case. That said high mileage will still hurt trade in values and low mileage cars still sell for a premium. If you have several cars in your household, consider how and when you drive those cars. Perhaps keeping one car for daily errands and minimizing mileage on the other vehicle could be a financial win.

Deferring maintenance is always a mistake. Repairing a car as it ages will help hold its value as will keeping receipts as well as a log book of any repairs will impress would be buyers. Absolutely complete any necessary recalls, they are free, not having them performed could compromise your safety.

How do you determine the value of your car? In my opinion before you go to a used car book value sites look at comparable cars for sale. Sites such as cars.com, autotrader.com and cargurus.com can help you find similar cars for sale. Keep in mind there are different prices for cars sold—those cars sold by owners (no warranty) to cars sold by dealers (with some warranty) and certified preowned cars that could have been extensively reconditioned to reflect a car that is almost new. You then need to determine the overall condition of your car, excellent, good, average or poor. Many people overestimate the condition of their own cars, discounting dings, scrapes and wear. Keep in mind a car dealer generally needs to recondition a used car, performing any necessary repairs and sell it with some sort of warranty, generally their price will be higher than a private party sale do to the work necessary to get the car ready for sale. Again do this type research before you go to sites such as NADAGuides and Kelly Blue Book to look up the price. Only by doing complete research can you actually determine the realistic price of your car.

If you are considering trading your car in, thoroughly clean and even detail the car. Spending a few hours cleaning and waxing a car can make a difference in trade in value. Before you consider selling a car on your own there are a few things to consider. Does your state require the car to be safe and roadworthy before it is sold? Can the buyer return the car if it has a problem? Compare the trade in price from a dealer versus what you could sell it for on your own and decide if it is worth the trouble. The trade in to the dealer may also help with sales tax costs on the new car if applicable.

Finally there is always to option of donating the car to a charity. My opinion has always been to donate to a charity that matches your beliefs. This could be National Public Radio, The Salvation Army or many others. Don't forget vocational schools, your car could be a donation for you and a learning tool for students.

Downtown Parking Restrictions, Travel Lane Reductions

Drivers can expect temporary parking restrictions and travel lane reductions as the full reconstruction of Hancock Street in the Adams Green area of Quincy Center gears up this week, according to the City of Quincy's website

Work in the street will focus on the area of Hancock Street between Russell Park and City Hall. Related reconstruction of sidewalks is scheduled to take place in the nearby area from City Hall heading toward Granite Street.

In addition, there will be overnight utility work on Temple Street. Drivers and pedestrians are urged to use caution.

Gasoline Prices Up One Penny

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up one cent from last week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA's April 6th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.33 per gallon, up one cent from last week. Prices locally are 12 cents lower than a month ago. The current price is six cents less than the national average for self serve unleaded of $2.39. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $1.19 higher at $3.52.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 42 cents, from a low of $2.13 to a high of $2.55. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every trip, every time.

Salvatore J. Pugliesi, 95

A funeral Mass for Salvatore J. Pugliesi, 95, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Pugliesi died peacefully Monday at his son's home in Hingham, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Providence, raised and educated in Quincy schools and was a graduate of Quincy High School, Class of 1937. He had lived the past two years in Hingham and more than 90 years in Quincy.

Mr. Pugliesi was employed as a machinist and began his career at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy with the Bethlehem Steel Company. He later worked for many years as a machinist at the Allis Chalmers Company in Hyde Park.

Mr. Pugliesi was a U.S. Navy veteran of World War II. It was while serving as a seaman 2/c at Whiting Field in Pensacola, Fla., that he met his future wife, Effie Cuozzo, who was also serving in the U.S. Navy as an aviation mate 2/c. He was proud of his late son David and his service to our country in the U.S. Army and was an active Vietnam veteran supporter.

Mr. Pugliesi was an avid gardener and was well known for his fabulous tomatoes. He also enjoyed cribbage and fishing. He was devoted to his family and especially to his cherished grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Beloved husband of the late Effie R. (Cuozzo) Pugliesi. Devoted father of Robert W. Pugliesi and his wife Patty of Hingham, Barbara A. LeClair and her husband Stephen of Bridgewater, and the late David J. Pugliesi. Loving grandfather of Amy Pugliesi of Hingham, Caroline Pugliesi of Boston, Jessica Pugliesi of Boston, Renee McCarthy and her husband Christopher of Lakeville, Jacqueline Van Dyne and her husband Steven of NH, Michael LeClair, NYPD, and his wife Sarah, NYPD, of NY. Special grandfather of Matthew LeBlanc of Groveland. He was affectionately known as Boobah to his great-grandchildren Sophia, Ian, Genevieve, Nicholas and Emily. Robert J. Alfano, Sr., 72

A funeral service for Robert J. Alfano Sr., 72, of Quincy will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) at Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Alfano died peacefully April 2 at the John Adams Health Care Center surrounded by his loving family.

He was a graduate of North Quincy High School and a veteran of the U.S. Navy. Mr. Alfano retired from the United States Post Office after 32 years of service. He helped many employees as a counselor in the Postal Program for Alcoholic Recovery and was a longtime friend of Bill W.

His best quality was his sense of humor with his jokes to the very end. He loved to make people laugh and enjoyed his many trips to Prince Edward Island.

He was the beloved husband of Edna (Blacquiere) Alfano for 49 years and the son of the late Helen and Michael F. Alfano. Loving father of Kim M. Alfano of Quincy, Michael F. Alfano and wife Michelle of Pembroke and Robert J. Alfano Jr. of Weymouth. Dear grandfather of Sarah, Sydney, and Ashlee.

Visiting hours are 4-8 p.m. tomorrow at the funeral home.

Memorial donations may be made to Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169 or to Joslin Diabetes Center, 1 Joslin Place, Boston, MA 02215.

Lorraine Schales, 86

A memorial service for Lorraine Ina Johnson (Savko) Schales, 86,formerly of Holliston, Quincy, and North Grafton, Mass., and Inverness, Fla., was held April 4 in Christ Community Church, Providence, R.I.

Mrs. Schales died March 10.

Mrs. Schales was born in Worcester and attended Worcester schools. She worked at Reed and Prince before marrying and moving to North Grafton to raise her family. During those years she was employed by St. Mary's Church Rectory and was actively involved in the church teaching CCD classes, singing in the church choir and singing solo for church functions and services. She was also active in the Women's Club and community, where she performed in many musical productions.

After moving to Quincy, she played a significant role in the success of the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, run by her late husband William Schales. She had a heart of gold and enjoyed helping people in need. After her retirement she moved to Inverness, Fla., but returned to New England to be with her family.

She loved the ocean, Nubble Light in York Beach, Maine, being her favorite place of all. She made it a point to visit there every year with her family. Her favorite pastimes were sailing with her husband, traveling, singing, dancing and writing beautiful poetry.

Beloved wife of the late William Schales of Quincy. Mother of Susan (Savko) Went and her husband Walter of CT and SC; Dianne (Savko) Lorenzetti and her husband Enrico of FL and formerly Quincy; and Meredith (Savko) Brown and her husband Jeffrey of RI and formerly of Quincy and VA. Also survived by grandchildren Christopher Mandella of Webster, Rachael Mandella of Rochdale, Melissa Lorenzetti and Katie O'Neil of Quincy and Sarah Evjy of Braintree and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were made by Berarducci Funeral Home, R.I.

Christine R. Johnson, 82

A memorial service for Christine R. (Mormino) Johnson, 82, of Quincy was held Tuesday in Magoun-Biggins Funeral Home, Rockland.

Mrs. Johnson died March 19 after a period of failing health.

She was born in Quincy, daughter of the late Matthew and Rose (Gentile) Mormino. She was a lifelong resident of Quincy and attended Quincy High School. Mrs. Johnson enjoyed bingo, yard sales, flea markets, and playing Scrabble. More than anything else she enjoyed spending time with her family.

She was formerly the wife of the late Russel J. Johnson. Mother of Steven Johnson and his wife Janice Francis of Scituate and Debra Johnson of South Weymouth. Sister of Mary Mormino of FL. Grandmother of Matthew Johnson, Steven M. Johnson, Melissa Johnson, and Christopher Johnson.

Memorial donations may be made to the South Shore Nursing Facility Activities Fund, 115 North Ave., Rockland, MA 02370.

Robert P. Murphy, 59

Funeral services for Robert Peter Murphy, 59, a lifelong Quincy resident, were privately held.

Mr. Murphy died by accident Jan. 27 at Boston Medical Center.

He was born in Quincy, raised and educated in Quincy schools and was a graduate of North Quincy High School. He had been employed in the commercial moving industry.

Beloved son of the late John T. and Elizabeth M. (Doucette) Murphy. He is survived by several loyal friends.

Arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Avenue, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Carl Huskins, Jr., 39

Funeral services and interment for Carl "Wayne" Huskins, Jr., 39, of Quincy will be private.

Mr. Huskins died April 2.

Born in Stoughton on Jan. 23, 1976, Mr. Huskins led a complicated life. He was a graduate of Quincy High School and worked as a laborer and former Union Tunnel Worker for Local 88.

Loving son of Carl W. and Susan L. (Sandsbury) Huskins of Quincy. Dear brother of Wayne Paul Huskins and his partner Shannon Allen, Rob Burns and his wife Renee and Peter J. Burns. He was the cherished uncle of Jordan Elizabeth, DJ, Christopher and Benjamin. He was the loving nephew of Hellen and Ronald Huskins of Quincy and is also survived by many other aunts, uncles, cousins and friends.

Funeral arrangements were made by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

at 6-6 and took an 8-6 lead after two service points from junior Vincent Cristiani. The Bears scored the next four points to claim a 10-8 advantage. Greater New Bedford extended their lead to 16-9. Boutin registered three straight kills to bring the Presidents to within 16-12.

"He'll swing left or right, he is kind of ambidextrous," said Niosi of Boutin. "And he's so tall, he can hit over almost anyone. He played great I thought; he had a couple good blocks too."

Greater New Bedford finished the set on a 9-1 run to take the second set by a score of 25-13. The Bears raced out to a 7-1 advantage in the third set after a kill from Matthew Lemieux. Boutin responded with a kill and senior libero Jerod Lin tallied a service point to trim the Bears' lead to 7-3. Greater New Bedford won the third set 25-11. Gomes talked about what he saw from Quincy.

"They were very scrappy, they popped a lot of balls up," he said. "They have a couple of big guys which is (a) key and they served well too, I thought they served pretty well."

Lin tallied seven digs for the Presidents. Le and junior Xhuljo Zyba each tallied a couple kills.

"(Jackson) has been really strong for us and aggressive," said Niosi. "Yverson has been aggressive at the net. I think just our setting is a little inexperienced, we have a sophomore setting and then someone who has never set before so it's just kind of getting everything to jell and hopefully it will click."

The Presidents only have five seniors on the roster. The rest of the roster includes six juniors, three sophomores and one freshman.

"In the third game when I called a timeout even though (Greater New Bedford was) ahead by a lot, I was like, 'Every play that you're on the floor is a chance to get better, so no matter what the score is just keep chipping away because overall it's going to make you a better player and us a better team," said Niosi.

The Presidents have a busy week coming up with four games all with start times of 5:30 p.m. On Monday, they host Durfee, they travel to New Bedford on Wednesday, they host Taunton on Thursday and they travel to Barnstable on Friday. Niosi talked about keys moving forward and what the team will focus on during practice sessions.

"I think definitely (we) would like to improve upon our passing off serve receives, that kind of hurt us a lot today," she said. "And just our blocking, a lot of our front row players are players with one or (this is) their first year of experience so just learning when to jump and how to read a hitter and it's just all (a matter) of reps which just unfortunately takes time."

her reach, but that's the way she plays the game."

The two big spots Sommers has to fill are at short and second where Rachel Papile and Taylor Parry played so well last year. Senior Emma Kimmell looks to be the shortstop while Lisa Walker and Catherine Buttmomer are battling for the second-base job.

Seniors Dana Varmahmoodi and Emma Kelly return in left and center. Both are fast and can run down fly balls. Kelly is also a terrific leadoff hitter. She works walks and slaps the ball for base hits. Once on base, she creates havoc and forces hurried mistakes with her speed.

Kate McGahey and Lucia Buzzel are competing for the job in right field.

The league, as always, will be tough. Barone by herself makes Silver Lake a contender. There are Duxbury, Hingham and Whitman-Hanson who are always good. Sommers feels his team can be in the race for first place.

"I think we have the ability to win the league," he said. "It won't be easy, but I think with our defense and pitching, we have a good shot."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't be put off by a seemingly too-tangled situation. Sometimes a simple procedure will unsnarl all the knots and get you in the clear fast and easy, just the way the Lamb likes it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to go through your work space -- wherever it is -- and see what needs to be replaced and what can be tossed (or at least given away) without a second thought.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Someone who disagrees with your position might try to intimidate you. But continue to present a fair argument, regardless of how petty someone else might be while trying to make a point.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might find yourself exceptionally sensitive to family matters this week. An issue could come to light that you had overlooked. Ask other kinfolk to discuss it with you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have more questions about a project (or perhaps someone you're dealing with on some level) than you feel comfortable with. If so, see which can be answered, which cannot, and why.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to clean up and clear out what you don't need before your tidy self is overwhelmed by "stuff." Then go celebrate the Virgo victory over clutter with someone special.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might feel a mite confused about why something you were sure couldn't go wrong didn't go all right either. Be patient. Things soon move into balance, exactly as you like it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) At this decision point, you could be moving from side to side, just to say you're in motion. Or you could be considering making a move straight up. What you choose is up to you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although your finances should be in an improved situation at this time, thrift is still the savvy Sagittarian's smart move. Advice from a spouse or partner could be worth heeding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Taking on a new challenge brings out the Goat's skills in maneuvering over and around difficult spots. Best of all, the Goat does it one careful step after another. (Got the idea, Kid?)

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your well-known patience might be wearing thin because of a disturbing (and seemingly unending) problem with someone close to you. This could be a time to ask for help. Good luck.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful about a new venture that lures you into a "just-look-and-see" mode. Be sure that what you're being given to see isn't hiding what you should be seeing instead.

BORN THIS WEEK: Aries and Taurus give you the gift of leadership and the blessings of care and concern for all creatures.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

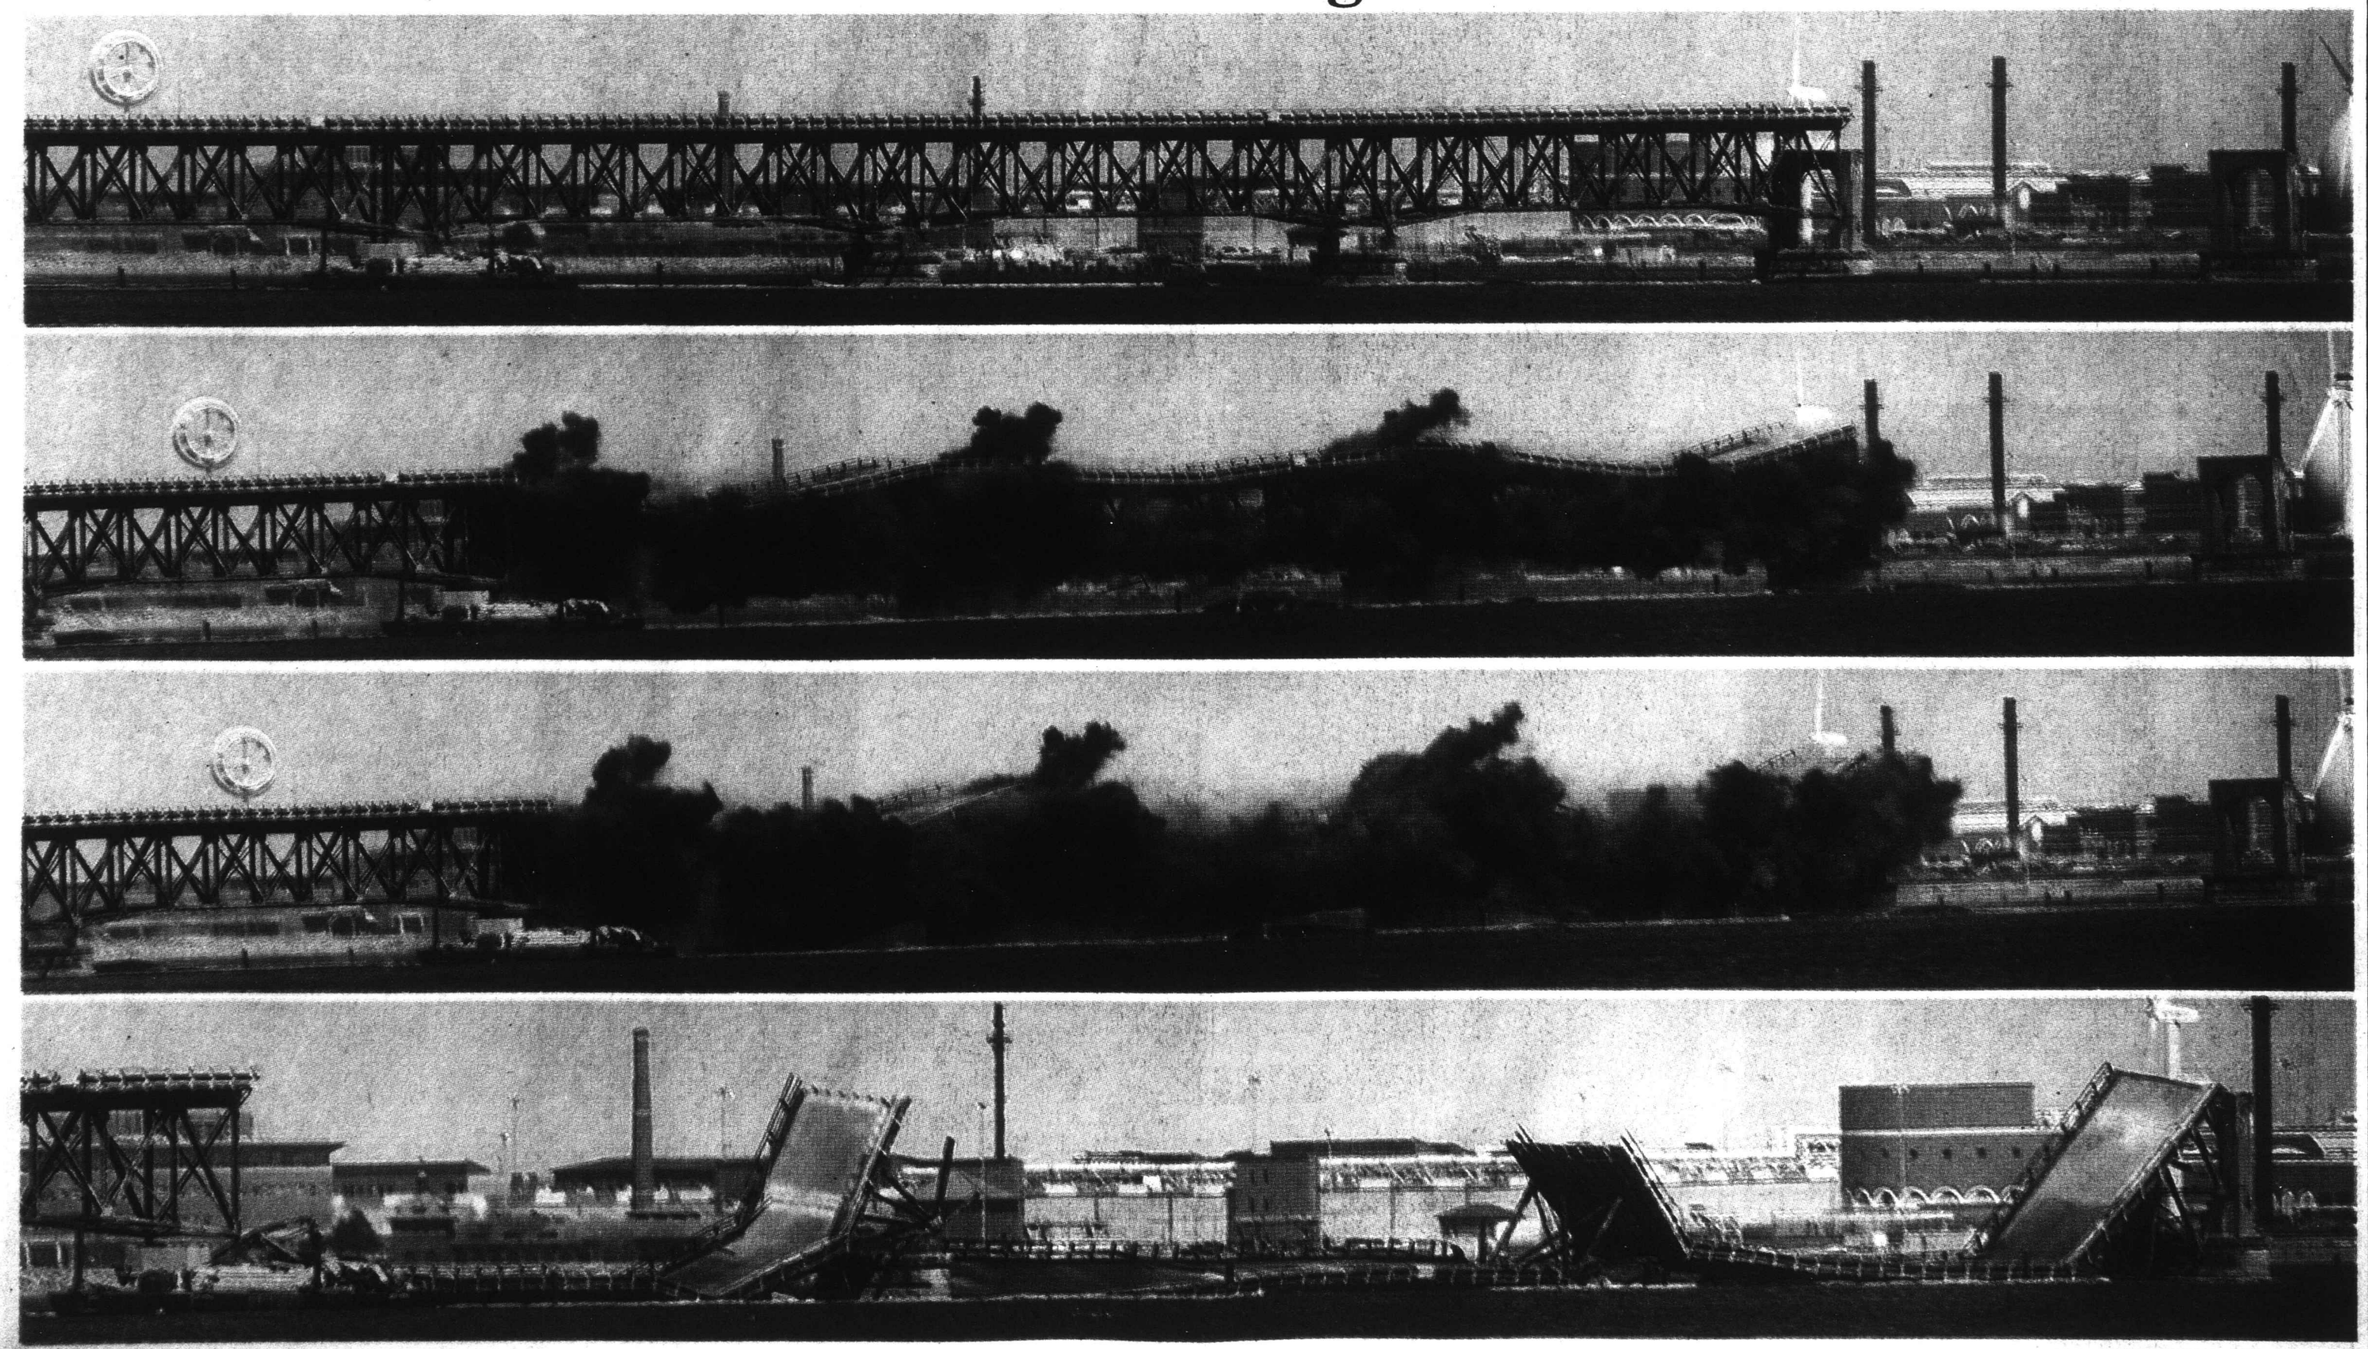
Another 750-Foot Section Of Long Island Bride Denotated



SEQUENCE OF PHOTOS shows the 20-second detonation of a 750-section of the Long Island Bridge that was brought down into Quincy Bay at 1 p.m. on April 1. These photos were taken from Wollaston Beach using a 300mm 2.8 lens and 1.5 teleconverter. The demolition is being handled by Walsh Construction Co. of Chicago at a cost of $20.6 million. The first section was leveled also by explosives March 23. Two other detonations are planned in the coming weeks to take down the remaining span. The 64-year-old bridge is owned by the City of Boston and connected Moon Island to Long Island. The City of Boston plans to build a new bridge at an estimated cost of $80 million over the next two to three years.

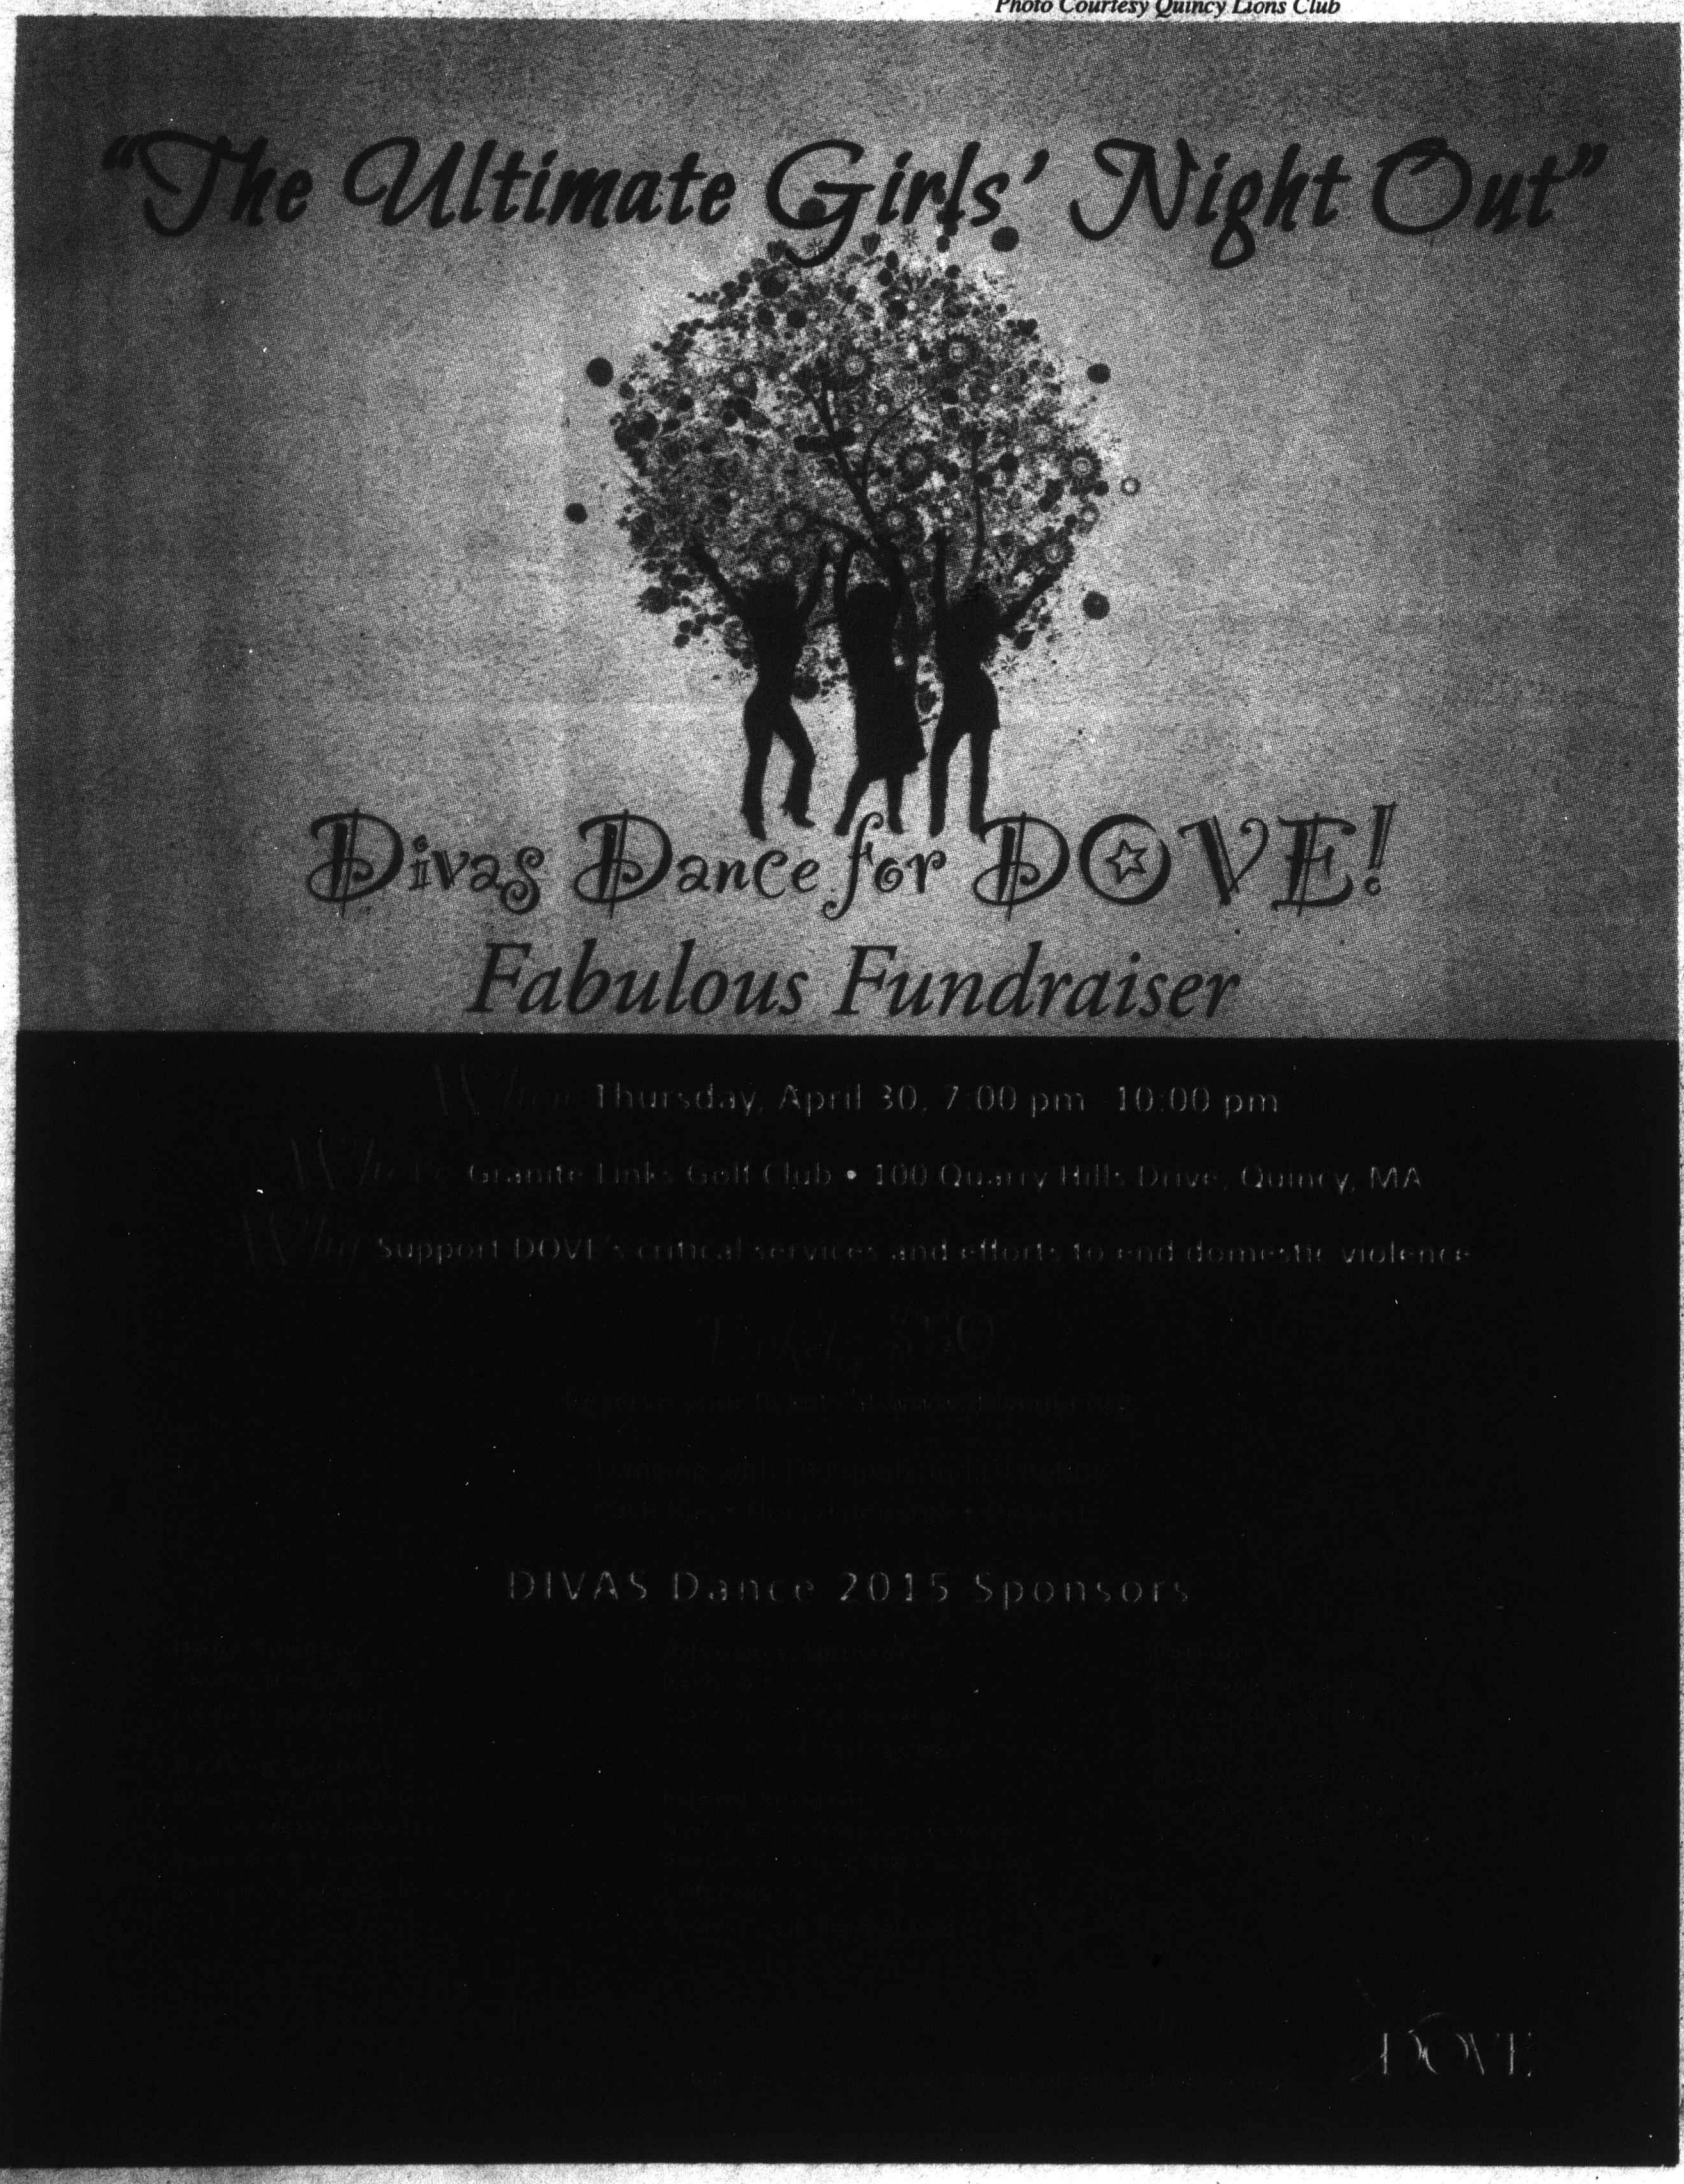
Valerie Lioudinouskov Wins Lions Club Speech Contest

Quincy High School senior Valerie Lioudinouskov was recently selected as the winner of the Quincy Lions Club's annual speech contest.

Lioudinouskov was one of nine students from Quincy and North Quincy high schools to participate in the contest, the topic of which was "Respect: Where Has it Gone?" Also participating were: Kassandra Dineen, Lydia Culp, Noreen Plabutong and Parawat Changthong from Quincy High School; and Matthew Alexander, Michael Mullaney, Debbie Chan and Nassim Tousil from North Quincy High School.

With more than 1.3 million members around the world, Lions Club International is the largest service organization in the world. The Quincy Lions Club, founded in 1941, raises thousands of dollars each year to fund eye research and to provide free eye glasses and eye exams to local residents in need. The club also provides college scholarships to local high school seniors and funds other worthwhile community projects.



New Motor Vehicle Light Law

The MassDOT Registry of Motor Vehicles and Highway Divisions, along with the Massachusetts State Police, advises motorists of a new law that took effect Tuesday requiring the use of headlights and taillights on motor vehicles during inclement weather and when windshield wipers are in use.

The law is intended to increase safety and visibility of vehicles on the Commonwealth's roadway.

The changes to Mass General Law Chapter 85, Section 15, signed into law in January, require that front and rear motor vehicle lights be activated in all of the following conditions:

- When windshield wipers are on
- When low light or weather conditions prevent other vehicles or persons from being seen at 500 feet
- From ½ hour after sunset to ½ hour before sunrise

Relying on daytime running lights for these conditions is not sufficient under the law. A violation of this law is considered a surchargeable minor motor vehicle traffic law violation for insurance purposes.

Koch Kicks Off Re-Election Bid May 14

Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday he will launch his campaign for a 4th term at a rally with supporters on May 14 in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

"I am extraordinarily grateful for the trust the people of this City have placed in me over the years, and I'm excited about the opportunity to continue to earn that trust this year. It's the greatest job in the world, and the honor of my life to serve," said Koch in a prepared statement released by his committee.

Koch has two challengers to date: Councillor Doug Gutro and School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney. Gutro and Mahoney announced their candidacies in January.

The rest of the statement released by the campaign is as follows:

Koch, 52, took office in 2008, just as the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression began bearing down on the national, state and local economies. He acted immediately to protect the City with a series of financial reforms accomplished by bringing

Vote On Housing Authority Smoking Ban Imminent

By SCOTT JACKSON

A ban on smoking at Quincy Housing Authority properties may be approved as early as this week.

The housing authority's five commissioners were scheduled to meet yesterday (Wednesday). The meeting was to be held one day after the authority's policy advisory board – a panel composed of 11 QHA tenants – was set to discuss the ban Tuesday, according to James Lydon, the Housing Authority's executive director.

If enacted, the ban would apply to all Quincy Housing Authority properties. The agency manages 1,600 state- and federally-funded units spread across 10 buildings and developments throughout the city.

"It would apply to 100 percent of the properties we own," Lydon said of the ban, noting it would apply to both residential units and common areas in the buildings.

Nationwide, Lydon said 300 housing authorities have similar smoking bans in place. Smoking is banned on all public housing properties in the state of Maine.

Caddy Day Memorial Ceremony April 26

Caddy Detachment Commandant Chuck Begenna invites the public to attend the 70th anniversary of the Caddy Memorial Day Ceremony Sunday, April 26 at noon at Caddy Memorial Park on Quincy Shore Drive, Wollaston Beach.

The annual ceremony honors the fighting men of Quincy who fought in one of the U.S. Marine Corps' most epic battles, Iwo Jima, during World War II. Tragically, four Quincy Marines were killed in action in what was the war's most costly battle for the Marine Corps. One those Marines, PFC William R. Caddy, made the ultimate sacrifice for his comrades and was presented the Medal of Honor posthumously for his unselfish actions.

A collation at the William R. Caddy Detachment #124 will follow the memorial ceremony. The Caddy Detachment is located at 111 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

For more information, contact Detachment Adjutant, Marc Connolly, at 617-842-0942 or the Detachment Quarters at 617-479-3505.

Officials In Process Of Finding Architect

June Start For New Sterling School Study

By SCOTT JACKSON

School officials are in the process of finding an architect for the proposed replacement of the 88-year-old Sterling Middle School, a process that will be completed in time for a feasibility study on the new building to commence in June.

The city is working with the Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) to replace current Sterling Middle School, which first opened in 1927 and houses students in grades 5-8. The process of replacing the school began in December 2012 when MSBA and local officials toured the current school; the MSBA and city reached an agreement to hold the feasibility study in December 2014.

Before the feasibility study can begin, the city was required to select an owner's project manager and a designer for the new or renovated Sterling. Watertown-based Joslin Lesser has been brought on board as the owner's project manager and assisted the school department with a request for services for an architect/designer, according to School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro.

"Right now we have an owner's project manager so we're all set with that. What happens now is the OPM assists us with the process of a request for services for a designer or architect," DeCristofaro said in an April 10 interview. "The next item that we will face is the designer selection process with the MSBA, which means we'll ask for all these different architects to submit the requests for services."

Forty design firms have reached out to the city and expressed an interest in the Sterling project, DeCristofaro said. Twenty-two of them have conducted a walkthrough of the current building.

Joslin Lesser's initial task is to help school officials vet the designers.

"They will help us deal with arriving at an architect through an interview. First, all these designers will send in their ideas – their ideas about what a renovated Sterling might look like or a new Sterling might look like, because in the feasibility study for the MSBA that's really what the decision is. Marking, Mapping Fire Hydrants

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Department of Public Works plans to install new markers on fire hydrants this spring; the department is also working to create a GPS map of the city's fire hydrants with information on their condition that can be used by firefighters.

City Engineer Shawn Hardy provided the City Council with an update on both those efforts on April 6. The DPW, he explained, began installing two different types of markers on fire hydrants last year. Each type uses a spring to mount to the top of the hydrant and extends six feet above it. The markers allow the hydrants to be readily found, which is especially important when a significant amount of snow is on the ground.

SAL Decorating Flags For Vets Island Monday

The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post, will be installing American flags on Flags for Veterans Island Monday, April 20 at 10 a.m.

The island is located at School and Pleasant Streets, Quincy.

The Sons are looking for volunteers to help with the installation. There are more than 300 flags that decorate the Island.

The Sons are also holding a canning drive May 15 and 16 to raise money for the maintenance of the island, replace tattered flags and programs the Sons have for the veterans.

The Memorial Day ceremony will be held on Sunday, May 17 at 1 p.m.

RENAISSANCE

Since emerald is the birthstone for May, it should come as no surprise that the beautiful green gemstone symbolizes rebirth. Colombian emeralds are particularly favored because their especially fine and brilliant green color is devoid of any bluish tinge. This fascinatingly beautiful color is highly coveted on the international market. However, the origin of fine emeralds does not begin and end with Colombia. Fine emeralds are also to be found in Zambia, where the gemstones display a beautiful, deep emerald green with good transparency. Their color is usually darker than Colombian stones, often with slight yellowish-green shading. Some of Brazil's finest examples challenge even Colombian emeralds with their beautiful shades of green.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 29, 1429, 17-year-old French peasant Joan of Arc leads a French force in relieving the city of Orleans, besieged by the English. At the age of 16, "voices" of Christian saints told Joan to aid Charles, the French dauphin, in expelling the English from France.

• On April 27, 1805, in North Africa, a small force of U.S. Marines marches against Tripoli's port city of Derna to depose the ruling pasha. The phrase "to the shores of Tripoli," from the official song of the U.S. Marine Corps, has its origins in the Derna campaign.

• On April 28, 1916, Ferruccio Lamborghini, the founder of the company that bears his name, is born in Italy. After experiencing mechanical difficulties with a Ferrari, Lamborghini decided to start his own rival sports-car company, even hiring a former Ferrari engineer.

• On May 3, 1933, James Brown is born. Known as "The Godfather of Soul," Brown honed his musical talents in prison, where he was to serve 8-16 years for stealing at the age of 15. The Georgia parole board was impressed enough to release him after only three years.

• On April 30, 1945, holed up in a bunker under his headquarters in Berlin, Nazi leader Adolf Hitler commits suicide by swallowing a cyanide capsule and shooting himself in the head. Soon after, Germany unconditionally surrendered to the Allied forces.

• On May 1, 1958, President Dwight Eisenhower proclaims Law Day to honor the role of law in the creation of the United States of America, followed by Congress passing a joint resolution establishing May 1 as Law Day. The idea of a Law Day had first been proposed in 1957 by the American Bar Association.

• On May 2, 1972, after nearly five decades as director of the FBI, J. Edgar Hoover dies. By 1921, the former librarian had amassed a list of 450,000 radical leaders, organizations and publications in the United States. By 1969, Congress had grown suspicious that the FBI might be abusing its authority and passed laws limiting the tenure of future FBI directors to 10 years. (c) 2015 King Features Synd., Inc.

Self Defense Program For Women April 27, 28

Quincy Police will hold an Adult Self Defense Program Monday and Tuesday, April 27 and April 28, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Eastern Nazarene College gym on Wendell Ave., Quincy.

The free two-night program is open to females ages 18 and up (and 16 and 17 year olds with a parent and/or guardian).

Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program. There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with.

The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker."

To sign up or get more information, contact Lt. Dan Minton at 617-745-5719.

'A Tremendous Honor'

Everyone – and everything – was in place after Quincy's beloved Bob Noble presented a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery at 2:15 p.m. last Thursday – April 9 – National Former POW Recognition Day.

Bob, age 89, a U.S. Army veteran who was held prisoner for 122 days until he was freed April 16, 1945 – 70 years ago today – saluted as a bugler from the United States Army Band "Pershing's Own" played taps. On Bob's left was Maj. Gen. Jeffrey Buchanan, commanding officer, U.S. Army Military District of Washington. On his right two of his four children: daughter Alicia Gardner and son, Robert, Jr. Each placed their right hands over their hearts.

Among the several hundred visitors to the Tomb watching from the steps of the Memorial Amphitheater were nearly three dozen more family and friends who had traveled from Quincy to support Bob and witness this solemn and moving ceremony.

In front of the Tomb was the 30-inch deluxe wreath – adorned with red carnations, daisies and one single yellow rose. Daisies are the official flower of the National Former POW Organization because "daisies don't tell." The yellow rose – placed at the 3 p.m. position on the wreath – was selected by Bob in memory of his beloved wife and lifelong companion, Gloria Noble, who passed away 18 months ago.

The late morning and early afternoon at Arlington had been essentially breezeless on a gray but brightening overcast day.

As the bugler sounded Taps, a sudden but subtle gust of wind kissed the wreath. A red, white and blue ribbon fluttered momentarily. Then, a red carnation near the yellow rose dropped to the cement below.

The beloved matriarch of the Noble family had made her presence known.

"Gloria's here," Bob said recalling the red carnation moment. "Everybody in the family said the same thing. There isn't a day that we're not together – still."

It was the exclamation point on a perfectly proper and dignified afternoon.

"My mom was my dad's biggest supporter," said daughter Alicia at a post-ceremony dinner held at a Georgetown restaurant later that evening. "She was my father's biggest advocate, cheerleader and she was absolutely beaming today. I know many of us when we saw that carnation fall off we thought 'there she is. That's Gloria.'

"She was there and we all had her with us in so many different ways today," Alicia added.

Bob called the wreath laying a tremendous honor. And besides Gloria, he had some other folks on his mind as he placed the wreath on the rack in front of the Tomb with the help of a soldier from the U.S. Army Third Infantry Regiment – "The Old Guard."

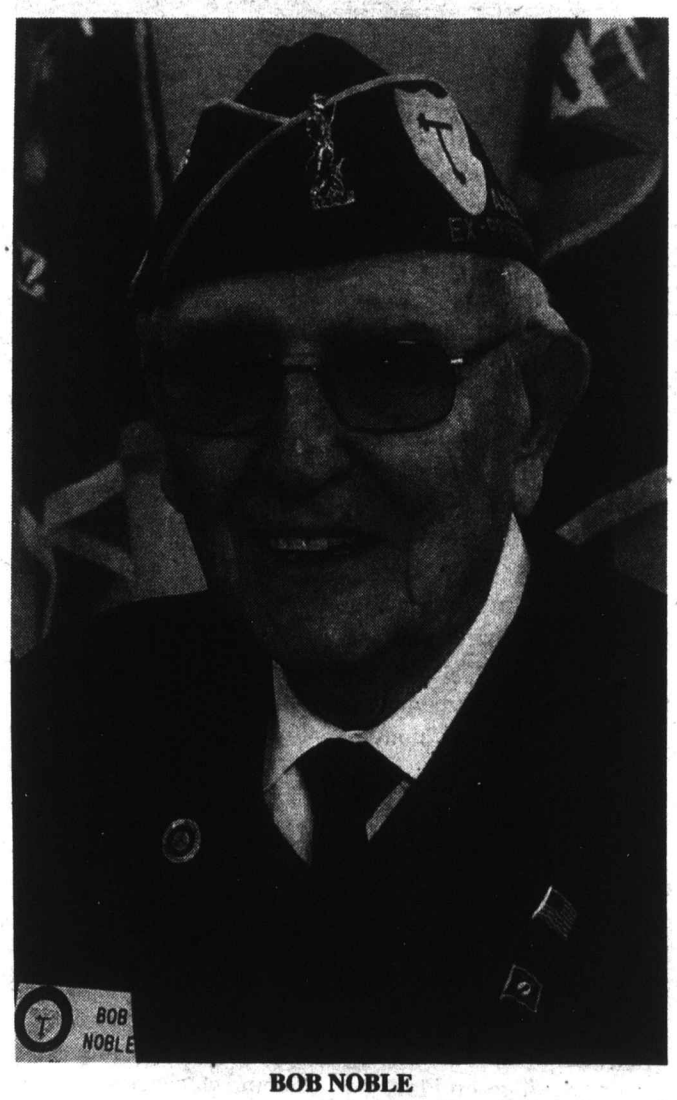
"I feel it was not for me alone. I was a symbol for all World War II veterans and Ex-POWs. I had all my friends in mind and all POWs from all the wars on my mind when I placed the wreath and bowed to meditate before the playing of Taps."

It is a select group of individuals who are invited to lay a wreath at the Tomb. For Bob Noble, he's in even more rarefied company.

Escorting Bob from the stairs of the Amphitheater to the Tomb was Maj. Gen. Buchanan. MG Buchanan also escorts the three leaders of this nation – President, Vice President and Speaker of the House as well as some foreign Heads of State – at similar wreath ceremonies at the Tomb.

"I didn't know he would be taking part before the ceremony. I feel very humbled," Bob said. "It made me realize how significant an honor it was to be there for that.

"It's something I never thought would happen. That honor was doubled by the number of people who came from Quincy to be there with me."



BOB NOBLE

Bob, a past commander of the American Ex-POWS Massachusetts Department, was invited to lay a wreath at the Tomb after attending the U.S. Army's Spirit of America show last September in Boston. There he was introduced to Army Col. Josslyn Aberle and then MG Buchanan.

Col. Aberle said she was honored to meet Bob at the event and to have learned of his service and time spent as a POW in WWII.

"After my commanding general met Bob, he invited him and his family to participate in a wreath laying ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery in honor of his service.

"Ceremonies such as Bob's wreath laying ceremony in honor of National Former POW Recognition Day are important for many ways and many reasons and an opportunity when we are able to recognize the service and the sacrifice of our nation's veterans," Col. Aberle said.

"For 240 years our Army veterans have carried the costs of America's wars and they have stood watch over America's peace. As time passes, for most Americans, World War II and those heroic veterans known as 'The Greatest Generation' will simply become a chapter in a school history class, remembered only as Soldiers who fought an epic struggle between empires and nations, resulting in a war that ravaged and continent and generations.

"So it is especially important to take the time to honor those who are still with us today and say 'thank you' to veterans like Bob who selflessly answered their nation's call, risking all for a cause greater than themselves."

After the ceremony, Bob and his traveling entourage assembled in the Trophy Room of the Memorial Amphitheater. There MG Buchanan presented Bob with three mementos of the occasion: a handsome two-sided brass medallion, a citation and a picture of the tomb with a Sentinel in front it. He also thanked him for his service to this country as his family and friends applauded.

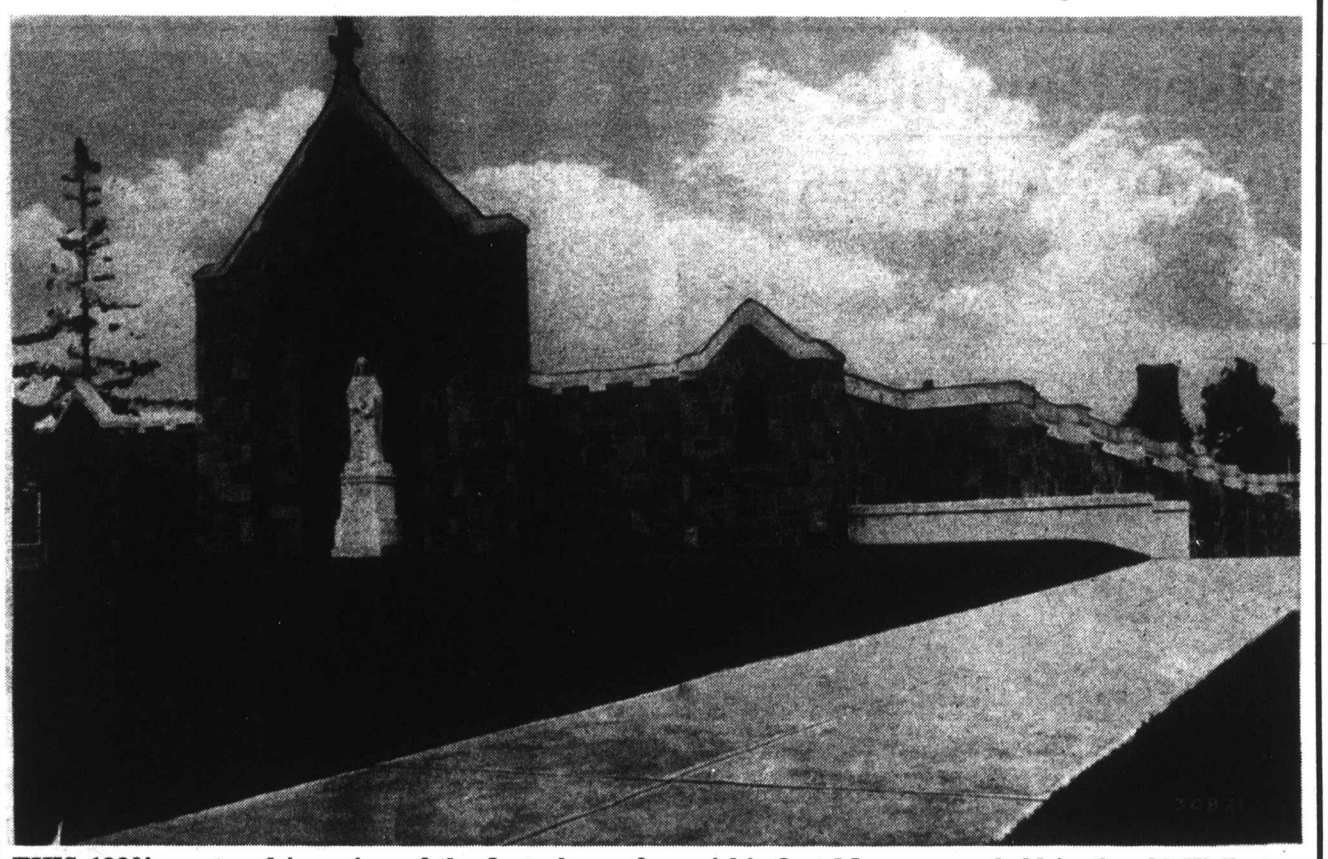
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS 1930's postcard is a view of the first phase of building Saint Ann Roman Catholic Church on Hancock Street in Wollaston. Like many other Catholic churches it started out with a small lower level sanctuary until additional funds were raised to complete the building. This parish, though, had a very upset congregation when an expensive rectory was built next door before the upper church was finished. Established in 1922, the parish's first Masses were held in the old Wollaston Masonic Temple that was on Beale Street. It was a long 18 years later before the upper portion of this church was completed in 1940. The Howard Johnson Company published this postcard. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

City Looking Into Punch Card Voting

The future of voting in Quincy may be by punch card if City Clerk John M. Gillis has his way.

The punch card voting machines that were being demonstrated, said Gillis, could cost the city as little a $75,000 or as much as $150,000 and trim as much as six hours off the time needed to count ballots.

"It is about time," said Gillis, who was up until 4 a.m. with the presidential primary election last March 13. "After 27 years I'd like to see some improvements in voting procedures."

Brian Crawley, vice-president of Electronic Voting Machines, Inc. of Newton, said the voting unit of the machine costs $150 each, and the unit with a stand and light cost $300 each.

Gillis said that he would make a pitch for them at the next city council meeting.

WILLARD SCHOOL SOLD FOR $916,500

The city closed a deal for the sale of the old Willard School in West Quincy to Furnace Brook Associates for $916,500 for conversion into an office building. Conversion is expected to be completed in the fall of 1984.

Furnace Brook Associates is made up of Dickinson Development and Grossman and Company, both of Braintree.

The old school will be converted into between 40,000 and 45,000 square feet of rental office space.

Raise Minimum Legal Age To 21 To Purchase Tobacco

A recent study by the Institute of Medicine looks at the public health implications of raising the minimum legal age to purchase tobacco products.

Thanks to this report, we can add another evidence-based strategy to the toolbox of strategies cities and towns in Massachusetts can use to prevent youth from becoming addicted to nicotine.

A committee of experts at the Institute of Medicine conducted a rigorous review, used mathematical modeling and concluded that increasing the minimum legal access age from 18 to 21 will have a positive impact on reducing youth initiation of tobacco use, particularly in adolescents aged 15 to 17. The report brief states, "Raising the MLA to 21 will mean that those who can legally obtain tobacco are less likely to be in the same social networks as high school students." According to the report, if the minimum legal age was raised to 21 now, by the time today's teenagers are adults, we would see a 12% decrease in smoking rates.

Many municipalities in Greater Boston have worked tirelessly to adopt a variety of policies—like eliminating the sale of single cheap cigars, limiting the number of new tobacco sellers and removing flavored tobacco from stores that minors frequent—that, when taken together, can have real impact on youth tobacco use. It's encouraging to have another evidence-based strategy to employ.

Most of the policies cities and towns use to prevent youth tobacco use are aimed at reducing the tobacco industry's influence. Without local regulation, the tobacco companies target young people with products that are cheap, sweet, and easy to get. While raising the minimum sales age to 21 helps reduce youth access, it alone does not eliminate the sales to minors or impact other access channels. For this reason, the strategy of raising the minimum sale age to 21 is just one of several key strategies to be used by municipalities to reduce youth smoking.

In Massachusetts, coordinated by the Massachusetts Tobacco Cessation and Prevention Program, our goal is to de-normalize tobacco use by youth. Using a variety of approaches to reduce youth access to tobacco, we can reduce the influence of the tobacco industry in places frequented by young people. With a comprehensive approach, over time, smoking-related disease and mortality could become so low that tobacco would no longer be a public health challenge. We know how to achieve a tobacco-free generation and with coordinated actions and investments we can get there.

'Country' Fundraiser Benefits 'Home Sweet Home'For Veterans

Although it snowed through early afternoon March 21, there was a full house at Quincy Point Congregational church for the "Home Sweet Home for Veterans" fundraising event.

Thanks to the skill and time devoted by the wonderful cooks and the donation of food by Coop's Restaurant, 100 guests enjoyed a hearty meal together. Helpful servers moved around the hall in colorful "country" attire, and outstanding musicians and singers had toes tapping with lively and moving country music tunes.

The evening was a benefit for the 12 housing units for returning veterans and their families being built by NeighborWorks Southern Mass. based in Quincy Point. Some $3,270 was raised that will provide gift certificates for each family to stock their new kitchens. The funds were raised through the Home Sweet Home event and by selling fudge for Valentine's day.

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. offered these words of gratitude:

"No work we have ever done is as important as our efforts over the years to provide affordable homes for our nation's veterans and their families. Thank you for supporting us in the creation of twelve new homes for veterans and their families on East Howard Street."

Focus On Exercising Minds And Bodies

Healthy Kids Day April 25 At South Shore YMCA

On Saturday, April 25th, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. the South Shore YMCA – Quincy branch will host a free community event to inspire more kids to keep their minds and bodies active and to promote inclusion.

YMCA's Healthy Kids Day®, the Y's national initiative to improve families' health and well-being, features games, face painting, active healthy living demonstrations, arts and crafts and more, to motivate and teach families how to develop a healthy routine at home.

This year, Healthy Kids Day will also be expanded to include an Inclusion Family Fun Event, also from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. In conjunction with Healthy Kids Day, families with diverse abilities are encouraged to attend the Family Fun Event to learn about inclusion, meet other Y members who have benefitted from inclusion programs, and join in all the fun! The Inclusion Family Fun Event will feature an inclusion scavenger hunt, bouncy house, obstacle course, family Zumba and more.

YMCA's Healthy Kids Day, celebrated at nearly 1,600 Ys across the country, aims to get more kids moving and learning, so they can keep up the habit all summer long – a critical out-of-school time for kids' health. Research shows that without access to out-of-school physical and learning activities, kids fall behind academically. Kids also gain weight twice as fast during summer than the school year.

"One in three U.S. children is obese. This statistic, coupled with the fact that once summer hits, children will be more idle, demonstrates why it's important to help families develop healthy habits now," said Pamela Holland, Youth & Family Assistant Director, Quincy YMCA. "As part of the Y's commitment to healthy living, through YMCA's Healthy Kids Day our goal is to improve the health and well-being of kids and inspire habits they can continue into adulthood."

In celebration of YMCA's Healthy Kids Day, the Y offers the following tips to help families develop healthy habits:

• High Five the Fruits and Veggies – Make sure kids get at least five servings a day, the minimum number nutritionists recommend to maintain healthy childhood development.

• Foster an Early and Onging Passion for Books – Read to and with your kids. Help children read at every age and every stage of their development.

• Team Up for Athletic Events – Set a family goal of great health by teaming up for community or charity events like races, walks, fun runs. Bike rides, etc.

• Volunteer Together – Find a cause that matters to the kids. Open their eyes to a world beyond themselves and the rich rewards that come from making a difference.

• Lead By Example – Be a good role model – kids can be influenced by seeing how hard their parents work at home or on the job, and how rewarding that experience is.

For more information on the South Shore YMCA Quincy Branch Healthy Kids Day event, contact Pamela Holland, at pholland@ssymca.org.

Teen Mothers Program To Honor June Joyce

By SCOTT JACKSON

While she was teaching at the Montclair School in the late 1980s, June Joyce had access to a stove in the teachers lounge in the next room. So one day she decided to cook up a pot of beef stew for her co-workers and ask that they donate a few bucks to the school department's Teen Mothers Program.

That tradition that started in the teachers lounge continues to this day, though Joyce now hosts the parties in her Hanover home. And the parties have been a resounding success, raising a combined $20,000 for the program in monetary and in-kind donations.

"She is probably one of the most unselfish, kind women I know," said Noreen O'Connell, who coordinates the Teen Mothers Program for the Quincy Public Schools. "Every year she never ceases to amaze me."

Joyce and her friends who attend the parties, which are held each December before Christmas, will be recognized by the Teen Mothers Program on May 8 at a game night fundraiser in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks on Quarry Street.

Tickets for the event are $25 per person in advance and $30 at the door. Tables of eight can be reserved in advance for $200. RSVP by April 27. O'Connell can be reached for tickets at 617-984-8704 or by email at noreenoconnell@quincypublicschools.com.

Joyce runs the school department's elementary laboratory program, an enrichment program for students at each of the department's elementary schools. She has been doing so since 1986. It was around that time she decided to start raising money for the Teen Mothers Program.

"I said one year 'I'm going to make some beef stew. How about everybody put $10 in a pot and come down, have some beef stew, and we'll take that money and give it to the Quincy Teen Mothers.' People thought it was a great idea," Joyce explained in a recent interview.

"The next thing you know we were having this feast in the teacher's room every year and it just became more and more."

After hosting the party for several years at Montclair, Joyce was relocated to a different building; the elementary lab program is currently hosted at Central Middle School. Instead of stopping the parties, she decided to host them at her own home. She also decided to invite more people.

"Once we switched it to my house I thought 'why don't I expand who is coming.' So the party ended up being the Montclair teachers, my neighborhood girl friends, my girl friends from the gym. I invited girl friends I went to junior high school with and my family as well," Joyce said.

"Everyone just started coming. Then the checks they started putting in were bigger and bigger each year. It kind of really mushroomed."

As the parties grew they started to include entertainment, such as singing of Christmas carols, and raffles of items including gift cards. Beef stew is still served, though it's far from the only offering.

The 64-year-old Joyce has no intention of stopping her annual parties anytime soon.

"I don't see an end. For me, this is what makes Christmas now. My kids are all grown up, although right now I am starting to get grandchildren – I have a grandson who is 8 and I have another one that will be born after this party," Joyce said. "But still, this also gives me a really good reason to decorate my house and to just say 'OK everybody, come on down.' And people look at it like 'we'll see you next year at the party.'"

The parties aren't the only way Joyce helps out the teen mothers. The elementary lab program included a community service requirement before she took over. After she started running the program, Joyce made the teen mothers the beneficiary of that requirement.

"It's really Quincy students helping Quincy students. I ask them to create something for the teenage mothers or their babies. They've created all sorts of different things in the past. Sometimes it's something little – a card or a painting," Joyce said. "They can really choose to do anything they want. We do have a little seminar and discuss what they might like."

As part of that community service requirement, Joyce has O'Connell come in and speak to the students about the teen mother's and the difficulties they face in school.

"She comes into the classroom and talks about the girls and how hard it is to get to school when you have a little baby," Joyce explained. "It's important to stress the director really sensitively discusses this because my kids are only in the fifth grade."

The mothers of the elementary students get involved as well: They're the ones who help package and deliver gifts to the teen mothers.

"The mothers of my students actually come in and they help me bag it all up and package it all up," Joyce said. "Then another class the next day, the mothers of the students help me chaperone and we bring one of the other classes up to the Quincy Teen Mothers to put the presents all out there for them."

Joyce recalled being at the teen mothers' Christmas party one year. The girls, she said, were so appreciative of every gift they received she was moved to tears.

"I left there, honestly, with tears in my eyes." Joyce said. "This was unbelievable to watch these girls. And they were so great with their babies."

As excited as the teen mother's are, O'Connell said Joyce is often nearly as excited.

"She's almost as excited as the kids to be doing this," O'Connell said. "It makes a huge impact, because many of them don't have much. Even we as a staff just sit there and go 'wow.'"

Joyce said she was hesitant about being recognized at the May 8 event, and even declined at first. She agreed to it when she was told her friends could be recognized as well.

"I was very excited," Joyce said. "I look at it as a way to say thank you to everybody who has helped me make this happen."

WHAT'S COOKING with Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUZIE FALCO

Roast Stuffed Lamb

By MARIE

If you enjoy lamb as much as my family does, today's recipe for stuffed lamb will please you. There are so many ways to prepare the stuffing either with an easy mix or from scratch, which is well worth the effort.

ROAST STUFFED LAMB

4-5 pound leg
6 ounces ground lamb
1 stalk of celery (chopped)
1 small onion (chopped)
1 cup favorite stuffing mix (soaked)
2 slices of bread (soaked)
salt and pepper to taste
1 egg (beaten)
1 teaspoon oregano
2-3 tablespoons oil

In the hot oil, sauté the celery and onion, add the lamb and cook for a couple of minutes. Add all the other ingredients and mix until well blended.

Season the lamb as you prefer. I had a pocket made on the top of the leg and just placed the stuffing inside. It can also be placed on top of the leg and cover slightly when roasting.

Bake in a 350 degree oven until done-20 minutes to the pound is the usual time.

Curried Basil Eggplant Over Rice

By SUZIE

Here is a delicious and simple vegetarian dish that is just spicy enough without being overwhelming.

Using broth instead of plain water really makes the flavor of the vegetables stand out as well. (I even use broth to cook the rice, instead of plain old water as well.) Fresh basil at the end really makes this dish, so make sure you don't skimp on it!

CURRIED BASIL EGGPLANT OVER RICE

1 cup white basmati rice sea salt and black pepper
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 cups vegetable broth
1 chopped onion
2 pints cherry or grape tomatoes, halved
1 eggplant (about a pound) cut into small cubes. Do not peel.
1 1/2 teaspoons curry powder
1 can chick peas, drained and rinsed
1/2 cup fresh chopped basil
1/2 cup full fat Greek yogurt (optional)

Cook rice according to package directions. Set aside.

Meanwhile, heat the oil in a saucepan over medium-high heat. Add the onion and cook, stirring occasionally, until softened,

Stir in the tomatoes, eggplant, curry powder, About 1 teaspoon salt, and ¼ teaspoon black pepper. Cook, stirring, until fragrant

Add 2 cups broth and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, partially covered, until eggplant is tender, 12 to 15 minutes.

Stir in the chickpeas and cook just until heated through, about 3 minutes.

Remove the vegetables from heat and stir in the basil. Fluff the rice with a fork. Serve the vegetables over the rice with yogurt, if using.

Rice With Asparagus, Peas

By MARIE

I recently found a delicious recipe for rice which is a wonderful complement to almost any entree. I like it because it contains two vegetables.

It can be made with white or brown rice-I used the brown.

RICE WITH ASPARAGUS AND PEAS

2 cups rice
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
5-6 stalks asparagus
1 cup frozen peas
1/4 cup white wine
4 cups stock (I used chicken) (heated)
3 tablespoons vegetable oil with a little butter

The asparagus can be cooked ahead any way you want. Cut them up in inch pieces and set side.

In the hot oil and butter, sauté the rice, stirring it around for a couple of minutes. Add the white wine and one cup of the stock.

Continue cooking the rice and continue stirring and adding the stock until it is all gone. By now, the rice is tender. Add the asparagus and stir well. Add the peas last and then cover with the grated cheese.

It takes from 20-25 minutes to cook. Enjoy

QCAP Annual Meeting April 30

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) Board of Directors will induct board members and officers at its Annual Meeting Thursday, April 30 at 5:30 p.m. at 22 Pray St., Quincy.

One-third of QCAP's board is comprised of representatives of low-income residents. Representatives are elected to serve on QCAP's board by low-income residents of the North Quincy/Atlantic, Germantown, Quincy Point and Southwest neighborhoods of the City of Quincy. Residents of these neighborhoods, who are at or below 175% of the poverty level, are encouraged to vote in the QCAP board election.

Voting will take place in Germantown, at O'Brien Towers and the Germantown Neighborhood Center, the Fore River Clubhouse, the Southwest Community Center at 1 Copeland St., and the North Quincy Community Center. Eligible residents may vote by walking-in and completing a ballot at the appropriate location.

To attend QCAP's Annual Meeting, or for more information on the board election, contact Elizabeth Hannon at 617-657-5356 or ehannon@qcap.org.

Events Celebrate Earth Day

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures program along with the Department of Public Works and the Thomas Crane Library is celebrating Earth Day (a day late) and the United Nations 2015 International Year of the Soils with a program entitled "Yay, Dirt!"

On Thursday, April 23 at 7 p.m. there will be a free screening of the film, "Dirt, the Movie," at the Thomas Crane Library followed by raffling off a compost bin ($45 value.) After the film, organic yard care professional Joe Cotter will answer questions about composting and caring for yards and gardens. John Sullivan from the DPW will answer any questions about recycling, yard waste and hazardous waste collection.

On Saturday, April 25 John Sullivan will lead a free tour of the DPW yard, including their compost operation. The tour will be followed by a stroll through the newly restored Broad Meadows Marsh. Another compost bin will be raffled off.

Meet in the Dept. of Public Works parking lot, 55 Sea St. Optional: join other tour participants for a pay-your-own-way lunch at a local restaurant after the tour.

For more information and rain date rescheduling, call 617/472-0799.

Waves Coalition Thanks City Council

I am writing on behalf of the Quincy Making Waves Coalition; we would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Councilor Brian Palmucci. QMWC had approached Councilor Palmucci to bring forth a resolution on our behalf and within a few short weeks Resolution 2015-046 made it onto the Council agenda.

Resolution 2015-046: Calling for Interpretation of Law to Benefit All Home Owners within a Flood Plain, calls on Governor Baker and David Cotney, Commissioner of the Division of Banks to interpret Chapter 177 of the Acts of 2014 to include ALL homeowners.

The Quincy City Council passed this resolution unanimously on April 6.

Quincy Making Waves applauds the Quincy City Council for recognizing how vitally important this bill is to homeowners, that it be interpreted with the intention given it by the Massachusetts Legislature.

We strongly urge homeowners to contact Governor Baker at 617-725-4005, and ask the Governor to instruct David Cotney to interpret Chapter 177 of the Acts of 2014 to include ALL homeowners.

Quincy Making Waves would also like to thank Representative Ayers for his letter to the Council in support of Resolution 2015-046.

Observing National Volunteer Week

In honor of National Volunteer Week, April 12 – April 18, we would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank and celebrate the 440 volunteers whose steadfast dedication and commitment enable Care Dimensions, formerly Hospice of the North Shore & Greater Boston, to fulfill its mission: to enrich the quality of life for terminally ill patients and their families. Our volunteers' selfless acts of kindness and compassion, both large and small, allow our patients the comfort, companionship and dignity that make all the difference at a critical turning point in their lives.

Our volunteers provided almost 26,000 hours of service last year. Whether at the bedside of a patient in a long-term care facility, in a family home, in the Care Dimensions' offices or our Kaplan Family Hospice House, volunteers are an integral part of our success.

We at Care Dimensions would especially like to recognize Marianne Colligan of Quincy for her contributions and dedication to our agency.

Dozens Of Activities Offered For 'Beyond The Bell'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Schedules of the dozens of afterschool activities Quincy Public Schools students can take part in over the course of May and early June as part of the Beyond the Bell program will be released this week.

The School Committee approved the plan to create the Beyond the Bell program on March 18 after the school district was forced to cancel 11 days of classes in January and February during a record setting winter. By offering the activities, the final day of school for all Quincy students – except graduating high school seniors – will be June 26 instead of June 30.

Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro on April 10 said he in the process of finalizing the schedule of activities available to students as part of Beyond the Bell. By tomorrow (Friday), he hopes to make the schedule for at least the first two weeks of May available to students, parents and teachers. They will be distributed via email, the school system's Aspen online system, and school newsletters, among other mediums. Each school will have its own calendar highlighting Beyond the Bell events.

"Every school will have a calendar," DeCristofaro said. "Parents don't have to be aware of everything that's going on at every site. If you have multiple sites – if you have a student at Montclair and a student at Atlantic – obviously you'll be looking at those two calendars and be able to say 'what do I want my son or daughter to participate in?'

"There may be conflicting activities. There may be a doctor's appointment or other things they do after school they would rather have their children doing. This is more a menu of really wonderful choices for our parents and kids."

The Beyond the Bell programs will be offered before and after the school day and on Saturdays. Events for both parents and students will be offered during weekday evening hours. The afterschool activities will be offered on Tuesdays as well, which are early release days for students.

"A lot of the teachers have expanded those Tuesdays," DeCristofaro explained. "It may be an afternoon where the grade three students have a program. They may not all stay, but whoever stays will get lunch and they'll be with their teacher for another hour or two hours to extend that day."

"Hundreds of teachers are giving hundreds of hours to our kids from elementary all the way up from high school," the superintendent further noted. "It's a way of giving back and making families feel a bit better about the significant inconvenience during that crazy time of 11 days out of school."

Participation in the programs is optional. DeCristofaro said Beyond the Bell has been designed so it won't be a burden to students and their families.

"We wanted to make sure there wasn't a burden – no burden to parents, no burden to students – and there wouldn't be extra assignments they have to do. That would cause some issues for kids and for families," he explained.

"We wanted to make sure we have curriculum offerings, civic and community engagement offerings as well, and to offer a varied schedule."

A number of community groups – including city departments, local organizations, and area colleges – will be offering Beyond the Bell programs, known as community connections, according to the superintendent.

The Quincy Fire Department, for example, already provides lessons on fire safety to third and sixth graders. As part of Beyond the Bell, the department plans provide additional lessons after school for both parents and teachers. The Quincy Police Department will host a basketball tournament in the morning for middle schoolers and offer classes on Internet safety and cyber bullying. The city's Planning and Community Development Department will offer its Farm to School program, which teaches students about agriculture and the role it plays in the community.

The South Shore YMCA has plans to offer courses on water safety as well as team building exercises. Quincy Access Television is putting together plans to host a game night for students, which would quiz them on their knowledge of the city and its history; students may also have a chance to help out behind scenes as well. The Quincy Parents Advisory Council plans on offering programs on Lego building for special education students.

A history walk is planned for Saturday, June 6. The history walk is a joint effort between the National Park Service, Quincy Historical Society, and the Colonial Dames, who operate the Dorothy Quincy Homestead. The walk will include visits to the homestead, the Adams National Historical Site, Hancock Cemetery, United First Parish Church, Thomas Crane Library, the Coddington Building, and the old Central Middle School, which was the first Quincy High School.

Students and parents may also have a chance to participate in Quincy's annual Flag Day parade on June 13.

Eastern Nazarene College and Boston University will both participate in Beyond the Bell. ENC will offers tours of its arboretum and BU will organize an astronomy night in Quincy.

Teachers have also identified a number of different activities – known as classroom connections – that will be part of the Beyond the Bell offerings. They include regular extracurricular activities, such as Prep for Success, Robotics, and Homework Club, and special events including a Greek Olympian movie night, Blue Hills nature hike, a presentation on the history of anime, a scavenger Hunt at Blacks Creek, and integer Frisbee golf.

Additional offerings will be available online. Students, for example, may be able to watch a film on John Adams and then lead an in-class discussion on the subject.

While the Beyond the Bell program was instituted this year to help make up for 11 snow days, DeCristofaro said some of the programs might be offered again to students in future years.

"I don't think the model will be replicated exactly like it is, because there is really right now a very strong sense of urgency to give back. That may not be there if the weather is fine next year," the superintendent said.

"But I think there are elements of Beyond the Bell that can be replicated, especially within the community – the community connections – because we're bringing in the community. They've been with us before – many of our partners – but I think the activities they will be participating in with our students and staff may be certainly activities they would like to sustain.

"The classroom connections, within the Quincy Public Schools budget at the elementary, middle, and high school [level] certain funding for those programs will be sustained. Some of the programs that are Beyond the Bell certainly may be a part of those extracurricular offerings."

DeCristofaro gave a presentation on the Beyond the Bell program at the April 8 School Committee meeting. He said there might be some nominal costs for transporting students and providing food service to those who stay after school on early release Tuesdays.

"It will be very, very reasonable and nominal compared to the amount of activities, the amount of hours and the depth of programing," DeCristofaro said.

Most committee members spoke favorably about the Beyond the Bell.

"When you look at this and what these kids and their parents will be involved in, they're going to get more out of this than they would out of two days in the last week of June when it's 80 degrees out and no one wants to be there," David McCarthy said. "You look at the folks you have involved, it's all [the students'] heroes – it's the teachers, the Police Department, the Fire Department. I couldn't wait to do this if I was involved in elementary, middle or high school."

"To provide our students with so many opportunities that are going to be given to them on a list for parents to take a look at and to see what their students want to participate in, or not, I think is phenomenal," Barbara Isola added. "I love the idea of Beyond the Bell using this year as a pilot. I would love to see it as an annual May event where we tap our partners and community members to offer these opportunities."

Anne Mahoney, however, said the amount of choices might be overwhelming for parents.

"You took on an awful lot. There are so many things," she said. "There are two days we're trying to make up but it feels like we're trying to make up everything – 109 inches of snow at the same time. It just feels like we're over compensating."

'Chair Affair' May 8 To Benefit Crane Library

Goal $30,000 For 100 Windsor-Style Chairs

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation is hosting The Chair Affair on Friday, May 8, from 6-8 p.m. inside the library's historic Richardson Room.

The foundation is hoping to raise $30,000, which would allow the library to purchase 100 wooden Windsor-style chairs. The library has a number of wooden Windsor-style chairs purchased in 1939 that are still in use in the Richardson Room and the Coletti addition. The new chairs will replace metal and fabric ones purchased in 2001 for the most recent addition.

The library foundation was launched in 1995 to help support the newest addition project. After the addition was completed in 2001, the foundation became dormant, according to Tina Cahill, a member of the library's Board of Trustees.

The foundation was reactivated approximately two years ago and The Chair Affair on May 8 will be the foundation's first event.

"This is the first ever event as a foundation," Cahill said. "We wanted to chose something specific people could see their donation going towards."

Cahill said she was inspired to relaunch the foundation after attending her daughter's wedding in 2012. The wedding was held in the Boston Public Library, with the venue fee benefiting the library's foundation.

"I thought why aren't we doing something like that in Quincy." Cahill explained.

Cahill approached Mayor Thomas Koch with the idea, and he then appointed her as a trustee. Cahill has been acting as a liaison between the trustees and the foundation since the latter was reactivated.

The goal of the foundation, she explained, is to help the library in areas the city can't. Library funding was cut in the wake of the 2008 recession, though it has recovered in recent years.

By hosting the event inside the Richardson Room, Cahill hopes to showcase it to local businesses and organizations that might look to use the space for future events. Proceeds from hosting those events would go back to the foundation.

The business casual event will feature live music, appetizers, and beer and wine. Tickets cost $100 for admission to the cocktail reception. A $300 donation will cover the purchase of one chair with a nameplate. For $500, guests can receive two tickets to the event and provide for the purchase of one chair with a nameplate along with a listing in the program honor roll.. A donation of $2,500 will cover the purchase of two personalized chairs, six tickets to the reception, a half-page ad in the program booklet and prominent exposure at the event and online. A donation of $5,000 will cover the purchase of four personalized chairs, 10 event tickets, a full page ad in the program book and prominent exposure at the event and online.

Sponsorship commitment is needed by April 20 and tickets must be purchased by April 30. More information can be found by calling 617-376-1312, emailing info@thomascranelibraryfoundation.org or by visiting the foundation's website.

Paul Grizey 'Walker Of The Year'

Paul Grizey was recently honored by the American Heart Association (AHA) and the CardioVascular Center at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center (BIDMC) as part of the organizations' Second Annual Lifestyle Change Awards presented on National Walking Day, April 1.

Grizey won the Boston Walker of the Year Award in a highly competitive contest that drew nominations from throughout the area.

Grizey, a studio production lead at Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts in Quincy, realized that changing his lifestyle was a matter of life and death. The 57-year-old lost his mother and three siblings to heart disease and other conditions before the age of 60, and he was determined to "break the curse" through healthy eating and vigorous walking. He is committed to a regular walking routine and has lost 80 pounds. Grizey also inspires others by leading the walking program he helped create at work.

"Paul has made tremendous lifestyle changes for his heart health and is an inspiration to others," said Dr. Kamal Khabbaz, Chief of Cardiac Surgery at BIDMC's CardioVascular Institute and Chair of BIDMC's 2015 Heart Walk Campaign, who served as co-host of the awards ceremony. "He is an excellent example that it is never too late to begin a fitness routine or embark on a healthier journey."

According to AHA, walking has many health benefits. Adults should get at least 150 minutes of moderately intense physical activity (such as brisk walking) per week, while kids should get 60 minutes of physical activity a day.

City Offering Discounted Reycled Rain Barrells

The City of Quincy is partnering with the Great American Rain Barrel Company in Hyde Park to offer recycled rain barrels to residents of Quincy as part of a community wide conservation and sustainability program.

"We are bringing rain barrels to Quincy to help homeowners bring down their water costs and help our community protect their aquifers" said John Sullivan, Program Manager for Quincy's DPW. "Rain barrels lower municipal water demands and save energy at water treatment facilities by reducing water pollution and storm water runoff. Using rain barrels to collect water off your downspout will conserve municipal water supply and cut household water bills up to 40 percent. Rain water is free of chlorine and water treatment chemicals making it an excellent water source for lawns, plants and gardens."

Outdoor water usage increases dramatically in the summer months when homeowner's water plants, lawns, fill pools and wash cars outdoors. Using rain barrels not only saves money but can offset that usage.

In this region there is typically 16 inches of rain from May 1st to Sept. 30th. For every inch of rainfall, a 1,000-square foot surface can collect 620 gallons of water, which means that over the course of the extended summer months an average roof of 2,400 square feet could see more than 20,000 gallons of fresh rainwater passing over its surface during that time.

"That is a significant source of water that homeowners could be tapping into for free," Sullivan said. "Just keeping a small 10-foot by 10'foot garden irrigated during the summer months can mean using over 1,000 gallons of water and yet it only takes one tenth of an inch of rain to fill a 60-gallon rain barrel. The Great American Rain Barrel Company recommends one barrel for every 100 square feet garden."

Rain barrels also reduce runoff. In watershed areas, runoff from homes and developments can harm existing water sources because overtaxed storm sewers discharge polluted runoff. Over time this takes a toll on the fragile aquatic ecosystem that the area is dependent on.

"Quincy is offering the Great American Rain Barrel in three colors; Forest Green, Earth Brown or Nantucket Gray at the low cost of $79," Sullivan said. "Each 60 gallon UV protected polyethylene rain barrel is manufactured in the USA from a recycled shipping drum that stands 39 inches tall by 24 inches wide and weighs 20 pounds empty with a wall thickness of 3/16 of an inch, resulting in a rigid, heavy duty rain barrel that will last virtually forever.

"The barrel comes complete with overflow fittings, insect screen, drain plug, screw on cover, and a threaded spigot with a choice of two ports to use with either a watering can or a garden hose," he added.

To purchase: visit info@greatamericanrainbarrel.com, click on " Shop Local Programs " in the lower left, click on "Quincy." Barrels will distributed on: Tuesday, May 12th from 5 to 7 p.m. at the DPW Parking Lot, 55 Sea St, Quincy.

Deadline for purchase is 5 p.m. on May 5th.

Flood Insurance Relief Sought

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council unanimously approved a resolution asking state regulators to reinterpret a 2014 law to give relief to all homeowners who live in a flood plain and are required to purchase flood insurance.

State lawmakers approved a new law in 2014 that was intended to reduce the amount homeowners are required to pay in flood insurance; homeowners with federally-backed mortgages must purchase the insurance if the house they live in sits in a FEMA designated flood plain.

The 2014 law, which was sponsored by Rep. Bruce Ayers and others, prohibits a creditor from requiring flood insurance that exceeds the outstanding principal left on a mortgage. If the owner of a $500,000 home, for example, had $100,000 in principal remaining on their mortgage they would only have to have coverage worth $100,000.

After the law was passed, however, Commissioner of Banks David Cotney ruled that provision and others in it only applies to mortgages issued after the law took effect on Nov. 20, 2014.

The council resolution approved April 6 asks Cotney and Gov. Charlie Baker to apply the law to all homeowners, regardless of when they received a mortgage.

"The interpretation the banking commission has put in place says it only applies to future mortgages. This interpretation has essentially negatively impacted folks in Quincy and throughout the commonwealth who are directly affected by these FEMA regulations, including folks who are newly in a flood zone," Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci stated.

Palmucci sponsored the resolution, which was co-sponsored by Councillors Margaret Laforest, Brad Croall, Kevin Coughlin, Kirsten Hughes, and Doug Gutro.

Sen. John Keenan attended the April 6 council meeting. He told the council lawmakers did intend to have the bill apply to everyone; he is optimistic the Division of Banks will provide a more favorable interpretation moving forward.

"We've worked with them – with Rep. Ayers and other members of the delegation – to make sure that all people that have mortgages presently can avail themselves. That they are only required to insure up to the limit of their mortgage. That they can't be forced to get coverage that covers content. And that they can't be forced to get coverage that has a deductible less than $5,000," Keenan said.

"Those three elements, if implemented, can save homeowners some substantial funds, but if it doesn't apply to those who presently own homes and have mortgages then it's really not of much value to the city of Quincy. It was the legislative intent to apply to everybody, and that's what we've been trying to convey to the Division of Banks.

"We're cautiously optimistic that the interpretation will be favorable to the city of Quincy and other communities."

FEMA's 2014 flood maps moved 1,400 Quincy homes into flood plains and remapped 2,700 that had already been in flood plains to higher risk, higher premium zones. The city appealed those maps, and up to 650 homes will be removed from flood plains and up 1,300 placed in lower risk zones. The revised map is due this spring.

Keenan attended an update on the flood map process earlier in the day on April 6. FEMA could release a new set of maps in just two years, he said.

"There is a general sense that as 2017 approaches and there is going to be more work on the maps, communities have to be pretty vigilant. They have to be organized going into the next round to make sure the maps truly reflect the risk in the communities," Keenan explained.

"Quincy is in pretty good shape. Quincy has – through the efforts of the City Council, the mayor's office, and others – spent some money on seawall repairs. They have done a good job of maintaining the marshes. They have also done a good job of keeping the tide gates in pretty good order."

Revised Flood Maps Issued

The federal government has released preliminary revised flood zone maps.

Hard copies of the maps are now available for viewing at the City Engineering Department in the Public Works complex at 55 Sea St. A second formal notice will follow on April 23 and the City's engineering team is working to have a user-friendly version of the new maps available via the City's website the following day, April 24.

The 120-day public comment period - which includes 90 days to submit comments and 30 days for the Federal government to respond - begins after the second notice is issued. Residents affected by the maps are encouraged, if possible, to wait until the electronic version is available for the best possible understanding of the revised maps.

The City's appeals team will continue to work through the maps and will be working toward further changes as the public comment period moves forward, according to the Mayor's Office.

The City will also be scheduling workshops and providing assistance on how best to submit public comments as the process move forward.

Koch To Formally Launch Bid For 4th Term May 14

stakeholders to the table and working together. His leadership saved millions of dollars and prevented the wholesale loss of vital public services suffered by many other communities.

"We did not just weather the crisis – we emerged stronger, and that took a lot of hard work by a lot of people willing to sit at the table, roll up their sleeves, and work together to protect our City's future," said Koch.

Investments in education and public safety, financial reforms, attention to long-standing infrastructure needs, one of the most aggressive economic development plans in the region, and direct action to meet a number of the City's challenges spurred a period of growth that continues today. Two national studies within the last year found Quincy to be among the 50 most livable midsize cities anywhere in America.

"As a community, we are making great progress. We have our challenges, but it's how we meet those challenges that's at the heart of the community's strength," Koch said, pointing directly to the City's ongoing efforts to fight the opiate epidemic affecting every city and town in Massachusetts.

At the Mayor's direction, and with the counsel of Quincy families directly affected by addiction, the Quincy Police Department became the first in the nation to be fully equipped with the life-saving anti-overdose medication, Narcan. The Mayor also created a substance abuse task force, since recreated in other communities, which focuses on a three-pronged strategy – education, enforcement, and treatment – and major programs in all three areas now exist. The City's efforts earned recognition from the White House as a national model for community intervention.

"We have to do more – there's no doubt about it. But let no one ever say that this community, standing together, buried its head in the sand or paid simple lip service to acknowledging these problems. We meet our challenges head-on," said Koch.

That same leadership style is at the foundation of the City's efforts to revitalize its downtown – something talked about in the City for more than 40 years. Using millions of dollars of federal and state grant funding, major infrastructure projects such as the relocation of the Town Brook and the creation of the Adams Green public space in front of the Church of the Presidents, are either completed or well underway. A bold plan that requires any public infrastructure work to be paid for by new revenue from private investment continues to move forward even after the departure of an original master developer.

"We didn't point fingers, and we didn't wave our arms in the air and complain. We got right back to work, and today the first step of private development is underway and a number of additional developers are moving forward with even more exciting plans," said Koch. "If this were going to be easy, it would've been done in the 1970s. I've never doubted the future of downtown; our partners don't doubt it; and those who do doubt it are going to be disappointed."

The long history of talking about rebuilding Quincy Center mirrors a number of other major projects, also discussed for decades, completed under Mayor Koch's leadership. The City's first senior center welcomes thousands every year. The City's young people now run on Quincy's first regulation running track. The City completed the improvements to Merrymount Park, created new parks and upgraded a number of existing ones.

Under Mayor Koch's leadership, a new Quincy High School was built on time and on budget, and the City earned the highest-possible state payback – 80 percent – for the construction of a new Central Middle School, a project discussed for nearly a half-century.

The Mayor also embarked on a widespread program to improve the City's aging and faltering infrastructure, leveraging millions of dollars for major flood-relief projects, water and sewer line upgrades, road and bridge repairs, and the restoration of roofs, windows and building facades at schools across the City. While many cities and towns were searching for money to upgrade school security systems, Mayor Koch implemented a systematic security plan at every school in Quincy.

The work continues to help spur a surge in private investment across the City, raising property values and creating of hundreds of jobs.

For the first time in a generation, the bell at the historic First Parish Church now rings throughout Quincy Center, one of a litany of historic preservation projects either underway or completed under Mayor Koch's leadership. Most prominently, historic old City Hall, opened in 1849, is undergoing a total restoration. The project, scheduled to be completed this year, has saved a building that was very close to essentially falling down. At the same time, the Quincy Public Schools and a number of City offices have moved into a fully restored Coddington Building, another architectural gem preserved for future generations.

Always with an eye on the City's bottom line, Mayor Koch has completed these projects while protecting the City's financial position, earning a major bond upgrade from Wall Street in 2014, and while dealing with the growing number of unfunded mandates from the federal government. Many of the projects either completed or underway are leveraged by financing outside of the City's general revenue, a fact highlighted by the City's low borrowing levels. As a percentage of all spending, debt accounts for less than 6% of the City's total budget – among the lowest rates of any city in Massachusetts.

"These are projects that are absolutely vital to the City's future. These are exactly the kinds of aggressive and affordable improvements that we need to continue to make to ensure that we leave our children and grandchildren a better Quincy," Koch said.

The mayor's life-long dedication to Quincy doesn't end at the office, as he's actively involved in a number of groups and organizations. Before becoming Mayor, he was chairman of the City's Flag Day Parade and Celebration, one of the largest of its kind in America and started by the Mayor's father, Koch Club founder, Richard J. Koch. When he took office, the Mayor kept his role and continues every year to help organize this landmark local event.

Most importantly, Mayor Koch is a family man, raising children in the city where he was born and loves. He married Christine Keenan in 1990 and they have three children, all students at North Quincy High School: Cornelius Richard, 18, and twins Thomas Jr. and Abigail, 16. The family lives just two doors down from the Mayor's childhood home on Newbury Avenue in North Quincy.

Fallon Ambulance, First Reponse EME Partner To Offer Quincy Paramedic Training Program

Fallon Ambulance Service, the region's largest independently owned ambulance service provider, announces a partnership with First Response EME to bring a Paramedic Training Program to Quincy.

The program provides the instruction and in-the-field training for Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) to upgrade their credential to the Paramedic level. This is the first time that such a training program has been offered by Fallon Ambulance Service, and the first time that it is available in the City of Quincy.

Peter Racicot, Senior Vice President at Fallon Ambulance, said that the instruction will be conducted at the Fallon Ambulance Service Training Facility, 199 Commander Shea Blvd. Fallon Ambulance and First Response EME (Emergency Medical Education) will offer this program beginning on July 7.

While intended initially for Fallon Ambulance Service EMTs looking to upgrade, Racicot said that they will also look to extend the training program to municipal employees (EMTs) and if space permits to EMTs employed at other ambulance companies.

"There is a shortage of Paramedics in Massachusetts," Racicot said. "We see having this instruction available right here in Quincy as a real benefit for our own EMTs who want to advance their career paths, and also a benefit to the community."

Paul Spillane, CEO at First Response EME, said that graduates of the First Response EME program will qualify to receive college credit from Fisher College and Regis College after completing their training. First Response EME is also in the process of affiliating with an additional 10-12 colleges and universities. He mentioned that the credit can be applied to degrees including criminal justice, fire science, public administration, public health, nursing and more.

Spillane said that his school, based in Stoughton, has done training, including recertification, since its inception in 2000. In 2008 they developed a Paramedic Training Program.

The training program is broken into several segments, including a classroom portion, then a clinical internship in a hospital, and then an in-the-field rotation, where the students get to ride with a paramedic crew.

For Spillane, who started his EMS career at Fallon Ambulance, this is an idea come full circle. "We're thrilled to partner with Fallon on this venture in Quincy," he said.

Racicot said, "This is a great opportunity to be able to bring to Quincy. Between First Response EME's talented instructors and strong industry reputation, and our clinical skills and hospital relationships, this will be a first-rate program." Racicot noted that there may be discounts available for enrolling in the program, and ten employees per class will be eligible for scholarships.

June Start For New Sterling School Study

viously we're going to be gearing towards a new Sterling Middle School and not a renovated [one], but that's part of the process," DeCristofaro said.

"They'll submit everything and then our design selection committee will take a look at all of these designs and then we'll decide to maybe interview five or six or seven. Then we come up with our finalists and submit those finalists to the MSBA. Then we go into the MSBA and they'll meet with us and we all decide who is the best candidate."

The MSBA will interview the finalists on May 19 and sign a design contract with the architects by the end of May. After that, school officials will work with the project manager and designer on a feasibility study starting in June.

The study includes a review of the educational program plan for the school and a preliminary design of the building.

"That's when we really work with the Sterling building committee to take a look at the educational programs we want within the school and what are the uniquenesses we need in the new school. From there, that's when you really begin to look a preliminary design of the building," DeCristofaro said.

"When you finish with that, you go back to the MSBA, they say 'OK, you're good,' and you go back to schematic design, which is the next step really looking at the how much space and the land and all that sort of stuff."

DPW To Install New Fire Hydrant Markers

This spring, during the course of regular hydrant maintenance, the DPW will install more markers. Hardy said the department is working with the Quincy Fire Department to determine which style of marker works better.

"The DPW does currently have two types. There is a fiberglass pole that is like a red and white, almost candy-striped thing. Then there is an aluminum pole with an orange flag, like a Day-Glo type thing. We're working with the Fire Department to see which version works best as far as that goes going forward," Hardy said.

"The intent is hopefully when we go out and paint hydrants again commencing in the spring to start installing those. Some were done last year. We're just trying to work out which is the best for our use and for the Fire Department's use."

The DPW also purchased a special GPS unit, which can be used to take pictures of each hydrant. The picture is included in a database, which records each hydrant's location, age, condition, and water pressure. Firefighters can then pull up that information when needed. DPW workers will begin compiling that information in the coming months.

"Currently DPW staff is being trained in that and that's going to be implemented in the spring when we begin our hydrant maintenance process," Hardy said.

Hardy provided the update after Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin introduced a resolution in support of the efforts being made on both fronts by the DPW.

"I think it's critical and I appreciate the efforts, both from your department and the Fire Department working together on this. It's important when the Fire Department responds to a fire that they have all that information available to them at their fingertips – the location, the pressure that's at that location," Coughlin said.

"They don't have to go searching for another hydrant; they know that hydrant is working effectively and when they put the hose up they'll get the pressure they need. I know how successfully it's worked in other places I looked at before introducing this."

Falls Blvd. Explosion Leads To 2 Arrests

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two South Shore men are facing charges following an investigation that began late Saturday night after an explosion on Falls Boulevard in Quincy.

The Quincy Police Department was notified of an explosion involving a motor vehicle at approximately 11:30 p.m. on April 11, according to a statement released by the department Monday. When officers arrived on scene, officers found a 2002 Toyota Camry that had crashed into a wooden guardrail in the vicinity of 200 Falls Blvd., according to the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office.

The driver of the vehicle, 36-year-old Joseph Brennan of Norwell, was taken to Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston with non-life threatening cuts and burns sustained during the explosion inside his moving vehicle, Quincy police said.

The officers who responded to the scene observed suspicious materials inside the Camry and a Boston Police Department bomb squad was called in and determined the vehicle contained various bomb-making components, according to the Quincy police statement. Officers were able to clear the scene with no additional damage or injuries and the vehicle was secured by Quincy police.

Brennan was arraigned Monday on a charge of possession of an infernal device at the hospital. A not guilty plea was entered on his behalf at the arraignment. Norfolk County prosecutors moved to have Brennan held under the state's dangerousness statute. The dangerousness hearing will be held Friday in Quincy District Court if Brennan has been discharged; if not, it will be a status hearing.

The Norwell Police Department was notified of Brennan's arrest shortly after 1 a.m. on Sunday according to a statement released Monday by Theodore Ross, the town's police chief.

The Norwell Police and Fire Departments, Quincy police, Massachusetts State Police, a state hazmat team and FBI and ATF agents responded to Brennan's home on Prospect Street in Norwell, Ross said in the statement, and located precursor components, a detonator, and one completed incendiary device.

As a result of the search, Ross said the Norwell Police Department sought an arrest warrant against Brennan for three counts of possession of a destructive device and one count of possession of component parts capable of making a destructive device.

Ross noted that Brennan's neighbors were not a risk during the incident; the explosives materials were destroyed in a controlled detonation at remote location within Norwell.

The subsequent investigation led law enforcement officials to a home at 18 Back River Rd. in Hingham. Hingham detectives and state troopers assigned to the State Fire Marshal's Office searched the home on Monday, Hingham police said in a statement, and found a small quantity of homemade explosives in violation of state law. A bomb squad was brought in to detonate the explosives in a remote location; no homes in the area were evacuated.

Hingham police plan to summons one resident of the home – 27-year-old Benjamin R. Young –to court on charges related to the items found in the home.

"It does not appear that the explosives found in the home were made with the intention to harm anyone," Hingham police wrote in the statement. "There is no danger to the public."

North Quincy High School Holds Annual Science Fair

AWARD RECIPIENTS of the 2014-2015 Science Fair at North Quincy High School.

North Quincy High School recently held its 57th consecutive Science Fair with a total of 170 participants.

Students enrolled in honors or advanced sciences developed, experimented, and analyzed their own unique scientific experimental projects. They were judged by 66 science-field professionals, alumni, and college students from the community.

The first-place project was the team of senior Wai Ki Chan and junior Wai Yin Chan with their project titled "The Effect of Pollutants on the Surface Tension of Fresh Water."

Second place was awarded to senior Mostafa Elhashash with his project "The Effects of Different Acids and Enzymes on the Degradation of Biodegradable Plastic."

Sophomore Alexander Cox ranked third with his project "The Analysis of Decision Making in Sow Bugs (Porcellio sp.) Between Dietary Needs and Habitat."

The following students received honorable mention for their projects: Abdelrahman Elhashash, Nassim Touil, Han Truong, Magdalena Wierzbowski, Gigi Wong, Alexander DeJesus, Raymond Wong, Quynh Vu, Emily Bryson, Luu Pham, Julia Bryson, and Hannah Naili.

From those 15 projects that qualified, 12 elected to continue on to the Region V Science Fair held at Bridgewater State College in March. Students who place first through third at the regional event are invited to participate at the Massachusetts State Science Fair at Massachusetts Institute of Technology on May 1-2. North Quincy High School had eight students who placed at Regionals. Second place winners were Johanna Yu, Han Truong, Nassim Touil, Luu Pham, and Raymond Wong. Placing third were Alexander DeJesus, Julia Bryson and Emily Bryson.

Senior Johanna Yu has participated in the high school fair for four years, regional level for three years, and one year at the state level. As a sophomore, Johanna placed second, receiving a monetary prize and a special award.

When asked what she has learned from her experiences at science fair, she replied "I've learned how to perform research. I can now present confidently and have learned to practice before speaking. I have learned to take the judge's advice into consideration and be able to take the constructive criticism."

She added, "I have made a few friends at the science fairs. It gives me the opportunity to see other's work. It's impressive."

Creating a science fair project is a long standing tradition within the science curriculum at North Quincy High School. Students learn how to think critically, solve problems through inquiry, perform complex research techniques, and even practice public speaking skills.

North Quincy High School will hold its 58th annual Science Fair next year on Feb. 6, 2016.

Fundraiser To Benefit Saint Yves School May 3

The third annual fundraiser to help rebuild the Saint Yves School in Haiti destroyed in the 2010 earthquake will take place at the Knights of Columbus, 5 Hollis Ave., Quincy, Sunday, May 3 from 6 to 10 p.m.

The event will feature music by the Atlantic Youth Orchestra, dance from Velocity Dance Company, Haitian American food and Italian food from Gennaro's Eatery, raffles and auction.

Tickets are $20 per person and $40 per family. For tickets call 617-347-3037.

Blood Drive Saturday

Quincy Elks, Lodge 943 and HighPoint Apartments will host a blood drive Saturday, April 18 at HighPoint Apartments, 12 HighPoint Circle (off Quarry Street) Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Blood collected at the drive will benefit patients at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and Brigham and Women's Hospital.

People undergoing treatment for cancer, heart disease - as well as accident victims, transplant recipients, babies in the Newborn ICU and many other patients – depend on transfusions to control their bleeding. Volunteer donors are the only source of blood products for these patients.

To schedule an appointment at the drive, email blooddonor@partners.org or call 617-632-3206. . In general, blood donors should be at least 17 years old, 110 pounds or heavier, and in good health.

School Partnership Honors George Burke

Attorney George Burke has pledged to donate $60,000 to The Quincy School-Community Partnership.

Burke, a Platinum Level Partner, received an Appreciation Award from the Partnership in recognition of his ongoing commitment, dedication and support to the Quincy School-Community Partnership. The honor recognizes Burke's many contributions and advocacy for the students and staff of Quincy Public Schools.

The award was presented to Burke at the partnership's recent Recognition Breakfast held at the Tirrell Room.

CPR Course May 5

Health Ed of New England will hold a CPR AED certification course for childcare providers and the public Tuesday, May 5 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

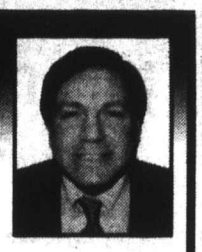
DENTISTRY for the 21st Century



by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

FILM REVIEW

We primarily brush our teeth daily (hopefully two to three times daily) to remove the buildup of food debris, mucus, and bacteria that naturally coats teeth with a layer of film. This bacteria-laden film, called "plaque," coats each tooth individually. If not removed, it can lead to inflammation, infection, and other health problems. While plaque can easily be removed by brushing after it initially forms, it begins to harden after 48 hours. If not removed, the material solidifies into a substance known as "tartar" that requires removal with sharp scraping instruments in the dentist's office. To prevent tartar from attacking ligaments and bone that hold teeth in the mouth, it is essential to prevent plaque from reaching damaging levels.

Have you ever run your tongue along the front of your teeth and felt a slimy coating? That "fuzzy-toothed" feeling is the buildup of bacteria. We invite you to call 617 479-6220 to schedule an appointment for experienced and comprehensive dentistry. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we provide the very best care with state-of-the-art technology. If you don't have a dentist at this time, we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Regular flossing helps keep plaque from building up in between teeth, where a toothbrush might not reach.

BEFORE LAYING a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia at 2:15 p.m. April 9 - National Former POW Recognition Day – Bob Noble and members of his family and friends were among several hundred onlookers who observed the traditional changing of the guard at the Tomb. 'A Tremendous Honor' For Quincy's Bob Noble

Bob Noble is a humble man who for many years never spoke about his time in captivity. He was serving with the 87th Infantry Division when he and other soldiers were captured on Dec. 16, 1944 in Alsace-Lorraine in France on the "Western Front." This was the same day that the Germans began an offensive attack that would become "The Battle of the Bulge," a key turning point in World War II.

Bob's good friend, Charlie Walsh, was among his friends who accompanied him on the trip to D.C. He spoke highly of Bob, calling him and other ex-POWs heroes.

"I can't speak enough about the heroism these guys exhibited," Walsh said as the Noble group waited for a tram that took them from a Senate office building underground to the Capitol for a tour last Friday.

"They went in on the boats on D-Day, braving machine gun fire, combat from the beaches of Normandy to Belgium and France and most of these guys got captured in the Battle of the Bulge and became MIA (Missing in Action) and then POWs.

"Bob lost about 40 pounds in 122 days. That speaks to the treatment these ex-POWs received. Bob was lucky that they emptied out the camps in January running away from the Russians. He was lucky in that he was put on a boxcar because he couldn't walk and if you couldn't walk, they shot you or turned the dogs on you.

"The boxcars were equally dangerous because they weren't marked and often times they were attacked by British and American fliers. If you were lucky, you lived through it.

"Bob was one of the lucky ones."

Walsh called the wreath-laying ceremony "absolutely moving."

"To think that after all these years we still remember – and it's gratifying as a veteran to say 'look at the honor' and it's not unappreciated by the United States."

The ceremony was over – lasting just a few minutes. The wreath placed squarely in front of the Tomb situated on a hill overlooking Washington, D.C. From there it would remain for a time and, according to protocol, when removed it would be placed on the steps on the other side of the tomb for 12 hours.

Then Bob Noble had an idea. After its time at the Tomb he wanted to place the wreath at the World War II Memorial located on the National Mall between the Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial.

"I knew it would be removed and placed on the other side of the Tomb. I thought it would be on display a lot longer (at the Memorial) than it would be at the Tomb," Bob said.

So, he asked Col. Aberle for permission to relocate the wreath to the memorial. Arrangements were made and at 2:30 p.m. Friday afternoon, Bob and his family placed the wreath near the memorial's reflecting pool and gold stars that represent the 400,000 U.S. servicemen and women who were killed during World War II.

Bob was also given a warm reception at the WWII memorial. School children from Indiana thanked him for his service and some had their pictures taken with Bob.

All the flowers on the wreath were left intact – except for one.

Gloria's yellow rose.

That flower was given to daughter Andrea White who will create a family keepsake with it.

"I was very pleased that my grandchildren were with me at the World War II memorial when we placed the wreath there," Bob said.

"This whole experience was a tremendous honor that I never expected would happen but it's something I will never forget."

'Laying The Wreath At The Tomb Was For All World War II Veterans And Ex-POWs'

QUINCY'S ROBERT NOBLE, a U.S. Army veteran of World War II and ex-Prisoner of War, places a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia on April 9 - National POW Recognition Day. Noble was held captive for 122 days during World War II and was liberated with other POWs April 16, 1945 - 70 years ago today. With Noble are two of his children - son Robert Noble, Jr. and daughter Alicia Gardner. Escorting Noble to the wreath was Major General Jeffrey Buchanan, commanding general, U.S. Army Military District of Washington. Assisting with the placing the wreath on the rack is Specialist Drew C. Glover, U.S. Army Third Infantry Regiment "The Old Guard." At right is bugler Master Sergeant Christian Hinkle from the United States Army Band "Pershing's Own." In the photo below, Robert Noble bows his head and meditates after the wreath is placed at the Tomb. A Sentinel - one of the Tomb's guards - can be seen standing in the guard shack (center).

Home Management In The Digital Age

Home automation is becoming all the rage, but many homeowners balk at rigging up remotely controlled thermostats or security systems because they're concerned about the cost or about locking into contracts.

And some DIY'ers don't want automation, but they do want to bring a little order into the chaos of home maintenance and improvement. Fortunately, the explosion of mobile apps is making life a bit easier ... and at an affordable price.

Here are some of the latest connected devices that aim to make home management, automation and security easier:

• BrightNest: This home maintenance app for iOS (think iPhones and iPads) and Android platforms helps you set up a maintenance schedule and offers helpful tips on cleaning and maintenance. Free. (brightnest.com, App Store or Google Play)

• Cozi Family: Need to assign chores to the kids or split up home-maintenance tasks? This app can do that. It also syncs with everyone's device from a single account and has a simple interface. Free. (www.cozi.com, App Store or Google Play)

• HomeZada: This desktop software allows you to make an inventory of all your home's systems for free. For $59 a year, it gives you maintenance reminders and instructions, a calendar, a remodeling budget tool and more. (www.homezada.com)

• Nest: While this startup company's physical products include a "learning thermostat" and a smoke/CO detector, both of which can be controlled remotely, it's also partnering with other tech firms to connect systems in and outside your home -- from your car to your fitness wristband and more. Products can be found online or at home-improvement stores, and start at $99 for the smoke/CO detector. (nest.com)

• Notion: This home-sensor system goes beyond the standard security system: It senses pretty much anything you want it to, whether it's an open garage door, an almost-empty propane tank or a window being lifted. The system sends a message to your smartphone. Sensors along with a necessary Wi-Fi bridge are available on line and start at $129. (getnotion.com)

TIP: Home security starts with good maintenance, so make sure windows are in good shape and lock tightly, and install sturdy deadbolts at entrance doors.

Donation Drive Benefits Father Bill's

The Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors (PASS) is hosting a donation drive now through May 19th to benefit individuals and families served by Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS) who are moving into housing.

PASS is a professional REALTOR® trade organization consisting of over 2,500 members in 24 communities from the Neponset River Bridge to the Cape Cod Canal. As an Association, they are committed to giving back to the communities where their members live and work.

Each year, the Community Service Committee works with local housing related nonprofits to raise awareness of a charity's mission and provide assistance by hosting events and donation drives. Father Bill's & MainSpring is thrilled that they have been selected by PASS as a beneficiary of this year's donation drive.

"PASS is excited to partner with a great organization such as Father Bill's & MainSpring to help prevent homelessness," stated PASS Community Service Committee Chairperson Kathy Judge. "As Realtors we understand the comfort and stability a home provides. We are grateful for the opportunity to help individuals and families set up homes and become self sufficient."

PASS' "Welcome Home" donation drive will collect new items to be given to individuals and families served by FBMS who are moving into housing. The "Welcome Home" bags consist of basic essential any person moving into their first place would need, such as linens, cookware, cleaning supplies, and much more. The items are then given to program participants in reusable totes.

"Father Bill's & MainSpring relies on in-kind donations to offset costs of purchasing essentials that are needed to help those we serve become self-sufficient," said FBMS President and CEO John Yazwinski. "We are grateful that organizations such as PASS share our commitment to helping our neighbors."

All new items collected in this drive will be collected at various PASS Realtor offices throughout the South Shore. For a list of participating REALTOR® offices, visit the PASS website www.PassRealtors.com.

Spring Fashion Show April 27

A Spring Fashion Show will take place at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy on Monday, April 27th at 1:30 p.m.

The show will feature new spring fashions and accessories provided by Caryn's Corner and modeled by ladies from the community.

To register for this event, call the Quincy Council on Aging at (617) 376-1506.

O'Donnell PASS Speaker May 6

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will be the guest speaker for the Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors, Inc. (PASS) on Wednesday, May 6 at 10 a.m. at PASS central office, 48 Schoosett St. (Route 139), Pembroke.

O'Donnell will speak on subjects of timely interest to Realtors and homeowners, including the most recent changes in the Homestead Law and the current national scam that is taking place with regards to paying an artificially exorbitant price for a deed, instead of paying a few dollars at your local Registry.

The Register will also discuss the historical nature of the Registry – some documents dating all the way back to 1793 - and his ongoing efforts to make accessing these records easier than ever through the latest technological advances. O'Donnell will demonstrate how the Registry's On-Line Land Records Database works by giving PASS members the opportunity to look up documents or to print a copy of their deed.

As part of his Registry of Deeds community outreach initiative, O'Donnell offers these on-line services to both residents and businesses interested in researching Norfolk County registry information. The next computer seminar is scheduled at the Registry for Tuesday, May 6th from 4:30 to 5:30p.m. It is free of charge.
